Celebrate '93 draws a crowd!

Juggler Ken Sherburne thrills the crowd at Cohasset's "Celebrate '93" sponsored by the community center. About 1,500 people packed the village last week to herald the start of 1993. The five-hour extravaganza was chock full of family fun. For more photos, please see pages 10 & 11).

Cohasset FY'94 budget season opens

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

The fiscal year 1994 budget season began in earnest Monday night.

Long faces were the norm as selectmen said debated a range of requests from increasing employee hours to new computers.

The drama unfolded as department heads and committee chairmen each made their case.

• Stephen Wigmore, superintendent of the wire department, spoke with the most emotion when the board cut the $15,577 salary for his part-time helper.

"I felt bad about it when I spoke with (Executive Secretary) Greg (Doyon) a few weeks ago and I feel bad about it now," Wigmore said his voice cracking.

"I built this department and I don't want to see it torn down anymore."

Selectmen said they could not justify two people in the department. They also asked that Wigmore maintain work orders to document his jobs and the time spent on them.

• Animal Control Officer William Quigley fared slightly better.

The board increased Quigley's hours from 12 to 15 per week. Quigley is paid $10.12 per hour, which will be at total of $7,923 in FY'94 up about $1,900 over this year.

Railroad study committee chosen

Cohasset's interests are represented on the Citizens' Advisory Committee (C.A.C.) for the Old Colony Railroad project.

Susan Tierney, secretary of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (E.O.E.A.) re-designated Martha K. Gjesteby, 81 Old Pasture Rd., and Deborah Cook, 281 King St. to the C.A.C.

Edward Fegreus, 25 N. Main St., is a new appointee.

The previous committee was appointed in 1986 when the environmental impact review process for the Old Colony Railroad Rehabilitation Project began.

The C.A.C. will provide assistance in the preparation of the Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Report/Statement (SDEIR/S) for the project.

The SDEIR/S will build on the framework of the Panel grills police chief finalists

By Andrew MacLellan

The six candidates for Cohasset police chief knew all the answers when grilled by selectmen Tuesday so experience may weigh heavily when the board meets to name its appointment Jan. 19.

The applicants — three from within the Cohasset police department and three from out-of-town — were asked similar and in some cases identical, questions concerning their prospective duties and the role of law enforcement in the '90s.

The position opened officially in August, when former police chief Joseph M. Kealey tendered his letter of resignation. Kealey stepped down from his post Dec.

Cohasset's week

Burning season opens

The 1993 Open Burning Season in Cohasset begins Jan. 15.

Permits are issued on a daily basis. Residents seeking a burning permit should call the Fire Department business line, 383-0616, on the day burning will be conducted.

The following information will be requested of you:

* Name (of responsible party supervising the fire)
* Address (where burning will be conducted)
* Type of materials to be burned.

Burning shall be conducted between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. and shall be conducted on land proximate to the place of generation.

Burning shall be conducted at a location greater than 75 feet from any building and Burning of leaves, grass, hay, and stumps is prohibited.

Burning shall not cause a nuisance.

A complete set of rules for Open Burning is available for review at Fire Headquarters, 44 Elm St.

Permit issuance may be suspended at any time by the Fire Department due to environmental conditions or noncompliance with the rules by a permit holder. Permits are issued between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. at 383-0616.

Safety should be a primary concern. A water hose, tools, and constant supervision of an active fire are strongly recommended.

Burning season ends May 1.

RTF permits on sale

Recycling Transfer Facility (RTF) permits for 1993 went on sale Wednesday, Jan. 6. The fee is $55 for the first vehicle at a residence and $25 for the second vehicle. For persons living alone, the fee is $28. Please bring the registration of the vehicle(s) with you.

Permits are on sale at the RTF during normal hours of operation and at the Board of Health office when the Town Hall is open.

No one will be admitted to the RTF after Jan. 31 without a new permit.

Tax bills mailed

The third quarterly Fiscal 1993 real estate and personal property tax bills are due to the Treasurer/Collector's office no later than 4:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 1.

Postmark dates are not accepted. No exceptions.

The mailing address for tax payments is: Treasurer-Collector's Office, P.O. Box 296, Cohasset 02025. For those taxpayers who wish to pay their taxes in person our office hours for Jan. 25 through Feb. 1 are: Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Monday, Feb. 1, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A number of bills have been returned to the office due to improper mailing addresses. Any property owner who has not received a tax bill should call the Collector's office at the Town Hall, 383-9900, extension 113. Failure to receive a tax bill does not waive payment of the tax and does not excuse the homeowner from interest charges on payments received after the due date.

Gjesteby will run again

Selectman vice-chairman Martha K. Gjesteby will seek a third term on the board.

Gjesteby, who has also served on the school committee, planning board, and capital budget committee, said she expects to be challenged for the seat.

"I always have competition," she says. "But I don't run against anybody."

Gjesteby said her experience will bring stability to the board, which gained two new members last spring.

Although nominations papers were available at the town clerk's office for just two days Tuesday (Jan. 5), several other incumbents have thrown their hats into the ring by Mariner press time.

Interim Town Moderator George L. Marlette III, 31 Rustic Dr., has taken out papers for a three-year term in that post. Marlette was appointed by selectmen last fall to fill the unexpired term of former moderator William D. Weeks, who stepped down after serving nearly 12 years.

Edward M. "Ted" Guild, 365 Jerusalem Rd., is running for his fifth term on the board of sewer commissioners.

And Richard P. Barrow, 283 King St., will seek his fourth term on the recreation commission.

Sick leave abuse?

Fire Chief John Nadeau will report to selectmen on the use of sick leave in his department in three months.

Selectmen asked Nadeau to review the sick leave taken in his department because sick-leave hours are double what was budgeted for, Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said.

The issue was raised when Nadeau requested $900 for an incentive program to cut down on the number of sick days taken.

Sullivan said eight people in the department had taken more than ten days of sick leave and some had taken as many as 19.

"As far as I know, sick leave is for when you're sick," Sullivan said.

"There's a real problem there as far as I can see for moral and culture."

Nadeau said steps can be taken in the contract but he has resisted doing so because he's not sure they would be effective.

Sullivan said one shift group seemed to use more sick days than any other shift. He noted that a large number of the force takes very few sick days.

Thirty-four hours per week were budgeted in FY'93 for sick leave. But there are about 73 sick leave hours per week being used, according to the budget report. Nadeau is requesting 53 hours per week for FY'94.

Nadeau said firefighters can be terminated if sick leave is abused.

Applicants for ConCom

Selectmen have the difficult job of choosing just two of the three qualified candidates for two associate member seats on the town conservation commission.

The board interviewed three Cohasset citizens who applied for the positions Monday.

The fourth applicant, Margaret Charles, 85 Linden Dr., withdrew her application because she is also a registrar which is a conflict, she said.

Edward S. Graham, Jr., 715b Jerusalem Road, a businessman, said as a homeowner in Cohasset he is "interested in protecting the environment and wetlands."

Robin Grinnell, 63 Sohier St., a homemaker, who sits on the recycling committee, said she would like "to see the natural beauty of Cohasset preserved."

And Alison Smith Piasecki, 56 Summer St., a real estate attorney, said she could give the time commitment required and wanted "to give something back to the community."

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said the town "is blessed to have such strong candidates."

She said the board would make a recommendation in about a month. In the meantime, the candidates plan to attend conservation commission meetings.

Voters okayed adding the positions of associate members to the conservation commission at town meeting last year.

Abatement deadline set

Applications for over-assessment must be received by the board of assessors before 4:30 p.m., Feb. 1.

Executive mins. released

At the request of the firefighters union, Cohasset Permanent Firefighters Local 2804, selectmen released the minutes of their executive session conducted Sept. 28.

In the executive session the board discussed what action to take regarding "threats" to the new call firefighting recruits.

The board decided to go public in a letter issuing a strong reprimand to the town's veteran firefighters. The letter was released during the board's Oct. 5 meeting.

State union officials denied both applying pressure and making threats. But, Robert McCarthy, president of the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts, did say that encountering resistance to the addition of call firefighters to a department is not unusual.

"They (call firefighters) shouldn't be doing our work. When it comes to taking away paid jobs, we are concerned," he told the Mariner in October.

Nadeau said the call force augments and does not replace career firefighters in Cohasset.

Call lieutenant chosen

On the recommendation of Fire Chief John Nadeau, selectmen appointed William Brooks to the position of lieutenant of the newly created fourth call division company.

"The vacancy was announced several weeks ago, inviting call firefighters with three or more years experience to apply," Nadeau said.

He said rating factors included fire experience, education, training, supervisory experience, human relations skills, technical knowledge, and past response performance.

The competition among the three candidates who came forward was stiff, Nadeau said.

"Billy is a 25-year veteran of the Cohasset Call Division," he said. "He is employed on a full-time basis with Scituate as an equipment maintenance supervisor and is also responsible for fire apparatus maintenance in Scituate.

"Billy brings to the position an impressive response history, a considerable amount of fire-duty experience, and compassion for his peers."

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said he was concerned that Brooke lived out of town in Scituate.

Nadeau said that was no problem.

"Billy's response record is one of the best," he said.

In December, selectmen appointed ten new call firefighters bringing the call force up to 21-members.

The call force augments the career fire-fighting force.

Ripley says thanks

Treasurer/collector Elizabeth B. Ripley thanked the following volunteers from the Council on Aging who came to town hall Dec. 28 and stuffed, sealed, and counted more than 3,000 real estate and personal property tax bills: Tilly Nardo, Dorothea Bjorkgren, Jacqueline Moores, Ann Leonard, Dorothy Burns, Mary Andracchio, Shirley Laidlaw, Libby Pompeo, Elizabeth Abell, Mary Migliaccio, Olga Sawchuck, Sheila Kelly, Mary Keating, Eileen Kurtz, and Lillian Lincoln.

Nussdorfer appointed

Daniel Nussdorfer of Jerusalem Road is the newest addition to the computer study committee.

He was appointed by selectmen Dec. 21.

The computer study committee reviews the needs of all town departments for computerization and is attempting to develop a universal networking system for the computerized town offices.

Executive Secretary Greg Doyon said Nussdorfer is an asset to the committee because he has worked in private enterprise on municipal computer systems.

Nomination papers ready

Nomination papers for the town election on Saturday, April 3, are available at the Town Clerks office.

The last day for candidates to obtain nomination papers is Thursday, Feb. 11 until 7 p.m.

All nomination papers must be submitted to the registrars of voters for certification of names and addresses on or before 5 p.m., Monday, Feb. 15.

Panel grills police chief candidates . . .

31, and the 18-man department is being run on a rotating basis by three subordinates — Sgt. Brian W. Noonan, Sgt. Robert W. Jackson and Sgt. Richard B. Abbadessa.

All three men were named finalists after the police chief search committee completed its review of 87 applications.

The other candidates are Craig B. Hall Sr., the police chief in Falmouth, Me.; James E. Lysaght Jr., a captain with the Bristol, Conn. police department; and Thomas P. Shamshak, the police chief in Spencer.

The six men were selected from a final list of 15 candidates reviewed by a selectmen subcommittee consisting of members Martha Gjesteby and Michael H. Sullivan. In a series of half-hour sessions Tuesday, the full board asked each candidate a battery of questions.

Budgetary issues, the role of the nationwide drug program D.A.R.E. (Drug Awareness and Resistance Education) in Cohasset schools, the future impact of civilian dispatchers and enhanced 911 on the department and the chief's relationship with his staff and the community ranked as the board's key concerns.

Selectmen were more specific with the local candidates, asking about morale, computer needs in the department, perceived difficulties in the transition from peer to supervisor and the need for additional officer training.

Each candidate opened with a brief resumé summary before responding to the direct questions. The three outside candidates stated they wished to move to Cohasset specifically because of its excellent schools, coastal flavor and proximity to Boston.

Selectmen did not disclose the how much the job will pay. Upon his resignation, Kealey was drawing an annual salary of $56,000 plus benefits.

• Craig Hall — Police chief in Falmouth, Me. since 1985, Hall oversees a 13-man department in a town of 8,000 people. Between 1981 and 1985, Hall, 44, also served as police chief in Bar Harbor and Searsport.

A Cape Cod native, he served as a detective with the Harwich police department from 1970 until 1978 before taking a position in Auburn, Me.

Selectmen Rocco Laugelle questioned Hall's frequent transfers but gained the candidate's assurance that he intends to remain in Cohasset if appointed.

Hall holds an associate degree in criminal justice from Cape Cod Community College and has had training in business administration, narcotics investigation, systems management, rape prevention, crime scene search, stress management and labor relations.

He is a member and past president of the Maine Chiefs of Police Association and is also a member of the New England and International chapters.

• James Lysaght — A captain in the Bristol, Conn. police department since 1990, he is presently serving as acting chief following his superior's resignation. Bristol has a 103-man police force in a town of 60,000 and an operating budget of more than $6.5 million. Lysaght is one of seven semi-finalists for the Bristol chief's position.

He holds a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Connecticut and master's degree in public administration from the University of New Haven. He attended the Wethersfield School of Law for two years.

A police officer in Bristol since 1972, Lysaght rose through the ranks and is currently responsible for the direction and supervision of all personnel in training and communications section and the court and records division. He also serves as coordinator of the computer system, the budget, staff inspections and acts as liaison officer to the Bristol emergency medical services committee.

• Thomas Shamshak — Police chief in Spencer since 1990, he is in charge of a more than 30 staff and officers in a town of 11,500.

Shamshak, 42, began as a patrolman with the Somerville police department in 1978 and by 1988 reached the rank of lieutenant, supervising 29 officers as night watch commander. He is a part-time lecturer in police operations, public administration and criminal investigation at Anna Maria College and Middlesex Community College and has conducted more than 1,000 hours of training as a police trainer.

Shamshak holds an associates degree in liberal arts from Cambridge Community College, a bachelor's degree in sociology from Suffolk University and a master's degree in administration and planning from Northeastern University. He ranked first in his class at the Boston Police Academy in a class of 36 recruits.

• Brian Noonan — Noonan, 47, a life-long resident of Cohasset, began serving with the Cohasset police department in 1974.

He has served as court prosecutor which includes preparation and presentation of criminal cases before the District Court. He was promoted to Sergeant in 1986 and serves as commander of the 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. shift.

Noonan is a U.S. Navy veteran and worked as a pipe fitter on board the aircraft carrier USS Lake Champlain from 1964 to 1966. Following his honorable discharge, he was employed in the private sector for seven years, leaving a job as planning engineer with Stone and Webster Engineering Corp. of Boston to enter law enforcement.

• Robert Jackson — Jackson, a 1980 graduate of the Brockton Police Academy, has served as a Cohasset police officer since 1979. He was promoted to sergeant in 1983 and has served for one term on the water commission.

A 30-year resident of Cohasset, Jackson holds a previous Old Colony Draft EIR/S, Tierney said, and will evaluate all significant environmental impacts of the project alternatives.

Environmental impacts to be evaluated include: community disruption; land acquisition and displacement; traffic at stations, boat terminals, park/ride lots, railroad grade crossings and traffic in the Lincoln National Register Historic District in Hingham; regional and local air quality; noise; vibration; water quality; wetland resources; floodplain; Areas of Critical Environmental Concern (A.C.E.C.s); coastal zone resources; community facilities; archaeological and historical.

Mitigation measures must be explored and developed for any adverse impacts that are identified, Tierney said.

Tierney determined that the following six alternatives shall be evaluated in detail: (1) no build; (2) at-grade diesel-powered commuter rail service to Scituate; (3) diesel-powered commuter rail to Scituate with a tunnel through Hingham square; (4) commuter boat with an expanded Hingham Terminal and feeder bus service; (5) commuter boat with an expanded Hingham terminal and new terminals at Nantasket and/or Quincy and feeder bus service; (6) expanded bus service and park/ride lots.

Tierney also asked that the MBTA explain in detail why the alternatives of a bus lane on Route 3; a monorail on Route 3; truncated commuter rail service on the Greenbush Line; electrified rail service; commuter boat service to the Fore River in Quincy; and a bus alternative involving fuel conversions for feeder buses have been dropped from consideration.

Gjesteby, who is vice-chairman of the board of selectmen, is a vocal proponent of restored rail service to the South Shore. She said the local economy depends on it.

Cook, who serves on the town advisory committee, said she plans to examine the environmental ramifications of the project and prefers not to take a public stand for or against restoration of the Greenbush Line.

Cook did say that people should look at the cost of the project both financially and environmentally. She said MBTA projections estimate that the Greenbush Line would attract only 1,500 riders who would ordinarily drive to Boston. The rest of the riders would come from existing forms of mass transit, she said.

"I totally believe in mass transit but I am troubled by the cost for a small net return," she said.

Fegreus, an attorney who commutes to Boston daily, said he's looking forward to getting to work on the review.

"I am very interested in rail service if it is done correctly," he said. "I would like to see it brought to the South Shore if done in a way that it does not adversely affect any community in particular.

"I also do not want to see commuter boats reduced. It's a wonderful service," he said.

MBTA officials said the SDEIR/S should take about 18 months to complete.

Chief Kealey quietly steps aside

Former Cohasset Police Chief Joseph M. Kealey quietly stepped down from the position he's held for a decade last week and moved to Florida.

Police Sgt. Brian Noonan said Kealey wasn't looking for applause.

"He's a very class individual and he didn't seek popularity," Noonan said. "He just wanted to get the job done with as little fanfare as possible."

Kealey, 58, was adamant that he was not retiring and was leaving his options open.

"I've enjoyed every day I've worked for the town," he told the Mariner after giving his notice in August. "But it's time to make a change."

Selectman vice-chairman Martha K. Gjesteby praised Kealey's fairness and attention to detail.

"He always submitted a balanced budget," she said. "And he treated people fairly."

Tuesday night, selectmen interviewed six finalists for the chief's position (see story page one).

Kealey, who lived in Marshfield, served with the Cohasset police department for 27 years, ten as chief.

He was appointed to replace former Police Chief John DeBassio in March 1983 after serving four months as acting chief following DeBassio's resignation.

Cohasset Sgts. Noonan, Robert Jackson, and Richard Abbadessa are candidates for the job. The sergeants are currently serving as "acting" chief on a rotating basis during the day. Having the sergeants fill in as chief while working their regular shifts was unacceptable to the police union.

bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Virginia, a bachelor's degree in law enforcement from Northeastern University and is a graduate of that university's School of Criminology.

A decorated Navy veteran, Jackson served two tours in Vietnam and is currently a commander in the Naval reserves.

• Richard Abbadessa — Abbadessa has served in the Cohasset police department since 1972, attaining the rank of sergeant in 1990.

He serves as the department's firearms training supervisor and assists the chief in applications for firearm identification cards.

The owner of Abbadessa's Service Station in Hingham from 1965 to 1985, he points to his involvement in the business sector as an asset to community relations.

Abbadessa is past president of the Cohasset Police Association, and the recipient of the Robert Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement, a citation for bravery in the line of duty.

He has taken courses with the FBI's Criminal Justice Training Council in firearms instruction and at the Quincy Police Academy among others.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FROM ROCKLAND TRUST:

IBC INDEPENDENT BANK CORP.
Parent of Rockland Trust Company
288 Union Street
Rockland, Massachusetts 02370
(617) 878-6100

January, 1993

Dear Friends,

Nineteen ninety-two was an eventful year for Rockland Trust Company.

Independent Bank Corp., parent of Rockland Trust Company, has successfully completed a $23 million offering of common stock. Many of you who are our customers and neighbors throughout Southeastern Massachusetts invested in the 9.2 million shares that were sold. With this additional equity, Rockland Trust Company now stands on a financially sound foundation. In fact, the capital ratio of Independent Bank Corp. and Rockland Trust Company exceeds that of the largest commercial banks located in New England. We are now in a strong position to meet the financial needs of individuals and businesses in the communities we serve.

This important financial achievement allows us - and you - to look to the future with confidence. We will continue to focus our efforts on being a valued part of our community and building a strong partnership with you in the years to come.

This partnership begins today. We have the resources to help local businesses grow, home buyers obtain financing, or individuals plan for their retirement or finance their children's education.

The employees of Rockland Trust Company thank you for your continued confidence in the Bank, and together, we can all look forward to a brighter, new year.

Sincerely,

John F. Spence, Jr.

❑ By now, everyone knows about Gary Ritts and his efforts to go to Appalachia every year. He and his able group have done wonders! Get involved with their fund-raiser, for Super Bowl Sunday (Jan 31) – order a sub sandwich! More details will follow, stay tuned (and hungry for a delicious sub)...great idea for all! (P.S., get the recipe from Victoria's for their chicken stir fry, everyone will be thrilled!)

❑ Congrats go to Cohasset's own Paul Donovan, Senator Ted Kennedy's long-time press secretary. Paul was named the senior senator's chief of staff recently, replacing Frances "Ranny" Cooper, who is leaving Kennedy's office in January for a job with the Sawyer Miller Group. Paul has been Ted's aide since 1987 when he became press secretary for the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee that Kennedy chaired...anyway, you are chief of staff now, congrats!

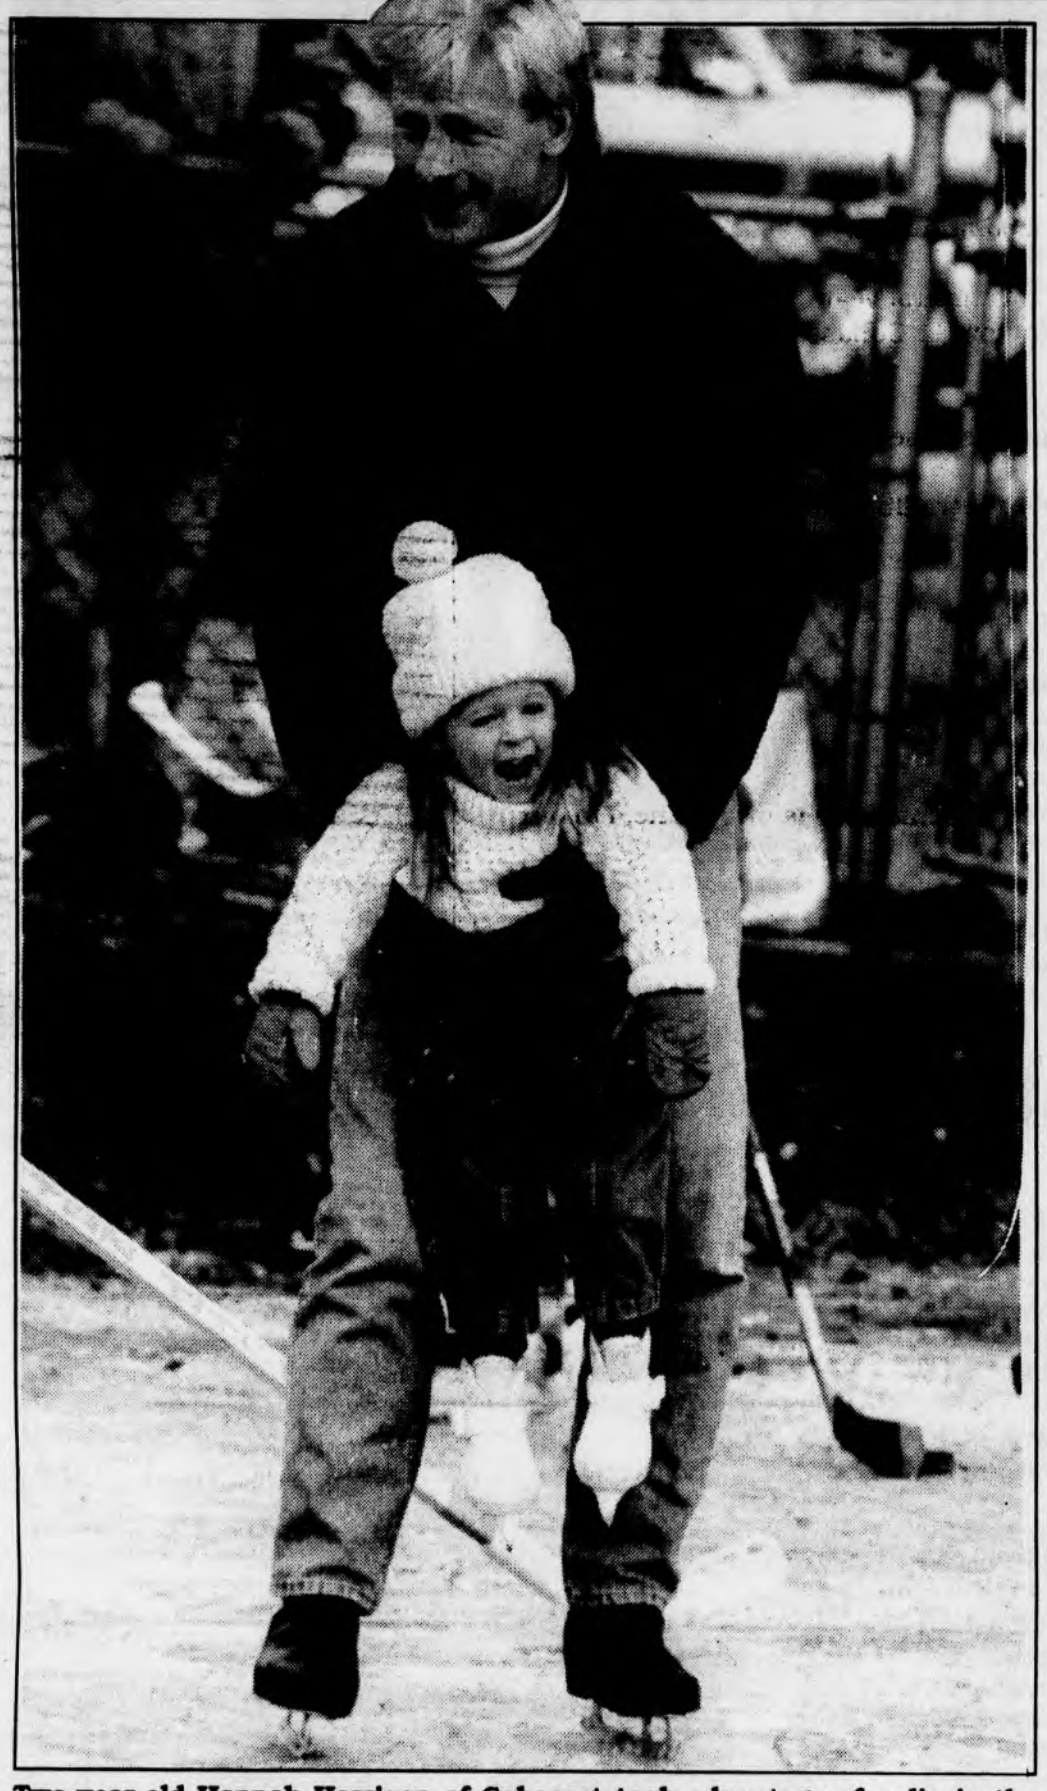
❑ We sure hope that Henry Rattenbury had a wonderful holiday season...Henry, one of our favorite mailmen, has been "off the beat" recently, due to surgery he had to undergo. Henry is fine, thank you, and all is well with him, we just wish him continued rapid recovery. Everyone misses you, Henry.

❑ Colby Lawrence, daughter of Dr. Robin and Marylou Lawrence and a junior at Noble and Greenough Dedham, has been elected Co-Captain of the Girls' Varsity soccer team for the 1993 season. Noble and Greenough School is a 126-year-old independent, coeducational day and boarding school for students in grades 7-12, located in Dedham.

❑ We wonder how Greg Derr did in his latest quest to qualify for the gold...everyone knows what a fine photographer he is, just look at past issues of the Mariner; well, he also shoots a gun at Marshfield Rod and Gun Club, and he has been named to the national shooting team, based on his three qualifying meets held in Virginia and California.

Greg is only 32, that's very young for pistol shooters (the average age is 60 for team efforts...) Greg is now a photographer for the Patriot Ledger, and has been involved in high-level competitive shooting for several years, setting records in U.S.-style shooting events, but it was his skill in international-style events that earned him a berth on the national team.

The international sport of free pistol, which Greg shoots for the national team, is dominated by Eastern Europeans. Like many top shooters, he uses a Russian-made .22 caliber pistol. Competitors have 2 1/2 hours to fire 60 shots at a paper target 50 meters away. No matter what, Greg is the Mariner's own, and we certainly hope he will keep us informed as to what happens in his quest for the gold...we are all rooting for you Greg!!



Two-year-old Hannah Harrison of Cohasset took advantage of a dip in the temperature last week to get an elevated skating lesson from her dad Tim at the Hingham Skating Club. (Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

❑ If you work or shop in Boston, stop by the Bank of Boston's art gallery on 100 Federal Street and see the exhibition by South Shore Art Center gallery artists!! The bank is hosting the exhibit through Jan. 15. Gallery artists are displaying works representing a variety of artistic disciplines.

The gallery is located in the bank's lobby, which receives nearly 15,000 passersby daily. Go and see what our fair community has done while you are on your way to "shop 'til you drop"...isn't it great that our local artists can have the opportunity to "show themselves off??"

❑ We would guess that several local business people can celebrate a grand Christmas season, the economy certainly did improve!! Take for example, Dazzle, owned by Joan and Phil Shockman of Cohasset fame. Granted they have trained technicians on the premises, they also have wonderful earrings that don't bother ears...a dynamite duo that guaranteed there would be lots of little ones happy for the New Year...you know, they are our people (you will love them). Support them and their business efforts...you'll be glad that you did (especially if you have sensitive ears!!).

❑ Many of us were appreciative of "Santa", Joseph Cabral, that is, for all of our needs to talk to the North Pole... Cohasset Knoll did it all (under the direction of Mary Steele)...Joe stayed on the "hotline" for lots of hours, the kiddos loved him (he really did a super job) and everyone got what they really wanted.. .isn't that great????

❑ As one who lives "in the area" we sure hope that the O'Neills are able to replace the flagpole that was so badly destroyed in our winter "hurricane"...it's almost like the clock at Wayne Robbins, everyone depends on it (Robbins for the time, O'Neill's for the wind direction...) in either case, its always been a landmark, so, let us bring back the flag!!

ELDRED WHEELER REPRODUCTIONS: THE NEXT GENERATION OF ANTIQUES.

Eldred Wheeler's hand-made, authentic reproductions are destined to become tomorrow's antiques.

It has to do with our commitment to quality. Our attention to detail. And, of course, our centuries-old craftsmanship techniques.

Our reproduction pieces pay tribute not only to 18th century furniture designs, but also to the spirit and values of 18th century cabinetmakers.

It's the next generation of antiques, affordably priced for this generation.

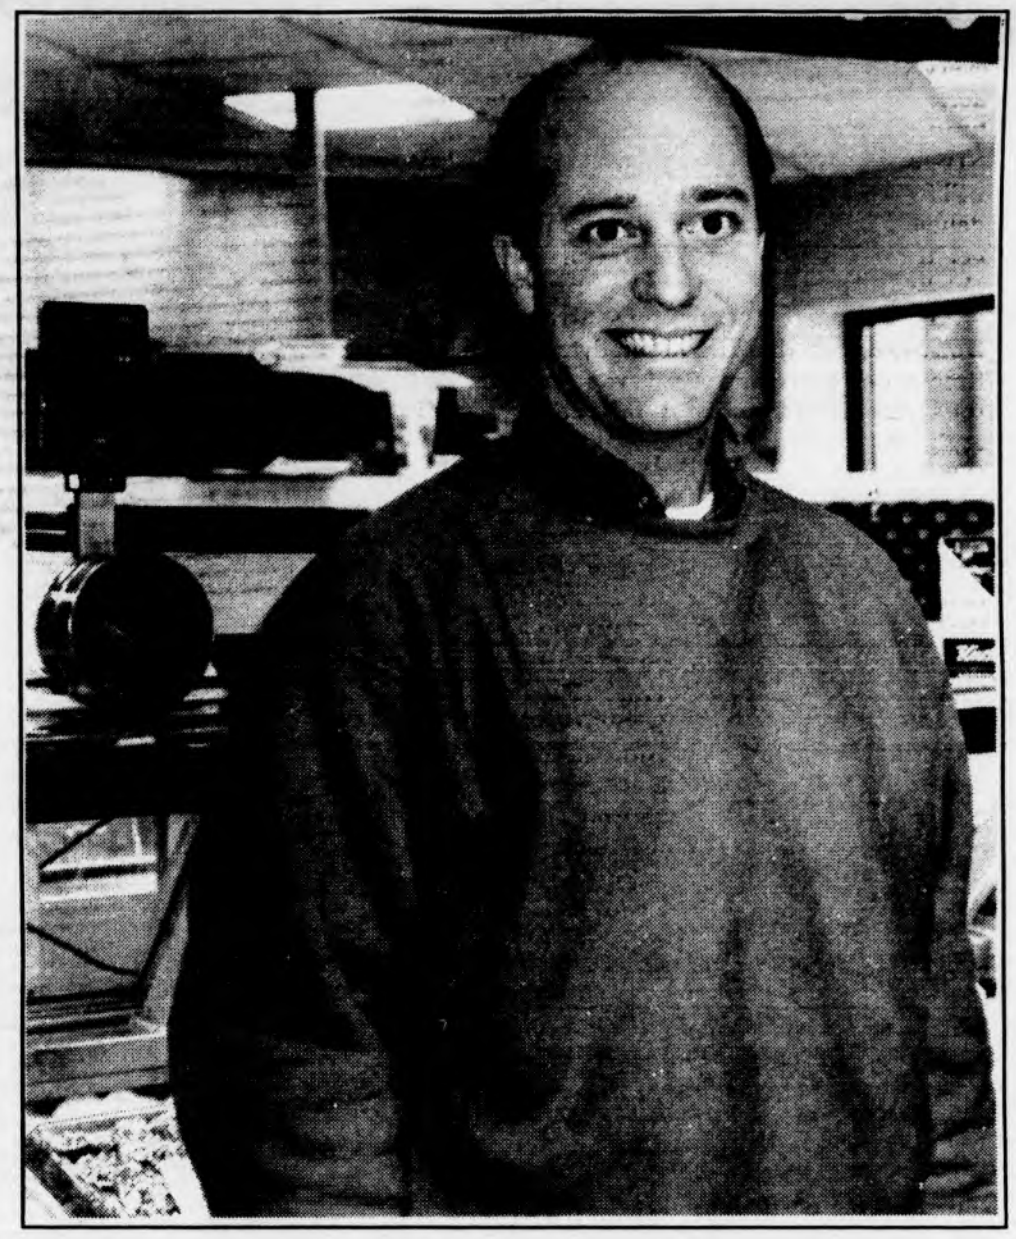
Richard Peters



Name: Richard Peters.

Occupation: Owner, Sea-N-Cheese food and wine store.

Best day of your life: The Christmas of our first year in business. It proved to us that there was a market for our store in Cohasset at a time when we were wondering.

Most embarrassing moment: Calling customers by the wrong name.

Goal: To increase business and continue the tradition of customer satisfaction — and maintain my loyal staff.

Favorite season: Summer.

Best vacation: My honeymoon in St. Martin.

Favorite holiday: Christmas.

Pet Peeve: Disorganization in the store. If something is out of line, I'm out of line.

Favorite book: "Napa," by James Conaway.

Favorite movie: Any action thriller.

Biggest worry: That no one will come into the store.

Favorite place: That's easy — the golf course.

Favorite junk-food: Cream-cheese brownie with ice-cream.

Up and running

The Friends of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are happy to announce that the library is now officially computer-linked with the Old Colony Library Network, OCLN. Patrons will notice as they enter the library that there is a computer terminal at the front desk.

In order to check out books, patrons of the library need a new plastic library card with an individualized bar code that the computer can read.

The computer, equipped with a laser, quickly reads the information on the bar code of an individual library card, then adds specific information to its files as to whether a patron is checking out or checking in a book or magazine.

In addition, a patron may place a book on "hold" or request a book from another library through this process.

Gone are the slips of paper and the manual checking through card files for information. Checking books in and out is speedier and more efficient, and patrons gain access to all OCLN books and libraries. With computer mail, books requested from the OCLN are delivered in one or two days.

To obtain a library card, you must have a driver's license or a copy of your library card. Present this information to the volunteer at the front desk and your new computerized card will be issued immediately.

You may use this card to check out books in the 21 libraries that comprise the Old Colony Library Network.

Additional computer services will be available within the next few months to further increase accessibility to the 21 libraries and their resources. We'll keep you posted.

Happy New Year to all from the Friends of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library!

I Love the Workout Club!

Holly and Chelsea Rader

I love the Workout Club because it's not intimidating, especially for a beginner like me. The classes are fun, the instructors are great, and the equipment is the best.

My daughter has a great time in the babysitting group, and when I know she's happy, I can relax and get the exercise I need.

I just started back to aerobics a few weeks ago and I feel better already!

You'll love the Workout Club too!

Hello 1993

This week Cohasset Mariner readers may notice a change in their paper.

Although the new sports section debuted two weeks ago — today, we officially kick it off by introducing our two new Mariner sports editors, Joe Reardon and Dave McKee.

Part of the challenge of being your local paper, is staying fresh and giving you the best possible Cohasset coverage.

With two, new editors focusing on youth and high school sports and even college updates (so we know what they're doing now) — Cohasset sports coverage takes a big leap forward.

Joe Reardon now oversees Cohasset sports, ably assisted by Mariner staff writer David Wolcott. Sports coaches, team parents, and boosters groups should call Joe with questions about sports.

As community editor, Mary Ford continues to oversee all the other Cohasset news including schools, library, town hall, people features and so on.

You can reach us by calling our toll-free number 1-800-649-6661. The Mariner FAX is 617-837-4843. Many of our readers find the FAX the best way to get their news to the Mariner. Please remember to indicate Cohasset somewhere on the first page so your news will find us faster. With 19 other Mariner towns, we want your news to come directly to the Cohasset desk.

If you're not sure if an event falls under 'sports' or not — call us. Sports and community news share the same office — and we are in constant communication.

The first issue of 1993 is also good time to remind our readers about Mariner deadlines.

When we're out in the field, many of you tell us that you are confused about when the cut off point is for getting your news into the Cohasset Mariner.

While it's always good to get your news in as soon as possible — our deadline is noon Tuesday at the two Mariner drop spots in town — Colonial Pharmacy and Cohasset News. If you should miss the deadline and have something that absolutely must get in, call us. There are no guarantees but we can certainly try to accommodate you in an emergency.

Sometimes we have an early deadline due to a holiday. If that's the case, we'll alert you the week before with a boxed news item on page two — the Cohasset week page.

Items may also be mailed to The Cohasset Mariner, P.O. Box 71, Cohasset 02025 or directly to the Marshfield headquarters at 165 Enterprise Drive, Marshfield 02050.

Today, we're including a box with our telephone number, fax number, addresses, and drop spots and deadline information that can be clipped and put on your bulletin board or refrigerator for easy reference.

The bottom line is: we want to be your local paper. We couldn't do it without your support. And we promise to give you — the people of Cohasset — our best shot week in and week out.

So let us hear from you. Your input is welcome.

And from the staff here at the Cohasset Mariner — all the best for a healthy and happy 1993.

Support Super Cities Walk for M.S.

To the Editor:

I am writing this to encourage all your readers to support the Super Cities Walk for MS which will be held on the weekend of March 27 and 28 in Plymouth, Hyannis, Attleboro, Westport and Cohasset to support the work of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

I can testify personally to the importance of this event. For over four years I have had MS. There is no cure, no way to prevent the disease and no one can tell any of us who have it how we, individually, will be affected. Sometimes it's disabling, sometimes it's not. We all live with this cloud of uncertainty.

The money raised will support research on a cure, or an effective treatment, for multiple sclerosis, a disease of the central nervous system. And the funds also support services for people who have MS, and for their families. Here in Southeastern Massachusetts the Massachusetts Chapter provides peer counseling, support groups, advocacy on behalf of the MS community, education and much more.

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is supporting research, and that gives me hope. And the Massachusetts Chapter provides lots of support, and that gives me help. That's why I ask your readers to do one of the following:

- Be a walker, raising funds by participating in The Super Cities Walk for MS on the weekend of March 27 and 28.
- Support walkers by sending your pledges or donations to the Massachusetts Chapter or by pledging to someone you know who will walk in the event.
- To do one of these, please call (508) 291-2169.

Thank you very much. Your efforts mean more than you could ever know.

MDS: dental offices are safe

To the Editor:

Wire service stories resulting from an article published in the November 1992 Lancet mislead the public and misinterpret the results of the study quoted. The emphasis of the Lancet article, which the wire services did not report, is that the risk of contracting any disease, including AIDS, from dental instruments and drills is so small as to be of no concern, if proper sterilization procedures are followed.

In fact, in an accompanying editorial, Lancet states that "The dental office is a very safe health care facility and should not be a worrisome environment for the public."

According to Sharon Snider, spokesperson for the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA), "The fact is that all reusable dental handpieces and related instruments are heat sterilized between patients."

No cases of disease transmission from properly sterilized dental instruments have ever been reported.

While the Lancet paper demonstrates that bacteria and other disease-causing agents may be able to survive inside a dental handpiece, proper sterilization techniques, practiced universally, reduce risk to unmeasurable amounts.

The Lancet editorial clearly says that studies continue to confirm the safety of patients in dental offices. The May 1992 Annals of Internal Medicine provides clear evidence against the theory of patient-to-patient transmission through handpieces or other dental instruments. Moreover, a recent study published by the Centers for Disease Control found that among 16,000 patients treated by 32 HIV infected health care workers, not one case of HIV or AIDS transmission was detected after medical or dental therapy.

Dentists and the dental office environment have been dealt a bad hand. Due to one isolated instance in Florida of an infected dentist likely transmitting AIDS to a small group of patients, an entire profession has been wrongly maligned.

Worst of all, unfair and, at times, incorrect media coverage has scared the public and caused untold numbers of people to avoid needed preventive and therapeutic dental treatment.

Our dental offices are safe. Multiple precautions, including appropriate garments, gloves, and sterilization procedures, ensure that people can go to their dentist with confidence that their health is being enhanced in a safe environment.

I hope that the Cohasset Mariner, and the media in general, will recognize that this is the message the public needs most to hear to protect their health.

Gerald R. Carrier, DMD, FAGD
President
Massachusetts Dental Society

Recreation office needs P.C.

The Recreation Commission has been working with the same portable typewriter for the past 16 plus years, which, at this point, has more antique, than practical value. Due to long-term budget constraints, the commissioners defer each year, the possibility of purchasing a desperately needed item, a personal computer or word processor.

Hence, a plea to any resident or business that might have inclination to make a tax deductible donation to the Cohasset Recreation Commission of a P.C. or word processor.

Should you be interested in a holiday generosity of this sort, please call the recreation office at 383-6791. We will put all other calls at the time on hold.

Seasons Greeting to All.

To the Editor:

During the FY '92, 6,685 individuals of all ages participated in a variety of structured programs, activities and special events. While budget restrictions persist, more latitude of use of the revolving account fund for 100 percent self-supporting programs has been possible due to legislative modification of the RAF laws and guidelines. Currently, most all programming is conducted via the RAF accounts, causing no impact upon taxpayers. The recreation commissioners adopted an administrative service fee charge to all RAF programs during fiscal year 1992, providing a financial system that reimburses taxpayers for the costs and time encumbrances of RAF program operations. That is, the ASF revenues are deposited into the general fund of the town, hence, can be applied to offset tax rated the following fiscal year. Collectively, it is the revenue produced via administrative service fees, fees for budget-sponsored programs and beach parking sticker sales that reimburses taxpayers for the budget of their recreation commission. Only revenue on deposit in the general fund can be considered recapitalization revenue.

In FY '92, ending June 30, 1992, the recreation commission produced for the general fund $60,016.60. Concurrently, during the same period, $73,614.60 was transacted via revolving account funds for 100 percent self-supporting programs via fees charged participant for a variety of services. Another $24,089 was transacted via other self-supporting financial systems during FY '92, manifesting a collective $157,720.20 of recreational services to residents from the $66,963 budget of the commission. These figures do not include the thousands of man-hours that are annually donated by hundreds of residents, in support of a variety of program operations.

Municipal recreation is for the benefit of all residents and we continue to direct our efforts towards assurance of equal access and opportunity for the entire community. To this end a specific and calculated portion of revenue was not collected this year from residents who were temporarily unable to pay full fee charges for services. In many instances, time was volunteered in lieu of full fee payments, benefiting the department and participants of programs.

The burden placed upon public recreation during difficult economic times makes our incumbent responsibilities more difficult to satisfy, yet acutely demonstrates the necessity for governmental bodies to remain flexible and responsive to dynamic community needs. No child or youth should be eliminated from participation in any municipally sponsored leisure service because of any financial circumstance that might prevail, and an investment in our young people is a very apparent and worthwhile investment in our community. The concept of equal opportunity and access for all residents under all conditions epitomizes the general philosophies and principles of public recreation.

Programming represents only one of the responsibilities, duties and functions as prescribed and conferred upon the recreation commission by both Massachusetts General Laws and by-laws of the town. Continuing efforts, from FY '91 are focused upon upgrading and renovating existing outdoor recreational facilities under the jurisdiction of the commission. Current projects include repairs and additional apparatus for the Beechwood Field Playground, re-lighting the Milliken Field tennis courts, and installation of new lights and basketball standards, boards and rims at the Osgood School basketball court.

During the Oct. 30, 1991 storm, damage to lights and light poles were sustained at the Osgood basketball court by high winds. Resultant of insurance claims, new lights have been purchased and Eastern Edison has erected a new light pole. The Cohasset Basketball Booster's Club has purchased two sets of basketball standards, boards and goals for that facility. With the new court surface, completed last year via the auspices of the highway department, along with future regrading of the grounds adjacent to the court, the Osgood lighted basketball facility will soon be in top-notch condition.

It has been and continues to be, through a blending of private and public resources and funding, that most facilities nave been upgraded and/or renovated. Numerous town departments and officials have continued to support our efforts in this area for which we remain enormously grateful.

The seven-member, elected board of recreation commissioners volunteer their services to the town and department, meeting regularly in order to discuss a wide spectrum of topics relative to the leisure needs and pursuits of all residents. Further, the commissioners establish policy and provide departmental direction, support and assistance. Each meeting is publicly posted at least one week prior to the date and residents are cordially invited to attend and participate in any meeting. Essential to our proper function, and absolutely vital toward success, is the ability to remain responsive and dynamic to changing community needs. We consider your input and feedback our most important source of guidance.

The recreation commission wishes to acknowledge gratitude to the many individuals, civic and business organizations, school and sports groups, town boards, committees and departments who have lent their support and assistance in our efforts to best serve the recreational and leisure needs of residents of all ages. While too numerous to mention each by name, however, none is forgotten and all are sincerely appreciated and thanked.

Life savers wanted

If you know of anyone who has saved a life over the past year, please call the Community Affairs Office at Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts, 956-3320.

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts pays tribute to "life savers," people who over the past year have accomplished the extraordinary feat of saving someone's life. They will be honored at the special annual Life Savers Award Ceremony and dinner on Tuesday, March 9.

Life Saver Club members include people of all ages — from six to 86 years old, from every walk of life, whether they were at work or not. There have been a host of people in our community who have saved another individual's life, including public figures such as: U.S. Senator John F. Kerry, Boston City Councilman Albert "Dapper" O'Neil, Dan Rea of WBZ-TV and Cambridge City Council, City Manager Robert Healy.

Developed 14 years ago, the Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts Life Savers Awards Program has recognized more than 550 life savers in an effort to promote public awareness and education of the Heimlich Maneuver, Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and other life saving techniques.

Life savers are honored at the annual Awards Ceremony and receive the prestigious Life Saver medal, presented by some of Boston's most prominent media celebrities, who will recount each dramatic life saving story.

The health care crisis: we're part of the solution

The recent presidential election was proof, if any further evidence were needed, that Americans are increasingly concerned about the many social and economic issues that affect their health care. And with good reason. Today, all of us are looking carefully at access to care in appropriate settings, the cost of that care, and the standards of quality that should be applied to health care services.

Those of us in the South Shore Hospital family share those concerns and are using this newspaper to communicate with South Shore residents about these and other health care issues. Over the next few months, we will use this page to discuss a wide range of vital health care topics. Ideally, this information will prepare all of us to make even better informed decisions about our health, and perhaps lead us to be more active participants in the discussions about the future of health care in our state and nation.

Recent national opinion polls show that health care ranks just below the economy as one of this country's most pressing issues. During the last five years, the percentage of Americans who rank this issue as one of their top concerns has increased at a rate faster than any other topic, except for jobs and the economy.

This does not surprise those of us who spend every day working to solve this problem. Not only do doctors, nurses, and a complex network of medical, technical and administrative support personnel provide care on a round-the-clock basis, but the people responsible for your care also get sick and injured, and need medical assistance. And affordability, access, and quality are as important to them when they are receiving care, as when they are providing it.

The most conspicuous part of the health care system in any community is usually the local hospital. It is difficult to overlook a large building that is the site of one of the area's largest employers, and whose approach roads are marked with the bright blue and white "H" highway signs. This visibility is a source of comfort to many, a symbol that care is available if illness or injury strikes you or a member of your family. Knowing that the lights are always on in the local hospital emergency center, where nurses and doctors are prepared to handle the most severe medical problem as rapidly as necessary, allows parents of young children, and sons and daughters responsible for their elder parents, to sleep more easily.

Today's full service community hospitals do more than serve as a source of assurance, however. They also offer their communities a range of services that were once only available in the largest medical centers. While inpatient care continues to be the unique service that distinguishes hospitals, today a wide range of outpatient care is available, either directly through the hospital or your doctor. At South Shore Hospital, these include special support groups for patients suffering from heart problems and cancer.

Today's hospital also frequently serves as a nucleus for other community-based organizations. At South Shore Hospital, this type of affiliation includes South Shore Visiting Nurse & Health Services, which provides extensive area-wide home health and hospice care, as well as the second oldest — and third largest — visiting nurse program in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Even with the increasing sophistication of medical services and up-to-date technology and procedures, hospitals in Massachusetts are working to keep their community roots well tended. South Shore Hospital actively seeks opportunities to work with organizations and groups throughout the region. Our efforts include sponsoring health care support groups, screenings, and other education and prevention programs, as well as working with senior citizens, schools and students, and area residents with special health needs.

But just as we need to know that today's hospitals offer more than a collection of patient rooms with carefully made beds, so too we need to be knowledgeable about the complexity of our health care system. We hope, with our messages on this page over the next several months, to leave you more prepared to use the many services of your local hospital and other health care providers. We also hope, by offering information about health care, to show how we can all work to resolve the health care issues facing us, as participants in the debate on the future of our country's health care system.

We would be pleased to hear from you with questions or comments about this or any future message, or about our hospital in general. Just call the Public Affairs Department at (617) 340-8564, or write us.

Families Celebrate '93 at Community Center's New Year's Eve festival!

No trips needed to Boston or Quincy for First-Night celebrations this year.

Cohasset had one of its own: a spectacular evening of family fun and entertainment sponsored by the Community Center to kick off its golden jubilee.

Celebrate '93 got underway at 5 p.m. with Ron Rawson: A reading of Dylan Thomas' "A Child's Christmas in Wales" and finished with confetti fireworks at 10 p.m. to herald the new year.

Rhonda Myers, a member of the community center board of directors, acted as events chairman. In addition to the community center, the churches which surround Cohasset Common, the Teen Depot and the South Shore Art Center were also used.

Everyone enjoyed the Magic Show by Joe Howard, Smiling Face Productions, at town hall.

The "4 Dodecs," a quartet from the Dartmouth College Dodecaphonics provides some holiday entertainment at the Second Congregational Church.

Joe Howard the magician shows some of his tricks to an enthusiastic crowd at town hall.

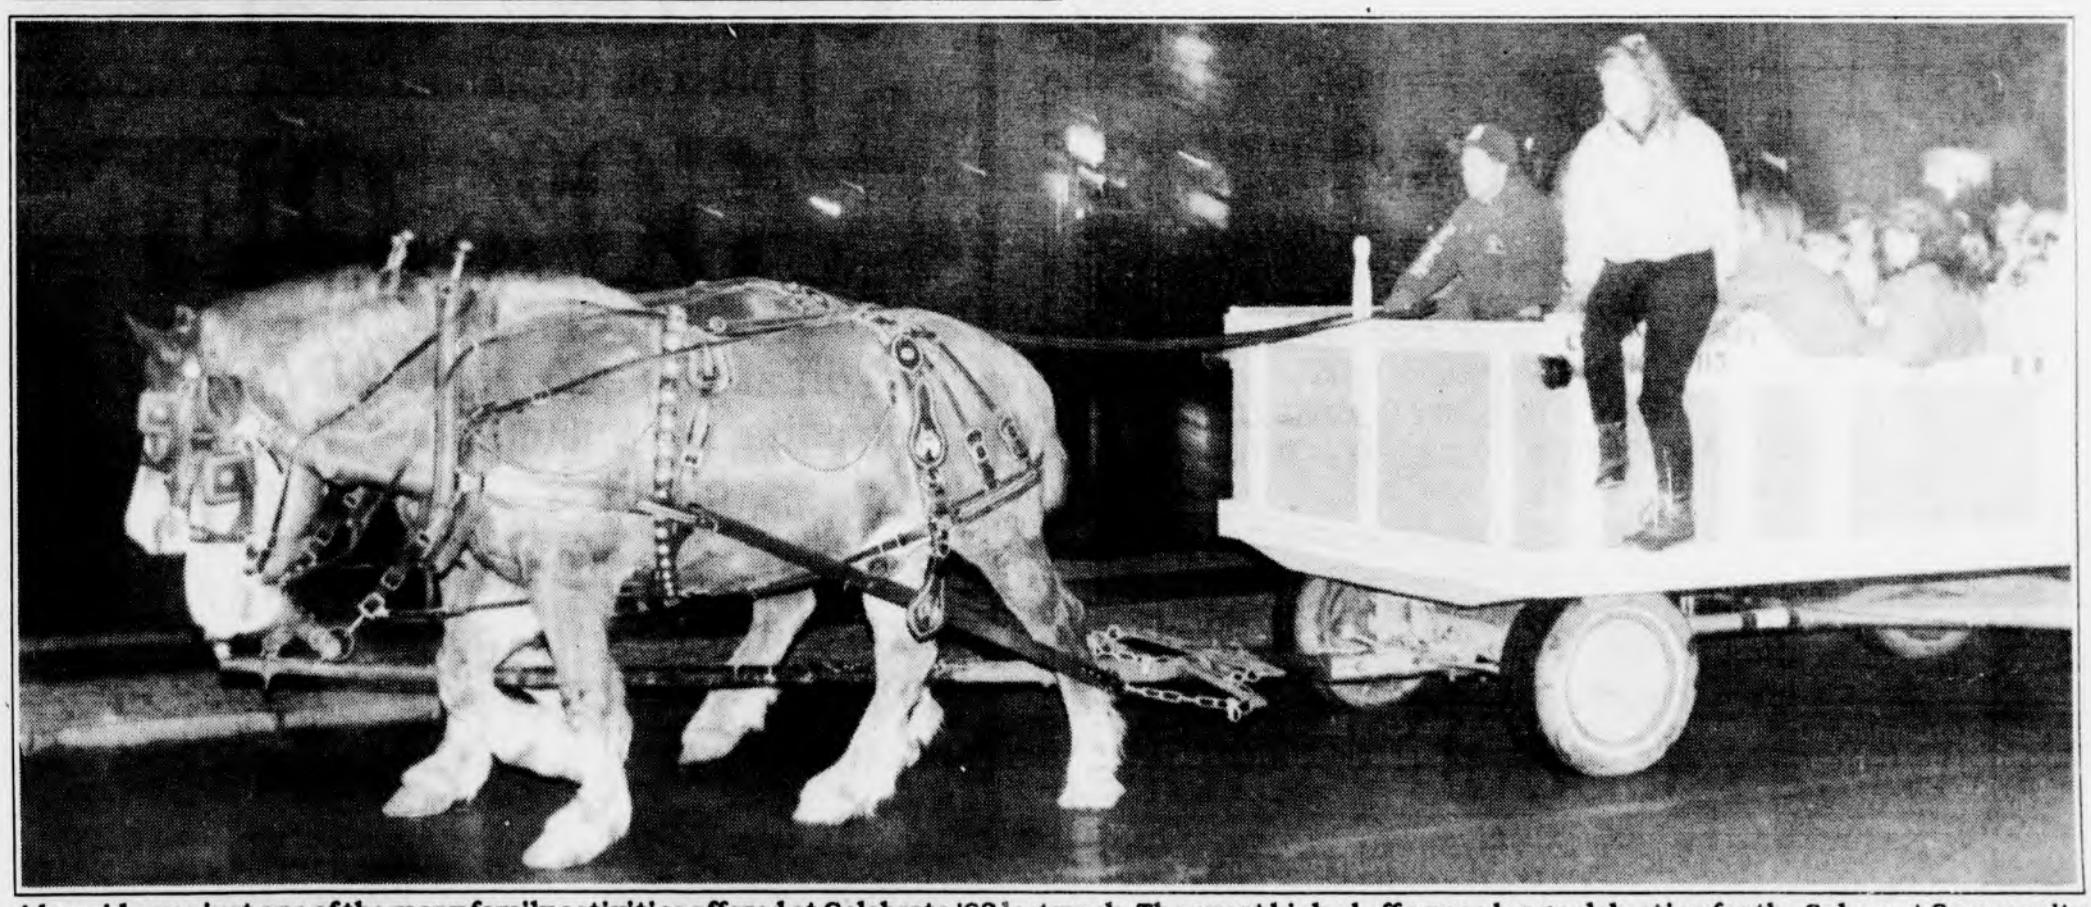
Selectmen allowed the roads to be blocked off which provided a safer environment for families.

Shuttle buses from local parking lots eased the parking problem in the village.

All the food, beverages, desserts and novelty items were sold by local church and non-profit groups.

There was music galore ranging from the acoustic guitar of David Crossland at the depot to a jazz concert at First Parish.

Admission buttons were initially sold for $5 and then went up to $10 closer to the event. More than 1,500 people participated. Any profit goes toward helping to pay off the community center's mortgage.



A hay ride was just one of the many family activities offered at Celebrate '93 last week. The event kicked off a year-long celebration for the Cohasset Community Center's 50th anniversary.

Lobstermen reel from storms, low catches

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner staff

The Great Storm of '92 has left Massachusetts Bay lobstermen reeling in its path of destruction, delivering within 14 months a second blow to an already struggling industry.

While they are thankful that mainland damage was far less than the No Name Storm of October 1991, area lobstermen know that without visible signs of devastation, they will have a harder time convincing federal authorities to release assistance in the form of grants and Small Business Administration (SBA) loans.

What's more, many fishermen, who received SBA loans just more than a year ago, say they can't afford to pay back another note, no matter how low the interest.

"Just because you've heard them say it's a disaster doesn't mean it's going to be like it was last year," Massachusetts Lobstermen's Association (MLA) president Nathaniel "Laddie" Dexter told members at a meeting last month in Quincy.

"Last year, they went down and the roads were gone and the houses were in the middle of the street, but this year it's not as bad. We're a little behind the eight ball because these people aren't going to see the physical damage they saw last year."

Despite the lack of provoking evidence along the coast, local lobstermen fared almost as badly in this storm as they did last year.

Early estimates presented at the MLA meeting indicate that 40 to 50 percent of all traps fishing at the time of the storm were lost — in some cases more.

Bill Souza of Provincetown, who had 100 traps in the water when the blizzard struck, had retrieved one so far.

The good news is that because of the lateness of the season some lobstermen had pulled some or all of their gear.

Souza fishes a total of 600 traps. He is usually out of the water by this time, but like many other lobstermen was fishing late to make up for last year's losses.

Dexter, who has fished out of Green Harbor for 31 years, said he brought back 50 of 90 traps he had set. Of that number, 10 were too badly damaged to reuse.

The bitter irony of the matter is that much of the equipment was brand new, purchased earlier this year with the SBA loans made available after the '91 storm. The money went directly to purchase the traps needed to pay off the loans.

Herbert Jason of Cohasset, a lobsterman with about 60 years experience, lost more than 200 traps.

"The sad part was I had all brand-new pots," he said. "Last year I borrowed heavily and put that money into gear and now I'm stuck with those bills."

Jason said he's seen worst storms in his lifetime but it was the triple whammy that hurt.

"One storm on top of another wipes you out," he said.

Now, with few traps and an outstanding note, Dexter sees little alternative for some fishermen but to pull out of the business.

"They have to," he said. "How many times can you keep paying back? If the SBA came up with another disaster loan, I probably wouldn't take it; I mean I have 9 1/2 years left on the one I have now."

Boston Harbor Lobstermen's Association president Ralph Maling agreed: "Either give us grants to pay them off or wipe them out altogether. I lost 450 out of 900 traps, and it was mostly new gear."

Four days after the storm hit the coast there were still eight- to 10-foot rollers only a few miles out, according to Dexter, and many lobstermen could not get out to sea.

The Quincy meeting attracted about about one-third of the roughly 75 MLA delegates. The state is broken into five regions and each has 15 to 17 representatives. The MLA has 1,100 members statewide. Dexter said there are 1,300 active commercial inshore licenses in the state and another 300 to 400 off shore.

John Haviland, vice president of the 90-member Marshfield Commercial Fishermen's Association, has worked from Green Harbor as a lobsterman and longline fisherman for 18 years. He, too, was in late this year and still has not located all of his traps.

"Basically everyone was fishing later because there wasn't a run of lobsters this year," he said. "Historically we might have a run of lobsters as they're coming out of their shed, and we'll do well for six or seven weeks. . . That wasn't the case this year."

Haviland said other fishermen — draggers and gill netters in particular — do not have to expend their gear over such a vast area and so were less affected by the storm.

"The other modes of fishing are such that they can pull everything back on their boats," he said. "People who I know who work in those fisheries basically didn't have any losses, which was good.

"But lobstermen had so many traps that they had a hard time getting them all in. There was a mad dash to take all the traps out, but you can only do that at high tide in Green Harbor."

Equally as troubling to lobstermen as their lost traps is the possibility that the storm killed large populations of lobsters.

"I don't know the impact at this time on the lobster fishery," said Division of Marine Fisheries senior information officer Chuck Connor. "It's still so early. In '87 a big storm washed them up on the beach, but they might have moved out to deeper waters ahead of the storm.

"It might be a blessing in disguise for the lobsters, but it's detrimental as hell to a man who makes his living lobster fishing."

Migratory by nature, lobsters tend to feed in shallower water during the calmer summer months and follow food into deeper ocean in the winter when coastal depths are more susceptible to storm action.

Last year's nor'easter killed many lobsters in Massachusetts Bay, Connor said. Buzzards Bay is relatively sheltered from northeast gales but is extremely vulnerable to hurricanes which move up the coast. Thus, the 1991 combination of Hurricane Bob and the No Name Storm effectively wiped out whole broods of lobsters in both bays.

A Hull fisherman reported a mass washup of lobsters on Nantasket Beach following the most recent storm and asked for assistance from the DMF in returning FY'94 budget season opens . . .

However, this spring the board will ask for a transfer to pay Quigley for the rest of FY'93, which ends June 30, because he's been averaging about 15 hours a week and the town only budgeted for 12.

Selectmen also approved $150 for Quigley to receive a vaccination against rabies, a disease which has been found in some raccoons in the state.

They also approved $100 to pay for Quigley's meetings' dues and travel.

• Conservation commission members were out in force to lobby for an increase in their secretary's hours from 29 to 34 per week and to ask for a computer.

Patricia Walsh, the conservation commission's secretary, is currently paid $11.63 per hour for a 29-hour-week. Commissioners said it's no secret that Walsh "donates" hundreds of unpaid hours to the town each year.

Selectmen said no to the increase. They noted the zoning board gets by with no secretarial support and they could not justify increasing hours after they'd just laid a wire department employee off.

Commissioners also requested $3,500 for a computer but the board authorized only $2,000 with the stipulation that it not be spent until the newly formed computer study committee issues its report.

• Fire Chief John Nadeau's pleas for more hours for executive secretarial support; a deputy chief (who would be promoted from captain); and a sick-leave incentive program fell on deaf ears.

But he did get $12,500 for firefighter training; and funds to replace damaged uniforms; for cleaning; new protective equipment; life safety harnesses; upgrades of personal alert safety systems on the self-contained breathing apparatus (S.C.B.A.); S.C.B.A. masks for call firefighters; and 90-degree rechargeable, waterproof lights for the firefighters' coats.

The board accepted fire department warrant articles for a hard bottom rubber raft with 25/HP motor/trailer at $7,800; a new radio/communications system at $8,000; and an electronic blood/oxygen/vital sign monitor for the ambulance at $6,000.

They said no to $19,000 for a new chief's car. And the board postponed action on the chief's proposed article for $250,000 to replace engine 22 until next week because they need more information, selectmen said.

• Selectmen only started to crack the town hall budget before they called it quits due to the lateness of the hour.

They approved $19,777 for personnel. The figure represents custodian Pauline Litchfield's salary.

The board nixed $3,900 for new town hall doors but approved $900 for a Hepa vacuum which will help avoid expensive cleanup projects by routinely cleaning areas prone to accumulation of old, chipping paint, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

The board will discuss the $11,500 request for a new town hall phone system next week.

• Getting quick nods from the board were the building department's $56,476 budget request, which includes salaries for two people, and the zoning board's budget request of $3,310.

DeVaugh helps hault Skippers' losing streak

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

After suffering through most of the 1992 season without a win, the Cohasset girls' basketball squad finally put a dent into the left side of the won/loss record as it defeated Provincetown 41-40 in the first round of the Duxbury High Holly Tree Christmas Tourney.

The Skippers, now 1-6, were not as fortunate in the finals of the tourney as they were overtaken by the host Duxbury team, 40-19.

Cohasset also failed to return to the winning column in its next attempt as the squad was defeated by the Norwell Clippers, 62-37. Adrienne DeVaugh led the Skipper swith 11 points before fouling out in the second half.

The battle with Provincetown was tense throughout The Skippers' lead was in jeopardy until the end, but Provincetown was unable to score in its last-ditch effort.

Cohasset coach Laureen White estimated the win over Provincetown broke at least a 30-game losing streak for the Skippers, dating back to the 1990-1991 season.

"The girls really worked hard for the win and deserved it," White said.

Leading the way for Cohasset was the 5-foot-11 DeVaugh. DeVaugh tallied for 13 points and 10 rebounds, and made her presence felt throughout the game in the winning effort.

Freshman Megan Rhodes was also instrumental in the team's victory with eight points and numerous steals. Erin Murphy also played her first minutes of the season, coming back sooner than expected from the broken collar bone which she sustained during the soccer season.

Through the seven games that have been played so far, White listed Katie Carrol, DeVaugh and the early return of Murphy as the biggest surprises of the season.

"Adrian has really been impressive this year in using her height to her advantage, and she also is starting to develop a really nice turn-around jumper from inside the lane," said White.

"Katie Carrol has really stepped up this year into a leadership role with the team," she continued, "and has stepped into the point-guard role with great aggressiveness, and has really been an asset with her take-charge attitude on the court."

"Also, Erin's early return about three weeks ahead of schedule from her injury will give us another weapon to use when she is able to play at her full capabilities again."

The Skippers will now travel to arch-rival Scituate tomorrow (Jan. 8) at 7 p.m., and then move on to tangle with Hanover on Jan. 12.

New look, new staff for Mariner Sports

This week, Mariner Newspapers introduces its latest addition to the newsroom - a sports department.

The sports staff includes co-editors Joe Reardon and Dave McKee. They will be assisted by writers Matt Bannen, David Wolcott, Greg Botelho, Glen Hannington, Cheryl Herbert, and Carissa Caramanis.

The focus of the sports department will be to highlight the action and events of our local high school, recreation, and youth sports programs. We are expanding that coverage with more scores, more statistics, more photos and more names of the kids who are involved in these programs.

No where else will you find more complete coverage of the local sports scene. And this is just the beginning. We believe that as our coverage increases, the sports section in the Mariner will expand to accommodate our needs.

A little about our sports editors - Joe has been a member of our news staff for the past two years in our Braintree office. His heart has always belonged to sports, however, and he was anxious for a chance to come over to sports on a full-time basis. A graduate of Braintree High School and Bridgewater State College, Joe competed in cross-country and track.

Dave, a 1988 graduate of Brandeis University, played varsity baseball and basketball there and at Hanover High School. He has been with the Mariner Newspapers for the past four years, concentrating on the news in Pembroke and Kingston.

There will be expanded coverage of high school sports, but the editors are particularly anxious to include more youth teams in the newly-designed sports pages of the Mariner.

All youth team coaches - whether it's baseball, football, hockey, soccer or basketball - are asked to talk

Skippers sink Norwell by 18 points

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

"This week could either make us or break us for this year," coach Ron Ford said recently about this current week for his Cohasset boys' basketball squad.

The boys, now with a 3-2 record, have entered the toughest week of the season with games against three tough South Shore League rivals in games that could go a long way in deciding the success or failure of this year's team.

Ford has put tremendous emphasis on this week to his team. "This week is very important to the team," he said. "If we could win two of the three games we would put ourselves in a great position to make a run for the title, and if we could take all three games this week, I think we will really be sitting pretty in the playoff picture."

One phase of the team's mission has already been completed as they took down a scrappy Norwell squad, 59-41, earlier this week. The results of the Carver game for Wednesday were not available when the Mariner went to press.

Against the Clippers of Norwell, Cohasset navigated through some rough seas on its way to the 18-point victory, in a game that will not be sent to Springfield, Mass. as an exhibition for text-book basketball. But it was a notch in the win column just the same.

Cohasset jumped out to an early lead and never looked back as they led the whole way through. Mike Bilodeau came off the bench to score 15 points, and Doug Ellinger also chipped in with 12, including 10 from the foul line.

Coach Ford has been high on the play of Bilodeau all year long, as he is averaging close to 15-points per game while shooting a sizzling 70 percent from the field.

"I think right now I would put him up against any other sixth-man in the state," Ford said. "He is just playing that well, and has really come into the team concept of the game."

The game tomorrow (Jan. 8), is against a Scituate squad that is comparable to the Skippers. Coach White recently said: "If you were only going to see one basketball game this year, this would be it. I think it will be our biggest home game of the year."

After starting the year off with disappointing losses to Norton and Sacred Heart, the squad is in the midst a modest three-game winning streak and is adapting to the new schemes designed by the first year coach.

"The losses to both Norton and Sacred Heart were hard to take since we were in the games the whole way, only to fall off at the end due to poor foul-shooting. We played much better against Abington, East Bridgewater and Norwell and were able to take the victory."

After the big game Friday at home against Scituate, the Skippers will take on Hanover at home on Tuesday, Jan. 12. Both games begin at 7 p.m.

Sailing not just a hobby anymore

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

When most of Cohasset's high school athletes took to the baseball diamond, tennis court and track as the weather turned warm last spring, 12 other CHS students headed for the high seas.

And they were followed by a pleasant tailwind the season through as the Skippers laid claim to being the top public school squad and second overall in the state.

Only Belmont Hill's team finished in front of Cohasset in '92.

Hopes are high among the Skippers' returning team members that they can do the same in '93 despite the graduation of last year's captain John Murphy.

"We certainly didn't lose everybody," said coach Robert M. Davenport, "but we lost some key people. We weren't devastated. It's not like all the kids were seniors."

Despite the fact Cohasset hasn't had a sailing team every year, the sport remains one of the most popular in town, due largely to its location and tranquil, seaside community setting.

"Sailing's a big sport in Cohasset because it's the first true harbor town on the South Shore," Davenport said.

Because of its popularity, many of the team members have had some sort of sailing experience, well before high school.

Ninth-grader Chloe Chittick has been sailing every summer since she was an 8-year-old in the Cohasset Yacht Club. She started racing competitively against other towns at 11.

"We've sailed in races and regattas a lot so we know

Cohasset skiers ready to hit slopes in '93

The Cohasset High School ski team is preparing for the 1993 season starting Jan. 11 at Blue Hills Ski Area. Cohasset competes in the Massachusetts Bay East Ski League along with nine other public and private schools in the greater Boston area. The season continues with a total of five meets scheduled to finish Feb. 8. The league is comprised of a large and small school division. The top two teams and the top 10 individual performers in each division qualify for the Massachusetts State High School Ski Championships, scheduled annually in March at the Berkshire East Ski Area in Charlemont.

Coaches Jack Dane and Bob Stansell have a team of 24 boys and 12 girls vying for the eight slots for the league races. The boys' squad qualified as a team for the state championships for the first time last year. Returning from the team representing the Cohasset boys at the States are co-captains Pete Collins and Doug Schultz, as well as Mike Equi and Bobby Stansell. It will require an outstanding effort on their part for the boys to repeat in qualifying as a team for the states. The team lost its top scorer from last year, Pat Suhbier, to graduation. Other returning boys' team members are Matt Banks, Mark Sechen, Alex Vanderweil, James Hills, Chip Moore, Andrew Collins, Ryan Sawchuk, and Lloyd Workman.

The girls' squad has the top-two finishers for 1992, Alissa Sexton,the girls' captain, and Bonnie Krueger, returning. Both qualified as individuals for the 1992 State High School Ski Championships, Sexton for the second time and Krueger for the first. Barring unforseen circumstances, both should again qualify. Shelley Vanderweil also returns from the 1992 girls' team. If the Cohasset girls' squad can piece together some consistent point-making from other team members, they have a chance of gaining second place in the small schools division and qualifying to send a team of five to the States.

The league schedule and teams for 1993 are:

how to handle the sails," said Chittick. "Some of us have been sailing for a long time."

What makes the squad's performance last year all the more impressive is the fact that, despite, the town's proximity to the ocean, there is training area that can be used on a daily basis.

The team was forced to race two to three times per week against schools such as Tabor and Moses Brown which had its own facilities.

"We, like most of the other high schools around here don't practice in the spring," said Davenport. "The practice thing's a bit of a problem. We would have had to take the T to the Charles River in Boston Harbor. And then there would be the chance a meet was going on."

The majority of the meets were held on the Charles. The team also competed at the MIT Pavilion and the Coast Guard Academy in Connecticut.

Murphy is the only one of Chittick's sail mates who graduated. Joe Menis and Nikki Peterson are both back and would like to do what they did in '92.

"We had a good season last year," said sophomore captain Joe Menis.

And hopefully, the wind will always be at their back.

Youth hockey night slated for Jan. 16

On Saturday, Jan. 16, at 7:40 p.m., the Cohasset High School hockey team will play Latin Academy at the Pilgrim Arena located in Hingham.

Coach Walsh and his players have designated this game as Youth Hockey Night. Any Cohasset resident who participates in a youth hockey program such as the Seahawks will be admitted to the game free. Passes will be issued at the game. This is a great opportunity to support the team and meet the players.

Ninth graders pitch in

For the month of December students collected donations in the cafeteria at lunch time. In addition, for the first time a raffle was used to increase donations.

Mrs. Sawchuk, the mother of ninth-grade student Ryan Sawchuk, donated a hand-made bunny doll complete with seven special outfits for each holiday.

Raffle tickets at $1 each were sold at a local craft fair and at Stop and Shop prior to selling raffle tickets at the high school.

In total $571 was donated by students, teachers, and local residents.

The winner of the raffle was Mrs. Jody Wody, a high school English teacher.

At class meetings the students decided how to allocate the money collected. Approximately $240 was used to buy holiday foods for two Cohasset families. A group of students, Lena Roukounakis, Ken Leahy, Brian Sasso and Ed Hamilton helped with the shopping.

Also, a check for $166 was sent to Kids with Cancer and another check for $166 was sent to New England Home for Little Wanderers. Many students actively participated in the collections and all were please by the results.

Making lobster pots is a labor of love for Cohasseter

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Beside a winding stream, amid heaps of wood in various stages of being cut, stands a Cohasset workshop with smoke curling from the chimney.

Inside, Alan Snowdale, 35, strives to keep a part of seafaring, Yankee tradition alive.

The Mill Lane resident makes lobster pots.

Surprisingly, Snowdale is a recent convert to the craftsmanly lifestyle he now leads.

"I worked in the high-tech industry in the 80s," he said.

"When that started to tail off, I worked in the freight industry — then the economy went bad."

Job security tied to the financial health of a large company propelled Snowdale into his current profession.

"I always wanted to do something myself."

"And I had the land and the resources," he said about his family's 14-acre plot.

Initially, Snowdale entertained the idea of opening a lumber-cutting business.

"But my brother-in-law is a lobster fisherman and he planted the bug," Snowdale explained.

"He helped me out a lot, and showed me the ropes."

Snowdale embarked on his lobster pot trade in January 1990. He made the decision with an eye toward getting back to basics.

"I took a step backwards from the way things were going," he said.

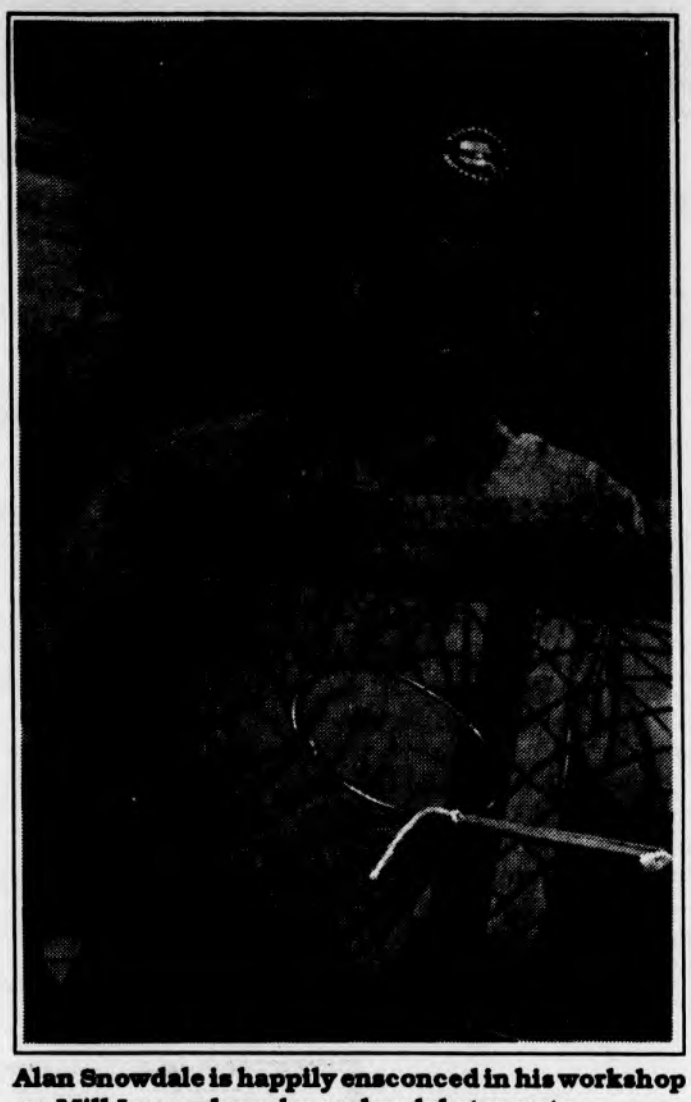
"It used to be parents passed a trade on to their kids, and I'd like to have something to pass on to my kids."

A relative newcomer to carpentry work, Snowdale has found his calling.

"I love cutting the wood, working with the wood — I love it," he said.

One of the added rewards of his job, Snowdale said, is its location and the area's place in history.

"There has been a mill on this property since 1695," he explained.



Alan Snowdale is happily ensconced in his workshop on Mill Lane where he makes lobster pots.

The first mill on the site was an iron slag mill.

It was eventually replaced by a grist and then lumber mill, Snowdale explained.

His mother's family bought the property in the 1930s, he said.

The last active mill on the property was torn down in 1930.

His dream is to reconstruct the mill.

"To think someone's been doing something here, creating something since the 1600s...I like being a part of that," he said.

And he likes to surround himself with that history. Antique glass, iron remnants and other artifacts adorn the windowsills in the workshop Snowdale's father built in 1950.

Snowdale's main reason, however, for enjoying his new-found craft is pragmatic — he makes money doing it.

He has done fairly well with his lobster pot sales and repairs during his first two years in business, partially because of two major storms which hit the area.

"The first year I was in business it was kind of slow, then the storm of 1991 hit," he said.

"It was devastating to the fishermen, but good for me — I took six months worth of orders from that storm," he said.

"This (last) storm was just as devastating to lobster fishermen —even worse in some cases because there is no money available, or readily available," Snowdale explained.

Federal authorities and the Small Business Administration (S.B.A.) have not been as forthcoming with assistance for last month's nor'easter as they were during last year's No Name October storm.

So two weeks after the Dec. 12 Nor'easter, Snowdale had received orders only for about three or four weeks of work.

"I'm doing a lot of repairs for pots, but as far as new pots, they're (lobstermen) waiting to see how they will get the money for new pots."

A standard lobster pot costs about $36, he said.

Snowdale added that he is one of three South Shore lobster pot makers.

The average wooden lobster pot lasts about five years, Snowdale said. Wire pots last longer, he added, but many lobstermen won't use them.

"The disadvantage is that the lobsters don't go for them as much," he explained.

Snowdale is surprised how much of his job depends on confidentiality.

"Everyone has an idea of what type of lobster pot works best" and they don't want the other lobstermen to know their secrets, he said.

"I'll have a guy say a 46-inch lobster pot works best, then another guy will come in and say a 42-inch works best," Snowdale said.

"I've never met a bunch of nicer people in the world — or a lot who are more superstitious."

Lobstermen reel from storms . . .

undersized chix to the ocean so they could reach maturity.

According to Bruce Estrella, senior biologist for the DMF Coastal Lobster Industries Project in Sandwich, the total catch in Massachusetts so far in 1992 has been low.

However, it is wrong to attribute this directly to either of last year's storms, he said. Rather, Estrella pointed to a lower-than-normal water temperature in the region as a predominant factor. Because of intense fishing in the region, 95 percent of all lobsters caught inshore are just above the legal size. If the water is colder than normal, lobster activity and metabolism slows and impedes growth. When the population molts in the early summer, fewer lobsters emerge as mature, legal-sized adults.

As corroborative evidence, Estrella pointed to the fact that Long Island Sound, which was not affected by either Hurricane Bob or the No Name Storm, also reported low catches this year.

As part of the first step toward finding a way out of the financial tangle lobstermen now face, MLA executive director William Adler of Marshfield met with U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Cohasset and with representatives from Gov. William Weld's office.

Officials from the state and federal emergency management agencies also have viewed damage and are making their assessments.

Adler said he spoke with a Studds aide, who told him the SBA may forgive loans on a case-by-case basis, but lobstermen should not expect any blanket policy.

Happy New Year From The Staff At The Mariner Newspapers

it's happening

SHARE signups set

SHARE is a non-profit organization dedicated to community service and self-help, offering good food at great savings for those who participate.

Interested people may register for SHARE from 10 a.m. to noon tomorrow, Jan. 8 at the Harbor View Apts., 60 Elm St. and from 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday, Jan. 9 at the community center.

SHARE participants pay $13 for the food and pledge two hours of volunteer service once a month. In return you receive 15-17 food items, good wholesome nutritious food purchased from growers and processors, with a retail value of $25-$35. SHARE has no eligibility or income requirements and is not connected in any way to any government program.

Volunteers are needed at the community center (contact Stephanie Church, 383-0088); Meals on Wheels, (contact the Social Service League, 383-0771), Cohasset Consignment Shop (Andy Merrill, 383-0678), New Friends' Program (Diane Saleski, 383-1260), Council on Aging (383-9112), Senior Shuttle bus drivers (383-9112), and SHARE Warehouse (Eileen Corbett, 383-6467).

Support the Depot

Cohasset Teen Depot, Papa Gino's Fundraiser, is Monday, Jan. 11 from 5 to 10 p.m.

Help support the Teen Depot!

Eat in, take out or delivered (383-6303). Percentage of proceeds to benefit the Teen Depot.

Fathers, SHARE on cable

Thursday, Jan. 7, Host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person are Daniel Henderson and Frank Kelly of Concerned Fathers in Divorce who believe Massachusetts Probate Courts are grossly unfair to divorcing fathers.

The second segment guests are Carolyn Vaughan, John Kierce, and Ross Hymon of the SHARE food distribution program discussing what it is and how it works.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham; on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

For further information about upcoming guests and additional show information call the Pierson Show's Executive Producer, Robert Belliveau, at 545-2500.

Communication talk set

To address communication in the home, the Carriage House Nursery School, 23 N. Main St. will host a parent workshop Tuesday, Jan. 19 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Trueblood Hall of the First Unitarian Parish House.

Presented by Lynne Phipps, this parent workshop addresses communication in our families by covering such areas as communication theory; the connection between communication and self esteem; and techniques that will take stress out of our lives and communications.

Lynne Phipps is a graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design with bachelor of fine arts and bachelor of interior architecture degrees. Her practice specializes in the psychological effects of the built environment and in spaces designed specifically for children.

This workshop is open to the public.

Light refreshments will be served beginning at 7 p.m. A $4 donation is requested.

Please call the Carriage House (383-9785) or Jo-Ann Pilczak (383-0268) if you have questions.

Muslim women is topic

Jan. 12 Mary Lahaj, an American woman of Lebanese decent, presents a slide-lecture focusing on Muslim women today: their spiritual and legal status, as well as their role in society, the family, the feminist movement, and the Islamic revival.

The public is invited to attend The Hingham Branch's Jan. 12 meeting at the Plymouth River School in Hingham at 7:30 p.m. For further information call 878-0418.

South Look

A Supplement to the Mariner Newspapers / E January 6-7, 1993

Discerning vibrations at 440 times a second

By Richard Small
South Look staff

Martin Snow is a man obviously in love with his work. This is evident in his soft-spoken enthusiasm and the way he uses his graceful musician's hands to emphasize a point in conversation. He has a quick laugh and easy wit that accompany his in-depth knowledge of his vocation. Snow is a master piano tuner and technician.

A native of Bath, England, Snow and his wife Mia (a NJ native) have lived in Marshfield for the last six years. They met at the youth hostel Martin managed at Cornwall in the southwest of England. When Mia speaks of the beautiful solitude of this bastion of Celtic culture, you can almost see the windswept shoreline.

Martin Snow has travelled a circuitous route to his vocation. With a degree in music from the University of Leeds, he taught music in London's inner city schools. A couple of years of this was more than sufficient. He next managed the youth hostel, which he enjoyed but did not give him much chance to express his love of music.

"We liked Cornwall alright, 'tis very beautiful if lonely and a bit out of the way," said Snow. Moving to the States, Snow enrolled in the two-year Piano Technology Program at the North Bennet St. School in Boston. In this craft Snow combines his lifelong knowledge and love of classical music with the abilities of his deft hands.

The Snows lived on the Cape for a couple of years and then moved to Marshfield where they live with their three daughters, Corrina, Rosemary and Zoe.

Snow's skilled hands adjust the string's tension to the perfect pitch of his ear.

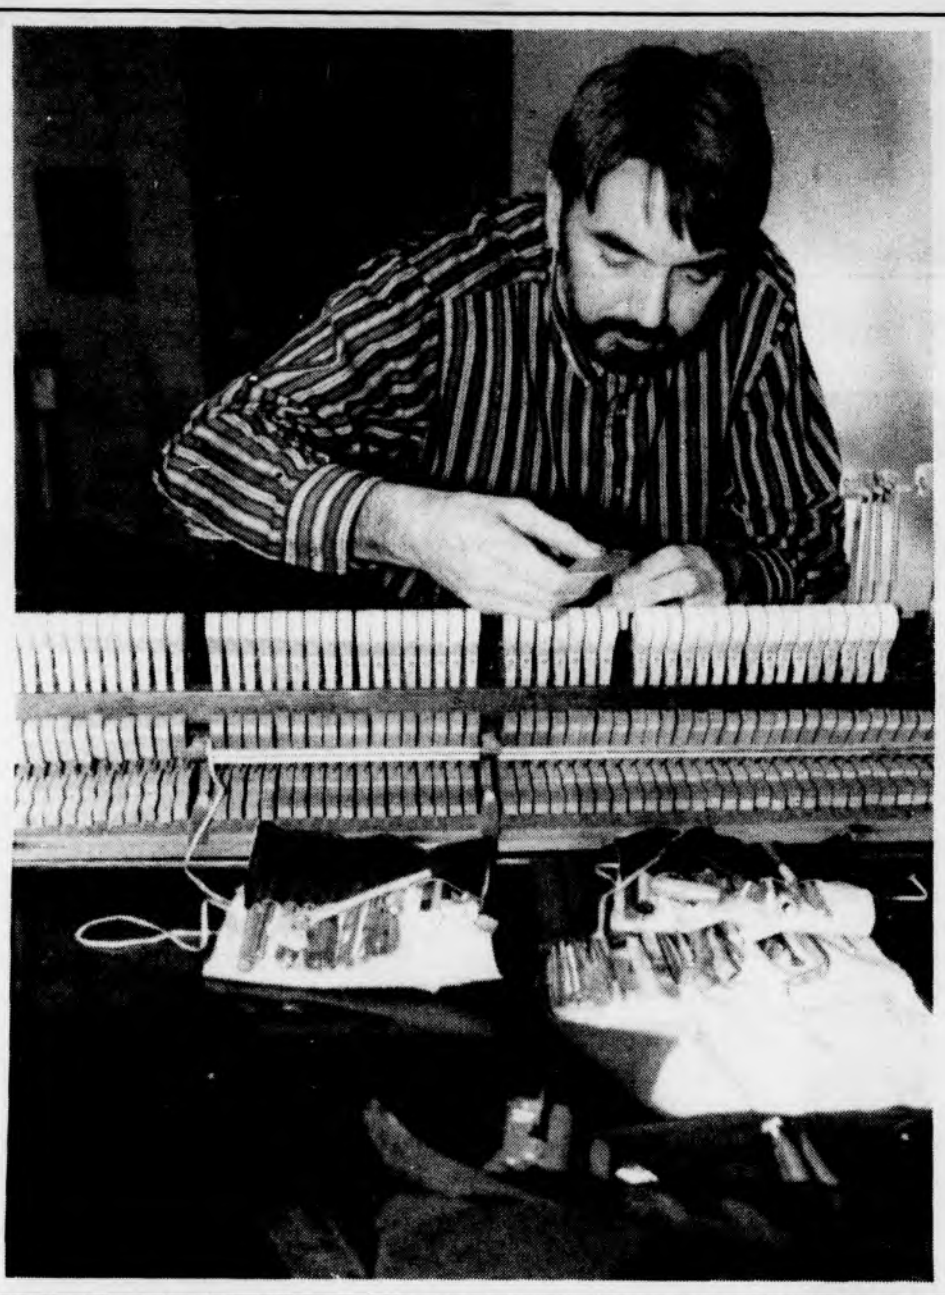
Discerning vibrations at 440 times a second



Piano technician Martin Snow files down the wool-felt hammers on the Steinway grand piano in his Marshfield living room. (Buzz Wadsworth photo)

Snow is now the head piano technician for Boston University where he and his assistant are responsible for 200 pianos, including 13 nine-foot concert grands which are checked daily.

There are some 300 music majors at BU with 70 majoring in piano in the School of Music of the School of the Arts. The balance of Snow's 200 charges are used in classrooms and in the school's concert performances.

Additionally, Snow has his local private practice which includes servicing the pianos of the South Shore Conservatory and pianos for many local teachers.

The piano's lineage (including its name) reaches back nearly three hundred years to Southern Italy. Adaptations and refinements in Austria, Germany, England and France gave us the modern piano, which is substantially the same marvelous six-octave range instrument as in the late 19th century.

Pianos contain 12,000 parts, any and all of which need service and repair from time to time. Most parts are made of wood, leather and wool felt, with important metal pieces including the strings and the iron frame which enables the instrument to support a string pressure of 18-20 tons. Included in the "queen" of instruments are an array of gears, levers, rods, lifters and connectors.

Such a complex of subtle, non-high tech mechanical parts requires aptitude, training and skill. Snow is a Registered Technician with the Piano Technicians Guild. Their self-described entry requirements include, ". . . a series of three rigorous examinations in the maintenance, repair and tuning of pianos."

Snow's practice includes four distinct areas. Repair: to fix a broken action part. Recondition: cleaning the soundboard, case, keys and plate; polishing brass captstans, hardware, hinges and pedals; filing hammers; brushing buckskin and felt; action regulation and tuning; no new parts. Restoration: returning the piano to a "like new" condition. This includes case refinishing, installing new hammers, dampers, strings, tuning pins and all new action parts. Rebuild: includes all the procedures of Restoration plus a new pin block or soundboard.

All of the work is done by hand with an array of tools not dissimilar to that of the surgeon. The tools range from finely cast ratchet wrenches to special wood files for felt piano hammers. No lubricants are used. The skilled technician relies on his ability to fine tune tolerances to the near microscopic level.

Everything hinges on the "ear" of the technician. The base line of tuning is "A-440." This means that the strings of the key of "A" above Middle "C" when played vibrate 440 times a second. This is also known as "Standard," "Concert," or "Factory" pitch. This worldwide standard enables a Japanese musician playing a German flute to play in tune with an American-made piano.

Martin Snow tunes by ear with the sublimely simple tuning fork. Wife Mia says as she laughs, "Martin can hear things that the rest of us can't." His classical music background serves him well in understanding a given piano's limitations and problems and also in understanding the needs of the musician.

Working with a range of pianos from Steinways and Baldwins to Yamahas at BU, gives Snow a variety of experience that is not easily copied. He is aware of the good points and weaknesses of each piano he maintains.

Part of his private practice includes consulting for potential piano buyers. "A piano can be a major purchase in a household, you want to be sure that you obtain the best instrument for your investment. On the other hand, you want the best instrument you can afford for the good of the musicians who will use it," said Snow.

Once a piano is in the home it should be tuned at least once a year—every six months is actually preferable.

"New England is a great place to live, but it plays havoc with piano maintenance," said Snow. The humidity and constant barometric changes of the region make it hard to keep a piano at its optimum performance level.

With the action part of his grand piano up and out where it can be worked on, Snow selects from an array of tools for the job. (Buzz Wadsworth photo)

In the downturned economy of the last three years, Snow has been busy not only with his university duties, but with a growing private practice. No doubt this reflects his advanced degree of competency in the field, but in part it must be his manner of interest, and low-key concern in all things musical.

If you are considering a piano purchase, or have need of tuning, repair or restoration, you may call him at (617) 837-6531. His experience and abilities will be an asset to you. To repeat Mia's assertion, "Martin can hear things that the rest of us can't."

Playing Cassandra for the Olde Towne Teams

By Frank Fallaci
Special to South Look

SIDE LINES

Predictions, predictions ... the spice of life when accurate, and especially if one hears people remark that, "This guy really knows of what he writes." Things like that will make a sportswriter's day, and so as 1993 throws open its doors, what lies ahead for the teams in the Athens of America?

Spread your palms, my friends, gaze into the crystal ball. For better or for worse, this is Boston's future in the field of sports. No soothsayer necessary, nor sorcerer sought, no Merlin or Wizard of Oz recruited for thought. The picture is there, for all to see. There will be little joy in Beantown for the next several years. But how we do go on ...

A cheer was heard at the Garden last week when the Celtic hierarchy exhumed point guard John Bagley. Encouragement sadly misdirected. They still don't seem to get it at the Causeway Cathedral. What is wrong with the basketball Celtics is no handyman-special cosmetic work. We're talking major rehabilitation. This team is riding on the rims. Breathing life into Bags (what an appropriate sobriquet) is like working with baling wire.

Jenkins and Tradesman, Inc. and now coach of the Golden State Warriors, Don Nelson, can see and read the handwriting on the wall for his old team clear across the country. Asked how he felt about the Celtics' chance this season he replied on radio recently, "I worry about the Celts ... they had such great years with their teams in the Eighties. Then Larry Bird retired and Robert Parish and Kevin McHale have passed their prime. The club is faced with a complete rebuilding program. It looks like they are going to try and squeeze in another year with the players they have. But eventually, the Celtics will have to reconstruct the entire roster."

PREDICTION: Resuscitating John Bagley will fall short of expectations. For one thing, his physical condition remains suspect. Secondly, he does not possess the quickness of foot that is general issue for a celebrity point guard, on offense and defense. He has never proven himself to have ice-water in his veins, like his predecessor, Dennis Johnson.

Had enough? Exertion and exhaustion will cause Parish and McHale to topple during the present campaign. At some point, Xavier McDaniel will self-destruct, if not involved first in a major trade. Reggie Lewis will never assume Larry Bird's leadership identity until he puts his game in fluid drive with some of the best passing and re-bounding ever seen in the Boston Garden. Everyone knows he can shoot. Celtics' ownership will begin razing of the Green only when the front office receives word from the box office that game attendance fell below sell-out, twice. One parting prediction ... this club will not regain greatness until it acquires an outlet center, a la Christian Laettner. It may save your job, Dave.

At Fenway Park, there will be faint tremors in May when Boston expatriate Wade Boggs, now in New York Yankee pinstripes, revives memories of one-time Bronx Bombers' third base standout, Craig Nettles. Not to worry.

PREDICTION: Any success by Boggs will be the least of Lou Gorman's anxiety. Calamity for Gorman will come from the West, should outfielder Phil Plantier and catcher Eric Wedge bloom for San Diego and Colorado. Regarded a year ago as promising members of a BoSox rebirth, both young power hitters were dismissed this fall by Gorman, presumably with the consent of manager Butch Hobson. The arrival to the Olde Towne Team this spring of free agent Andre Dawson, et al, will produce sudden pennant fever. Any real Red Sox fan knows the script, chapter and verse. Several home runs sail into the screen. A brace of stellar pitching performances! Inflammation spreads from bleachers to grandstand. Can this be the year, on the 75th anniversary of the last Red Sox World Series victory? Huzzah!

And then occurs a familiar Red Sox diagnosis. Poor pitching becomes contageous. Heralded hitters' bats are suddenly bed-ridden. Speed, the anti-biotic that has delivered numerous ball clubs to recovery, yet seldom used by the Olde Towne Team, is once again among the missing. By the All-Star intermission, pennant fever has subsided. But the fans are sick.

Barring a massive, mid-season sale 'n trade, the team maintains its frustrating pattern of peaks and valleys, finishing fourth in the East. In November the organization is sold. Gorman and Hobson depart. The new owner(s) announce 1994 will be different, speed will be brought in from the farm system, new arms and fresh bats. Miraculously, scores of loyal fans arise from deathbeds, eagerly await arrival of the new campaign.

What can be said about the Foxborough Patriots?

If Sam "dear Janko" Jankovich survives 1992's field of disaster, he must enter the draft with an unyielding eye. Bang goes the egg money! He must thrill New England with the induction of an exciting football player, a quarterback who can command armies, a running back who screams into the end zone, untouched! The present Patriots, surprisingly, have competence in rank and file, but no offensive star.

PREDICTION: Jankovich, if he lives to fight again, will do the right thing. He has profited from past mistakes and will transform this club into a contender. Eventually, the franchise must be reestablished in a domed stadium inside the Hub of the Universe. Dear Janko, Hercules took on an easier task with the Aegean Stables.

The good news in '93 rests with hockey's Boston Bruins. Over good times and bad times, no fans leave the Black and Gold. They are family to Charlestown, Revere, the North End. Their game is their life. Their drink, two parts ice, one part blood. Young faces creased with scars, every night over the boards to do battle.

What is there not to like on this current squad of Broo'ns? Rarely, if ever, plagued by prima donnas, their singular immortal continues to this day as the brightest, the most modest, certainly most gracious, of Boston's sports celebrities. He is timeless, his name needs no mention.

PREDICTION: Long after the successes and failures of Sox 'n Celts and the Pats make three, the Bruins will play before audiences of standing room only. This year's version is a team that brings electric excitement game-per-game, put together by specialists, Harry Sinden and Brian Sutter. They are one scoring ace away from a Stanley Cup. Will they get him? Check the puck-crunched mouths both suffered. A Stanley Cup will come to Beantown, very soon!

And now, let the games begin ...!

Some predications on events in 1993

The more things change, the more they remain the same, as we shall find out in 1993.

January — Bill Clinton is sworn in as nation's 42nd president. Says his goal is to revive JFK's Camelot. Starts by meeting Gennifer Flowers secretly in upstairs closet after inaugural ball.

February — Rep. Joe Kennedy denounces Marge Schott and Ku Klux Klan at rally in Cincinnati. Tells millionaire African-American outfielders, "Ich bin ein schwartzer!" Denies he's running for president in 1996.

March — Celtics announce that Larry Bird is coming out of retirement to enhance their fading chances of making the playoffs. Attendance goes from under 5,000 to 14,890 at his first game. Bruins ask 44-year-old Bobby Orr, "How's the old knee feel, kid?"

April — Red Sox are first team ever to start season with lineup that averages over 35 years of age. "They may not be able to reach the left field wall and they've lost something off their fastballs," says Lou Gorman, "but they provide the leadership we need in the locker room."

May — High school senior appeals principal's ruling that he cannot escort his pet spaniel to the prom. Outraged attorney Alan Dershowitz says he plans to handle case free of charge to halt yet another attempt to limit freedom of choice.

June — Rep. Joe Kennedy denounces Fidel Castro's failure to hold free elections in Cuba for 34 years at rally in Miami. Tells millionaire refugees, "Ich bin ein Cuba libre!." Denies he's running for president in 1996.

July — Bank of Boston merges with BayBank, Shawmut Bank, State Street Trust Company and South Shore Bank, lays off 12,543 employees, announces billion dollar profit for second quarter. Bank economists say their figures show New England economy is well on road to recovery.

August — Governor Weld announces that, since the 25-cent-a-pack cigarette tax hike has successfully eliminated all smoking in Massachusetts, it's okay to use the tax money that is collected in the future to balance the state budget for Fiscal 1994, which began July 1.

September — After consulting with Eric Lindros, first five Patriots' draft choices say they will sit out the season rather than play in New England because (a) it has a lousy team, (b) the people speak with a funny accent and (c) it is a cultural wasteland for boys from Alabama.

October — Supreme Court agrees to hear appeal from People's Republican of Cambridge affirmative action by-law giving women two votes and men one in city elections to make up for 137 years of sexist discrimination prior to 1920.

November — New England Journal of Medicine announces discovery of cancer-causing virus in most health foods that can be eradicated only through massive doses of cholesterol, nicotine and a clear liquid distilled from the berry of the juniper bush.

December — Rep. Joe Kennedy denounces logging industry at rally in Oregon. Tells millionaire bird watchers, "Ich bin ein strix occidentalis!" Denies he's running for president in 1996.

Horoscope

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You chat up a storm at work, and you impress others with your understanding and savoir faire. Your more playful side emerges just in time for the weekend. You get to celebrate a very successful and rewarding week.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You play not only Ralph Nader this week, but also Telestar and Betty Crocker. Count on it being a roller coaster ride with some real suspense hitting on the full moon. Choose fun company for this lazy weekend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are unstoppable, a powerhouse, a force to be dealt with. You can count on being a very busy bee this weekend, going from flower to flower, again leaving your mark on everything and everyone you touch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You go from the abysmal lows to euphoric highs this work week, though it's questionable if WORK is your only priority. Keep all the hanky panky undercover, if you know what's good for you. You roll into the weekend ready to play and experiment.

LEO (July 23-August 22) You do whatever is necessary to make this week work. The weekend has a last-minute snafu that could drive you wild. Nevertheless, you do finally go off celebrating, being the ever charismatic Lion everyone loves.

VIRGO (August 23-September 22) Maximize the good vibes while you can this week. They move in and out, and you need flow with them. Just when you think you've got the tiger by the tail, you discover you don't. Be willing to admit defeat and begin again.

LIBRA (September 23-October 22) Reach for the stars and make the most of upcoming events. The unexpected pops toward the end of the week, and you may need to rethink recent decisions. Realize there are no problems, only solutions. Accept this fact and everything falls into place.

SCORPIO (October 23-November 21) Whatever you focus on, falls into place this week. New information and events force still more creative brainstorming. Know you have the answers. Your mind and spirit are off to fantasyland. A real happy and loving self emerges this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22-December 21) Others dominate this week. Play docile and don't fight the trends for now. You get your "just" rewards before the week is out, though it may shock you just how much you relish all of this. You feel as if you got every fantasy fulfilled this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22-January 19) Plunge into work and get done as much as humanly possible, because, once distractions come your way, you have a hard time settling down. Things come unglued this weekend. It could be your choices or the full moon pushing you across the line.

AQUARIUS (January 20-February 18) You are full of fun and creative wildness this week. Somehow you get a fragment or two of work done, especially if you direct some of your endless energy that way. Though the weekend starts late, it is well worth it.

PISCES (February 19-March 20) Consider security matters first and getting "things" more under control before you become more external this week. You are on full power with your mind, body and emotions flowing together. There are some wild and woolly moments as the weekend comes in, but you handle it all.

❑ Quiz: What state in the USA has a capital named for a famed Indian scout? Answer below.

❑ "I never wanted to see anybody die, but there are a few obituary notices I have read with pleasure." — Clarence Darrow.

❑ Historical colloquy: "I understand you polish your own boots, Mr. Lincoln?" "I do indeed. Whose boots do you polish?"

❑ Daniel Webster, when asked why he had not made a two-hour speech shorter, replied: "I didn't have time."

❑ Answer to quiz: Carson City, Nevada, named for Kit Carson.

❑ "What'll you have?" said the bartender. "A Dickens martini." "What's that?" "No olive or twist."

❑ Sam Goldwyn spoke of a "carriage of misjustice." In a serious speech he said, "I wish sometimes I had said all those funny things."

❑ Los Angeles has been described as "a group of suburbs in search of a city."

❑ When Irving Cobb heard that an editor (Chapin) was ill, he said, "I trust it's nothing trivial." He lost a wager when he bet Will Rogers he couldn't make President Calvin Coolidge smile. Will won by saying, as he was introduced to the President, "Pardon me, I didn't get the name."

❑ Casanova, the great lover, had a big nose, thick lips, protruding teeth, pop eyes and flat feet.

❑ I didn't say she was fat. I merely said she asked where she could go to get anorexia.

Some more TV entries for Bartlett's Quotations

By Robert Aicardi
South Look staff

small screen

"Me want cookie!"

If you're like me and grew up watching "Sesame Street," you know that Cookie Monster has made those three simple words famous enough to be included in the latest edition of Bartlett's Familiar Quotations.

Although Cookie Monster has always been my favorite of the Muppets who appear on "Sesame Street" (even now, I love watching him play Alistair Cookie, the distinguished host of "Monsterpiece Theater"), there are other words of wisdom from TV characters which also deserve to be included in Bartlett's.

Here are just a few of them.

"Once you give up integrity, the rest is a piece of cake."—J. R. Ewing, "Dallas."

"As God is my witness, I thought turkeys could fly."—Arthur Carlson, "WKRP in Cincinnati."

"We manage to have a laugh or two at humanity's expense."—Arthur Dietrich, "Barney Miller."

"I don't like being frightened. It scares me."—Major Margaret Houlihan, "M*A*S*H."

"If brains was lard, Jethro couldn't grease a pan."—Jed Clampett, "The Beverly Hillbillies."

"Hekawis not fighters, we lovers."—Chief Wild Eagle, "F Troop."

"It's a dog-eat-dog world, and I'm wearing Milkbone underwear."—Norm Peterson, "Cheers."

"Stay clear of weddings, because one of them is liable to be your own."—Pappy Beauregard Maverick, "Maverick."

"What a picture of domestic tranquility: hemlock on the hearth and my wife feeding the piranha."—Gomez Addams, "The Addams Family."

"Individuality is fine, as long as we do it together."—Major Frank Burns, "M*A*S*H."

"Just because we're married to men doesn't mean that we have anything in common with them."—Ethel Mertz, "I Love Lucy."

"I thought I was on my way to Nirvana, but all I ended up with were recurrent flashbacks of the original Mousketeers."—Reverend Jim Ignatowski, "Taxi."

"Why am I bothering to eat this chocolate? I might as well apply it directly to my thighs."—Rhoda Morgenstern, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

"It takes a smart man to know that he's stupid."—Barney Rubble, "The Flintstones."

"The more complex the mind, the greater the need for the simplicity of play."—Captain James T. Kirk, "Star Trek."

"I'm very bad at firing people. I once had to move rather than fire a housekeeper."—Mary Richards, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

"We lose patients for a lot of reasons that we can't control, when when we lose a patient because of our own ineptitude, it's unforgivable."—Dr. Mark Craig, "St. Elsewhere."

"I don't care what the jury said, sir. You look like a rapist to me."—Bill Bittinger, "Buffalo Bill."

"As we say in the sewer, time and tide wait for no man."—Ed Norton, "The Honeymooners."

"You know what? You got spunk. I hate spunk!"—Lou Grant, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

Vampires, genies and cowboys in the year's best

By Joseph Mont
South Look

The past year was, on the whole, better than average for both studios and audiences. There were blockbusters, the return of old standbys, and a renewed emphasis on independent films.

Here are my picks for the best and worst of the year.

Batman Returns

By putting this big-budget blockbuster on the year's best list I accept that I am something of an anomaly among film critics.

Others have and will disagree, but I think this sequel far surpasses the original in both content and originality.

Director Tim Burton was given free reign to make the film he wanted to and he chose a complex and personal statement about emotional isolation.

Burton had the good sense to keep the film colorful and vibrant, even when the plot is dark and dry. From an army of renegade circus performers, to Danny DeVito's deformed Penguin, to an army of ballistic birds, "Batman Returns" is a feast for the eyes.

Michael Keaton as the Dark Knight takes aim against crime once again in "Batman Returns."

THE GOOD...

Unforgiven

Clint Eastwood, dismissed by many after the disastrous duo "White Hunter, Black Heart" and "The Rookie," rebounded big time with one of the best movies of the year and his career.

"Unforgiven" was a complex story that worked masterfully on multiple levels. At its best, the film brilliantly de-constructed Western mythology and then rebuilt it from the ground up.

Whether the stark and somber, "Unforgiven" will revive the Western remains to be seen. There is no doubt, however, that the film revived Eastwood's career.

Dracula

Criticized by many as opulent but empty, Francis Ford Coppola's stylish vampire tale nevertheless makes this list.

"Dracula" may not be a masterpiece, but it is visually stunning.

Coppola's artsy staging, funky camera angles and campy dissolves may be excessive, but they do have a certain charm.

Coppola's "Dracula," like his cohort Martin Scorcese's "Cape Fear" should be treated, not as a masterpiece to rival past glories, but as an artist working hard to have fun.

Night on Earth

Five stories in five taxi cabs in five countries. That's the high concept of this detached, hip and brilliant film. With an international cast (that includes Americans Geena Rowlands, Winona Ryder, and Rosie Perez) writer/director Jim Jarmusch's film is alternately funny, scary, life affirming and sad.

Don't miss the film's hysterical ride through Italy in the film's third segment.

Crying Game

This end-of-the-year release from writer/director Neil Jordan is squeezing its way, last minute, onto many best of the year lists.

Unfortunately, there is almost nothing I can tell you about the film without ruining its multiple surprises. All you need to know is that it is about the troubles in Ireland, racism, an assassination plot, a fugitive on the run, sexual attraction and Karaoke.

Malcolm X

I originally gave this film, at best, a mixed review. While time and memory have only made the film's flaws stand out even more, I feel obliged to put it on this list.

The film should be seen if for no other reason than to whet an appetite for the controversial and often misunderstood civil rights leader.

Denzel Washington, in what should be an Oscar winning performance as Malcolm, should not be missed.

"Malcolm X" is, without question, a flawed film that never lived up to its own hype. The story might have been better served with a bigger budget and more breathing room. Perhaps a television mini-series would have been the proper vehicle for director Spike Lee's work.

"Malcolm X" may not be a very good film, but it is an important film that should be seen.

Aladdin

Yeah, it is only a cartoon. Yeah, it is not nearly as charming as "Beauty and the Beast." Yeah, Robin William's performance as the genie is overrated.

Yeah, so?

"Aladdin" is no "Snow White," but it is one of the funniest film's of the year and a treat for the whole family.

...AND THE BAD

Husbands and Wives

Woody Allen's slice of art imitates life isn't enlightening, thoughtful or entertaining. The acting is good, but the script (which equates screeching with drama) and the direction, (shot by a nauseating hand held camera) make this film unbearable.

It is sad when the always annoying Juliette Lewis, with her finger-in-the-mouth acting technique, is the best thing in a film.

Poison Ivy

This Drew Barrymore vehicle was none of the things it promised to be. It wasn't sexy. It wasn't scary. It wasn't dark. It wasn't emotional. It wasn't good.

Cool World

Ralph Bashki's return to big screen animation (he was booted from television after he had Mighty Mouse sniff cocaine one Saturday morning) was a huge disappointment.

It tried to mix live action and animation ala "Who Framed Roger Rabbit," but came out looking like "Mary Poppins" at its worst. Kim Bassinger's Holly Wood was a sexy creation and there were a few good ideas to be found, but Bashki buried these few gems under a mountain of gross jokes and sophomoric plot points.

Dr. Giggles

Need I say more?

Innocent Blood

A few cute scenes with Don Rickles a a vampire were not enough to save this anemic horror movie from director John Landis.

Antiques Questions & Answers

ANTIQUES FROM A TO Z

Listings of antiques from A to Z almost always end with Zsolnay, the famous Hungarian pottery. The company was started in Pecs by Vilmos Zsolnay, and the main product was everyday earthenware. By 1900, Art Nouveau-style ornamental vases and bowls with colored glazes and luster were being made.

Today, collectors favor the pieces with luster glaze. Early in the century the Zsolnay luster was gold; the luster on modern pieces is a green-gold. The company still sells a line of luster figures and vases.

Q. When were ceramic toothbrush holders made in the shape of comic-strip figures? I have the Three Little Pigs, Mickey Mouse and the Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe. What others were made?

A. We have heard of collectors with over 70 different toothbrush holders. The unusual holders were made in the 1920s to 1950s by many companies. Comic-strip figures like Gasoline Alley, Orphan Annie and Sandy, Moon Mullins and Kayo, Andy and Min, Uncle Willie and Emmy, and Uncle Walt and Skeezix were made. Nursery characters like Old King Cole, the Butcher, Baker and Candlestick Maker, and the Three Bears can also be found. Many Walt Disney characters and some radio show figures like the Lone Ranger were popular too.

A rare "Skippy" holder has a movable arm. There were also toothbrush holders with animals, fish, ducks, clowns, soldiers or pirates. One type hung on the wall; another type stood on the shelf. Up to six toothbrushes could be kept in these holders.

Q. I have a small cardboard license plate that must have been given away with bubble gum. It is a 1950 Pennsylvania plate. Who made these? I have been collecting the small license plates given out by the Disabled American Veterans.

A. In 1949, Topps, the bubble-gum company, issued license-plate cards in the gum. They offered more in 1950, then again in 1953. There were 75 different cards in the 1949 and 1950 sets, 75 in the 1953 set.

WINDSOR CHAIR WITH A NICKNAME

Nicknames for furniture are not uncommon. The correct name for a special type of wooden chair is Windsor, but to many it is a "Firehouse Windsor." The name became popular about 1910 because that particular chair — a low-back chair with arms, heavy spindles and turned legs — was often used by volunteer fire companies as well as lodges, hotels and other businesses.

A similar chair was made in England. These chairs are known as "pub" or "smoker's bow" chairs because they were used in public houses, saloons, offices and club smoking rooms. The English version has more elaborately turned legs and arms. Both types of Windsors are so sturdy and so comfortable that they are still being made today.

Q. My wife has always wanted a carousel horse, and we finally found one we could afford in an antiques store. The dealer knew nothing about it or where it came from. It is on a cast-iron stand. The word "Mexico" is imprinted on the right front hoof. We saw some similar horses marked "Coca-Cola" in another store. Do you think it is new?

A. Old carousel horses were carved of wood by craftsmen and firms in the United States, England and Europe. None of these were marked with the name of the maker or the country of origin. The horses were made for hard use in an amusement park and were repainted many times. Any name would have been painted over.

The word "Mexico" on your horse suggests a recent copy of an old horse. Many horses are being made in Mexico, Taiwan, Korea, the Philippines and other countries because they sell well. An old horse should show signs of wear or repainting unless professionally restored.

Q. Can you tell me about McClelland Barclay jewelry?

A. McClelland Barclay was an artist who was well-known for illustrations and magazine covers in the 1930s. He also made bronze and bronze-plated lamps, bookends and other metal pieces. His jewelry was made in the Art Deco style, often with rhinestones and faceted colored glass. The jewelry is stamped with his name. He was killed in the 1940s while serving as a naval commander in the South Pacific.

WHAT A DOLL

The words "rag doll" suggest a homemade toy, created from materials found in the house. Perhaps an old cotton stocking was stuffed, the heel embroidered with a face and the body dressed to make a crude figure of a child. Many rag dolls were more sophisticated — and more expensive.

Any doll made of fabric is a rag doll, but collectors now use the words "rag doll," "fabric doll" and "cloth doll" to describe them. This included the Izannah Walker dolls with painted faces that were made about 1873, the date on her patent for the process of molding the faces. Other molded stockinette dolls with oil painted faces were made by Martha Jenks Chase about 1880. The felt Steiff dolls were made after 1877.

Doll patterns to cut and sew were printed on flour sacks from the 1890s, and yardgoods printed with dolls that could be cut and stuffed were made in quantity by the beginning of the 1900s. Advertising-premium rag dolls are still being made and offered in exchange for labels or coupons.

A special type of stocking doll became popular in the 1930s. French and Italian doll makers took thin knit stockings, stuffed them and stitched the faces into realistic-looking elderly men and women. The figures were dressed in typical peasant clothing with hats, wooden shoes, baskets, bundles of wood, tools, knitting baskets or other symbols of work. These dolls are too fragile to be toys and have become scarce today.

Q. My small round footstool is covered with colorful beadwork. The center design is a group of flowers, with a geometric border on the edge. When were beaded footstools popular?

A. Beadwork of all types was used to decorate the Victorian home. Pillows, chairs, bell pulls, valances, fireplace screens, even tea trays were made with tiny glass beads. The dark Victorian room looked better if the light from the candles or oil lamps were reflected in the glass.

In the 1850s women began adding beads to their needlework designs. Printed patterns painted on graph paper were sold as patterns for Berlin work, a special type of wool needlework. Beadwork remained in style until the beginning of the 20th century. Today the old beaded pieces are being restored and used as part of pillows or pictures. A footstool with original beadwork is a prize.

INNOVATIVE POTTERS

Josiah Wedgwood, the founder of the famous Wedgwood pottery factory, was an entrepreneur, innovator and designer. He came from a family of potters. His brother would not let him work for the family business in the 1700s, so he started his own company and developed many best-selling lines of pottery. After 10,000 recorded experiments, he developed Jasper ware, a new type of ceramic. He was able to make cameos and seals that imitated the early Greek and Roman gems. Queen's ware, a cream-colored pottery, was made to compete with more expensive porcelain dishes. Customers wanted more color, so he experimented and developed new green and yellow glazes. He made teapots and dishes that resembled vegetables and leaves.

The tradition of new types of ceramics and bold designs has remained with the Wedgwood factory. The newest collector interest is the black and white pieces made since the 1930s.

Q. I collect dark-blue glass bottles. Several bottles I found under the porch of an old house held Bromo-Seltzer. The tops of the bottles are a little different. One has the diagonal threads for a screw cap, and another has a plain round ridge that is a little below the top. How can I date the bottles?

A. Bromo-Seltzer was created by Edward Emerson at his drugstore in Annapolis, Md., in January 1889. The dark-blue bottle was used to keep light from harming the white powdered compound.

There are many different Bromo-Seltzer bottles, and all of them are relatively inexpensive for today's collector. Four sizes were made for home use, and a few large sizes were made for drugstore soda fountains.

There are several ways to date the bottles. The letter M was on the bottom of bottles made at the Maryland Glass Corporation from 1907 to 1916. After that, the letter M in a circle was used as the mark. Early bottles, 1891 to 1928, were made for a cork stopper and had a long neck. From 1920 to 1954 the bottles used a metal seal, and this bottle had a small rim at the top. The diagonal screw-top bottle was used after 1954.

REAL ESTATE

Gracious garrison colonial in Canton

ADDRESS: 1230 Washington St., Canton
PRICE: $229,000
AGENT: Deborah L. Webb, DeWolfe New England, Canton
TELEPHONE: 821-2664

By Lee Seibert
South Look staff

In the early nineteenth century, the Draper brothers took advantage of available mill rights to the Neponset River and established a textile manufacturing business in Canton. Draper Brothers Company was one of four early firms that made Canton a strong industrial community, and today is the only one still in operation.

In 1937, Herbert Kinsley Draper converted one of the mill's original buildings into a gracious garrison colonial residence. With the architectural advice of Royal Barry Wills, a popular and trend-setting designer of the time, this four-bedroom, two-and-a-half bath home was created.

Situated on an acre landscaped by a professional, the house is at the end of a long drive. Neighboring homes have similar grace and size. Washington St. will take you to either Route 138 and the highway to Boston or into Canton center, with its library and town offices.

The current owners maintain a variety of plantings, including dogwoods, lilacs, pear and apple trees. Tea roses, tulips, peonies and tiger lilies flower each season. Fruit can also be harvested from their blueberry bushes and grape vines.

Draper's paneled front door still stands and has its original wrought iron hinges and brass door knocker engraved with his name. You enter into a wood paneled front room. Boards stained in natural tones surround a center fireplace. A copper and wood chandelier from the '30s hangs over a table, and the room is suitable for dining.

An 18' x 9' eat-in kitchen with wood cabinets painted white has been brought up to date. Modern appliances and a gray marble-type counter top have been installed. The hot water heater and furnace are behind closet doors for easy access. There is a china cabinet and a pass-through opening to a large front-to-back family room, another recent addition.

Here, a cathedral ceiling holds skylights and spotlights that brighten white walls. There are windows on three sides, and in the back corner of the room, a wood stove sits up on a concrete slab. Wall to wall carpeting completes the room's feeling of warmth.

On the opposite end of the original house, a separately heated sunroom looks out on a courtyard and patio. Side yard shrubs and trees can be enjoyed from here, with no notion that Washington St. is your address. The room features a stone floor, wall shelves and closets.

There is a first floor bedroom with an attached full bath. A porcelain pedestal sink of a fine vintage is complemented by a modern shower stall.

A staircase lined in pale gray wood paneling turns at a landing window and you reach the second floor. There is a Royal Barry trademark archway over the entrance to the master bedroom, where a three-sectioned window faces the front yard. Built-in bookcases, a pegged pine floor and a working fireplace make this room unique. A pocket door leads to a dressing room, half bath and laundry hook ups.

The remaining bedrooms each have three windows, allowing lots of light. Along the hall, there are built-in closets and cabinets for linen. A full bath with white ceramic tile on the floor, in the shower and around the vanity sink completes the second story.

House of the Week is a regular South Look feature. Please send information about your house for sale to South Look, 165 Enterprise Dr., Marshfield, MA 02050.

IMPORTANT REMINDER: We have no economic interest in these houses. We would not buy them if offered, nor are we trying to sell them. We're just letting readers know what's out there in the world of residential real estate.

A LOOK AT 1992 IN REAL ESTATE

by Christine Vadiliou, Executive V.P.
Plymouth County Board of Realtors, Inc.

Since its inception in the wake of victory in the Persian Gulf, the recovery has been characterized by stop-and-go economic growth. We've seen a lot of go recently - finally! Locally, the real estate market has seen steady growth throughout the past year, and all signs indicate this should continue into 1993.

Existing homes sales in Plymouth County, strengthened by low mortgage rates and reviving consumer confidence, jumped 8% during the eleven month period ending November 1992. Towns within Norfolk and Plymouth Counties which showed dramatic increases in residential home sales were Carver and Duxbury - up to 15%, Hanover - up 10%, Hanson and Hingham - up 12%, and sales in both Kingston and Marshfield rose 19%.

Overall, the average selling price of residential homes decreased 3% over the eleven month period ending November 1992 compared with the same period in 1991. The jurisdiction of the Plymouth County Board of REALTORS includes the towns of Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Halifax, Hanover, Hanson, Hingham, Kingston, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth, Plympton and Scituate.

The gradual decrease in mortgage interest rates and the stabilization of prices puts homeownership in the grasp of a greater number of people than ever before. The move-up market is seeing increases, with a 7% increase is sales for homes under $150,000, and a 12% increase for homes priced between $150,000 and $275,000. All indications point to the real estate market continuing at the steady pace of the past twelve months.

Harbor budget gives board motion sickness

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

The selectmen's feet were firmly planted on the ground.

But with all the motioning the board undertook to approve the harbor budget — they might as well have been in a rocking boat in gale-force winds.

It was Harbormaster Irving Gadow's turn to take the hot seat Monday as selectmen once again had the unsavory duty of trimming budgets which are already pared to the bone.

The debate initially focused on the $3,400. Gadow requested for "casual labor" at the rate of $6.50 per hour (20 weeks/40 hrs.).

And then moved on to repairs to the harbormaster's storage shed ($3,995) and whether or not Gadow should have a new 85 h.p. engine ($4,700) for the Boston Whaler and boat trailer ($900).

Although they debated at length over Gadow's budget line item for casual labor, selectmen needed only two motions to reach majority agreement.

It took four motions for the board to approve just what on Gadow's wish list would get their okay.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan took a hard line with Gadow's budget.

"It seems like a lot for casual labor for that type of work," Sullivan said about the number of hours requested.

"There's a lot of work," countered Gadow adding that small engine repair is also included.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said the service provided by Robert Baggs of Scituate, a retired construction worker, is money well spent.

"Believe me, he's worth every dime he gets," Laugelle said. "The only reason he's there, he loves the water. It (labor) is well worth paying. The money we're saving with it is amazing."

Gadow explained that he uses "every bit" of the 800 hours for casual labor budgeted for.

"And there's still a lot of work up

Voice-mail phone tapes on town meeting agenda

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Town meeting voters will have the ultimate say whether to spend to spend their tax dollars in exchange for increased town hall access via a voice-mail telephone system.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon assured selectmen that if the town hall phone system goes high-tech, it won't lose the personal touch.

"It won't replace human beings entirely," Doyon said about the proposed $11,000 voice mail system. "To access the system you need a touch-tone phone. Not everyone in town has a touch-tone phone.

"And if it rings more than the designated six rings a human being will have to pick up that phone," he said.

Doyon explained that the system would provide better service to the public.

He said the 23 handsets in town hall would each have a mailbox, which would be especially useful for the offices that are staffed part-time.

The building inspector's office is staffed with a part-time clerk, for example. So when the inspector is out in the field, currently there is no one there to answer the phone, Doyon said.

"It gives citizens the ability to call in and leave a message," he explained.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan like the concept.

"Basically town hall becomes open 24 hours a day as far as people communicating with town hall," he said. "Leaving an explicit message on tape is a more efficient system."

Selectman Merle S. Brown did not agree.

"It's too large an amount to put in someone's budget," he said. "I think (the town hall) would lose the personal touch.

"We need to do a study to see how

Elvis Presley fans stamp(ede) local post offices

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

When the heralded Elvis Presley stamp went on sale at noon Friday, a crowd of 25 had already gathered at the Hingham Post Office.

"There was a lady standing here since 9 a.m.," said David Flint, supervisor of mail and delivery.

'There wasn't hysteria. We're more the Lawrence Welk type here.'
— Supervisor Joseph Cerilli
Cohasset Post Office

By 12:30 p.m. the same day, 7,000 of the Hingham Post Office's allotment of 14,000 Elvis stamps were sold.

Although Cohasset didn't experience an Elvis-mania blitz, sales were steady.

"There wasn't hysteria," Supervisor Joseph Cerilli said. "We're more the Lawrence Welk type here."

Cohasset only had 800 of its 7,000 Presley stamps left this week.

"We're ordering more," Cerilli said.

The United States Post Office printed 500 million 29-cent Elvis stamps in what is the largest postal commemorative issue ever.

"I don't ever remember there being a more publicized stamp than this," Flint said.

"We put on an extra person for the initial onslaught."

Flint said while there was a consistent flow of customers seeking stamps of the King, the crowd never exceeded 25.

The value of the stamps will not be known for several years, he explained.

"Value is determined by collectors down the road. Whatever there is the least of is what will be worth the most," he explained.

Customers bought sheets of stamps, some asked that the stamps be cancelled, and still others sent the stamps to themselves on the outside of envelopes, Flint said.

"Everybody collects in a different way, whether blank, or cancelled or on an envelope," he said.

Jean McGovern, 54, of Hingham hedged her bets.

Cohasset's week

Town census mailed

Please be informed that the Town Census for 1993 will be mailed to each household this month.

Compliance with state requirements provides proof of residence to protect voting rights, veteran's bonus, housing for the elderly and related benefits as well as providing information for selection of jurors.

This does not register you as a voter but failure to answer this may result in the voter's name being removed from the voter's list. Please note that if a person wishes to remain a voter, do not remove him from the census.

Dog forms will be enclosed for your convenience. The licenses are due this month and are valid through Dec. 31. No special numbers will be issued this year. Numbers will be issued on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Rabies clinic possible

Legislation recently passed in the Massachusetts General Court requires that pet owners have all their cats and dogs over six (6) months of age immunized against rabies. Feb. 24 is the deadline for having this accomplished.

The Cohasset Board of Health is considering sponsoring a rabies immunization clinic if there is sufficient interest by pet owners. If you are interested in having your pet immunized through such a clinic, please call the Board of Health office at 383-9900, ext. 121.

A stolen red jeep Cherokee (above), belonging to a Cohasset resident, taken from the Rockland park and ride lot, was allegedly used in a break at a home on Prospect St. in Norwell. In the photo, police cruisers surround the car after it was abandoned at the Quincy-Adams T-station. Norwell police said they interrupted three youths in the process of breaking into the house. One waited outside in the stolen jeep that was backed into the driveway, while the other two allegedly went through the home. After Norwell police arrived, police chased the driver of the Cherokee onto Route 3. The driver was subdued an arrested after he was found hiding under a car in the T-station garage at the end of the chase. (Bob Stella photo)

Blood drive, Jan. 26

The next Cohasset Community Red Cross Blood Drive is Tuesday, Jan. 26.

The drive takes place at The First Parish House on Cohasset Common between the hours of 2 and 7 p.m.

Past donors will receive a scheduling call from their group promoter. New donors are invited to call the Cohasset Blood Drive chairpersons Shirley and Jack Cibell, at 383-2974.

Special warrant opens

Selectmen voted to open the special town meeting warrant Jan. 11. It will be closed Tuesday, Jan. 19.

The special town meeting takes place within the regular town meeting and deals with money articles that must come out of the town's current FY'93 budget.

Henderson gets raise

Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson will be paid $85 an hour next year for professional services provided to the town.

Henderson has been paid $75 an hour for the past seven years.

"I move it, where we're paying outside counsel $185 an hour," Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said.

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby voted against the increase.

"I wanted to see it maintained at $75 an hour," she said.

Henderson's proposed budget for FY'94 is $58,400 including $1,733 in expenses. The budget is up about $4,800 over FY'93, which ends June 30, Henderson said.

Park, cemetery budgets

Selectmen approved a proposed budget of $119,632 for the Tree and Park Department and $22,948 for the cemetery department.

The park's budget capital items include, a portable water and sprayer machine, rear mount mower deck, money to refurbish a 1985 truck, and funds for fence repair.

The board did not approve Supt. Peter Laugelle's request for $2,475 in casual labor.

Peter Laugelle said the money would be used "for the maintenance of fences, grounds, benches and parks."

Selectmen Rocco F. Laugelle and Merle S. Brown supported the request for casual labor with Martha K. Gjesteby and Michael H. Sullivan opposed. Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke did not attend Monday's meeting.

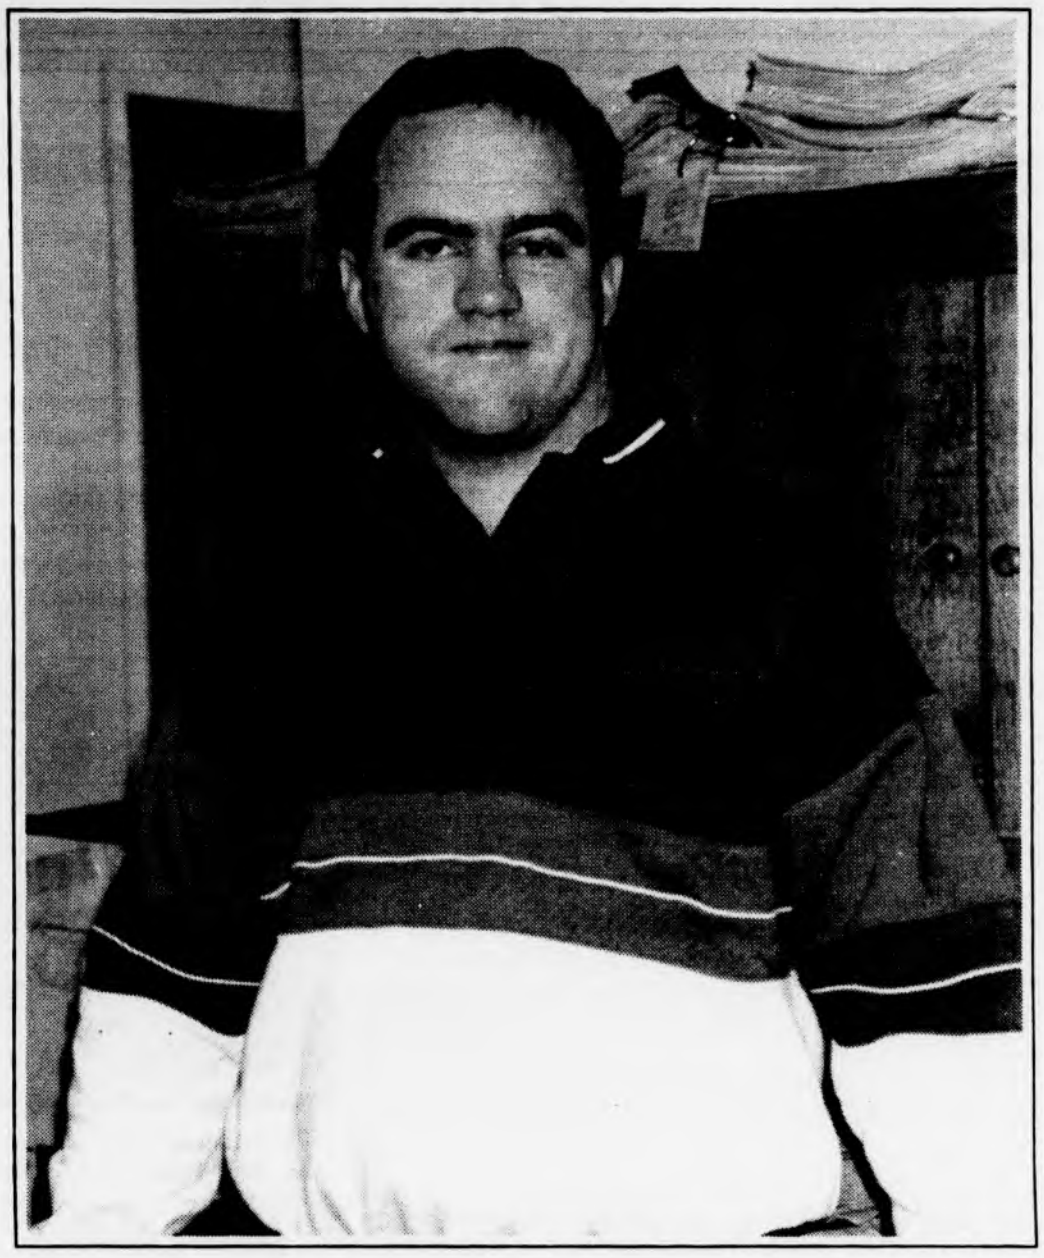
Tom Wigmore



Name: Tom Wigmore.

Occupation: State Commander of the Sons of the American Legion and a child care counselor.

Best day of your life: When I was hired at the Baird Center for troubled adolescents.

Most embarrassing moment: While monitoring a bike trip for the Baird Center on Martha's Vineyard, I lost six kids and two staff members for 30 minutes. I couldn't find them anywhere.

Goal: To make a difference in the lives of the youths I work with.

Favorite season: Summer.

Best vacation: A trip to Florida several years ago.

Favorite holiday: Christmas.

Pet Peeve: People who ignore necessary tasks, like walking over trash instead of taking it out.

Favorite book: "Stress Management - A Comprehensive Guide to Wellness," by Edward Charlesworth.

Favorite movie: "The Last Detail."

Biggest worry: That there will continue to be funding for the programs the Baird Center sponsors.

Favorite place: Cohasset Harbor.

Favorite junk-food: Pepsi and Suzy-Qs.

Harbor budget gives board motion sickness

there," he said.

Gadow said Baggs gives him a hand lifting engines and setting floats.

Sullivan belabored the point.

"There's no excess casual labor?" he asked.

Gadow said for years he relied on volunteers.

"I have to say also there were years when I first got here, a lot of it was volunteer. I ran out of volunteers," he said.

Sullivan moved that Gadow's casual labor budget be halved but his motion failed for lack of a second.

Laugelle moved to keep the budget as is, with a second by Selectman Merle S. Brown. Brown stipulated that Gadow keep an hourly record of casual labor.

That motion passed 3-1, with Sullivan opposed. (Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke did not attend Monday's meeting).

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby also asked that the account be monitored.

"If you feel you might not use it, try to save some money," she said.

The board also debated whether Gadow can wait a year for some of his capital requests.

Although the old engine isn't giving him trouble, Gadow said his top priority for capital items next year is a new boat engine.

"I'll be the one out there towing the boat. I want something more dependable than an eight-year-old engine," he said.

What then followed was a confusing series of motions —several of which failed for lack of a second and others for lack of a majority.

The motion for approval of the entire budget of $57,000, including capital requests, failed in a tie.

Sullivan' moved to keep the harbormaster's budget the same as this year's. That motion failed for lack of a second.

Selectman Merle S. Brown moved the amount requested for shingles for the roof of the harbormaster's storage shed be halved to $1,000; and that the boat and trailer be kept in the budget. His motion failed in a tie with Laugelle in support and Gjesteby and Sullivan voting no.

Laugelle moved the board approve the purchase of the boat and trailer. His motion passed in a majority vote with Sullivan voting no.

Then the board approved the a total budget of $55,769 with Sullivan again voting no.

Repairs to the storage shed will have to wait another year, selectmen said.

Elvis fans stamp(ede) local post offices

McGovern bought 80 Elvis stamps from the Abington Post Office, which she left in tact, and later bought another 100 at the Hingham Post Office, which she asked the clerk to cancel.

"I love Elvis," McGovern said.

"I'll save them and give them to my daughter, with my antiques and Hummels," she explained.

Like McGovern, many customers bought the stamps to bequeath to relatives.

"Basically, I'm putting these away for my grandson," Glen F. Johnson, 65, of Hingham said.

"I have no great affection for Elvis — it just seems to be a different thing."

Johnson purchased his stamps from the Accord Post Office in Hingham, which experienced similar Elvis activity as the Hingham Square Post Office.

Approximately half of the 6,000 commemorative stamps the Accord office received were sold within 60 minutes of going on sale.

Accord clerk Janet Warren said a small crowd gathered at the post office when the Elvis stamps went on sale at noon.

"The customers were fun. They'd tell why they were there and inform each other about other Elvis things," she said.

Like the Hingam Post Office, Warren said the Accord office limited sale of the stamps to 400 per customer.

And as 22-year-old Mike Olson from Hull attested, Elvis fans of all ages bought the stamps.

"I love Elvis," Olson said.

"I went to Graceland last year."

Olson bought a sheet of 40 blank stamps which bear his idol's image.

Although there were no reported Elvis sightings, it was rumored that a local celebrity — talk-show host Wigmore Pierson of Cohasset — made an appearance in Hingham and bought Elvis stamps at the Accord Post Office.

"He said 'Don't tell anyone I was in here buying these silly things,' " a clerk confided.

Wrong in Denmark?

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle was confounded that the town pays $40 per hour for a cleanup crew to clean the lead paint dust at town hall and $55 an hour to Certified Engineering & Testing Co. for lead paint inspection of town hall. The town will pay $65 an hour (the weekend rate) for tests performed last weekend.

Doyon explained that some tests are performed on weekends depending on when the clean-up takes place. Tests must be performed within a strict time frame so the area isn't contaminated in the interim.

Tests must show less than 200 micrograms per square foot, the state standard for homes that house children under six years of age.

"We are squawking about paying $6.50 per hour for a first-class tradesman, the best. And now we're paying $65 an hour.

"Something's wrong in Denmark," Laugelle said. (After much debate, the board earlier approved $6.50 an hour for 20 weeks at 40 hours a week for casual labor hired by the harbormaster).

The board tabled payment of $4,335 (which does not include work performed last weekend) to the engineering company until Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon gets more information on what lead dust inspection entails and the qualifications of lead-dust inspectors.

much time is used for the telephone," he said.

Sullivan moved the phone-answering system be purchased within the town hall budget.

But at Selectman Merle S. Brown's suggestion, Sullivan amended his motion so that the amount be placed in a separate article.

"I'd go with an article, so the town can make the ultimate decision," Brown said.

"When Mom saw everything that was happening at River Bay Club, she knew the place was right. When we found out they had apartments ready and no entrance fee, we knew the timing was right, too."

"Mom saw River Bay Club on the 1st and moved in on the 15th!"

We've Managed Hundreds Of Thousands Of Deposit Accounts, Loaned Millions To Area Residents And Businesses, And Called The South Shore Our Home For Almost 150 Years.

Now It's Time To Introduce Ourselves.

We're Quincy Savings Bank...
and our merger with a commercial bank and strong capital have put us in a better position to serve your financial needs than ever before. With simple to understand and easy to use products, very competitively priced.

Consumer products to fit your lifestyle
People find our consumer products simple to understand and easy to use. Like our NOW checking account, for example. Forget about high maintenance charges if you drop below some ridiculously high minimum daily balance. With a Quincy Savings NOW checking account, you pay a $1 maintenance fee if your average monthly balance is $100 or more, plus a 20 cent per check transaction fee. And it's free of charge if you have your payroll or social security check directly deposited into your account.

Commercial services designed to help small and mid-size businesses
When people hear our name, they sometimes don't think of coming to us for commercial services. Which is too bad, when you consider that we offer very competitive commercial products and a level of service that rivals what you'd find at the bigger banks. Our commercial officers are experienced in solving the special problems faced by small and mid-sized companies, whether it's a business loan, a cash management service to help them maximize their cash, or a commercial checking account.

Best of all, because we're a local bank headquartered in Quincy, decisions are made locally with an eye toward the unique opportunities that exist here on the South Shore. So our commercial customers don't get stuck waiting for answers out of Providence, Hartford or Boston, competing with companies all over New England for loans.

Municipal services to help your local cities and towns
One out of three cities and towns in Massachusetts trust us to invest and protect their funds. They appreciate our staff of experienced professionals who have a proven track record of service to the municipalities they serve. And like all Quincy Savings Bank customers, they enjoy peace of mind knowing that their deposits are insured in full through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and Deposit Insurance Fund of Massachusetts (DIFM).

Ready to serve you at 14 locations
If you look for us only in Quincy, look again. We also have conveniently located offices in Braintree, Brockton, Hanover, Hingham, Marshfield, Norwell, Scituate and Plymouth. Our branches offer some of the longest hours in banking today, with extended hours on Thursday and Friday evenings. Many are open Saturdays until 3 pm.

Whether you're looking for a business loan, line of credit, mortgage loan, investment account, commercial deposit or NOW checking account, we're here to help, with a friendly staff to make banking easy and convenient. Next time you're looking for financial services, give us a try.

around town

❑ Derby Academy had a wonderful festive season this year... Holiday festivities involved everyone in the school!

Family members of all ages were involved to share a "Winter Evening" with Pre-primary youngsters...Lower school had a ""Holiday Celebrations"...with scenery and costumes designed for each holiday, the Lower School students explained the significance of the day and the traditions...Cohasset's own Morgan Pierson took part in the African-American celebration. Part of the Upper School Christmas Pageant, a Derby tradition for as long as any alumae or alumni can remember, was the Nativity...nativity characters from our town included Toby Horn and Charles Dean as a King (Toby was Joseph). Must have been an outstanding performance, perhaps best ever?....

❑ Wasn't it nice to read about Doug Mantz and his recent marriage to Margaret...gosh Doug, I remember your days in Little League...look at you now!!!!

❑ Yeah Brian...Brian Duffy, a junior at CHS, on the 1992-93 Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9146 Broadcast Scriptwriting program. Brian wrote and taped a speech entitled "My Voice in America's Future".

First runner-up was Ray Jones and second runner-up was Ryan Sawchuck. Certificates and prizes of $100, $50, and $25 were awarded. Brian, if selected, will be a district finalist to go to the state eliminations during January...we wish you the best of luck in your quest, keep us informed!!

❑ Well folks, our very own Danny Pompeo makes the news again this week...of course it's hockey related. Headlines of the Globe newspaper state, "Pompeo's three boost Babson"...

Dan certainly is an excellent image of a true athlete; he's super!

❑ As you know, I am always after all of you to send me your story. Well, here's ours! As most know, we went to Florida for Christmas, and we left Gary Smith in charge of watching the house. Naturally all did not go smoothly, and the furnace broke down, spewing water everywhere. Thanks to Gary and Tom (Wigmore of course) the furnace was fixed and the basement dry as a bone when we got home. How many of us have friends like that??

Thanks, you guys!

❑ Speaking of special people, we extend happy birthday greetings to "Pop" Fone, who celebrated his special event Jan. 13. Pop is 80-something, a grand guy who everyone adores, and we certainly wish him health and happiness in his next decade. A super guy, a great friend, and a very knowledgeable man in anything you want to know. Happy 80-ish, Pop!

❑ We want to wish Chet and Walter Fone a happy birthday. They recently turned 50 and they had a great birthday party to celebrate...over 200 turned out for the occasion. Ages ranged from 3 months on up. We wish you gents many happy years ahead; we know there were many behind you.

❑ It is with a great deal of sadness that we report the passing of Ann Sampson. In her mid-80s, she always seemed to be young! She was a friend to all of us, a super grandmother, mother, friend. She surely will be missed and we have to let her daughter, Barbara Dillon, know how much she will be missed. Our whole town will miss her presence; we loved her.

❑ Oh Joe...Kealey of course! Thank you so much for all that you gave to our town! As a police chief you were superb, as a man you are wonderful, as a person awesome. Thank you for your years of service and dedication, for your ca[illegible] for being you! We wish you every [illegible] of happiness and love that you deserve. May you and Nancy have a long and happy life, full of love and good wishes, FOREVER, you both deserve it. (Nancy is also one to wish nothing but the best for; she was the physical education teacher at the High School and the Osgood School for many years. Everyone loves her too.) Have a good life, and God-speed....and, thank you again for helping our town, our youth, us!! We all love you guys.

❑ We surely hope that Althea Stamp is recovering nicely from her recent surgery...Althea is at home and sure is doing well, and we hope she continues her good pattern!!

❑ Let us all offer a prayer for Bill Adams (Gramps) as he undergoes further tests. Knowing the Adams family, they are full of life and love and "Gramps" will be in super shape in no time!

❑ Okay, folks, just got the most recent schedule of "Pierson to Person"...it promises to be a great month, we surely won't miss it. "Wig" is always on top of our town. Be sure that you watch and support his fine show.

❑ Hats off to our gal, Kim (Chatterton-Litchfield) and her new position. She is a travel agent, folks, and a good one! She is connected with AAA and proud of it. Conscientious and caring, she will take care of you, and you should take advantage of that! TRAVEL!!

❑ Just want to say a private word, here's to Izzie Salvador...Izzie, you are special, 'though you are undoubtedly lonely, you are one in a million, and so many people love you. Although Barron may be gone, he isn't forgotten, and we are sure to remember all that you both did for our community. We love you!

❑ Great news for all...Brendan Mulcahy is back...at Stop and Shop that is. Brendan took a leave of absence and his absence has most certainly been missed. Cannot wait to see your smiling face, Brendan, we have missed you!

I Love the Workout Club!

Bob Stebbins from Cohasset

I love the Workout Club because it's so convenient. They're open early in the morning and late at night, so I can get a workout in before or after work.

The equipment is the best, and there's always someone there to help me when I need it.

There's no high pressure sales job, no long-term committments either.

It's clean, comfortable, and convenient.

You'll love the Workout Club too!

The Workout Club

Aerobics, free weights, stair masters, nautilus, treadmills, and more.
Clean private showers and locker rooms.
No membership fees. No hard sell. Pay per visit.

You'll love the Workout Club

obituaries

Richardson White

Richardson White of Cohasset, a sculptor and farmer, died Jan. 7 at home after a brief illness. He was 88.

A sculptor for more than 60 years, Mr. White was best known for his portraits and bronze studies of horses.

His 1930 sculpture "Great Horse" was recently added to the permanent collection of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. His 1984 work "Rearing Thoroughbred" is displayed outside the Angell Memorial Animal Hospital in Jamaica Plain. Last year, Mr. White completed his final sculpture, which was purchased by the former director of the San Francisco Art Museum.

Mr. White was a member of the Animal Artists Society and the Equine Artists Association. Many of his pieces appeared in annual exhibitions in Colorado, Kentucky, New Jersey, New York, Virginia and Boston. He is the only living artist to be awarded three medals by the National Sculpture Society.

Born and raised in Cohasset, Mr. White was educated at Groton School, where he was captain of the rowing crew. He graduated from Harvard College in 1927.

In 1979, he and his late wife, Cornelia, donated a portion of his land to the Trustees of Reservations.

He leaves three sons, Richardson Jr. of Sperryville, Va., Frank H. of Watertown and Donald of Philadelphia; a sister, Ellen Cabot of Westwood; eight grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

The funeral service and burial were private.

Arrangements were by McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset.

Donations may be made to Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, 350 S. Huntington Ave., Boston.

Florence C. Ayers

Florence C. "Sis" Ayers, 81, of Hingham, a retired Cohasset High School coach whose girls' basketball teams won several state championships, died Jan. 7 at home.

Miss Ayers was a physical education teacher many years in Cohasset elementary schools and at the high school.

She later taught third grade at Ripley Road School.

Prior to becoming a teacher, she was an expert equestrian and also an equestrian instructor.

Miss Ayers, a graduate of Hingham High School and Boston University's Sargent College, attended BU's graduate school.

Born in Cohasset, she lived 35 years in Hingham.

Daughter of the late Thomas J. and Ellen (Prendergast) Ayers, she leaves many nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews. Miss Ayers was sister of the late Frank P. Ayers Sr., Ellen MacKinnin, Thomas Ayers Jr., David Ayers, William Ayers, Paul Ayers, John Ayers, Raymond Ayers and Marion Ayers.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Jan. 12 in St. Paul's Church. Burial was in St. Paul's Cemetery.

The Pyne-Keohane Funeral Home, 21 Emerald St., handled the arrangements.

Donations may be made to the Perkins School for the Blind, 175 North Beacon St., Watertown 02172.

Anna B. Sampson

Anna Belle (Jones) Sampson, 93, of Hingham, died Jan. 7 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth, after a short illness.

Mrs. Sampson was born in Somerville and graduated from Boston Girls English High School.

Wife of the late Arthur G. Sampson, a sports writer for the Boston American and later the Boston Herald, Mrs. Sampson was interested in all sports.

She was also an avid gardener.

Mrs. Sampson lived 22 years in Weymouth before moving to Cohasset 30 years ago.

She leaves a son, Alan W. Sampson of Falmouth, Maine; a daughter, Barbara Dillon of Cohasset; six grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

A private funeral service was held Jan. 9 at Gaffey Funeral Home, Scituate. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Donations may be made to Second Congregational Church, 43 Highland Ave., Cohasset 02025.

Irwin D. Matthew

Irwin D. "Bud" Matthew, 89, of Cohasset, an architect for many years, died Jan. 9 at home after a long illness.

Mr. Matthew was an architect for 50 years at the John Russell Pope Architectural firm in New York and Washington, D.C. After that, he was a self-employed architect.

He was active in town affairs in an advisory capacity.

Born in Ontario, Canada, he was educated at the University of Toronto, where he received a bachelor's degree in architecture in 1926.

Mr. Matthew lived in New York City and Washington before moving to Cohasset 45 years ago.

He leaves his wife, Mildred (Covert) Matthew; a sister, Doris Bell of Hamilton, Ontario; and many nieces and nephews.

A private service will be conducted at a later date in Central Cemetery by the Rev. Edward Atkinson, pastor of the First Unitarian Church.

Funeral arrangements were made by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset-Norwell.

Donations may be made to the Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Drive, Braintree 02184.

Lena Ferreira-Latter

A memorial service for Lena G. (Gilmore) Ferreira-Latter, 86, of Cohasset was conducted Jan. 11 at the First Baptist Church in Scituate by the Rev. Dick Dutton. Private burial was in Beechwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Latter died Jan. 8 at the Bethesda Evanswood Nursing Home after a brief illness.

She was born in Marysville, New Brunswick, Canada, where she grew up and went to school.

She was a member of the sewing circle and the choir of the First Baptist Church in Scituate.

She lived 60 years in Cohasset.

Mrs. Latter leaves three sons, Gerald G. Ferreira of Florida, Bernard Lee Ferreira of Anchorage, Alaska, and Ronald M. Ferreira of Tampa, Fla.; two daughters, Linda Healy Baker of Duxbury and Cynthia James of Marilla, N.Y.; two sisters, Lois Wade of Penniac, New Brunswick, and Sarah E. Long of Lantz, Nova Scotia, Canada; 14 grandchildren, and 16 great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Ernest A. Richardson Funeral Home, Scituate Center.

Donations may be made to the Lena G. Latter Memorial Fund, Care of Vera Green, 38 Cedar Wood St., Scituate 02066.

Work window extended

Selectmen will allow Tibbetts Engineering Corp. to extend its contract time to Feb. 26 in order to provide the necessary services and project close out for the Doane St. bridge project. The contract was due to expire Feb. 1.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said the extension "reflects the realities of the project schedule."

Actual construction on the bridge will start in a few days, Doyon said. As of Tuesday, some of the trees had been cleared.

Use of foyer okay'ed

The Carriage House Nursery School can use the town hall foyer for its annual bake sale on election day, April 3, contingent on health board approval, selectmen said.

Proceeds from the sale are used for tuition assistance and new equipment for the nursery school, said Linda Nash of Doane St., who filed the application to use the foyer.

Lobstering

While most of us in Cohasset shook off the Blizzard of '92 , one important segment of the business community did not.

Lobstermen were hit hard — again.

With 60 years experience, Cohasset's Herbert Jason is no stranger to storms. But it was the triple whammy of Hurricane Bob in August '91, the No-Name Halloween Storm the following October, and last month's December storm — that really stung.

"One storm after another wipes you out," Mr. Jason said.

As Robert Martin, president of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce notes — lobstermen are invisible businessmen.

Without store fronts or offices along Main Street or Route 3A, we don't think of the lobster industry unless it affects our pocketbooks.

Lobstermen know because they lack visible signs of devastation after last month's storm, they may have trouble convincing federal authorities to release grants.

Nathaniel "Laddie" Dexter, president of the Massachusetts Lobstermen's Association (MLA) said perception can go along way.

"Last year, they went down and the roads were gone and houses were in the middle of the street ...these people aren't going to see the physical damage they saw last year."

But local lobstermen fared as badly during December's storm as they did in 1991 — and this time a low-interest loan won't help.

Jason lost more than 200 traps.

"The sad part was I had all brand-new pots," he said. "Last year I borrowed heavily and put that money into gear and now I'm stuck with those bills."

Many lobstermen who received Small Business Administration (SBA) loans last year can't afford to pay back another note, no matter how low the interest.

So Martin along with Jason and two other local lobstermen, Richard Figueiredo and Bob Healy, took matters into their own hands this week.

During a break in the activities at a meeting of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in Randolph Monday, they approached the featured speaker — U.S. Congressman Gerry Studds (D-Cohasset) for help.

Issues that concern fishermen are central to Studds, who is chairman the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Studds' office told the Mariner it is currently working with federal and state agencies to explore all possible avenues for assistance.

The Congressman asks that lobstermen call his office in Quincy at 770-3700 with questions or if they feel lost in the bureaucratic maze. There may be an opportunity to at least restructure existing SBA loans.

But the alternative to no assistance could be all too visible: some will have to pull out of the business.

"They have to," Dexter said.

"How many times can you keep paying back? If the SBA came up with another disaster loan, I probably wouldn't take it: I mean I have 9-1/2 years left on the one I have now."

The Chief

By next Wednesday, Cohasset may have a new police chief.

"It's one of the most important votes we have," Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby said about the board's decision due Tuesday.

Jan. 6, the board interviewed six finalists: Sgt. Brian W. Noonan, Sgt. Robert W. Jackson and Sgt. Richard B. Abbadessa, all of the Cohasset Police Department, and Craig B. Hall, Sr., police chief in Falmouth, Maine; James E. Lysaght Jr., a captain with the Bristol, Connecticut Police Department, and Thomas P. Shamshak, the police chief in Spencer.

If you — the Cohasset public — feel strongly about a particular candidate, or if you think the new chief should be promoted from within the ranks or selected from outside, let the selectmen know. Their phone numbers are listed in the telephone book.

Call them, they are elected to serve you.

The late Joseph M. Silvia on his lobster boat in the 1940s. Lobstering has a rich history in Cohasset. At one time lobstermen used small sail boats or dories. Mr. Silvia sold his catch directly to the consumer at a stand on Bigelow's Wharf. In A Narrative History of Cohasset, Volume II, by Burtram J. Pratt, Mr. Silvia recalls the days of going to the fishing ground in a dory propelled by sheer muscle power.

Consider a home-town choice

letters

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to selectmen and the Mariner for publication.)

To the Members of the Board of Selectmen:

We are writing to you with reference to the decision you will be making at your Jan. 19 meeting – perhaps one of the most important administrative decisions as members of the Board of Selectmen — the selection of a new Chief of Police for the Town of Cohasset.

From the six candidates interviewed, three applicants are from within our town. There are many residents voicing strong opinions in support of our own police officers, and we encourage them to contact each one of you!

We have resided in this beautiful town for over 30 years, raising six children, and being part of a community whose leaders have maintained the qualities which make us proud to live in Cohasset.

Our reason for writing is that many residents question looking outside Cohasset when we are fortunate to have three well-qualified, hard working, and greatly respected gentlemen that know Cohasset and have earned the trust of the townspeople.

We, therefore, respectfully request that you carefully consider a "home-town voice" in your vote.

Thank you.

Patrick and Maria Plante

Thanks for Celebrate '93 success

To the Editor:

On New Year's Eve the Cohasset Community Center began its 50th anniversary of community service with "Celebrate '93" — a family event modeled after Boston's popular First Night. Over 1,500 people enjoyed the varied concerts and events.

As the night ended we said goodbye to our performers and received rave reviews about the people who attended. There was not one performer/group who did not comment on the warm welcome they received from people and they were extremely appreciative.

Time and again we heard, "what a great town and great group of people."

Several of them made special mention of how courteous and well behaved the children were throughout the night and we couldn't agree more.

The Community Center, which with the aid of local businesses, sponsored the event, would like to thank the following people who made it possible. Our corporate sponsors: Target Industries, Buttonwood Books and Toys, Aveni Cleaners, C. Spirito Inc., Bank of Boston, Hallmark 100/Karen Kirkendall, L.P. Carpenter Interior Design, Dwyer & Mullin Real Estate, John Carr, the Goodale Company and Boston Yacht Sales.

The Celebrate '93 Committee: Michael Bleakie, Cathy Carlson, Beth Christoffel, Stefanie Church, Cindy Dedes, Karen Devine, Sue Dipesa, Mary Doherty, Diane Dooley, Janet Figuerido, Claire Flannery, Linda Gardner, Kenneth Ingber, Kate Lavigne, Phil Lehr, Rick Lordan, Rosemarie Mercurio, Kathleen Pratt, Ruthann Sargent, Annette Sawchuk, Babette Strecker, Ann Whiteley, Ruth Wilcox, Charlie Stover, Lee Andrews and George Brooks.

The following who allowed use of their churches/halls/facilities: The First Parish Meeting House, Second Congregational Church, Town of Cohasset, Town Hall, St. Stephens Church, St. Anthony's Church, The Teen Depot, The Art Center, The Cohasset Schools and the Music Circus.

There were hundreds of volunteers who shared in the preparations, worked that evening and had clean up detail the next day. These volunteers included the electricians who set up the necessary extra power sources, people who strung lights, hung signs, set up and manned the road blocks, monitored parking, decorated halls, set up the tent and prepared and served various foods.

We also especially thank the people who work with the various town boards who patiently and diligently guided us through the lists of paperwork and "must haves" including the selectmen and their executive secretary, the wiring inspector, building inspector, fire and police chiefs, tree and park department, highway dept. and the health board.

We hope we did not forget to list anyone — there were so many who worked hard to make this a success. We also thank all of the "Celebrate '93" revelers who made the evening perfect by their camaraderie and thoughtfulness.

Once again, we thank everyone who participated and we hope we all keep the spirit throughout the year by Celebrating '93!

Rhonda Mayers, Celebrate '93 Chairman and The Cohasset Community Center

Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS

	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7957 Room 134
(SENATE) TAX HIKE (H 5800) — Senate 24-12, overrode Governor Weld's veto of a fiscal 1993 budget section doubling the real estate deeds excise tax from $2.28 per $1,000 of the sales price to $4.56 per $1,000. The legislature had doubled the tax, paid by home sellers, for a three-year period beginning in 1989 and ending June 30, 1992. A section of the fiscal 1993 budget passed by the legislature maintained the hike at $4.56 but was vetoed by Governor Weld. In July, the House overrode the veto, but the Senate 22-14 favored but failed to gain the two-thirds vote necessary to override. Last week, the Senate again considered the veto and mustered the 24-12 tally to override. Override supporters said this is not a tax increase but simply a retention of the status quo necessary because depressed real estate sales have resulted in a loss of revenues for counties. They said the $30 million is necessary for counties to maintain jails and ensure overcrowding does not lead to early release of prisoners. Override opponents said this is another tax increase which makes a temporary tax a permanent one. They said it will hurt taxpayers and damage an already sluggish real estate market. Both roll calls are listed. The first is on the 22-14 vote from July 28 sustaining the veto. The second is on last week's 24-12 vote overriding the veto. (A "Yea" vote is for the tax hike. A "Nay" vote is against it).	1.N 2.N
(SENATE) DRUG PROGRAM (H 5800) — Senate 32-3 overrode Governor Weld's veto of $500,000 earmarked for drug-free ambulatory recovery counseling and case-management treatment. Weld reduced the money earmarked for this purpose from $550,000 to $50,000. Override supporters said this money helps substance abusers and is especially important to Hispanic groups. Override opponents said the state cannot afford the $500,000 and argued the budget must be balanced. The House already overrode this veto in July. (A "Yea" vote is for the $500,000. A "Nay" vote is against the $500,000).	P
(SENATE) AFDC (H 5800) — Senate 28-8, overrode Governor Weld's veto reduction of $385,000 (from $700.3 million to $699.9 million) in funding for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC). Weld also vetoed a section requiring the state to apply for a federal waiver to allow AFDC recipients who get jobs to keep earnings of up to 33 percent more than their grant. Override supporters said this "fill the gap" provision is positive welfare reform and will encourage those recipients to find work and eventually reduce welfare expenditures. They also noted the $385,000 is necessary to properly fund the account. Override opponents said the account can be cut $385,000 based on current caseloads. They argued the "fill the gap" provision is well-intentioned but poorly drafted. The House already overrode this veto in July. (A "Yea" vote is for the $385,000 and for allowing recipients to keep more of their earnings. A "Nay" vote is against the $385,000 and against allowing recipients to keep more of their earnings).	N

Roll Call returns in March

While our state senators and representatives endure the process of committee assignments at the state house and 1992 legislative matters continue to be the main topics of debate, Beacon Hill Roll Call will not appear in The Mariner Newspapers.

We expect that Roll Call, a syndicated political report provided by Bay State News Service, will return to the Mariner Newspapers in March.

Stay 'tooned...
Cohasset Mariner cartoonist Jim Hamilton will be back Jan. 21.

Election '93 update

John K. McNabb, Jr. was the first to take out papers for a seat on the health board.

There are two seats available for nomination on the health board: one to fill an unexpired term and the other for a three-year term.

Robert V. Davenport was appointed to fill the vacancy created when former board member Michael H. Sullivan won a selectman's seat last April until this year's town election April 3.

A three-year term, the seat held by William E. Baird, is also up for nomination.

McNabb indicated on the form at the town clerk's office that he is seeking a three-year term.

Since Wednesday, Jan. 6 nomination papers have been taken out by Harold Litchfield, 171 Beechwood St., for re-election to a three-year term as highway surveyor; Lucille McLoughlin, 36 Lothrup Lane, and Sheila S. Evans, 72 N. Main St., both seeking re-election to three-year terms on the board of library trustees;

Jane O. Goedecke, 100 Nichols Rd., for re-election to a three-year term on the board of selectmen; Nancy L. Sandell, 24 Stevens Lane, for re-election to a three-year term on the school committee; Marion L. Douglas, 404A Beechwood St., for a three-year term as town clerk; and Elizabeth B. Ripley, for re-election to a three-year term as treasurer collector.

The Mariner will provide weekly updates through Feb. 11, the last day to obtain nomination papers.

League says thanks

The Social Service League (S.S.L.) wishes to thank all the churches, civic and school groups, private businesses, Veterans' organizations, and individuals who donated food, money and gift certificates for the S.S.L. to distribute during the holiday season.

Your generosity enabled the S.S.L. to make Thanksgiving and Christmas brighter and less stressful for many families in Cohasset. The townspeople have shown their concern and caring for their neighbors by sharing what they have and doing so most willingly. The S.S.L. appreciates your help in continuing to serve the needs of the people of Cohasset.

Your health care: we make house calls

John and Mary T., a South Shore couple in their mid-80s, live in an in-law apartment with their daughter and her family. John, who has a history of congestive heart failure, recently fractured his hip and has difficulty moving about. Mary suffers from frequent bouts of pneumonia. Recently, she severely burned her hand.

This couple once might have been forced to spend their last years apart, to receive the care and attention their health problems require. Fortunately, John and Mary live in an area where home health care services are readily available. This makes it possible for them, with the support of their daughter, to remain together, at home, and still receive appropriate assistance.

Once every week they are visited by a nurse, who oversees their care and advises them about their medical concerns. When Mary needed her burn dressing changed, the nurse made daily visits. They also receive physical therapy twice a week from a therapist who helps them with strengthening exercises and endurance activities. In addition to these health care professionals, a home health aide visits three times weekly, helping them with personal care activities such as bathing and meal preparation.

John and Mary are patients of South Shore Visiting Nurse and Health Services, a not-for-profit, affiliate of South Shore Hospital that every day provides care to as many as 900 patients in their homes. VNAs have been active in our communities for more than 80 years. Within the past decade they have become even more important to our health care system by increasing patient access to health and educational services while lowering health care costs. There are many advantages to home care:

- Families benefit when it means a valued member, whether older or younger, is able to stay at home, rather than be institutionalized when not medically necessary;
- Individuals are better off, recuperating at home more quickly than they would in an institution; and
- Society gains because the cost of home care can be as much as one fourth that of hospitals and nursing homes. This reduces the amount of resources that must be channeled into the health care sector.

Today, Medicare and other health care insurers prefer to see patients leave hospitals as soon as they no longer require the special concentrated care and technology of those facilities. This means that today's patient will probably spend less of his or her convalescence in the hospital, and more at home, than in decades past. To make certain that recovery is thorough, hospitals prepare plans for each patient before they are discharged, outlining the services that will support their recovery. These services include skilled nursing, specialty programs like wound treatment and psychiatric nursing, and therapy, such as physical and speech, and social work. These after-hospital patient plans frequently require personal care, hygiene and other activities of daily living.

In a strange twist, government and other payers are slow to understand the importance of home health care services, cutting payment for these programs even while they insist on their use by reducing hospital inpatient stays. Massachusetts Medicaid officials, for example, are considering lowering payment to home health care agencies to less than 1990 levels, although all agree that these services are necessary and often less expensive.

To make sure that many others like John and Mary will have the opportunity to receive home care and continue to live on their own and with their families, we need to insist that government develops adequate and sound reimbursement policies.

Since 1911, South Shore Visiting Nurse and its newer programs, Hospice of the South Shore and Home and Health Resources, has been the one more South Shore residents depend on.

Kids interview important Cohasset people

They made models of communities and discussed how the different parts work together.

As part of this project, the class interviewed "important people in Cohasset." They prepared questions, took notes, and wrote reports.)

SERGEANT RICHARD ABBADESSA

Sergeant Richard Abbadessa has been a policeman for twenty-one years. There are seventeen other police officers in Cohasset, and there are four sergeants.

There are ninety-nine percent good people in our town. The jail isn't as bad as you think! It has a bathroom and bunk bed.

ANDY THE MAILMAN

Andy is a mailman who works at the post office. They keep an eye on the old people. They sell stamps and deliver packages.

Not all the mailmen ride in vans. The vans are called L.L.V.s. L.L.V.s are made out of plastic. L.L.V.s can drive for twenty-five years.

The boss is Joe Whooly. It takes about three days to get mail. Stamps cost 29 cents.

The post office sells stamps. They keep an eye on the old people and they keep an eye on the community.

ANDY THE MAILMAN

Andy is a mailman who works at the post office. The post office gets 3,000 letters in a day. The post office delivers fruit from Florida, packages and presents, magazines and flyers from stores.

Andy knows all the people at the post office. It takes eight hours to deliver the mail — two hours for sorting and six hours for delivering.

Stamps cost 29 cents and they are all different sizes and shapes. The boss is Mr. Whooly.

Andy knows almost everybody in the community. He knows twenty-two people at the post office.

Andy gets about a whole classroom floor full of mail every day. You get to be a mailman by taking a test in Boston. He likes his job very much.

MRS. GOEDECKE

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF SELECTMEN

Mrs. Goedecke is a Selectman in our community. Selectmen take care of police, firemen, and roads and parks. She's like a mayor. They meet every week and they decide what to do in our town. Four other people are on the board. You have to be eighteen to vote.

She used to get nervous when she had to speak in the microphone, but she got over her nerves. Sometimes her job is hard because all the people have different ideas.

She doesn't miss her family at work because she works at home a lot. At election time, people run against her. If she wins, there is a party! She has been working for two and a half years.

Mrs. Goedecke works several days a week. The selectmen march in the Memorial Day parade and they go to parties. That's what they do for fun.

MRS. MYERS

COHASSET COMMUNITY CENTER

The Community Center does a lot of things for our community. It helps lots of people from little babies to senior citizens. There are all kinds of activities like cooking classes, gymnastics, bowling, French and Spanish, tap and ballet, all kinds of things.

The nursery school is downstairs. They are [illegible]ing on to the Community Center. All the kids can go bowling at the Community Center for birthday parties. Most people do!

They have aerobics for senior citizens and computer classes.

Sometimes there are special holiday activities like Celebrate 93. It was on December 31st, and Mrs. Myers gets to meet the people who perform. She met the clown and other people.

MR. GERARD KEATING

THE COUNCIL ON AGING

The Council on Aging makes life better by making men's breakfast club and line dancing for ladies and aerobics exercise and meals on wheels.

If you become a volunteer, you can be any age!

Mr. Keating said it feels wonderful to help people and to work there. Mr. Keating works with other people and one is Joe Buckley.

They do aerobics and step-aerobics for fun.

When you receive help, you must be 60 years or older. Mr. Keating helps 1,500 people.

If people get sick, they get driven to the doctor.

Mr. Keating has worked at the Council on Aging for many years and he loves it. One lady is 102 years old. Mr. Keating is 73 years old.

Vo-Tech budget okay'ed

Cohasset will spend $7,459 to send one student to South Shore Regional Vocational High School next year.

That's a 21.89 percent increase over this year. The jump is due to the first-year principal and interest payment on the new addition to the Hanover campus and the one-time cost for moving from the Abington campus to Hanover.

Selectmen approved the budget request but were dismayed that more Cohasset young people don't take advantage of Vo-Tech.

"I'm disappointed that we have only one student at the school," Selectman Merle S. Brown said.

"It's a travesty, really sad," Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby said.

Vo-Tech officials hope that the work the school is doing at the lightkeeper's residence on Government Island will attract more Cohasset kids to the school. Renovating the duplex is Vo-Tech's carpentry project this year.

Last month, Vo-Tech Supt. James Hager and Cohasset Supt. Stephen Hart met at the site. Hart said the junior/senior high might send students on a field trip to Government Island to see the Vo-Tech students in action.

Miss O'Sullivan goes to Washington

Kathleen O'Sullivan of Forest Avenue is going to Washington.

She will attend the Presidential Youth Inaugural Conference sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council in Washington, D.C. from Jan. 17 to 21.

Kathleen is among 500 outstanding high school students from across the country who will have the rare opportunity to experience the inauguration of the 42nd president of the United States, William Jefferson Clinton.

Conference participants, who will represent their schools and communities, have been selected by their high school or assistant principals based on demonstrated academic achievement, leadership and citizenship.

During this once-in-a-lifetime event, the young leaders will meet with members of Congress, executive officials, historians, academics and leading journalists to gain a deeper understanding of the history, tradition and significance of the American electoral process and the presidential inauguration.

Although Kathleen doubts she'll get to meet President-Elect Clinton, she is looking forward to meeting journalists.

"I am interested in journalism as a career," says Kathleen, who plans to study journalism at Brown University next fall.

She will witness the swearing-in ceremony of the 42nd president of the United States and the inaugural parade down Pennsylvania Avenue.

Additional program highlights include visits to the offices of the students' senators and representatives, a performance at the Kennedy Center and a foreign policy briefing at the State Department.

Visits to the Presidential Transition Team, the Armed Forces Inaugural Committee and the Presidential Inaugural Committee give the young leaders a behind-the-scenes look at the presidential campaign, candidates and inauguration.

Finally, Kathleen's exciting week will culminate with a black tie dinner and an inaugural youth ball.

This is the third Presidential Youth Inaugural Conference sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council, a nonprofit, nonpartisan, civic education organization located in Washington, D.C. The council's mission is to recognize outstanding youth and to provide them with a unique "hands-on" civics learning experience in the nation's capital.

At Deer Hill, it's a small world after all!

Fourth graders in Mrs. McDonald's class at the Deer Hill School learned about holiday customs of many foreign lands. The kids performed traditional dances, painted murals, sang songs, and told about their countries which included Germany, Denmark, Norway, Switzerland, France and Mexico.

Refreshments were served after the performance for family and friends. Mrs. McDonald thanked all the parents for their help with the special event.

Shaping up is a popular New Year's resolution

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

It's 1993 and for most of us — it's the same as 1992 — as far as resolutions go, that is.

Getting back in shape, next to dieting, is the number one promise that we make to ourselves.

So local gyms and exercise clubs teem with new enthusiasts this time of year.

But the managers of the Workout Club on Lincoln Street in Hingham and Bay State Bodybuilding and Fitness Center in Cushing Plaza in Cohasset have compassion.

They try to be flexible enough for even the most laid-back individual with the best of intentions for his or her physique.

"We have deals according to someone's needs — a week, month, long-term, short-term," explains Jerry O'Brien, manager at Bay State.

O'Brien says monthly passes are $40 for unlimited visits and they offer a VIP membership with initiation fee for $27 a month — which is automatically billed to the member's credit card.

Club passes at The Workout Club are available for a wide-range of prices and routines from one time visits for $6 to a six-month Family Pair pass for $349 for any two related persons living at the same residence.

The Workout Club recently opened another club in Marshfield, so the business isn't dependent on those with good intentions but no follow through.

But nevertheless, New Year's promises are a perennial situation for those with inches to lose.

"I'd say about 25 percent make it about a week; 50 percent for two-to-three months; and 25 percent stick it out permanently," says Daryl Grabus of The Workout Club.

Grabus explains that the club doesn't try to get people hooked by applying pressure tactics to sell them a year in advance. The club has no sales staff.

"You only buy what you can commit to emotionally and financially," she says. "We understand that 25 percent are not going to use it (membership) much at all.

"So we shoot for shorter term programs, so people don't feel harassed."

O'Brien says business has been booming.

"We're packed. We increase so much this time of year, it's unbelievable."

But he notes the length of commitment varies.

"Some are just going through a little phase to get the guilt (of holiday feasting) off their minds."

Bay State has strictly weights and machines like Stairmaster, bikes, rowing machines, and treadmills.

The Workout Club holds classes in everything from low-impact aerobics to "abs blast", which is a 30-minute assault on one of the most elusive of muscle groups — the abdomen.

The Workout Club is also equipped 'exercycles', weights, Stairmasters and more.

LOOKING? KEEP A RECORD

QUESTION: I'm house-hunting and get confused when I try to remember the details of each one. Any advice?

ANSWER: Once your Realtor takes you house-hunting, he or she will probably show you several. Therefore, it's important to take notes on what you have seen or you may forget which home is where, how big it is, what shape it's in, and the price. Your Realtor can provide you with a checklist to make this task easier. This way, you can instantly recall the location, price, construction, number of rooms, heat, fuel, taxes, and financial requirements. A Polaroid picture of the house to go with the notes helps, too.

Skippers battle Scituate to tie in SSL action

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

The Cohasset hockey squad pulled together one of its best games of the season this past week as it held arch-rival Scituate to a 3-3 tie in South Shore League action.

The Skippers and Sailors battled back-and-forth on the frozen pond throughout the game. Scituate jumped out to a quick, 2-0 lead in the game, but Cohasset battled back to take control in the later stages of to force the tie.

Eighth-grader Kevin McKenna struck early and often for the hometown team as he came up big on several golden goal-scoring opportunities for the Sailors, and remained solid throughout the game.

Scituate controlled the game early as they out-shot the Skippers 13-6 in the first period. Mike Reynolds came up with Cohasset's only legitimate scoring chance of the period with an end-to-end rush that terminated in a pile-up in the goal crease.

The Skipper squad took over the tempo of the game in the second period. Scituate got 11 of its 22 shots for the game, while limiting the Sailors to two.

The Skippers cut the lead to 2-1 early in the second period as Charles Smith knocked home a power-play goal past the Scituate goalie. Neven Bunstein picked up an assist on the play at 1:13 of the period.

Cohasset kept the pressure on and tied the game three minutes later when Reynolds blasted a shot on goal. The rebound was knocked near the net by Smith and finally deposited into the net by Bunstein.

Cohasset continued its attack through the rest of the period into the Sailors end of the ice, but were continually turned back.

The teams traded goals in the final period.

The third period would not go quietly into the night, though, as both teams had excellent chances to take the game in the final minutes. But neither was able to take advantage of its last-ditch efforts.

The Scituate game was one of the better contests of the year for Cohasset. The Skippers now own a 1-4-2 record.

It has not been one of the better years for coach Dennis Walsh and his squad, but all a fan needs to do is look at the roster of the team to see that help is on the way. The hard lessons learned by today's seventh- and eighth-grade varsity skater will go a long way in the hockey education of tomorrow's juniors and seniors.

Of the 22 players on the roster, only five are upperclassmen. The rest while the rest is made up of kids from grade seven to 10.

The Cohasset skaters will play Latin Academy on Jan. 16 at 7:40 p.m. at the Hingham Arena. The Skippers then travel to New Bedford on Jan. 18 at 2 p.m.

Skippers gain tie with Sailors

The Skippers tied arch-rival Scituate 3-3. The team came from behind twice to gain the tie. The GAG (Goal A Game) Line accounted for all three goals. This line has scored at least one goal in each of the games so far this year. Mike Reynolds, Charlie Smith and Neven Sunstein wre the goal scorers. Kevin McKenna played another strong game in goal. CharleiEnoris, John Kinchla, David Noale and Anthony Wirier were steady on defense. Pat Reynolds, Mike Kiley Bendan Kinchla and Chris McKenna played well up front.

Jones leads Skippers at Whitman-Hanson meet

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Ray Jones was one of four first-place finishers for Cohasset as the Skippers' wrestling team finished a strong fifth in Saturday's Whitman-Hanson Invitational Wrestling Tournament.

Jones was also named the tourney's Outstanding Wrestler for the second year in a row after winning the 152-pound Division.

Nate Fiore (135-pounds), Steve Harrington (140-pounds), Dan Baird (160-pounds) and Steve Harrington (140-pounds) also won their respective divisions.

Sasha Ordeleide also placed in the top four for the Skippers, nailing down fourth in the 130-pound Division.

W-H captured its first ever home tourney in the three years the meet has been held. The Panthers defeated Weymouth by 8.5 points, 146-137. Their previous highest finish was fourth last year. It was also the first tournament W-H has won since capturing the South Sectionals in 1988. The squad came close to victory with a second-place finish out of 20 teams in the Framingham Holiday Tournament.

More impressive than the victory itself, though, was the level of competition the Panthers beat to earn the victory. W-H was the only Division Two team in the top four, beating out Weymouth, B.C. High (128 points) and North Quincy (119.5).

Cohasset was the second Division Two finisher behind W-H. The Skippers wound up in front of Norwell (65 points), Scituate (56.5 points), Rockland (39 points) and Milton (36 points).

The Panthers were led by the strength of their depth as they placed nine wrestlers in the top four.

Eric Runci (103) and Jeff Cordeiro (119) were individual winners for W-H. Jeff Flynn (125), Aubrey Shackelford (145) and Steve Makein (171) finished second. Bernie Gilmetti (140) was third and Steve Gatulis (135) and Sean Dynan (152) were fourth.

Other South Shore wrestlers placing in the meet were: Jeff Witunsky (Rockland), third in the 119-pound division, Triston Stower (Scituate), first at 130, Adam Hawk (Norwell) second at 140, Rick Ardolio (Scituate) first at 145, Derek Ewell (Rockland), second at 160, Jamie Schleiker (Norwell) fourth at 160, Matt Mohan (Norwell), fourth at 171, Anthony Maccaro (Norwell), third at 189, Matt Myers (Scituate) first in the Heavyweight division and Angelo Logrippo (Norwell) fourth at Heavyweight.

CHS gymnasts encouraged by fast start

By Ruthann Sargeant
C.H.S. varsity gymnatics coach

Gymnastics is a sport where all gymnasts help out in the team score. When there is a victory it is due to everyone's effort, and never the credit of just one gymnast. All-arounders pull in a lot of points, but, without the additional participants, the victory would not be possible.

The Cohasset Varsity Gymnastics Team traveled to Scituate Dec. 21 for its fourth meet of the season.

Cohasset picked up its first loss against Scituate 123.40 to Cohasset's' 102.95. The girls performed well, but with Tara Gallagher (captain) and Erica Hettstrom out with injuries and teammates Carolyn Pratt and Megan Pratt out due to illness, it was a tough meet to win.

Cohasset had some great performances on balance beam by Jodi Colwill (7.40) and Tafana Fiore (7.60).

Other great performers on vault were Nicole Haefner (7.10), Kristen Reynolds (7.2) and Colwill (7.70).

Rounding up the evening were well-executed floor routines by Fiore (6.80), Colwill (6.85) and Julie Smith (7.15).

All-arounder Colwill pulled in 26.30 points for the Skippers followed by teammate Reynolds with 23.90 points.

Maggie Goedeck, Kara Protulis and captain Aimee Mitchell also participated toward Cohasset's' 102.95.

Alison Kinchla and Katie Medinger cheered the team on.

The Skippers split their next two meets, losing to undefeated Carver (112.50-111.85) before getting by Duxbury (111.70-109.50).

Cohasset won the Beams and Bars against Carver, but lost the Vault and floor events to the Crusaders.

Smith set a personal best of 7.30 in the Floor routine, while Gallagher (7.35) led a one-three finish in the Bars and a sweep in the Beam.

Hettstrom placed third in the Bars at 6.85 and second in the beam, just in front of Fiore.

Skipper gymnast Carolyn Pratt leaps gracefully into the air as she works on perfecting her Floor routine during practice.

Colwill was third in the vault.

Gallagher continued her dominance of the Bars and Beam against the Green Dragons with first-place finishes in each event.

Pratt, just an eighth grader, had two thirds in the Bars and Beam, and led a sweep in the Floor exercise with Smith and Hettstrom placing second and third.

Cohasset's upcoming meets are: Jan. 19 at Cohasset (3:30 p.m.), Jan 26 against Notre Dame and Cohasset (3:30 p.m.), Feb. 1 at Hanover (7 p.m.), Feb. 4, Cohasset at Carver (7 p.m.) and the South Shore League Meet, Feb. 6 at Carver High School.

Alumni fall short

The first Annual Alumni/Varsity Soccer game was held Friday, Nov. 27, the day after Thanksgiving. The alumni suffered an unexpected 17-2 defeat against the seasoned varsity team.

Shape up with the dynamic duo!

Aerobic Champions Michelle Gonzalez and Larry White will present a special master aerobics and step class at the Winter Fitness Festival, Jan. 21 at 7 p.m. at the Pembroke Community Center. The center is located on Rt. 14. The class is designed for all fitness levels. The class will kick off with a special competitive aerobics demonstration.

The evening will also feature nutrition information with the American Heart Association, spinal screenings, fitness wear fashions, skin care and much more.

Steps are limited. Early registration is suggested. For more information or to register, call Debbie Burns at 617-294-1526 or the recreation office at 617-293-3249. Proceeds will benefit the American Heart Association. Tickets are only $5 and $6 at the door.

TOWN OF COHASSET REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS

The Town of Cohasset, the awarding authority, by and through its Board of Selectmen, invites sealed proposals for the sale of a parcel of land containing 9,570 square feet on the northwesterly side of Norfolk Road in Cohasset, Mass., shown as Lot A on a subdivision plan of Ernest W. Branch, Inc., dated March 31, 1992. For reference to title, see Norfolk County Registry of Deeds at Book 926, Page 411. Lot A is not a buildable lot and is subject to a drainage easement.

Proposals, together with a $500 bid deposit, will be received and publicly opened and read aloud at:

Town of Cohasset
Office of Board of Selectmen
Town Hall,
41 Highland Avenue
Cohasset, Mass. 02025

immediately following the time specified below. Proposals must be received before this time to be considered. Proposals will be received until 12:00 noon on February 10, 1993. All proposals shall be in accordance with the General Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Chapter 30B, as amended. RFP packages will be available on January 15, 1993, at 12:00 noon and can be picked up at:

Town of Cohasset
Office of Board of Selectmen
Town Hall,
41 Highland Avenue
Cohasset, Mass. 02025

All proposals shall be marked, "Disposition of Property — Lot A Norfolk Road" and shall be sealed in an envelope. The Town of Cohasset reserves the right to waive any informalities in or reject any or all proposals if it deems it to be in the public interest to do so.

AARP to meet

The next meeting of the South Shore Hingham Chapter #1139 of the American Association of Retired Persons is Thursday, Jan. 28, at 1:30 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, Route 3A, Hingham.

The program will be an update on Medicare by Ro' O'Byck. Refreshments will be served. Any member of the National AARP or NRTA may join a chapter and is welcome at this meeting.

Council on Aging report

Senior shuttle is available Monday through Friday, 9:30 to 3 p.m.

Church services: call Marion Smith at 383-0431.

Out of Town shopping trips in January: Monday, Jan. 18 - Closed (Martin Luther King Day); Wednesday, Jan. 20 - Hanover Mall. If you need a ride, call 383-9112.

He who has health has hope, and he who hopes has everything. Asian proverb.

The friendship of those we serve is the foundation of our progress.

BE COUNTED

In January all Cohasset residents will receive census forms in the mail. Please return yours promptly. Some COA revenues that come to the town are based on population. State aid to the Council on Aging is based on the number of residents who are 60 and over. By returning your form you are sure to be kept on the mailing list for this newsletter.

Caring for the elderly is an important concern for families in Massachusetts as well as across America. Nationally, the numbers of elders needing long-term care help are expected to increase from 7 million today to nearly 14 million by the year 2030. Considering that 8 out of 10 elderly needing care are living in the community, it is important that families begin to plan out the future together.

While 33,000 elders in Massachusetts are already guided through the home care system, most families know very little about community care services that are available to them. "We help hundreds of families every year care for their loved ones," says Edward Flynn, Executive Director, South Shore Elder Services. "But for every family we serve, there are two or three other families out there that need help."

Trying to figure out what help is available, and where to find help, can be an overwhelming challenge for families. Here at the Council on Aging, our Outreach Worker, Sue Connolly, is available to help cut through the red tape and lead families to appropriate resources. Whether it is transportation, home care, housing, meals, companionship, or insurance concerns — our Outreach Worker can find the right community care services that will fit the family's needs.

Every family situation is different, but no matter what the situation, help is available to families planning care for their loved ones. The holidays give us a unique opportunity to talk about needs and begin to plan for the future, before any crisis should develop. If you are in need of assistance, please call the Council office at 383-9116 and ask for Sue Connolly.

Your Utility Rights-DPU regulations provide special protection to ensure that you continue to receive service under certain circumstances. The winter protection applies from Nov. 15 to March 15. If you qualify or if you have a financial hardship, then your gas or electric service cannot be shut off if it directly or indirectly supplies heat to your home. If you and all members of your household are 65 years of age or older, regardless of whether you are experiencing financial problems, your utility service cannot be shut off without the written consent of the D.P.U. However, the company (gas or electric) will ask you to fill out a form to verify the ages of all household members.

FUEL ASSISTANCE

Applications for fuel assistance can be made out at the Senior Center every Wednesday, 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

KEEP WELL CONFERENCES

Conducted by Board of Health Nurse, Judy Fitzsimmons, RN.

Thursday, Jan. 21, at 11 a.m., 60+ Club Parish House.

Friday, Jan. 29, at 10 a.m., 12 Harborview, 60 Elm St.

The fire protection system and the outside ramp will be completed by Jan. 15. In the meantime, the additional space is being used each day and we feel quite proud of our home we call the Senior Center.

It provides space, some privacy for confidential matters, comfort, accessibility and can offer some services during a disaster period. For all this we say thanks, Cohasset, you're wonderful. You financed it, you supported it through your participation and volunteerism, so don't be bashful about using it. Finally to the Cohasset Community Center, thanks for working so cooperatively with us. To one and all we wish you a HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Please continue to contribute to the Friends of COA, P.O. Box 404, Cohasset, Ma., for the building expansion.

Father-daughter dance

Sunday, Jan. 24, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the Deer Hill Cafeteria, the Cohasset Girl Scouts will do-si-do with their fathers. Bob Butler of Kramer's Hayloft calls the dances. The fee is $3 per couple; $1 for each extra girl. For further information, call Rebecca Bates-McArthur at 383-0362.

Cookie drive

The Cohasset Girl Scouts are selling Girl Scout cookies. Until Jan. 29, scouts will be ringing doorbells throughout the town. If you are not contacted by a Girl Scout, call Rebecca Bates-McArthur, 383-0362, to order cookies.

Frosty frolic returns

Mark your calendars for this year's Jan. 30 Frosty Frolic at the Cohasset Community Center at 8 p.m.

Since the center is celebrating its 50th anniversary, organizers will provide a sentimental look at the center's beginnings.

Residents formed the center in 1943 for several reasons, and one was to organize dances, some for the many men returning from war. As a special treat, the main hall will be decorated as it was in the 1940s.

Elaine Welby, president of the decorating firm "There's No Place Like Home, Inc." is gathering authentic antiques and memorabilia from the 40s and will oversee the transformation.

Dress code for the evening is 40s casual, cocktail attire, or be creative (whatever you are comfortable in).

Tickets are available at the center (383-0088) or through committee chairs Linda Chastain, 383-3047, or Andrea Flynn at 383-6754. The price is $15 single and $30 couple.

Apply for booths

Cohasset non-profit organizations who are interested in participating in the 1993 South Shore Art Center Art Festival/Cohasset Harborfest may apply for a booth on the Honor Roll Courtyard at a reduced rate. To reserve a space, please contact Bob Martin at 383-0787 no later than tomorrow, Jan. 15.

Ten booth spaces have been reserved on the Courtyard at lower rates than the Common booth spaces. Non-profit food vendors are charged $75 plus the permit fee. All non-profit food vendors must supply a certificate of liability insurance, including products liability ($1 million limit). Non-profit non-food vendors who qualify as 5013C organizations may also apply. Booth spaces on the Common are available at regular rates. Call Charlene, Tuesdays and Fridays, at 383-9548 for rates.

The rates cover all three days of the Art Festival/Harborfest, scheduled for June 18-20. Booth space is 10' by 10'.

All fees must be received by April 1.

Sign-ups to sing

The new session of Junior Voices, the South Shore choral program for boys and girls, starts Tuesday, Jan. 19 at Second Parish Church, 685 Main St., Hingham.

A special class for second and third grade children new to the program begins at this time. Registration takes place from 3:45 to 4:30 p.m. for interested children and their parents.

The on-going class for children in grades four through six accepts new members who have had some musical experience (choir, instrumental lessons, etc.) and meets to register Jan. 19 from 4:30 to 5:15 p.m.

Junior Voices combines music-reading instruction with choral singing. Each hour's activities include games, songs, and drills, taught with enthusiasm and energy by director Margo Euler, to learn note-reading and develop the ability to sing together musically in parts. The children perform for audiences in the course of the session, and should have a strong love of singing, good attention span, and ability to match pitches accurately.

A tuition check of $70 (to the Broad Cove C[illegible]) is payable at registration for the spring sess[illegible]ch runs Jan. 19 through May 11; a concert for [illegible] in May and performances for the Hingham Moth[illegible] Club and for senior citizens (to be scheduled) complete the program.

Please feel free to call Vicki Freeland, program assistant at 740-0712 (Hingham); Ann Whiteley at 383-9310 (Cohasset) for more information; if for any reason you cannot attend the registration session Jan. 19, it is important that you call director Margo Euler at 749-7890 before that date to pre-register your child.

It's hi Noon(an) for Cohasset police dept.

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

In a unanimous decision Tuesday, the Cohasset selectmen chose to appoint Sergeant Brian W. Noonan as the town's next police chief.

A motion was made to offer Noonan the position after Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby's first choice was rejected in a 3-2 vote. She suggested finalist Craig Hall of Falmouth, Maine be given the position saying that "he's shown leadership" and is "benevolent yet stern."

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle quickly asked if she felt Hall was better than any candidate from within Cohasset.

Staying away from an argument Gjesteby pointed out the attempts Hall had made in the past to "better himself" through positions and education and hoped the same type of person would be selected as police chief.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan quickly brought Noonan's name into the discussion and a vote was taken. Originally selected four votes to one, Noonan received the single negative vote from Gjesteby. She said, "Brian's a good person, but he's not my first choice."

After this statement Gjesteby brought a motion before the board to reconsider and change the official vote so it would read five to zero.

"I'm very happy about being selected," said Noonan later that evening. He added that it's a big job, but "I think I'm up to it."

The choice of Noonan also makes some residents

'Sex Palace' radio show is off the air

A group of local women from the South Shore of the National Organization of Women (NOW) chapter tightened their purse strings and managed to have the WBCN radio show "Sex Palace" taken off the air.

Bradley Jay, the disc jockey who hosted the program, exploited four Cohasset cheerleaders in September by prodding them into repeating vulgar cheers on the air about a rival football team.

"We listened to the radio and taped several shows and were astounded at the sponsors," said Roberta Brooks of South Shore NOW, which has more than 100 members.

"So we wrote a letter saying we were going to stop buying their products unless they stopped advertising on a program that we found is offensive to women."

Alzheimer's group to lighten lives

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Lois Weltman doesn't sit still.

So when the energetic Gammons Road resident is on to something, watch out — chances are she'll get it done. And chances are it'll do something wonderful for someone else.

"I love to do things, no one says can be done," she says with conviction.

Weltman's most recent volunteer effort strikes close to home.

Simply said: she has taken a family tragedy and turned it into a creative new program for Alzheimer's sufferers.

Her beloved mother-in-law is stricken with the dreaded disease that is the fourth leading cause of death for elderly exceeded only by heart disease, cancer, and stroke.

There are an estimated 700 families, who have been touched by the disease, in the greater Hingham area alone.

In a serendipitous way, Weltman turned a simple idea to bring some light into her mother-in-law's life into a new program to help Alzheimer's sufferers on the South Shore.

She is president of the newly formed Creative Program for Alzheimer's, Inc. a non-profit organization dedicated to providing warm, caring recreational sessions for sufferers.

Cohasset's week

Hazardous waste trashed

Although Cohasset voters permanently raised the town's tax levy by an additional $15,000 last spring to pay for a hazardous waste day — that tax money may not be used to conduct the day again this year.

The advisory committee last week recommended not holding the hazardous waste day as part of a budget package to compensate for the health board's decreasing the annual sticker fee for the recycling transfer facility (RTF).

The $15,000 Prop. 2-1/2 override costs the owner of a $286,000 home about $5.50 a year, according to the assessor's office.

By law the town is not obligated to use money raised through a permanent Prop. 2-1/2 override for the designated purpose after the first year.

Last year the health board increased the sticker fee to $75 after an unusually large amount of rubbish was coming into the transfer station during the first six months of the year.

When the fees were initially set up, the board intended the fees cover 50 percent of actual disposal costs, Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik said.

Trash levels dropped back down creating a (fee) surplus, Godzik explained, which went into the general fund. So in keeping with the board's original 50 percent-of-costs' intent, members decided to reduce the fee this year.

Reducing the RTF sticker fee to $55 will cost the town about $30,000 in revenue for FY'94, which starts July 1.

The hazardous waste day in September cost close to $12,000, Godzik said.

Godzik said he feels conducting hazardous waste days encourages people to dispose of hazardous materials like pesticides and old paint properly.

Town meeting voters will have the ultimate say if they want a household hazardous waste day — through a warrant article submitted by the health board.

The board also submitted an article for a $9,000 vertical baler for recycling corrugated cardboard and plastic.

Blood drive, Jan. 26

The next Cohasset Community Red Cross Blood Drive is Tuesday, Jan. 26.

The drive takes place at The First Parish House on Cohasset Common between the hours of 2 and 7 p.m.

Past donors will receive a scheduling call from their group promoter. New donors are invited to call the Cohasset Blood Drive chairpersons Shirley and Jack Cibell, at 383-2974.

Rabies clinic possible

Legislation recently passed in the Massachusetts General Court requires that pet owners have all their cats and dogs over six (6) months of age immunized against rabies. Feb. 24 is the deadline for having this accomplished.

The Cohasset Board of Health is considering sponsoring a rabies immunization clinic if there is sufficient interest by pet owners. If you are interested in having your pet immunized through such a clinic, please call the Board of Health office at 383-9900, ext. 121.

Tax bills mailed

The third quarterly Fiscal 1993 real estate and personal property tax bills are due to the Treasurer/Collector's office no later than 4:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 1.

Postmark dates are not accepted. No exceptions.

The mailing address for tax payments is: Treasurer-Collector's Office, P.O. Box 296, Cohasset 02025. For those taxpayers who wish to pay their taxes in person our office hours for Jan. 25 through Feb. 1 are: Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Monday, Feb. 1, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A number of bills have been returned to the office due to improper mailing addresses. Any property owner who has not received a tax bill should call the Collector's office at the Town Hall, 383-9900, extension 113. Failure to receive a tax bill does not waive payment of the tax and does not excuse the homeowner from interest charges on payments received after the due date.

No all-night parking

Starting Nov. 15 and running through March overnight parking is prohibited on any Cohasset str

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on any street longer than one hour between the hours of 2 and 6 a during this period, police said.

Nomination papers ready

Nomination papers for the town election on Saturda April 3, are available at the Town Clerks office.

The last day for candidates to obtain nominatio papers is Thursday, Feb. 11 until 7 p.m.

All nomination papers must be submitted to th registrars of voters for certification of names an addresses on or before 5 p.m., Monday, Feb. 15.

Town census mailed

Please be informed that the Town Census for 199 will be mailed to each household this month.

Compliance with state requirements provides proo of residence to protect voting rights, veteran's bonus housing for the elderly and related benefits as well a providing information for selection of jurors.

This does not register you as a voter but failure t answer this may result in the voter's name bein removed from the voter's list. Please note that if person wishes to remain a voter, do not remove hi from the census.

If you are storing your silver after the holidays, please remember to empty your silver salt & pepper shakers so they don't pit. Keep in mind all your silver should be cleaned with a good silver polish making sure never to use a twisting motion when cleaning pieces that are jointed, like candle sticks, compotes, and salt and peppers. This can crimp the silver and damage the joints. After drying thoroughly, store your silver in tarnish preventative bags. Never use plastic wrap which can trap in moisture and damage your sliver.

New, creative Alzheimer's group to lighten lives . . .

The organization is shooting to hold its first session for "club members" in March.

The non-clinical sessions will provide a creative arts program which may include art, music, dance, improvisation, pantomime, gardening and more in a social, non-clinical setting.

"Momentary pleasure is key in the Alzheimer's world," Weltman explains.

And she knows that a positive affect on a sufferer — no matter how small — can leave a lasting impression on the family.

"One can't predict the course of the disease so all one can do is create vignettes of pleasure.

"A fleeting smile can have lasting value in the minds of those who love — that's what they'll remember," she says.

Weltman's idea took root last fall after a trip to Washington with a friend to observe classes in creative arts for Alzheimer's patients. Then she hosted a "high tea" for her mother-in-law "with pretty food and music," she recalls.

The social event had an immediate effect.

"Mom lit up," Weltman says.

"The enjoyment of the hour or so carried over into the next day, she was more animated."

Weltman's enthusiasm convinced local cable talk-show host Wigmore Pierson to hold a television program on Alzheimer's. The show was the catalyst, Weltman recalls, that put her in touch with Dr. Christopher West, a psychologist, who was also a guest on the program.

Ten days after the Nov. 19 show, West called Weltman.

"' You said a couple of things that gave me an idea,'" he said, Weltman recalls.

"He liked my idea of of providing a program in a social setting."

They met again and the idea snowballed.

Aided by Weltman's husband, David, an attorney, the non-profit organization is now incorporated with a board of directors. And with the help of the Cohasset Community Center, which will serve as a site where screenings will be conducted; the Social Service League which helped identify staff and board members; and the South Shore Arts Center which is renting a gallery to the group as the meeting place — it's time to start.

"The first step is getting the word out," Weltman says. She hopes that as a result of this article families of Alzheimer's sufferers will call for information and to apply.

Depending on interest, plans are to conduct one or two, three-hour sessions a week. Eight-to-ten "members" will participate in each session, where there will be two staffers for each member.

The three-hour sessions are $30.

The goal of the organization is straight forward.

"I'm not saying we'll alter the course of the illness but we'll try to improve the quality of life that's there." Weltman says. "Even with the most severely impaired Alzheimer's sufferer, you can strike a responsive chord and bring joy into their lives."

"We hope via a beautiful, warm, caring social environment Alzheimer's victims can find some light in the dark tunnel to which they've been thrust."

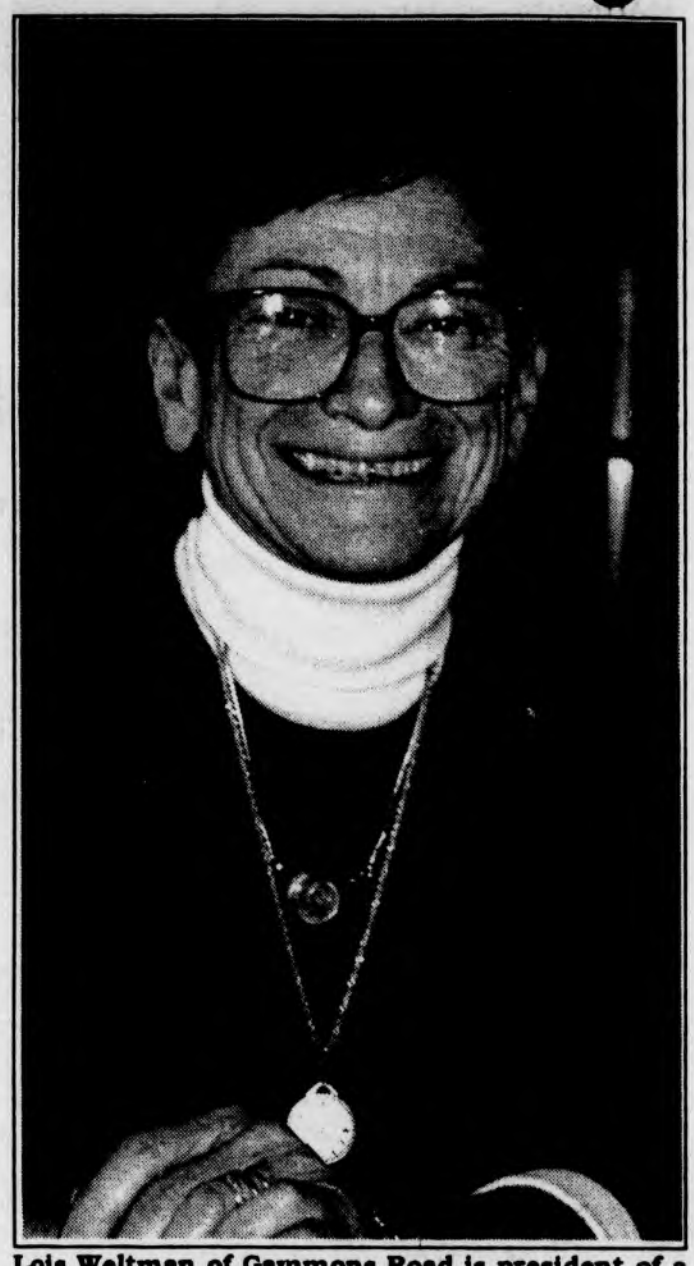
Weltman — who has served on innumerable projects including saving the Boston Children's Theater when "they were ready to flush it," she recalls, and on former Gov. Michael Dukakis' advisory committee for the homeless where she led a private-sector initiative to get funding to build shelters — is no stranger to hard work, the volunteer kind.

And she wouldn't have it any other way.

"The beauty of being a volunteer is total independence. It's a great luxury to feel free, to follow your own philosophy and not have to answer to anyone else but yourself.

"It's a great sense of power. Power to do good," she says.

For information about enrollment in the new Alzheimer's program, please call Robin Lord at 383-1898.



Lois Weltman of Gammons Road is president of a new non-profit organization dedicated to enhancing the quality of life for Alzheimer's sufferers through a creative arts program conducted in a non-clinical, social setting. For information on enrollment please call Robin Lord at 383-1898.

Alzheimer's group forms on South Shore

Civic leader, Lois Weltman, and Christopher D. West, Ph.D., a noted psychologist, have formed a nonprofit organization that will hold weekly recreational sessions for individuals with Alzheimer's Disease.

Weltman noted the purpose is to enhance the quality of life for individuals with Alzheimer's Disease and their families by creating a stress-free, happy interlude in the life of the Alzheimer's individual, with a period of respite for the family care-giver and an improved sense of well being for both. West added that participation by Alzheimer's individuals will be amply supported with smiles, treats and caring interactions.

Weltman has secured the cooperation of the South Shore Art Center for the initial activities and the help of other civic leaders. Another key person who has assisted Mrs. Weltman is her husband, David, a lawyer who did the legal work to insure the organization qualifies as a non-profit.

Others who are working for the success of this worthy organization are: Barbara Mason of Westwood. Polly Logan of Cohasset, Janet Foxborough of Foxborough, Patricia C. Carleton of Cohasset Social Service League, Robin Lord of Cohasset, Pat Leavey of North Weymouth and JoAnn Mitchell of Hingham. President of Alzheimer's Disease Support Group of the South Shore, Inc.

Today there are 1.5 million victims of this disease which is the fourth leading cause of death for elderly only exceeded by heart disease, cancer and stroke. By year 2030 about 20 of the population (about 51 million people) will be over 65 and may be suffering from this disease.

Family care-givers of the Alzheimer's individuals may obtain further information regarding enrollment by calling Robin Lord 383-1898.

Alzheimers discussion set

The Alzheimer's Disease Support Group of the South Shore, Inc. sponsors a panel discussion on the application process for nursing home care as well as alternatives to nursing home care, including day-health programs, Wednesday, Jan. 27, at 7:30 p.m., at Hersey House, 229 North Street, Hingham. Coordination of Care Nurses from South Shore Elder Services describe the factors that decide the appropriate level of care for each client. As all nursing homes are designated as providing care on specific care levels, it is necessary that care needs are assessed for each nursing home applicant. South Shore Elder Services provides this assessment service for the South Shore.

Although the family may not see the need at present for outside-the-home services, it is a must to be prepared with information about how area care systems work, should a family emergency or abrupt change in the caregiver's or patient's needs arise.

This meeting is open to anyone concerned with the care of an Alzheimer patient or other frail elder. Please call 749-5417 for more information.

A history of Yankee seafaring tradition survives

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Herbert L. Jason personifies the quiet strength and deep self-reliance the New England, seafaring tradition was built upon.

At 79, Jason continues the tradition.

The Cohasset native is a lobsterman, and one of a handful from town who continue to drop pots during the bitter, winter months.

"I'm one of the few who still fish alone — that's all I've ever done," the hearty septuagenarian said.

Discussions about a life of lobstering quickly reveal a man who never questioned the rigors his profession demanded.

"I used to have to row ten miles a day," he says matter-of-factly.

"You had to row a mile just to get out of the harbor."

Herbert Jason has been lobstering in Cohasset for more than 60 years.

(Staff photo/ Dori Dwyer

If you remember this, then you're a native, says Cohasset's Herbert Jason. That's Jason in his teens in his own homemade ice boat contraption on Lily Pond in the 1930s.

The massive chest, muscular frame and strong gait give testimony to the benefits of a life of physical toil.

And the face, rimmed with a classic, seafarer's beard, usually sports an enthusiastic smile and offers none of the usual indications of age.

"An outboard motor was a luxury when I started in the 30s," the grandfatherly Jason offered.

For the first several years he rowed a 16-foot skiff out of Cohasset Harbor to drop his pots.

In those early days, Jason recounts, his obstacles were more than physical.

Older fishermen would cut the connecting lines between the lobster buoys and the pots of the newcomers.

"They tried to drive you out of the business."

Jason was the victim of several sabotage incidents back then.

"I figured out who did it and cut his lines," he explained.

"I rowed over and dropped the buoys in his boat. I said ' Keep it up, you have more to lose than I do,' and I rowed away."

Jason good-naturedly laughed as he said the incidents stopped.

"I didn't take it personally. They didn't dislike me, they just didn't want anyone else in the business."

Jason is again trying to cope with the very immediate problem of damaged gear — but this time the perpetrator was the Dec. 18 nor'easter which battered the New England coast.

"I lost half my pots," he said.

"I stayed in my boat during the storm," Jason explained.

"You never know when another boat will get loose."

Jason said the effects of the Dec. 18 nor'easter would not be so devastating if they were not felt so soon after the No-Name October storm of 1991.

"I lost everything — about 400 pots — most of us did," he said of the October nor'easter.

With money from the Red Cross and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), and loans extended by the Small Business Administration (SBA), and local banks, Jason was able to replace the gear destroyed in 1991.

"I thought gee, who is going to give a man my age a loan - I'm almost 80," he recalled.

He praised Cohasset Savings and Rockland Trust for their immediate response to his plight.

"They take care of the fisherman — they take care of us."

Jason said lobstermen have received little, if any, money from the Red Cross and FEMA for the December storm, and like most of his fishing colleagues, he doesn't want another loan.

"A lot of fisherman feel that way because we've got loans up to here from prior storms," he said.

He added that it would be a big help to the lobstermen if the SBA loans for the No-Name storm were forgiven.

"Nixon forgave the loans" of another storm, he explained.

Age has not dampened the lobsterman's passion.

When he is not on the water, Jason devotes much of his energy to what some might perceive a youthful pursuit — marine preservation.

"Conservation is the only way to go," he says.

Jason said he supports a proposal for an 800-pot limit for each lobsterman.

While there is a moratorium on issuing new lobster licenses, he explained, there is no limit now on the number of pots a lobsterman can drop.

"Some fish with 1,000 or 1,500 pots," he explained.

Jason is also a vocal opponent of gill net fishing.

A gill net hangs perpendicular to the ocean floor. It traps fish around the gills who try to swim through.

"I used to go gill netting, now I'm dead set against it."

Ironically, a great catch is what changed his mind.

"I found a great place for flounder and set the net," Jason said.

"I caught so many fish, I thought, gee, this isn't right, these fish didn't stand a chance. "

Jason was instrumental in moving gill netting away from shore, where birds and fries are likely to be snagged.

"The gill netters wanted to kill me. I got it moved a mile off-shore," he said.

happy. In a letter to the selectmen, Patrick and Maria Plante of Jerusalem Road said they "question looking outside Cohasset when we are fortunate to have three well-qualified" candidates in town.

And the Plantes urged the board to "consider a 'home-town voice' in your vote."

As a member of the police force since 1974 Noonan has a deep concern for the organization as well as the well-being of the town. And a primary goal when he begins his new job will be to "get us out of the dark ages and get the police department computerized."

"It's important to keep the department together," he said and to keep "everybody happy." And although Noonan acknowledged there could be some difficulty in the transition, he is looking forward to his new job.

"There are a thousand things" I want to get done he said.

Noonan, married with four children, lives on Ash St.

Selectmen interviewed six finalists for the chief's position two weeks ago. The position opened officially in August when police chief Joseph M. Kealey tendered his letter of resignation.

Selectmen used Tuesday's executive session to discuss the police chief's contract.

Banks, a Scituate resident, said they also wrote to other NOW chapters across the state.

"We're not supporting something degrading to women, so we decided to start up a boycott," she said.

Locally based Lechmere and Papa Gino's got the message and have reportedly asked their commercials be pulled from the program. The action pressured WBCN to drop the show, according to news reports.

WBCN officials were not available to comment by press time.

S.S.NOW member Diane Walsh of Cohasset, said the response from advertisers show they know where the power really is.

"Women control the purse strings in a family and can make effective choices," she said.

After the show aired, WBCN suspended Jay for one week.

Jay will still be on the air, according to reports, but his show will have a different format.

Burning season opens, permits issued

The 1993 Open Burning Season in Cohasset has begun.

Permits are issued on a daily basis. Residents seeking a burning permit should call the Fire Department business line, 383-0616, on the day burning will be conducted.

The following information will be requested of you:

* Name (of responsible party supervising the fire)
* Address (where burning will be conducted)
* Type of materials to be burned.

Burning shall be conducted between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. and shall be conducted on land proximate to the place of generation.

Burning shall be conducted at a location greater than 75 feet from any building and

Burning of leaves, grass, hay, and stumps is prohibited.

Burning shall not cause a nuisance.

A complete set of rules for Open Burning is available for review at Fire Headquarters, 44 Elm St.

Permit issuance may be suspended at any time by the Fire Department due to environmental conditions or noncompliance with the rules by a permit holder. Permits are issued between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. at 383-0616.

around town

❑ Hats off to Kevin Soule, who has just completed 25 years of dedicated service to the Cohasset Public School System! Hey guys, that's tons of hard work, and we applaud him!

Under the will miss column...Diana Karcher, receptionist for Roger Pompeo...a great, caring, loving gal with a heart of gold...she loved all, and all loved her. We wish the new gal well, and know that the shoes that she has to fill are big ones (just knowing Ann and Roger, she will fill them)...

❑ Hope everyone caught the piece in the Boston Herald, under Inside Track, about the six Boston College MBA students who went to do battle in an international business school competition in Montreal; one of Cohasset's most famous businessmen got to coach them after all studied a case that will help them win. George Rabstejnek, chairman of Harbridge House, gave them plenty of tutoring, and we certainly applaud him for his efforts.

Hope all students listened to him; a bright, nifty man who can teach much to many.

❑ Twenty-six University of Vermont students were initiated in late November into the Phi Beta Kappa national honor society. The society honors high academic achievement for liberal arts students, admitting only those with a grade point average of 3.5 or higher. We are proud to announce that Melissa Ellen McCarthy, majoring in psychology, was one of the initiates, and we are proud.

❑ The Cohasset Community Center Gymnastics staff thanks all gymnasts, friends and parents for their many gifts, cards and baked goods, from Ruthann, Patti, Susie, Tiffany and Karen. The center has done so much good for so many, we are thankful as a community and wonder how life went on without all of their great deeds. So many people have benefitted; hats off to all of you!

❑ Steve Pattison is our local hero this week. He recently left for Marine Boot Camp. There was a super going-away party held which he'll surely remember it as he starts "maneuvers." Best of luck, Steve.

❑ Three gents are really getting excited as Feb. 19 approaches...that is the day that they debark for their second annual Elvis Festival in Graceland. Gary Smith, Jay Fiori (the Elvis King and collector) and Brian St. John are on route then.

Linda Peraino and her daughter, Heather, enjoy the brisk temperatures and bright sunshine as they slide down the hill in front of Cohasset High School. (Staff photo/J. Paul MacDonald)

We are sure they will have stories to tell (but, can we print them??).

❑ We welcome Natalie Dignam, a brand new baby girl born to James and Mary Beth Dignam of 36 Fernway, Dec. 20. Just imagine Christmas at their house; what fun!! Grandparents are James and Mary Hanna and Frank and Mary Dignam.

Enjoy that baby, folks, and Natalie, be sure everyone sends the news about you as you grow!

❑ And, Beach Street neighbors have reason to celebrate for Deborah and John Nugent. They are proud to announce that Alex Thomas Nugent has joined their family. Alex was born at South Shore Hospital Nov. 29 at 12:53 and weighed in at 8 lbs. 6 oz. Of course you know that grandparents Thomas and Margaret Nassetta of Norwell and Margaret Mullen of Hingham are beside themselves with joy....for that matter, what grandparents aren't? God bless you all!

❑ It's a brand new year, and a great way to remember it is to have the 199[illegible] graduating class yearbook. They are s[illegible] accepting orders. Call Florence Ely at the high school for more information. Is there any more fun than looking at them, especially 15 years from now? All ages love to do that; order yours today.

❑ We have got to give a standing ovation for five of Cohasset's finest skaters...they skate for the South Shore Seahawks Hockey Club and have just returned from Burlington, VT, where they won the Championship. They are now Burlington International Champions of the Squirt B division. Who are these future CHS hockey stars you ask? Bill Good, Jr. (a super star), Ed Goff (another one), Andy Curran (certainly a strong hockey name in our town; remember how many great Currans have skated in the past?), Charlie Dean Jr. (he had an assist in the great 5-0 victory) and Jay Whoriskey (GOAL). We know that we will be hearing many more things about you men and your hockey prowess. Please keep us up-to-date (don't forget to keep us informed).

❑ Another welcome mat goes out to our future. Alex and Joanne Adkins had a baby daughter, born Dec. 3 at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston. Not many other details yet, but stay tuned...

❑ Our own "Drug-free Weekend" is fast approaching...so many wonderful plans are in the making...ice sculpting, storytelling, movies, food bazaar, teen pizza party, fun fare and singing groups, free super sundaes, BRUNCH (under a dollar). More news will come next week, just be sure that you include the whole weekend in your plans when filling out your calendar. Most cannot wait (remember last year, it was great!!).

❑ That's it for this week, but a reminder...make it part of your New Year plan to let us know what is happening that you want us all to know. As I've said so many times, your news is ours!!

editorial

Hi Noon(an)!

Cohasset has a new police chief and it's a local guy, Sgt. Brian W. Noonan.

We congratulate all the finalists especially Sergeants Robert W. Jackson and Richard B. Abbadessa of the Cohasset Police Department.

And our warmest congratulations to Sgt. Noonan whom we see on our weekly visits to the police department to pick up the log and find out any police news.

We have always found Sgt. Noonan to be professional, courteous, and accessible.

Police work is often negative and many times the last person the police want to see is a reporter.

But in addition to providing us with information about incidents or arrests, Sgt. Noonan has taken the time to explain any technical details that can be confusing.

A member of the police force for 18 years, Noonan has a deep concern for the Cohasset Police Department and the town.

Some of Noonan's goals include:

• computerizing the department to allow officers to enter investigations and accident reports directly into the computer for easy access;

• DARE program which allows uniformed officers to deal directly with students at a young age building a bridge between law enforcement and youth as well as providing drug abuse education;

• enforcing the current alarm by-law allowing the department to charge a business or homeowner who has in excess of three false alarms a year;

• instituting a program where four-to-six summer police officers would be hired to assist regular officers whose workload increases.

• community relations — the chief and officers would be available to any school, civic, business or church group that may need the department's input.

We know the town will rally behind its new chief.

And we look forward to working with Chief Noonan.

Alzheimer's

All of us are or will be touched in some way in our lives by Alzheimer's, a dreaded disease that strikes down people we love — our parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, aunts and uncles.

It's a disease that chips away its sufferers and leaves the family standing by feeling hopeless.

But Lois Weltman of Gammons Rd. is making a difference.

She, along with a group of committed people, are starting a program in Cohasset that can bring a ray of light into Alzheimer's sufferers' lives and the lives of those who care about them.

The new organization, Creative Program for Alzheimer's, Inc., has a straightforward goal.

"I'm not saying we'll alter the course of the illness but we'll try to improve the quality of life that's there...even with the most severely impaired Alzheimer's sufferer, you can strike a responsive chord and bring joy into their lives.

"We hope via a beautiful, warm, caring social environment Alzheimer's victims can find some light in the dark tunnel to which they've been thrust," Mrs. Weltman says.

We applaud the efforts of Mrs. Weltman, the other members of the Board of Directors and town groups who have joined together to help make this worthwhile program possible.

Lifeboats are part of town's past

By David H. Wadsworth
Cohasset Historical Society

An important part of Cohasset's long maritime history tells of a century and a half of shipwrecks in the waters forming the treacherous and rock-strewn shoreline of the town, and of lifesaving efforts that followed each of those maritime disasters.

In 1793 a group of Cohasset residents received silver medals from King Christian of Denmark for rescuing the crew of the Danish ship Gertrude Maria, wrecked at Brush Island. A series of disastrous shipwrecks along our shores saw an increasing loss of lives and valuable cargo.

The "Cohasset Rocks" just offshore claimed an alarming number of vessels and by the early 1800s the losses had become a matter of widespread concern.

In the year 1807 an organization founded for the rescue of those whose lives were in danger, the Massachusetts Humane Society, broadened its lifesaving efforts by constructing the first American lifeboat station at Cohasset. That lifeboat was constructed for the Humane Society by Nantucket boatbuilder William Raymond, under the direction of Capt. Gideon Gardner.

It was 30 feet long with a 20-foot beam; was lined with cork flotation; was powered by 10-to-12 oarsmen; was steered by "two men with oars, one at each end, both ends being alike"; was equipped with two long poles for "pushing off" in shallow water; and was designed after the boat designed by Henry Greathead for the Royal Lifesaving Society. It could hold about 20 survivors.

In its 1808 report the Humane Society noted the cost of the lifeboat at $1.438 and of its shed at Cohasset, $160.

The Humane Society's history states that Cohasset was chosen for its station "by the advice of the most respectable mariners." Masters of the new boat were Cohasset seafarers Captains John Jacob Lothrop and Peter Lothrop of Sandy Cove.

The Humane Society's history states the boat was at Cohasset from 1807 to 1813. In the later year, as a result of the war with Great Britain, local and area militia troops established earthwork fortifications in the vicinity of Cohasset Harbor to defend against marauding British troops arriving by sea to burn ships and facilities in the small seaport towns of Cape Cod and the South Shore.

The main fortification was at Whitehead Point, with troops camped nearby at Hominy Point at the entrance to the harbor.

In June of that year H.M.S. Bulwark, 74 guns, and H.M.S. Nymph, frigate, with troops aboard, appeared off Cohasset's shore. They remained for four days before withdrawing in the face of defending militia forces some 1,200 strong.

A member of the militia company on duty at Whitehead, Lieut. Thomas Stoddard of Cohasset, noted in his diary that, in addition to the earthwork fortifications, "a large building on White Head erected for a lifeboat house was used as a guard house." This would have been the Humane Society's lifeboat station, apparently vacated before the troops arrived. A later article about early lifeboat activities at Cohasset notes the Whitehead boat house subsequently "torn down."

In 1841 the record indicates a second lifeboat station at Cohasset. In that year the Humane Society established a chain of lifeboats and stations along the Massachusetts coast, Cohasset being noted as among them.

Oct. 7, 1849 Cohasset volunteer lifesavers responded to the town's worst maritime disaster, the wreck of the Irish brig St. John at Grampus ledge, in which 99 persons were lost. Capt. Daniel Lothrop of the lifeboat crew, in a letter explaining the reasons the volunteer Cohasset lifesavers did not succeed in reaching the foundering St. John, notes that two lifeboats were launched from the station at Cohasset Harbor, the first a larger lifeboat, the second a smaller boat.

In 1850 Humane Society records show that members of the Cohasset lifeboat crew received $35 as a "pecuniary award" for extraordinary lifesaving efforts.

Humane Society records also indicate that by 1869 there were two lifeboat stations at Cohasset. One, at the harbor, housed Society lifeboats numbers 20 and 21 under Cohasset shipowner Alfred Whittington, and boat number 19 was at Pleasant Beach, under hotel owner Peter C. Kimball. The Pleasant Beach station had been "partly built by donation of Enoch Train, Esquire," Boston shipowner. Sometime later the station at Cohasset Harbor was closed, and the Pleasant Beach station was home for a later boat, named for an early Humane Society Officer, the John Warren.

As with all Humane Society lifeboat stations, Cohasset's was manned by volunteers, who could expect to be rewarded for their dangerous task by gold, silver or bronze medals, by the "pecuniary awards" of a sum of money, or by the certificate honoring their valor.

Lifeboat crews in Cohasset represented a cross section of the town's populace, and many came from the seafaring families of the town. The names of Cohasset's volunteer lifesavers are sprinkled though Humane Society lists of award recipients through the 19th and early 20th centuries.

The last Massachusetts Humane Society lifeboat station in Cohasset was closed in 1941 and its boat was sold; the function of the volunteer lifeboat crews having been supplanted by the U.S. Coast Guard.

Memorabilia is wanted

The Drug Free Weekend/Winterfest Committee is looking for old photos, especially family, sports and Cohasset vacation pictures, to display during the Jan. 29-31 weekend.

Home movies and yearbooks from before 1960 are also wanted, and any photos or movies that show present town officials, committee members, teachers, etc. when they were children or teenagers would be most valuable.

If you have anything that might be of interest during the "Cohasset Past and Present" weekend, please call Gerard Keating at the Council on Aging office (383-9112), Clark Chatterton at the High School (383-6100 or 6103), or Paula Knowles (383-1331 or 6266). All memorabilia will be treated like the gold that it is!

political notes

Economic caucus formed

Hynes

Rep. Frank Hynes, D-Marshfield, Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, R-Cohasset, and state Sen. Brian McDonald, D-Weymouth, have joined with legislators throughout Plymouth and Bristol counties in establishing the Southeastern Massachusetts Legislative Caucus.

The caucus has been formed to promote a long-term and short-term legislative strategy for the economy of southeastern Massachusetts.

McDonald

The caucus is designed to bring the economic development community together to address the needs of the business community and the region as it relates to economic development.

The plans include bringing representatives of the legislature, colleges and universities, regional planning and economic development agencies, Chambers of Commerce, labor, selectmen, county commissioners and members of the Southeastern Massachusetts Partnership together in order to help formulate a legislative strategy to promote economic growth.

Murray

This first phase of the caucus plan will establish a process advisory team to solicit input from the economic development community and develop final recommendations for legislative action.

Studds pushes for aid

Studds

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds has urged Gov. William Weld and the administrator of the Small Business Administration (SBA) to provide further disaster assistance to local residents — especially lobstermen — devastated by the December blizzard.

"There is no question in my mind that local governments aren't the only ones that need help recovering from the December storm, Studds said.

"There are scores of businesses and individuals, especially lobstermen, who were hit hard and will be in deeper trouble unless something is done."

In letters sent recently to SBA administrator Patricia Saiki, and Governor Weld, Studds expressed concern that to date, only local governments have received public assistance.

Studds cited reports from dozens of lobstermen who were already hard-pressed to pay disaster loans from previous storms, and whose gear was destroyed in the most recent nor'easter. The SBA can, if requested by a particular state, provide emergency disaster assistance if at least 25 individuals or businesses sustain significant losses that are uninsured.

Interfaith cable channel is needed

letters

To the Editor:

VISN/ACTS, the unique Faith and Values channel, is now reaching more than 20 million households across the nation. How long before it becomes available to you in your community?

It will come into your homes for you and me to watch only when good people realize what they are missing, and together, individually and as a group, appeal to their local cable managers!

The Vision Interfaith Satellite Network (VISN) and its affiliate ACTS, are committed to building the local community through respect for each other's differences. VISN supports the vitality of its local churches, and it serves the varied interests and needs of the viewer. VISN is unique because it is the only interfaith channel on cable television serving more than 50 national faith groups: Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, Mormon, Greek Orthodox.

VISN/ACTS allows no on-air fund-raising, no proselytizing of members of other faiths, and no maligning of other religious traditions. It offers a rich diversity of quality programs in the fields of drama, music, comedy, documentaries, and worship. Many towns on Cape Cod are now getting VISN/ACTS on "Basic cable" 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Let us in our communities start to spread the word on this great Faith and Values network, so that we too can enjoy it.

Third in a series

Congratulations, Mr. President! Now, let's cure our health care problems.

When Bill Clinton takes the oath of office as our 42nd president on January 20, he does so acknowledging that the nation's health care system is in crisis.

But neither President Clinton nor our new Congress has to convince us that our health care system needs fundamental change. Recent polls show almost 90 percent of Americans in favor of health care reform. We at South Shore Hospital agree.

While there seems to be widespread agreement that something must be done, most of us know more about the problem's symptoms than its causes.

- Our population is aging.
- We want the best but at low cost.
- Health insurance is too expensive.
- Too little goes to preventive care.
- Our complex health care bureaucracy in government and insurance is costly.
- A basic range of health services is unavailable to many Americans.

In the year just ended, 1992, Americans spent $817 billion on health services. That's more per person than any other nation, yet 35 million of us — 650,000 in Massachusetts — have no health insurance coverage. They may get medical care in emergencies but their access to regular primary care is undeniably weak, if not nonexistent.

Although these and other concerns require a serious and reasoned response, Americans also realize that our health care is high quality. The same polls show that most of us are very satisfied with our own doctors, hospitals, and other care givers. Our situation, unlike many other nations, is not that we lack medical resources, and excellent ones at that. It's that we are unconvinced that, as a nation, we are getting value for our dollar. And we are frustrated that everyone cannot get care.

Because we start with a sound medical infrastructure, we must avoid the temptation of a quick fix that satisfies short-term political goals by merely altering a flawed payment system. The debate should not begin with, or be limited to, finances. Let's start by creating a genuine national health policy, an agenda that describes what we want and need from health care. Do we want state of the art technology as a priority? Do we want more disease prevention and prenatal care? What about long-term care of the chronically ill? Or do we want it all?

Only after knowing the answers should we consider how the plan will be paid for, and how the complex web of insurance coverages and bureaucracy can be simplified.

Ideally, the plan will define clinical outcome and cost as the ingredients of value in health care. And they should include assurances of quality care and access to care.

We believe the plan also should create incentives for all the current forces in the health care equation—employers, physicians, hospitals, and other health care providers—to form local collaborative relationships. Some networks already are responding to the need for greater integration between caregivers, for greater efficiency, and a far more effective means of reaching all segments of local communities with basic services. Federal leadership will speed the process.

At South Shore Hospital, we know the advantages of joining our services with other programs. For many years the impact of our outreach has been strengthened by collaborative initiatives with local physicians, managed care programs, businesses, and with other hospitals including those in Boston. Our affiliation with South Shore Visiting Nurse and Health Services is a model of "win-win" collaboration for our entire region.

While there have been many false starts toward national health care reform, the debate is real this time. Mr. Clinton has promised to present a health care plan in his first 100 days in office. Our own congressional delegation, including U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds and Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry, are championing reform to strengthen our health care system before it becomes a national crisis.

South Shore Hospital is working with the Clinton Administration and Congress. We want to assure that the changes ultimately adopted by the new administration and Congress, are based on a vision for health care that does more than simply address financial or budget concerns.

No matter how you feel about this issue, we encourage you to be active in this critical debate. The future of your health care system is too important to remain silent. We suggest that you begin by getting your opinions to your elected officials. And we would be pleased to hear from you with comments about this message. Just call the Public Affairs Department at (617) 340-8564, or write us.

Mr. Clinton, congratulations on your inauguration. South Shore Hospital wishes you and the 103rd Congress well, and offers every measure of cooperation toward resolving our nation's health care problems.

Fire fighting equipment brought up to date

In an effort to upgrade Cohasset's fire-fighting equipment, chief John Nadeau brought three items before the board of selectmen Tuesday night.

These items had inadvertently been left off the fire department's capital budget the first time it was approved so Nadeau and the board decided to discuss these items separately.

The first thing Nadeau brought up was an ambulance radio that needed an upgrade. At a cost of $1,800 the radio would allow the department to keep in touch with medical staff during an emergency.

The current model is from 1974, said Nadeau, "and it's really time to replace it."

Second was a booster pump for the air stored in the fire trucks. This air is used to fill the tanks fire personnel wear during a rescue and training.

According to Nadeau, the department only has the capacity to fill 14 tanks and when they run out the department and safety suffers.

To refill the truck's air supply, he added, requires a trip to Hingham or Scituate where they have the booster equipment. "It will really help to round out our mobile air supply," he said. And Nadeau explained how the system would pay for itself in five years by saving overtime costs and equipment wear and tear.

He called the system a priority and "the last piece of the puzzle."

The final items on the list were a 35 millimeter projector and a portable television for training and public education programs. The department has been using equipment from the union and from the schools in the past but would like to have their own.

Nadeau feels that they would help facilitate training programs for firefighters and would keep the department from imposing on other town offices.

All three items were met with merely cursory questions and they all were approved.

At the end of the discussion, Selectman Michael H. Sullivan asked if the selectmen would reconsider granting the chief more secretarial support. Sullivan also explained that the advisory committee was unanimous in their belief that Nadeau shouldn't write all memos and run the office without clerical support.

His suggestion fell on deaf ears as the group didn't even offer a second to Sullivan's motion.

Health insurance rates run wild

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

Stating "we have absolutely no control on rates," the chairman of the insurance advisory committee told the selectmen the proposed budget was a sign of upcoming insurance rates increases for Cohasset.

Samuel Wakeman also predicted a "20% - 30% rate increase" in the next couple years.

The town, with employees covered by Bay State Health Care, is experiencing these problems because of the problems Bay State ran into recently. And Tuesday Wakeman was looking for approval of a $237,208.00 increase for next year's group insurance budget.

According to Wakeman, the cost has risen because Bay State was rescued by Blue Cross and the town's plan was very under priced for a long time. Costs have also gone up because of "more family participation" in the plan as opposed to single participants he explained.

He added that the problem is state-wide. "We're just sitting on a powder keg waiting for it to blow up," said Wakeman.

Michael Sullivan and the other selectmen wanted to know what could be done to control the rates and Wakeman said they'd have to wait.

"That's a hefty increase in a year that we'd like to avoid an override," said Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke. Wakeman agreed but pointed out that medical costs continue to escalate at four times the rate of inflation.

The board, although clearly not pleased, realized the money was necessary and approved the budget.

No shortage of local talent for CHS gymnasts

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Tara Gallagher has been a scary gymnast for Cohasset High School this winter.

Not only does the senior co-captain have a strong chance at qualifying for the South Sectional tournament in the Uneven Bars, but she has been competing this season wearing an air cast to protect an injured ankle.

What's more, Gallagher has been setting personal bests along the way, two alone last week.

It makes one wonder what her limits are if she was rid of the bothersome cast.

"We've watered down a lot of her routines because we don't want her to injure the ankle any further," said head coach Ruthann Sargeant of the 6-2 Skippers' top gymnast.

In the Vault against Hanover, for example, Gallagher led eighth-grader Meghan Pratt and freshman Tafana Fiore to a sweep with a 7.45 score.

"She would usually score an 8.3 if she wasn't injured," said Sargeant who eliminated a "twisting vault" move Gallagher would usually perform if not injured.

But Gallagher is not the only gymnast responsible for Cohasset being in the top three of the South Shore League.

In victories last week over a depleted Hanover squad (117.2-83.1) and Norwell (115.6-95.1), several of the Skippers set personal bests in an array of events.

The biggest, however, was the Floor Exercise against Norwell. Led by Pratt's 8.0, four girls had their finest performances ever on the mats.

Eighth-grader Erica Hettstrom finished with a 7.8, just in front of Gallagher's 7.7 and Julie Smith's 7.4 personal record. Fiore also completed an individual best of 7.0.

"They had a great finish," said Sargeant. "If you follow gymnastics, you know anything from a 7.5 on is considered fantastic.

Gallagher recorded a remarkable 8.2 on the Uneven Bars, in front of Pratt (7.3) and Hettstrom (6.7), who copped third.

The Skippers didn't have as much luck on the Balance Beam, technique-wise, but still managed to sweep the event with their depth. There were several falls, though in the end Gallagher (7.1), Jodi Collwill (6.9) and Julie Smith (6.3) emerged in the top three spots.

"We did all right," said Sargeant, "but we had our problems. We're usually pretty good at sticking the beam. I don't know what happened."

Gallagher (7.7), Collwill (7.4) and Hettstrom (7.2) also swept the Horse, while seventh-grader Christin Reynolds had her best routine with a 7.25.

Gallagher wound up the individual winner with 30.7 points, ahead of Hettstrom.

Several other gymnasts have helped the Skippers toward their six wins this season. Nicole Hefner, co-captain Aimee Mitchell, Maggy Goedecke, Allison Kinchla, Carolyn Pratt and Kara Protulis have all contributed.

Aside from the team, scorer Katy Medinger, Chris Pratt and Tara Hettstrom have all helped out at meets.

Cohasset can move into a tie for second place with Carver with a victory against the Crusaders in its next meet.

The Skippers lost by only .6 in their first meet on Jan. 4.

"I think it depends on who sticks the Balance Beam that night," she said. "When you're that close it can be the Balance Beam."

Sargeant said she is anticipating the future of the program.

"I'm happy with their performances," she said. "In a couple of years I think they'll be great. The seventh and eighth graders will improve and gain the experience."

Skippers fight in vain: lose three in a row

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

The girls' basketball squad continued to fight hard this week in its games.

But once again the Skippers came out on the short end in contests against Hanover (52-39), Hull (65-29) and most recently to Norton, 58-38.

The losses bring the Lady Skippers' record down to 1-9 for the year.

In their battle against the Lancers of Norton, the Lady Skippers may have lost more than the game. Sophomore Megan Rhodes went down with just under 2:00 to go in the first half with an injury in the collar bone/shoulder area.

With that injury, along with the absence of Katie Carrol and Adrienne DeVaughn, who left late in the game, the Lady Skippers finished with only seven people available to play.

The game started out in grand fashion as Erin Murphy, just returning from an injury herself, hit a lay-up off the tip-off to stake her team to a 2-0 lead.

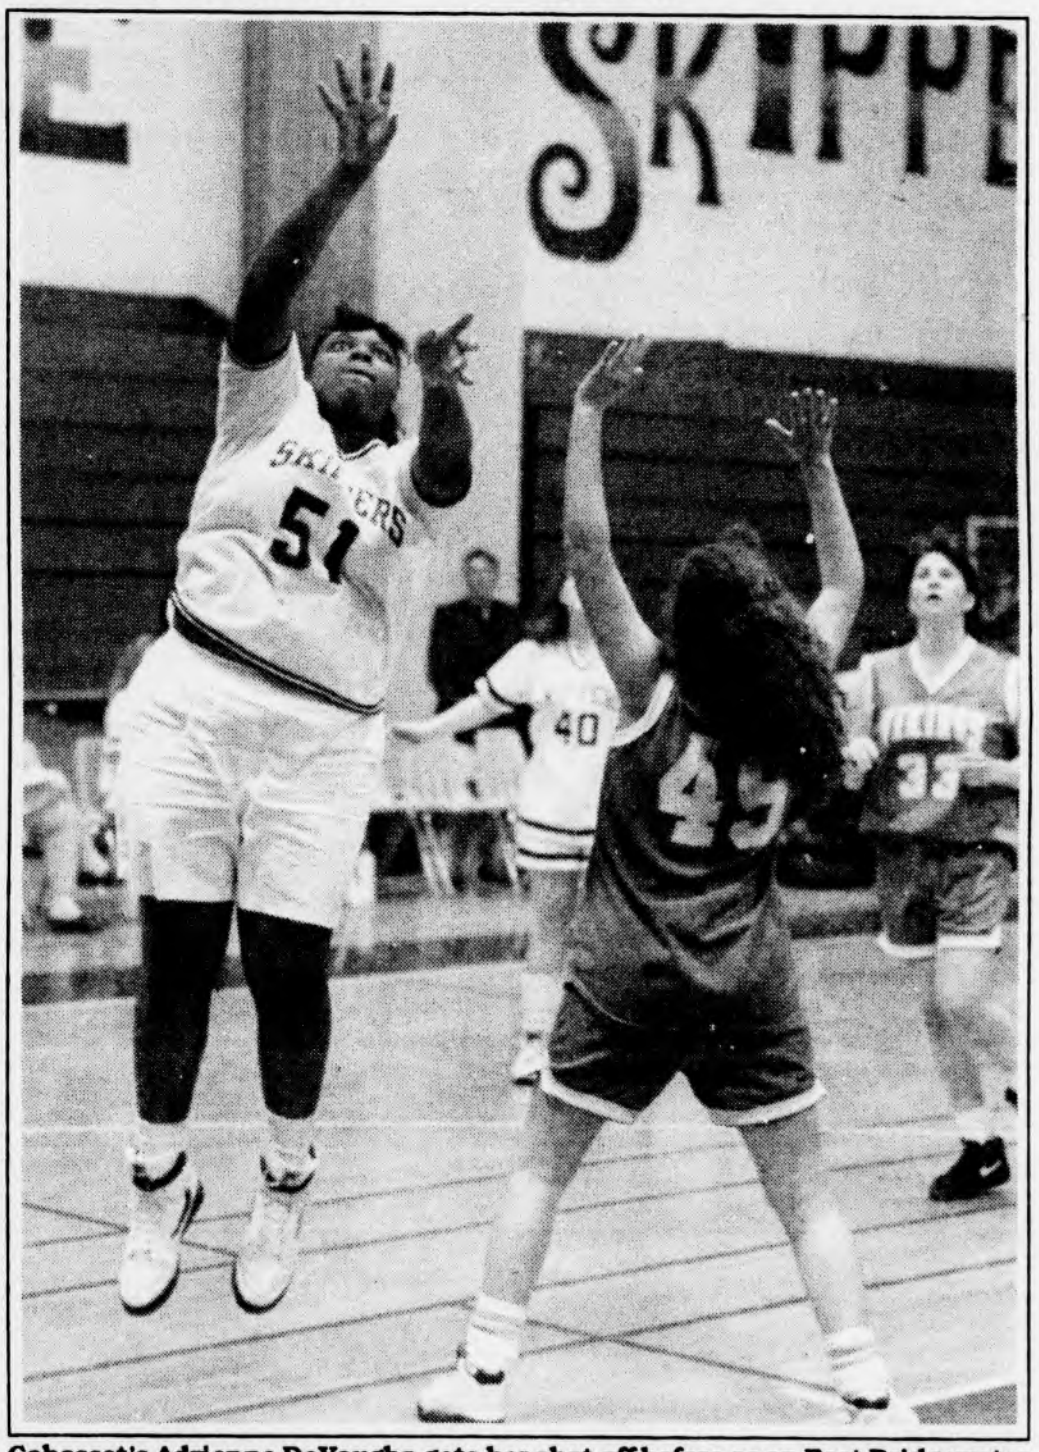
Murphy and the rest of the Cohasset squad continued its attack at both ends of the court through most of the first half, building a 13-8 lead.

The Lancers finally gained their bearing midway through the half and pulled into the lead as Rachael Sayce (23 points) found her shot. Norton lead 29-19 at halftime.

Any thoughts the Lady Skippers had of staging a dramatic comeback were quickly brushed to the side. Norton came out for the second-half quickly with 14 unanswered points and cruised to a 20-point victory.

Rene Prisble had a big game offensively on the boards for Cohasset and tossed in 14 points to lead the Lady Skippers in the game. Adrienne DeVaughn was hampered with early foul trouble but still chipped in with 8.

The Lady Skippers now move on to defend their home court against league-leading Abington on Tues., Jan. 26, and then travel to East Bridgewater for a contest on Jan. 28, against the Vikings.



Cohasset's Adrienne DeVaughn gets her shot off before as an East Bridgewater defender tries in vain to block the ball in a recent game. The Skippers had a rough time last week as they dropped three South Shore League games.

Bilodeau saves best for South Shore foes

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

"I really think that we may be starting to hit a groove now," said an optimistic Ron Ford as his boys basketball squad took impressive wins this week against Hanover and Hull.

The squad also played an impressive game against league-leading Scituate, but was defeated in the end, 72-59.

With the two wins, the Skippers are now 5-4 for the year and find themselves near the top in the race for the South Shore League title.

Ford was extremely pleased with his team's effort against the power-house Scituate squad as he claimed that "this was the best game that we've played all year."

"The game all came down to the last six minutes," he said, "and in a nut-shell they hit their free throws and we didn't. We made some mental mistakes near the end that did us in, but I was really proud of the way that the boys played."

The Skippers did not dwell on their losses though as they jumped right back and took two impressive wins over Hanover and Hull.

Senior guard Doug Ellinger stood tall for Cohasset in starting its newest winning stretch. It was Ford's opinion that "Doug was definitely our M.V.P. for those two games."

"He went head-to-head against two of the better point-guards around in Mark Rogers from Hanover and Eric Matthews of Hull, and he more than held his own."

Against Hanover, Ford made a change in his lineup and the dividends paid off quickly as the Skippers doubled-up the Hanover squad, 72-36.

Paul Bilodeau continued his impressive year off the bench as he led Cohasset with 14 points. Chris Goodman adding 8 to help the Skippers' cause.

Cohasset started quick, jumping out to a 14-2 lead, and then took it from there to lead 34-20 at the half. At that point the Skippers waved goodbye and rolled on to the 36-point win.

Things got a little tougher in the next game as the Skippers sailed into the rough waters of the Hull Pirates. They were still able, however, to come away with a 60-53 victory.

Once again Bilodeau lead the scoring charge for the Skippers with 16 while Sheldon Morgan jumped into the scoring act with 11 for the game.

Ford said of Ellinger's play against Hull that "he really took charge and became the man down the stretch, and he hit six of seven free throws which helped us put the game away."

"Hull may not have too many wins right now," Ford said, "but they are a tough team and are better than their record might indicate."

Cohasset now moves on to face an impressive Harwich squad at their place tomorrow (Friday). The Skippers will then stay on the road to tangle with the always tough Green Wave of Abington on Tuesday, Jan. 26, at 5:15 p.m.

Release day update

Thursday, Jan. 14 the staffs of Deer Hill and Joseph Osgood Schools participated in a CORD workshop. The CORD (Cooperative Research and Development~ idea is to offer variety of teacher generated programs, the more the better. Using the Cultural Norms themes of Reaching Out to the Knowledge Bases and Collegiality, there were three programs presented that day. The teachers choose which workshops to attend based on their professional development goals and needs.

One of the workshops was on "inclusion," which is, integrating special needs students in the regular education classes. In this arrangement, the regular education teacher and special needs' teacher co-teach the class. Kathy Amico, an expert in this field, was the speaker for this program. Last summer, Dr. Amico taught a course on this topic to 25 Cohasset teachers. This follow up visit allowed staff to further discuss curriculum and instruction techniques and was followed by a questions and answer period.

Another group of teachers was watching, then discussing, a video on Attention Deficit Disorder by Dr. Richard Lavoie. Attention Deficit is a much discussed, but difficult to diagnose, problem which effects the learning process in some children. The video offers teachers a number of suggestions to improve classroom instruction for these children.

Ed Leonard met with some staff members to discuss specific strategies for dealing with crisis intervention. This was a follow up workshop to a November early release day on this topic. Being prepared to act, understanding the stages people go through in crisis situations and determining each school's needs were some of the areas discussed.

Five-year budget discussed

The school committee briefly reviewed and discussed the five year budget last week.

Within the discussion, the committee examined the possibility of repairing one of the boilers at the Osgood school. The cost of repair for the boiler was estimated by Supt. Stephen Hart at $15,000. Hart also stated that "the boiler should have an effective operating life of approximately 20 years after the repairs." He further stated that the cost of a comparatively new boiler would be approximately $60,000.

For Fiscal Year 1995, the Committee also addressed increasing handicap accessibility for the Junior-Senior High School. Hart stated that the school would install a chair lift that would provide access to the entire first floor and part of the second floor "making sure all programs are accessible."

Also briefly mentioned in the discussion of the five year budget were proposed renovations for the Junior-Senior High School auditorium and the replacement of both the Osgood and Deer Hill school windows. A committee meeting devoted to reviewing the five year plan will be conducted tonight (Jan. 21).

Classics on sale

In keeping with the January "sale" tradition, the Paul Pratt Memorial Library is selling a selection of Long Playing albums from their classical music collection. Album selections include works of celebrated classical composers such as Mahler, Vivaldi, Mozart, and Haydn performed by noted symphony orchestras, St. Martin In The Fields, The New York Philharmonic, The Chicago Symphony Orchestra and many others.

Other album selections include complete operas, Puccini's La Boheme and Madama Butterfly with Renata Tebaldi as Butterfly. American composers, such as George Gershwin, are represented as well. Each album is priced at the low low price of one dollar.

Music purists resisting the "Hi-tech" age may find the perfect recording within this selection of more than 50 long playing albums. They are located in the rotunda to the left as you enter the library.

'ON-LINE,' A SUCCESS

The library staff would like to thank all members and volunteers of the library who have supported the computer efforts and enabled the library to go "On-Line." To date more the 500 computer library cards have been printed, and the transition has been more than successful.

You will need a computerized card to check out a book, so be sure to bring some form of identification with you if you have not already applied for a new library card.

Winter library hours

Fall hours at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are: Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; closed Wednesday; Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Crossing sign wanted

At their Jan. 11 meeting, the library Board of Trustees voted to recommend to selectmen that one of the pedestrian stop signs be placed at the crosswalk in front of the library.

The library staff recommended this action. Pedestrians do use the crosswalk. Traffic does need to be slowed down the the 20 m.p.h. speed limit at this location.

SHARE distribution set for January 23

SHARE is a non-profit organization dedicated to community service and self-help, offering good food at great savings for those who participate.

SHARE participants pay $13 for the food and pledge two hours of volunteer service once a month. In return you receive 15-17 food items, good wholesome nutritious food purchased from growers and processors, with a retail value of $25-$35. SHARE has no eligibility or income requirements and is not connected in any way to any government program.

Distribution day is from 8:30 to 10 a.m., Saturday (Jan. 23) at the Deer Hill School. All are invited to take a look at the program at that time.

Volunteers are needed at the community center (contact Stephanie Church, 383-0088); Meals on Wheels, (contact the Social Service League, 383-0771), Cohasset Consignment Shop (Andy Merrill, 383-0678), New Friends' Program (Diane Saleski, 383-1260), Council on Aging (383-9112), Senior Shuttle bus drivers (383-9112), and SHARE Warehouse (Eileen Corbett, 383-6467).

Creation or evolution?

Curious about how it all began? The Beechwood Congregational Church on Church St. in Cohasset sponsors a three-part series on Creation vs. Evolution — Who's Got the Truth? Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Feb. 11, 18 and 25.

New programs offered

New programs and one night seminars at the Cohasset Community Center include: Suddenly Single For Women recently widowed or divorced, Jan. 25: How To Retire and Live Happily Ever After, Feb. 1: Medicaid Planning, Feb. 8 : Estate Planning Basics, Feb. 22 : Taxes For 1992, Jan 28 : Ballet and Jazz ages 8 and over, For Kids Only Playgroup ages 2 yr. 9 mos. to 4 yrs., Mom's Morning Out Babysitting, Gym Dandy, Saturday Gymnastics, Aerobics, and much more.

Please call the Center at 383-0088 to register.

Garden Club news

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset holds its monthly meeting, Jan. 26, at the Walton Rodgers Hall.

Susan Francis, a Home Garden Designer/Landscape Consultant will present a program on planting your garden for winter beauty. She will show us how to enhance our long winters by adding color, texture and silhouette to our garden.

Coffee is served at 9 a.m. Come greet old friends and the new year while adding anticipation of gardening just a few months away.

Organ recital planned

Max Miller, organist and head of the Organ Department at Boston University, offers a recital on the three manual Aeolian Skinner organ of St. Stephen's Church, 16 Highland Ave., Cohasset, Sunday, Feb. 7, at 4 p.m.

An academic dean at Boston University, Miller also serves as Assistant Organist at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church in Cambridge, home of the Boston Archdiocesan Choir School.

His recital includes works by J.S. Bach, Widor, Mendelssohn, Saint-Saens and Leo Sowerby. The donation for the performance is $6; $4 for students and senior citizens.

St. Stephen's holds a series of organ recitals each year in order to acquaint the public with the wide range of music for organ. The organ at St. Stephen's, with 58 ranks of pipes, is one of the notable instruments on the South Shore.

Babysitters recognized

The Cohasset Community Center presented participation awards to Kristen O'Connell, Brenda Reynolds, Kerry Sullivan, Jessica Niessink, Jared Ford and Justin Maitland for the successful completion of the babysitting course taught by Linda Farrag.

Members of the Cohasset Fire Dept. and Safety Officer Clifford Jones, Cohasset Police Dept., helped present the course.

Volunteers are needed

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, a non-profit agency, hosts its 14th Annual Christmas Seal Phonathon Event Jan. 26, 27 and 28 from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Volunteers will be needed for either clerical assistance or phoning in Norwood, Walpole or Braintree locations.

If you enjoy meeting nice people who want to help make a difference in lung health, please call the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association — the Healthy Lung People — at (508) 668-6729. Refreshments provided.

Wednesdays: 4-6 (girls) hoop games and skill development, in gym.

Thursdays: K-3, low-organized games and team sports in gym.

Thursdays: 4-6, drama workshop, in cafeteria.

Fridays: ages 4 and 5, low-organized games, in gym.

The School Department conducts a day-care program, at Deer Hill School, daily from right after school until 6 p.m. Should you need day-care prior to recreation programs, which do not begin until 3:30 p.m., or at the conclusion of recreation at 5:30 p.m., you may register for day-care on an hourly basis rate. Day-care registration forms are available at the Deer Hill and Osgood School offices. Osgood children enrolled in the day-care program at Deer Hill School will be bused to Deer Hill at the conclusion of the Osgood School day at 2:50 p.m.

Programs are six weeks in duration, meeting daily according to schedule unless school is cancelled due to inclement weather. All programs begin the week of Jan. 25 and do not meet during the week of February school vacation, and conclude on March 12.

During late February through mid-April, arts and crafts and board table games will be offered to children in grades K-6 on various days and may also include Saturday mornings, once basketball concludes for the season. Spring, outdoor, afterschool recreation programs are scheduled to begin during late April, 1993. Please watch local news media for these and many other recreation programs for children and adults.

FEE SCHEDULE

Two day program: one child $40; second child $20; third child $10.

One day program: one child $22; second child $12; third child $5.

(Plus four and five year old program).

Please calculate total fee, make check payable to: Town of Cohasset and by Jan. 21. Space is limited.

Nursery school signup

The Cohasset Community Center Nursery School Program is pleased to announce that registration for the 1993-1994 school year begins Monday, Jan. 25.

Registration takes place at the Community Center in the Senior Function Rooms, with the exception of Tuesday morning, Jan. 26, when registration will be held at 9 Depot Court.

There is a $75 non-refundable registration fee to be paid at the time of registration. Parents registering their children in the three-year-old program should bring the child's Birth Certificate, or a copy of such, as it must be presented at the time of registration to ensure proper placement of students in the program.

Scholarship applications and Nursery School handbooks will be available during registration.

Classroom slots are filled as applicants are registered; spaces are filled on a first- come basis. The dates and times of registration are as follows:

Current C.C.C. Nursery School Students continuing with the program Monday, Jan. 25, 9:15 to 11:15 a.m.

Siblings of C.C.C. Nursery School Students, Tuesday, Jan. 26, 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. and 12:45 to 2:45 p.m.

Children of current C.C.C. members Wednesday, Jan. 27, 12:45 to 2:45 p.m.; Thursday, Jan. 28, 12:45 to 2:45 p.m.

Open to the public, Friday, Jan. 29, 9:15 to 11:15 a.m.

The school offers three levels of programs to meet the needs of three-to-five-year-olds. Programs run from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 to 3 p.m.

The Nursery Program is for children who will be three years of age by Oct. 15, the Pre-Kindergarten Program is for children who will be four-years-old by Oct. 15. The Enrichment Program is offered to older four-year-olds and five-year-olds who have attended pre-school programs but are ineligible for Kindergarten.

The Cohasset Community Center Nursery School is licensed by The Massachusetts Office for Children. Call Lynne Sheridan, Director, 383-0036 with questions.

Frosty frolic returns

Mark your calendars for this year's Jan. 30 Frosty Frolic at the Cohasset Community Center at 8 p.m.

Since the center is celebrating its 50th anniversary, organizers will provide a sentimental look at the center's beginnings.

Residents formed the center in 1943 for several reasons, and one was to organize dances, some for the many men returning from war. As a special treat, the main hall will be decorated as it was in the 1940s.

Elaine Welby, president of the decorating firm "There's No Place Like Home, Inc." is gathering authentic antiques and memorabilia from the 40s and will oversee the transformation.

Dress code for the evening is festive (whatever you are comfortable in).

Tickets are available at the center (383-0088) or through committee chairs Linda Chastain, 383-3047, or Andrea Flynn at 383-6754. The price is $15 per person.

Parents face off against ice hockey union

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

School and athletic officials and parents from Cohasset and Hull meet next week to discuss the possible merger of the junior/senior high schools' hockey programs.

But Cohasset parents and players have made their views perfectly clear on an issue that others are still considering the pros and cons of: they are adamantly opposed to a merger with Hull.

The idea of merging with the Skippers was the result of lack of funding within the athletic budget the past several season's for Hull's hockey team.

In a Jan. 19 to letter Cohasset High School Principal Mary Gallagher (see full text on page 11) "on behalf of Cohasset High School's Hockey Team, players and parents," opposition was voiced in the belief that a merger was "not in the best interest of the current and future participants in the hockey program."

The letter, which was signed by 27 parents, suggested

Winterfest '93: drug-free fun this weekend

You can have fun without drinking alcohol.

And for the second year in a row, Cohasset will prove it with a jammed-packed weekend full of food, sports, and entertainment.

Although the town event coincides with Superbowl weekend, organizers hope people confronted with the choice of drinking in a traditional party or abstaining, will choose the latter.

"I would hope that people recognize the dilemma...and at the very least, struggle with that dilemma," planning committee spokesman Ralph Kidder said in a recent interview.

Friday night, Winterfest officially begins with Junior Varsity and Varsity basketball games at the high school. During halftime of the Varsity game against East Bridgewater, the finals of a foul shooting contest for grade-school kids is planned.

Last year the basketball game drew about 750 people.

The theme of Winterfest '93 is Cohasset Past and Present. Movies of Cohasset's past will be shown and there's even a Frosty Frolic dance with a 1940s theme planned for Saturday night at the Community Center.

Selectmen fish for funds in harbormaster's budget

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

The harbor budget is back on the table again.

Selectmen will ask Harbormaster Irving Gadow to come before the board next week to explain his line item request for casual labor.

Gadow presented his budget to selectmen two weeks ago. After several motions and much discussion, the board approved his $3,400 request for casual labor. The figure translates into $6.50 an hour for a total of 800 hours or about 40 hours a week for 20 weeks.

Discussion on the budget surfaced again this week when Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby discovered that Gadow's line item for assistant harbormasters' wages was for 14 weeks rather than the 13 weeks budgeted for last year.

The extra week adds about $500 to the budget, she said.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said there are 14 weeks from Memorial Day to Labor Day this year.

"It may be a quirk of the calendar that it increases a week," he said.

Nevertheless, Gjesteby was disturbed.

Athletes not immune to drug abuse

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Cohasset High School students spend the week attending classes and doing homework like the thousands of teenagers around the state.

And like any other school, many have an easy time obtaining alcohol on the weekends.

That includes a portion the school's athletes.

"I don't think they're that much different from kids in other schools," said girls' JV softball coach and chairman of this weekend's Drug-Free Weekend Committee, Paula Knowles.

The weekend, now in its second year, kicks off this Friday night when Cohasset faces East Bridgewater in JV and varsity basketball. Drug and Alcohol Committee literature is available. On Saturday, a police breathalyzer

Garage on warrant

Town meeting voters will be asked to appropriate money for engineering and architectural studies for a town garage.

Selectmen accepted a warrant article Monday although no dollar figure has been attached to the request yet.

If approved, the article will appropriate funds to develop preliminary design specifications and cost estimates for the construction of a public works garage at the dump on Cedar Street.

Bruce Edmonds, spokesman for the garage study committee, said the landfill was the committee's first choice as a garage site because there was enough space.

Water for the garage could be piped in by extending the water main up Cedar Street, Edmonds explained.

Selectmen prefer that maintenance of town vehicles also be performed at the site and not at the existing garage in the town parking lot. They said the old garage should be torn down to allow for more parking.

"It's a great opportunity to get rid of the building," Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said.

Duggan steps down

Selectmen accepted with regret the resignation of Terese England Duggan from the recreation commission, effective Jan. 23.

In a letter to the board, Duggan said her family is moving to San Diego, California.

Duggan's resignation opens up another seat on the commission.

Recreation Commission Chairman Richard Barrow is seeking another five-year term on the board. Duggan's term has four years remaining.

Duggan said it has been a privilege to serve on the commission.

"I would be remiss at this time if I did not mention that Cohasset is indeed fortunate to have such a hard-working, well-experienced director as Jack Worley," she wrote. "It has been a privilege to serve with Jack as well as the various board members these past nine years."

Dead animal budget

Selectmen added the $372 for dead animal removal to the animal control officer's budget which they oversee. The amount previously had been included in the health board's budget.

Last week, the board approved a transfer of $1,518 to cover work performed by animal control officer, William Quigley in FY'93. Quigley's work load has increased this year beyond the 12 hours per week budgeted for.

Clerk gets raise

Selectmen approved a pay raise for Jane Henderson, who works 15 hours per week as a billing clerk in the fire department, from $7.92 per hour to $8.38.

Murray, McDonald called

Selectmen plan to ask state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray and state Senator Brian McDonald to appear before the board to discuss issues that may affect Cohasset.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke also proposed inviting the school committee and asking Rep. Murray in to discuss the education reform bill to both boards "so all can participate in the discussion."

Roadrace gets okay

Last week, selectmen gave permission to the Cohasset Rotary Club and Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea Committee to conduct its 17th annual roadrace, starting at 1 p.m., April 14.

Sunday work approved

Selectmen will allow AGM Marine Contractors, Inc. to work on the harbor dredging project on Sundays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., if necessary.

Chief's contract committee

Selectmen Michael H. Sullivan and Martha K. Gjesteby will continue as a sub-committee for the purpose of negotiating a contract with the town's new police chief Brian W. Noonan.

Sullivan and Gjesteby worked together to select the six finalists from the 87 applicants for the position.

Rabies clinic possible

Legislation recently passed in the Massachusetts General Court requires that pet owners have all their cats and dogs over six (6) months of age immunized against rabies. Feb. 24 is the deadline for having this accomplished.

The Cohasset Board of Health is considering sponsoring a rabies immunization clinic if there is sufficient interest by pet owners. If you are interested in having your pet immunized through such a clinic, please call the Board of Health office at 383-9900, ext. 121.

Nomination papers ready

Nomination papers for the town election on Saturday, April 3, are available at the Town Clerks office.

The last day for candidates to obtain nomination papers is Thursday, Feb. 11 until 7 p.m.

All nomination papers must be submitted to the registrars of voters for certification of names and addresses on or before 5 p.m., Monday, Feb. 15.

No all-night parking

Through March 15, overnight parking is prohibited on any Cohasset street.

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on any street for longer than one hour between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. during this period, police said.

Town census mailed

Please be informed that the Town Census for 1993 will be mailed to each household this month.

Compliance with state requirements provides proof of residence to protect voting rights, veteran's bonus, housing for the elderly and related benefits as well as providing information for selection of jurors.

This does not register you as a voter but failure to answer this may result in the voter's name being removed from the voter's list. Please note that if a person wishes to remain a voter, do not remove him from the census.

Dog forms will be enclosed for your convenience. The licenses are due this month and are valid through Dec. 31. Numbers will be issued on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Tax bills mailed

The third quarterly Fiscal 1993 real estate and personal property tax bills are due to the Treasurer/Collector's office no later than 4:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 1.

Postmark dates are not accepted. No exceptions.

The mailing address for tax payments is: Treasurer-Collector's Office, P.O. Box 296, Cohasset 02025. For those taxpayers who wish to pay their taxes in person our office hours for Jan. 25 through Feb. 1 are: Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Monday, Feb. 1, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A number of bills have been returned to the office due to improper mailing addresses. Any property owner who has not received a tax bill should call the Collector's office at the Town Hall, 383-9900, extension 113. Failure to receive a tax bill does not waive payment of the tax and does not excuse the homeowner from interest charges on payments received after the due date.

Special agent Doyon

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon is officially the town's representative for the December storm. Doyon is working with officials from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to get disaster aid for the town.

Doyon did not have storm damage estimates at Monday's selectmen's meeting.

Doyon said the FEMA official arrived Jan. 8.

After the No-Name storm of October 1991, Cohasset received less than half its damage estimate.

But at Monday's meeting, Doyon said the town will do much better this time around.

Selectmen fish for funds . . .

"The fact it was never brought up in discussion, distresses me," she said.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan, who grilled Gadow on his request for casual labor two weeks ago, seized the chance—with the board's affirmative vote to reconsider the harbormaster's budget — to state that Gadow should also re-explain his need for 800 hours of casual labor.

"What can be done to take 800 hours in time? The docks aren't that big," Sullivan asked.

Selectman Merle S. Brown said Gadow had adequately explained the issue.

"He explained as best he could. He needs help...there's work there," Brown said.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle agreed.

"There's certainly something going on all the time down there," he said.

The board voted 3-2 to ask Gadow back for further discussion with Brown and Laugelle voting no.

Selectmen Chairman Jane Goedecke did not attend the board meeting two weeks ago.

"I feel funny, I was not here," she said. Goedecke, along with Gjesteby and Sullivan, voted to ask Gadow back next week.

Winterfest '93 . . .

There's a fun fair for the younger ones, a storyteller, and even a brunch Sunday for the bargain price of 93 cents.

To top off the event, free Sundaes are offered Sunday afternoon.

There will also be a lot of literature available about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse as well as a breathalyzer demonstration by the Cohasset Police Department.

So come on down! For complete schedule of events, please see page 21.

Somethings just get better with age.

Lion Dance bridges gap between East and West

Most of the South Shore celebrate the New Year, Jan. 1.

But the lion dance team from Wah Lum Academy on Route 3A reminded local residents that the Chinese New Year has just begun.

Saturday (Jan. 23), the troupe performed at 11 Chinese restaurants including Ocean Kai in Hingham and KoKo Island in Cohasset.

"It's a real traffic stopper," says academy director John Loupos about the performances which usually draw a crowd.

"Every year we do this, it becomes more popular."

Loupos relates the story behind the Lion.

As the Emperor awoke he summoned his aides, commanding them to find the fabulous beast which had saved his life in his dream. The creature, as the Emperor described it, did not exist in China, yet one of his aides who had travelled in Africa recognized it as the lion. Thus the Emperor decreed that a stylized version of the lion be created, the result being the present-day Southern Chinese Lion which appears in Chinese festivals worldwide.

The 10-foot long lion is operated by two persons, one in the head and one in the tail. As one might assume from its beginnings, the Lion is a symbol of good luck and prosperity. In order for this good luck and prosperity to manifest itself the Lion Dance must be performed proficiently and authentically by a qualified and knowledgeable Kung Fu school, Loupos explains.

The synchronization of the dancers' movements are essential, for to perform poorly would bring the opposite effect. The traditional Lion Dance is performed at Chinese New Year — this being the Year of the Rooster — and at the opening of kung fu schools and businesses.

Lion Dancing is by design loud, with much drumming, gonging, and often fireworks to frighten away evil spirits. Food is offered to the Lion, as well as a good luck money gift, and the acceptance of these gifts is part of the ritual, making it a particularly festive event, Loupos said.

As the lion dance is generally performed only in Chinatowns, Chinese-owned businesses in the outlying suburbs do not ordinarily have the opportunity to participate in this important custom of their cultural heritage, Loupos notes. Likewise not many Americans are ever exposed to this display. It is hoped that this gift from the Wah Lum Kung Fu Academy to the community will help bring East and West to a closer understanding of one another's customs.

"Gong Hee Faat Toy!" Happy New Year!

Lori Sartre gives a kung fu demonstration following the lion dance performed at KoKo Island, Saturday, as part of the Chinese New Year celebration. The annual demonstration and performance are a gift to the community from Wah Lum Academy. (Staff photos/Alan Chapman)

Members of the Lion Dance team at Wah Lum Academy which is off Rte. 3A in the Jonathan Livingston Seagull Plaza celebrate the Chinese New Year outside KoKo Island, Saturday.

We Offer Some Of The Longest Hours Of Any Bank On The South Shore, Serve Thousands In A Branch Network Stretching From Quincy To Plymouth, And Have Called The South Shore Our Home For Almost 150 Years.

Now It's Time To Introduce Ourselves.

We're Quincy Savings Bank...
and our strong capital and merger with a commercial bank have put us in a better position to serve your financial needs than ever before. With simple to understand and easy to use products, very competitively priced.

Consumer products to fit your lifestyle
People find our consumer products simple to understand and easy to use. Like our NOW checking account, for example. Forget about high maintenance charges if you drop below some ridiculously high minimum daily balance. With a Quincy Savings NOW checking account, you pay a $1 maintenance fee if your average monthly balance is $100 or more, plus a 20 cent per check transaction fee. And it's free of charge if you have your payroll or social security check directly deposited into your account.

Loans to help you afford your dreams
Quincy Savings is always ready to lend money at competitive rates to qualified borrowers. For things like a new or used car, vacation getaway or home improvements. On certain types of loans our rate is 1% lower if you arrange to have monthly loan payments transferred automatically from your Quincy Savings checking or savings account.

And of course, helping you get the right kind of mortgage loan is an important part of our business. That's why we offer one and three year adjustable rate mortgages as well as conventional fixed rate loans for up to 30 years. Loan programs are available for your primary residence and second home, whether it's a one to four family home or condominium unit. We'll help put you in your next home for less through one of our affordable mortgage loan programs.

Ready to serve you at 14 locations
If you look for us only in Quincy, look again. We also have conveniently located offices in Braintree, Brockton, Hanover, Hingham, Marshfield, Norwell, Scituate and Plymouth. Our branches offer some of the longest hours in banking today. Most offer extended hours on Thursday and Friday evenings, and many are open Saturdays until 3 pm.

Whether you're looking for a mortgage loan, line of credit, investment or NOW checking account, we're here to help, with a friendly staff to make banking easy and convenient. Next time your looking for financial services, give us a try.

Escape is the best defense against rape

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Robert Blaisdell is incensed at instructors who use martial arts to teach women's self-defense classes.

"In most cases, it only works in a clinical setting," the 47-year-old karate instructor said.

"So teaching it gives women a false sense of security."

The violence of rape hit close to home last year for a Cohasset woman. She was attacked in her apartment by a man who had given her a ride home earlier in the night. A female Cohasset police officer was also injured by the alleged rapist after he struck her in the face while fleeing from the victim's apartment.

Blaisdell said the problem with teaching martial arts to rape-prevention classes is that it take years of training before the maneuvers become instinctive.

And most women's self-defense courses last only several weeks.

To fill the perceived void the Hanson resident has developed a course which not only takes into account the time constraints of self-defense classes, but also incorporates the female psyche into the techniques he teaches.

The five-week rape prevention course is taught through Hingham Continuing Education at Hingham High School.

Blaisdell,who holds a 6th degree black belt, said he developed his course with women in mind.

"By and large, a woman wants to get away from her attacker, not engage in martial arts with him," he said.

"I believe a woman stands a better chance if she puts her efforts into the escape mechanism, rather than escalating the violence of the attack."

Blaisdell said the escape techniques he teaches are more natural to a woman than combat techniques, and therefore do not require extensive training.

He does not teach women how to kick, jab or punch their attacker.

Instead, Blaisdell teaches very directed maneuvers which inflict pinpointed, or "directional" pain.

"They are moves which manipulate the bone structure so the attacker will involuntarily move away," he said.

In addition, the Blaisdell technique addresses the intimidation factor which frequently saps women of their strength during an assault.

He said he teaches women not to identify the attacker as the problem, but rather view confinement as the issue. Blaisdell said women will react better during an assault if they focus on the situation and not the person causing the situation.

"If they can avoid identifying with the individual — it's a big psychological advantage," he said.

'...A woman wants to get away from her attacker, not engage in martial arts with him.'

—Robert Blaisdell, rape prevention instructor

Blaisdell's course also delves into the psyche of the rapist. He employs a psycho-therapist to teaches one of the classes for Blaisdell.

"He deals with the emotions of a rapist and anger management of a rapist — it's really a holistic approach."

The popularity of Blaisdell's course extends beyond state bounds. He has conducted seminars in Arizona, Pennsylvania and New York.

Locally, his courses have been offered through the continuing education programs of Silver-Lake regional schools and Whitman-Hanson regional schools.

Blaisdell is currently working toward a master's degree in psychology at Bridgewater State College. He is writing a book about his innovative program for his thesis.

For more information on the rape prevention course, please call Hingham Continuing Education at 749-0237.

Rape statistics are alarming

Like other forms of violence against women, rape is on the rise.

And according to statistics provided by the Plymouth County Rape Crisis Center, no community is immune.

"We provided services to 11 people from Cohasset last year," director Janet Mullins said.

"Rape cuts across all socioeconomic lines," she added.

In a violent attack July 1, a Cohasset woman was allegedly raped at home by a man who forced his way into her apartment after giving her a ride from an entertainment establishment.

The Plymouth County Rape Crisis Center — a free counseling and referral organization for rape victims from South Eastern Massachusetts — saw a 30 percent jump in people seeking its services in 1991.

"We saw 254 women in 1990, and 325 in 1991," Mullins said.

"That's an amazing increase."

Rape center clients increased another nine percent in 1992.

"Statistics show us that one in three girls will be raped during her lifetime and one in six boys," Mullins said.

She noted that when she began at the center in 1988, the statistic for girls was one in six.

The largest growing population of rape victims, she said, are young children of both sexes.

"The age group is getting younger and younger. We need to work with three- and five-year-olds and get intervention," she said.

Early treatment for child-rape victims can break what statistics show is a repeating cycle, Mullins said.

"Not all boys that are raped become rapists, but there is a large percentage."

"My guess is if you polled men in prison, 100 percent would have some history with rape," she added.

Nearly all of the ills which plague society, Mullins said, can be linked to rape.

"Ninety-percent of recovering addicts have incest histories...Most all of the social issues can be blamed on rape."

Mullins said the biggest issue a rape victim faces is whether to prosecute.

"Only one in ten women choose to prosecute because one, they are not believed and two, they are re-raped on the stand by defense attorneys."

The defendant is found guilty in only three of every 1,000 rape cases prosecuted.

In the five years since Mullins has worked at the center, she has only seen three men found guilty for rape.

And then, she said, the punishment handed down by the judge did not approach the 20-year sentence in the state's law books.

"One man raped his five children and received a suspended sentence, another received six months and the third got two and a half years," she said.

"The punishment doesn't fit the crime."

Mullins said because of the injustices of the legal system, the center has added a legal liaison role to those already assumed by counselors.

A counselor in this role accompanies victims to court to provide them with the emotional support to follow through with the charges.

In addition to the legal liaisons, the center now has a 24-hour hotline, individual and group counseling sessions, medical liaisons and offers community education.

The Plymouth County Rape Crisis Center has evolved from its initial support purpose over the years, she said.

"It started in the mid-eighties, as a grass roots organization with eight women holding a support group in a house," she explained.

The women established the Plymouth County Rape Crisis Center in 1985 after receiving a program grant from Health Care of Southeastern Massachusetts, Inc.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE
Philip Murphy, CRS, GRI

HOME - A BLUE CHIP INVESTMENT

QUESTION: One normally refers to stocks and bonds as blue chip investments. Shouldn't real estate be included in this category?

ANSWER: A well-built home in a good neighborhood is, indeed, a blue chip investment. In fact, real estate values — long term — increase more than the value of stocks and bonds. And housing values have always more than kept abreast of the general rise in consumer prices.

There is no reason to believe that this situation will change in the future. There is an increasing demand for homes. Also, real estate tax breaks allow you to keep more of what you earn. It's a blue chip investment — plus!

around town

❑ Hip,Hip Hurray, Sean McCarthy is 21 today...well, almost, his birthday is Jan. 31, and he is the great big 21 years old!! We wish you the best birthday ever (a winner!!) and hope you see health and happiness for many years.

❑ On the subject of birthdays, here's to a double day for two great doubles...Joel and Jim that is! The Reidy boys will both be 22 Jan. 31, what a great day that is!! Anyway best of luck to you both, we all think that you are special and we love you!!

❑ Jan. 31 certainly is a huge day...Super Bowl for sure. But, the super Bowl isn't until later in the day, and we have news for the whole family...the drug-free weekend!!

Yes folks, we can all have fun without drugs, which is what the committee hopes to prove with a fabulous gala planned! The theme of the weekend will be "Cohasset Past and Present", and it promises to be a treat for young and old. For those of us in the latter category, old means lots of nifty memorabilia (they need yours!!), for the young everything from basketball to stories, to fun fairs to hot fudge sundaes...certainly something for everyone! Snow sculpting, storytelling, games and face painting (on the 30th), the Annual Frosty Frolic Dance at the Community Center...we can go on and on about events, watch next week's Mariner for firm details of all events...just don't miss it!!

❑ Athletic Director Clark Chatterton announces that Alison Ludlow and Jen Knowles have been selected to represent Cohasset High School at the 1993 celebration of "National Girls and Women in Sport Day." The program is Friday, Feb. 5 in Faneuil Hall, from 10 a.m until 12:30 p.m. These two gals will be presented a Certificate of Recognition and hear a keynote address by Jean Driscoll, an internationally acclaimed wheelchair road racer. The program is sponsored by the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association, t.he Massachusetts Advocates for Women in Sport Leadership and the Massachusetts Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. The corporate sponsor is Converse, Inc.

We give a standing ovation to these two special girls!

❑ Civic leader, Lois Weltman, and Christopher D. West, Ph.D. a noted psychologist, have formed a non-profit organization that will hold weekly recreational sessions for individuals with Alzheimer's Disease. Weltman noted the purpose is to enhance the quality of life for individuals with Alzheimer's Disease and the families by creating a stress= free, happy interlude in the life of the Alzheimer's individual, with a period of respite for the family care-giver and an improved sense of well being for both.

West added that participation by Alzheimer's individuals will be amply supported with smiles, treats and caring interactions.

Lois has secured the cooperation of the South Shore Art Center for the initial activities and the help of other civic leaders. Another key person who has assisted her is her husband, David, a lawyer who did the legal work to insure the organization qualifies as non-profit. Other Cohasset residents that are working for the success of this worthy organization are Polly Logan, Patricia C. Carleton of the Cohasset Social Service League and Robin Lord. Note that there are 1.5 million victims of this disease (the fourth leading cause of death for elderly) and these people care!!

Family care-givers of the Alzheimer's individuals may obtain further information regarding enrollment by calling Robin Lord at 383-1898.

❑ They are all waiting.. .for the town census...did you fill yours out? Please do so, lets keep the record straight!

❑ We heard that the Retirement Party open house with John H. Connell 25 James Lane was a wonderful success and we couldn't be happier!! Best of luck in the "rest of your life" may it be your best yet!!

❑ Are you here? Did you, your husband, your child do something you would like all of us to know about? It is only a phone call away, then all will know! Please call, it will make everyone happy!

obituaries

Lester Hiltz

Lester Hiltz, 62, of Cohasset, Norwell's health agent for a dozen years, died Jan. 25 at Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital in Braintree.

A vehement foe of cigarette smoking, he was Norwell's health agent from 1979 to 1991. An ex-smoker, Lester suffered from pulmonary fibrosis as well as heart problems, diabetes and cataracts.

A native of Hingham, he attended Hingham and Cohasset schools and the University of Maryland. He moved to Cohasset in 1944.

Lester was a ardent golfer and, although constantly relying on an oxygen tank, he and his partner placed fourth in the Hatherly Cup Golf Tournament in Scituate last summer. He also placed first in his flight against 10 others in a weekend tournament last July.

More than 200 residents and peers turned out in November, 1991, to honor Lester at a retirement party at the Barker Tavern.

Hiltz was a member of the Mass. Health Officers' Association, the Abington VFW Post 5737, the George H. Mealy American Legion Post 118 in Cohasset and a life member of TREA, the Retired Enlisted Men's Association. He served in the Marines for a year and a half and joined the Air Force in 1949. He retired from that career in 1969. While in the military, he saw duty in Alaska, the Philippines, Korea and Vietnam.

He was a ham radio operator from his home in the 1950's.

He is survived by his wife of 40 years, Barbara A. (Dion) Hiltz of Cohasset; two daughters, Donna Petersen of Clearwater, FL, and Darlene Hadfield of Cohasset; two granddaughters, Tonya and Trisha Petersen of Clearwater; his mother, Margaret Hiltz of Cohasset; two sisters, Ethel MacVicar of Hingham and Carol Rowe of Weymouth, and two brothers, Harry Hiltz of Hingham and Paul Hiltz of Hull. He was the son of the late Harry Hiltz.

Visiting hours at the Sparrell-McNamara Funeral Home, 1 Summer St., Cohasset, are today, Thursday, Jan. 28, from 5 to 9 p.m. Services and the burial will be private at the request of the family.

Contributions in his memory may be made to the Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital, 2001 Washington St., Braintree, 02184.

An Important Message To All Boston Gas Customers

On January 24, our employees who belong to the Local 12003, United Steelworkers of America, rejected the Company's offer of a new contract. The labor dispute only affects those union employees who work in Boston and suburbs to the south and west of Boston. It does not affect union employees north of Boston and in central Massachusetts.

We want to assure all of our customers that the labor dispute should have little or no effect on you. Your gas supply will not be affected and we are doing everything possible to minimize any inconveniences this situation may cause.

Emergency Service Will Continue

If you have a gas leak, please call us immediately at 523-1010.

Appliance Service

During the labor dispute, we will be unable to provide repair service for gas appliances. If you need gas appliance service, simply call your local heating contractor or an appliance service firm.

Paying Your Gas Bill

Bills may be paid at your neighborhood pay stations or by mail: Boston Gas, Boston, MA 02205-9025.

Our Commitment To You Will Continue

We regret any inconvenience this labor dispute may cause you. Boston Gas is committed to maintaining essential services to all of our customers while working to end the dispute equitably.

'Tis the season

Only two weeks remain for public-minded citizens to take out and return nomination papers for elective offices in Cohasset.

And there has never been a better time for individuals to seek office. The annual election will be held Saturday, April 3, at town hall.

This year, several terms of office will expire or have opened because an incumbent has stepped down: moderator, assessor, two seats on the board of selectman, two seats on the board of health, school committee, planning board, sewer commission, treasurer/collector, highway surveyor, three positions on the board of library trustees, water commission, and two seats on the recreation commission.

Some residents mistakenly think they can run for office only if the incumbent chooses not to run. But that isn't so. Anyone can run for any office that interests him or her, no matter who else runs.

Earlier this week, there were still no contests. We hope in the weeks ahead a race or two will develop to keep things exciting.

This year, like those in years past, is a time filled with fiscal challenges, with difficult choices ahead.

We need candidates that are thoughtful and reflective as well as creative and innovative who can find both short-term and long-term solutions to old, nagging problems.

Most likely state aid will be spread more thinly among cities and towns, and town officials have been mindful of that in reviewing the various budgets.

We still need to be watchful of our dollars, and we need candidates who will be fiscally responsible rather than politically appeasing with no hope of being able to deliver on campaign promises.

The last day to file papers with the registrars of voters is Feb. 15.

But whether or not you decide to seek office, all residents should exercise the right to vote. If you are not registered, get down to the town clerk's office and register now!

The political season has begun. We have no excuse not to get involved in one way or another.

Candidates' corner

The Cohasset Mariner will run a weekly candidates' corner starting with the Feb. 18 issue. At that time all candidates will have filed their papers with the registrars of voters for certification. The first week, candidates are invited to submit a photograph to run with their press release. A detailed explanation of the Mariner's candidates' policy will appear next month.

Do you know when Cohasset became a town? Although settled in the 1600s, it wasn't until 1770 that the separation between Cohasset and Hingham became complete by an Act of the General Court (Legislature). This week, Historical Society Curator David Wadsworth answers some of the most asked questions about Cohasset. (File photo)

Most historical questions asked

Compiled by David Wadsworth, curator of the Cohasset Historical Society

Here are ten questions often asked of the Cohasset Historical Society and their answers:

1. When was Cohasset first settled, and by whom?

LA. Cohasset first was settled by families from Hingham, our next-door-neighboring town, in the 1670's. Cohasset was the eastern part of Hingham, and the land now known as Cohasset was unpopulated until it was divided up qualified among Hingham residents in the year 1670. Each qualified Hingham resident received a share of the land at Conahasset in that year, and the first homes were built here soon after that. Many of the people who settled first in Hingham came from the Parish of Hingham, England, in the 1630's.

2. When did Cohasset become a Town?

A. Cohasset was separated from Hingham by Act of the General Court (Legislature) of the Province of Massachusetts Bay in 1770, becoming first a separate District, then a few years later, a Town in its own right. From 1717 to 1770 Cohasset had been the 2nd Parish and 2nd Precinct of Hingham, with only limited self—government, but in 1770 separation was completed.

3. What were the two most important occupations for people living in early Cohasset?

A. Fishing and farming were the most important occupations in early Cohasset. The town's fishing fleet caught codfish, then later mackerel . Peak years for the mackerel fishery were in the 1840's and 1850's when, for a few years, Cohasset ranked near the top of Massachusetts fishing ports in the size of the mackerel catch landed at the town's wharves at Cohasset Harbor. Agriculture, or farming, was one of the most important industries in most early communities, who both raised crops to send to market and to feed themselves. Other important occupations included shipbuilding, milling of corn, barrelmaking (cooperage), and shoemaking (cordwaining).

4. Where does the name Cohasset come from, and what does it mean?

A. Cohasset is derived from the Indian name Quonahasset, the name used by local Indians who met Capt. John Smith at our harbor in 1614. Translated from the Algonquin language to mean "Long Rocky Place" in that language. Early settlers called it Conahasset or "Conyhasett", until the name was shortened to its present form after the year 1700. Cohasset is the only town in Norfolk county to have a name derived from the American Indians.

5. When did the railroad first arrive in Cohasset?

A. The South Shore Railroad, running from Cohasset to its juncture with the larger Old Colony Railroad in Braintree was opened in 1849. Cohasset was the southern terminus for the new railway in early years, but eventually the tracks were extended south to Scituate, and for a time, as far as Marshfield & Duxbury.

6. How did Jerusalem Road get its name?

A. In the early 1800's the small village at Cohasset's western corner, today called "West Corner" was called "Jerusalem". The ancient roadway connecting Cohasset center with that village was first called simply "the road to Jerusalem' and eventually was given the name "Jerusalem Road".

7. Why did Capt. John Smith stop at Cohasset in 1614?

A. The English explorer and adventurer Capt. John Smith stopped at the harbor called by the Indians "Quonahasset" while on a fishing and trading voyage from England during the summer of 1614. His ship was located at Monhegan Island, Maine and Capt. Smith with some of the ship's crew sailed down the coastline hoping to trade with the Indians for furs to sell later in England. At Quonahasset he had an argument with the local Indians that led to an exchange of arrows and musket shot as the English traders hurridly put back to sea in their small boat. The name "Quonahasset" was carried back to England by Capt. Smith, to be used in its English form Conahasset later by settlers at Hingham.

8. Why does Minot's Ledge Lighthouse have the signal 1-4—3 often said to mean "I Love You"?

A. In the 1890's the U.S. Lighthouse Service decided to give each American lighthouse a distinctive or "characteristic" pattern of flashes to help seafarers identify the lighthouses. Although the project of assigning different signal patterns to lighthouses was cancelled and never completed, Minot's was one of the few lighthouses to receive a characteristic signal pattern, which has never again been changed. Viewers from shore have given the sentimental phrase "I Love You" to Minot's unique signal.

9. One of Cohasset's schoolhouses is named for Joseph Osgood. Who was he and why is a school building named for him?

A. Reverend Joseph Osgood lived from 1815 to 1898. He came to Cohasset in about 1839, and taught school in the Centre District School for several years. In 1842 Rev. Osgood became Pastor of the town's First Parish, and remained its Minister until 1898. During his years in Cohasset Rev. Osgood was instrumental in the founding of a Public Library and a centralized school system in Cohasset. The town's first centralized schoolhouse, built in 1891 on Elm Street, was named the Osgood School, and he has been honored again by naming of the school on Ripley Road for him. Rev. Joseph Osgood, during his lifetime in Cohasset, was an esteemed community leader who long served on Cohasset's School Committee and also as Superintendent of Cohasset's schools.

10. One of the Historical Society museums has been said to have a ghost. Which museum is it, and who is the ghost?

A. The Historical Society's Maritime Museum at Cohasset center is believed by some to have been haunted for some years after the old building was moved to Elm Street at the village, from its original location on Border St. at Cohasset Harbor. The ghost, heard upstairs in the building during the 1960's and early 1970's, is said to have been that of John Bates, shipowner and merchant, last of the Bates family to own the old ship chandlery when it was located at the harbor. Called "The Ship Chandler's Ghost", his footsteps have not been heard recently, giving the idea that perhaps the ghost of John Bates no longer paces the floor of the building that was once his.

Hockey team merger opposed by team and parents

letters

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Cohasset High School Principal Mary Ellen Gallagher. A copy was sent to the Mariner for publication.)

Dear Ms. Gallagher:

It was reported recently in the Cohasset Mariner that there are discussions underway to regionalize or merge the Cohasset and Hull varsity hockey program. The players and parents of the Cohasset High School hockey oppose this proposed merger. We believe it would not be in the best interests of the current and future participants in the hockey program.

We understand that one of the arguments advanced in favor of a merger is that there is not an adequate number of players or sufficient interest to support an independent hockey program at Cohasset High School. The facts simply do not support this argument. There is no shortage of high school hockey players in Cohasset. The current Cohasset hockey roster lists 27 players on either the varsity or JV teams. This compares to 22 players a year ago. Moreover, 17 of these players are in grades seven through nine, compared to ten players in grades ten through twelve, of whom only three are seniors. This is evidence that interest in hockey in Cohasset is growing, not declining, and that there will be an adequate number of players for at least the next three years. Also, there is a JV team this season; there was none a year ago.

As to the supposed lack of interest in hockey in Cohasset, please consider the following. Members of the hockey team practice at 5:20 a.m. three times weekly. In addition, the team plays two varsity games each week and the JV team plays a separate schedule. Most of the players participate in spring and summer hockey programs, some coached by the fathers of the players. These athletes play or practice their sport eight to nine months of the year. They and their families make substantial personal sacrifices to do so. There are no Cohasset athletes who are more dedicated to their sport than these 27 hockey players. These facts argue strongly against a lack in interest in high school hockey in Cohasset.

Another argument which has been made in favor of a merger is that there is an insufficient number of players on the Cohasset team who are capable of competing at the varsity level, thus possibly increasing the risk of injury to some of the younger players. This argument is also without substance. Of the 14-15 players who are on the ice for most of each varsity game, ten are sophomores, juniors or seniors. The others are of sufficient size, strength and/or experience to be able to compete with the opposing players against whom they are matched. Coach Walsh is careful not to use the younger, less experienced players against the stronger players on the opposing teams. Hockey is obviously a contact sport and injuries cannot be avoided completely. However, the Cohasset hockey team has been fortunate over the past two years to have had relatively few injuries; certainly no more than the football, soccer, lacrosse or wrestling teams.

Another concern which apparently has been raised in support of a merger is that the cost of renting ice for practices and games make hockey a relatively expensive sport. Cost of equipment cannot be an issue, since the players supply their own skates, helmets, pads and sticks. Only jerseys and trousers are furnished by the school. In addition, hockey parents pay the required users fees and pay a five dollar charge for admission to varsity games.

If the cost of hockey is in fact an issue, it is hard to understand why a town as financially creative as Cohasset cannot solve this problem. Other communities with fewer resources per capita have successfully dealt with this issue. Possible solutions include having the Hockey Boosters organize fundraising activities such as social events, Christmas tree sales, car washes, etc. A less desirable step would be to raise users' fees. An extreme solution, such as merging the program with another town, is neither appropriate nor necessary to solve any financial issue that might exist.

Although there has been no open reference to this next subject, we are concerned that an unspoken reason for considering this merger may be the relatively unimpressive won/lost record of Cohasset hockey teams in recent years. We hope this is not a real issue and we are assuming that the responsible adults involved in this matter, school administrators, school committee members and parents, agree that compiling impressive won/loss records is not the primary objective of Cohasset High's athletic programs.

On the subject of wins and losses, however, it is important to note that Cohasset has had strong hockey teams in the past. With the number of interested players now increasing, it is likely to have stronger teams in the future. When the football, baseball or hockey teams experience a series of weak seasons, the solution is not to dismantle these programs and merge them with those of other towns. The answer should be to exercise patience until the cycle turns more favorable.

It is also important to try to expand the number of games with schools of roughly comparable size or skill level as Cohasset. For example, the Cohasset hockey team recently scored a 5-2 victory over South Boston High, a team that is undefeated in its own league. When Cohasset is matched against teams of equal capability, it more than holds its own. It takes effort to schedule more of these "comparable" teams, but it is worth the effort if the alternative is a merger of the program with another school.

Cohasset's athletic program is outstanding, particularly for a smaller school, in that it offers students a wide variety of options. Students with the desire to play are able to participate in the particular sports which they enjoy. We enthusiastically support this program diversity. We oppose the proposed Cohasset-Hull hockey merger because it would deny at least half of the current and future Cohasset hockey players the opportunity to play the sport which they enjoy. Most of the present team members have been playing hockey since they were six or seven years old, practicing on rinks and ponds year after year waiting for the chance to play hockey for Cohasset High. Now that they have finally reached their objective, should half of them be deprived of that opportunity for no substantive reason?

To summarize, we are not aware of any valid argument which supports the proposed Cohasset-Hull hockey merger. A compelling argument against the merger is the drastic reduction in the opportunity for students to participate in varsity hockey. Cohasset High School hockey should remain as it has in the past, an independent program, functioning for the benefit of the maximum number of interested Cohasset students.

If there are to be further discussions of the merger proposal, please advise hockey team captain, Mike Reynolds, who will inform his teammates and their parents. Representatives of the players and parents would like to participate in these discussions.

On behalf of Cohasset High School Hockey Team, Players and Parents

The life we save may be your own

When a 57 year old Scituate resident had a cardiac arrest, she was near death despite expert emergency treatment from local fire department emergency medical technicians. On the way to the hospital, the ambulance was intercepted by the Advanced Life Support team of paramedics from South Shore Hospital. Communicating with hospital Emergency Center physicians by radio, the paramedics started sophisticated medical aid that everyone agrees helped to save the patients life. Two weeks later, when discharged from the hospital's cardiac care unit, the patient had experienced a collaborative health care effort, an unbroken sequence of South Shore Hospital programs and services. From training the local fire department EMTs in the use of special medical equipment by the hospital's paramedic and emergency services staff to the critical treatment rendered by the paramedics and hospital staff, this patient, like thousands of others this last year, survived her brush with death.

The Advanced Life Support (ALS) program, initiated by South Shore Hospital last May serves 11 South Shore communities and is about to expand to many others. This major commitment by the hospital dramatically upgraded emergency medical services at no cost to any of the towns. The lifesaving unit provides an extension of hospital emergency care by 15 paramedics with at least 2,000 hours of training.

The South Shore ALS unit, since its first run eight months ago, has responded to more than 2,000 emergency calls from local EMS providers requesting their advanced medical assistance. Whether a cardiac arrest in Hingham, a tragic head-on collision in Pembroke, or an industrial accident in Holbrook, South Shore Hospital's ALS paramedics act as the emergency physician's eyes and hands at the scenes of emergencies. Their specially equipped four-wheel drive emergency vehicle, staffed by two of the paramedics, is packed with the latest sophisticated life saving equipment. While the hospital's commitment is significant, so too is the generosity of the many individuals and businesses whose support has helped make possible our ALS program. Best Chevrolet of Hingham, State Street Bank and Bank of Boston deserve special thanks for their outstanding support. Emergency medical care is among the most dramatic of our hospital-based services. This specialty typifies the teamwork required of hospital personnel, which at South Shore Hospital's Emergency Center, involves 14 board certified emergency physicians, more than 80 registered nurses, and a host of support staff in addition to the paramedics. The hospital's state-of-the-art Emergency Center has 32 treatment areas in addition to cardiac and trauma facilities and rooms for gyneco-logical emergencies and surgeries. The Emergency Center cared for more than 60,000 patients last year, making it one of the busiest in Massachusetts.

Emergency services in Massachusetts are increasingly supported by local hospitals. The Commonwealth ranks last among all 50 states in financial aid to emergency medical services. While other states take an assertive role in funding emergency communications systems and training for emergency medical personnel, it is the state's hospitals that assure that citizens have prompt care when sudden injury or illness strikes. This is a commitment that we and other hospitals have made from our sense of community and regional responsibility. This is why the hospital has offered to expand our advanced life support services, at no cost, to other South Shore communities that are without this vital medical service.

We are proud that through the precision team-work of local EMTs and our ALS paramedics and Emergency Center staff, high quality emergency medical care is available to more South Shore residents than ever.

Quick response is critical when someone you know is choking, suffering a heart attack or bleeding profusely. That's why the hospital also offers courses in the Heimlich maneuver, cardio-pulmonary resusci-tation, and first aid. More than 1,500 people a year take advantage of these potentially life saving courses. For more information on these programs, to contribute to ALS or to comment about this message, call the Public Affairs Office at (617) 340-8564.

Information offered

There are a number of free publications available in the reference room of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. These varied publications appeal to a variety of interests and age groups.

For the 60 plus group there are news bulletins from the Cohasset Council on Aging and the South Shore Elder Services, Inc. which describe programs and workshops.

For children, there are publications from the Aquarium, the South Shore Science Center, The Museum of Science and The Children's Theatre Workshop. Scholarship programs and Financial Aid for students are described in at least three publications for the college bound students.

In addition, the IRS is well represented with a comprehensive collection of instruction forms and schedules for the 1992 tax year.

The free publications are on the right as you enter the reference room. They are yours for the taking and definitely worth a perusal, as many of the programs described in the publications are free as well.

Library annual report

The Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are proud to report a year of real progress and a good return on the tax dollar at Cohasset's public library.

Circulation "on line". Years of planning, spending, and extraordinary effort by the library staff came to fruition on December 29th, when the library's circulation system went "on line".

While the marvels of electronics are hardly new phenomena, nonetheless the Old colony Library Network (OCLN) system's handling of check-out and returns of library materials at the circulation desk seems quite astonishing. And perhaps it should, since this "magic", in fact, has been the result of painstaking re-cataloguing of all the 50-odd thousand items in the library; for each library item, complete data needed entry into the OCLN database, and a barcode affixed to each object.

This monumental task has taken several years to complete. While some temporary staff did a considerable amount of the data entry, our own permanent staff was able to maintain cheerful and effective library service during a long transition period, and, at the same time, complete a significant portion of the data entry. Their professionalism in these circumstances has been both impressive and very much appreciated by the trustees, volunteers, and library users.

NEW LIBRARY CARD

Similarly, on the customer end, the new circulation system meant that new library cards were needed which would permit the application of an identifying user-barcode. The trustees suggested and the Friends of the Cohasset Library, Inc. enthusiastically took up the idea of designing a logo for the library which could be used on a new user card as well as other materials. John Hartshorne of Border Street and his daughter Ellen, of Columbus, Ohio, a professional graphic artist, collaborated in using the library's weathervane to design a logo and a library card for the library. Their generous contribution of their time and talent has greatly benefited the town.

GIFTS AND FREE SERVICES.

In addition to the marvelous library card, the Friends, under Patience G. Towle's leadership, contributed in other very important ways to the library. More than 50 volunteers worked at the library during the year, at a value of $30,000 of equivalent paid time. Beyond that help to the budget, the Friends purchased family passes to the Museum of Fine Arts, the Museum of Science, the New England Aquarium, and the Children's Museum. The Friends also gave an outright gift of $4,500. to the library to buy books, as well as paying for the books awarded in the children's summer reading program. The Friends are also helping to "market" the library with the sale of attractive canvas book bags, and by contributing weekly news to the Cohasset Mariner's library corner.

A bequest of $5,000. from the estate of Ruth H. Barrett, and a $2,000. gift to the Evelyn Wood Book Fund were welcome additions to the library's endowment this year. $11,924 of endowment income was used in support of the library's budget. Cohasset again qualified for state aid to libraries, in the amount of $5,267.

OTHER NOTES

A first contract between the town and the library employees union was negotiated and approved by town meeting. An OCLN computer terminal has been located in the high school library for students' use during the day, with the school budget assuming the library's costs for it.

Lastly, repairs to the library's cupola are underway, and new, more efficient lighting will soon be provided under an Eastern Edison rebate program.

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library is one of Cohasset's treasures, under the very capable management of Richard E. Hayes, Chief Librarian. The trustees take responsibility for its well-being very seriously and would welcome comments or suggestions at any time.

Gymnasts eye second place, personal bests

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

The Skippers have set their goals that will hopefully clinch them second place in the South Shore League.

And if the last two meets are any indication of things to come, Cohasset should be sitting pretty behind Scituate by the time the league meet rolls around on Feb. 6.

The Skippers threw at minor scare at Scituate recently, before the Sailors pulled away to a 126.6-117 victory over Cohasset.

Led by Tara Gallagher's second place in the All-Around and a sweep of the Bars, the 7-3 Skippers should be near top form when they take on Carver to decide the runner-up to the Sailors, who have already clinched the league.

"That was really quite an accomplishment against a team like Scituate," said Skipper head coach Ruthann Sargeant after Gallagher led Erica Hettstrom and Meghan Pratt to the Beam sweep. Cohasset trailed the Sailors by only .6 of a point and 3-1/2 halfway through the meet.

Gallagher registered an impressive 8.1 for third in the Balance Beam, while the rest of the Skippers had finishing scores above 7.0.

It wasn't until Scituate swept both the Vault and Floor Exercise that they began to pull away from Cohasset.

"We had a pretty good meet," Sargeant said. "117 is a good score."

The Skippers pulled off a great score, their best in eight years during Tuesday night's 118.2-92.25 win over Notre Dame of Hingham.

Cohasset registered several personal bests and swept the Bars and Beam, en-route to the easy victory.

Sargeant said on a perfect night the squad is capable of a score in the 122-123 range. "But I don't know if we'll get it this year."

Hettstrom set a PR of 7.2 in finishing between Gallagher's winning 8.1 on Bars and Pratt's 7.15.

Cohasset proved once again the Beam is its strongest event as the Skippers nailed their best event score of the season with a scintillating 30.05. Mixing up their routines, Gallagher (8.1), Tafana Fiore (7.75) and Pratt (7.2), led the clean sweep.

The Vault results also proved to be a season's best as Gallagher's second-place finish of 7.9 led to an overall Skipper score of 30.25. Even more encouraging than the score was the fact that Sargeant gave Gallagher the green light to perform a twist on vault. Sargeant said her top gymnast's injured foot still swells up after meets, but doesn't expect it to get any worse.

"It's been tough for her," she said, "but Tara's been gutting her way through."

The Skippers displayed the depth they hope will lead them over Carver as Hettstron and Kristin Reynolds set PRs in the Horse and Pratt (8.0) and her sister, Carolyn, (6.75) had their highest scores ever in the Floor Exercise.

Gallagher won the All-Around in 31.55 and Julie Smith, entered in the All-Around competition for the first time, scored a more than respectable 26.30.

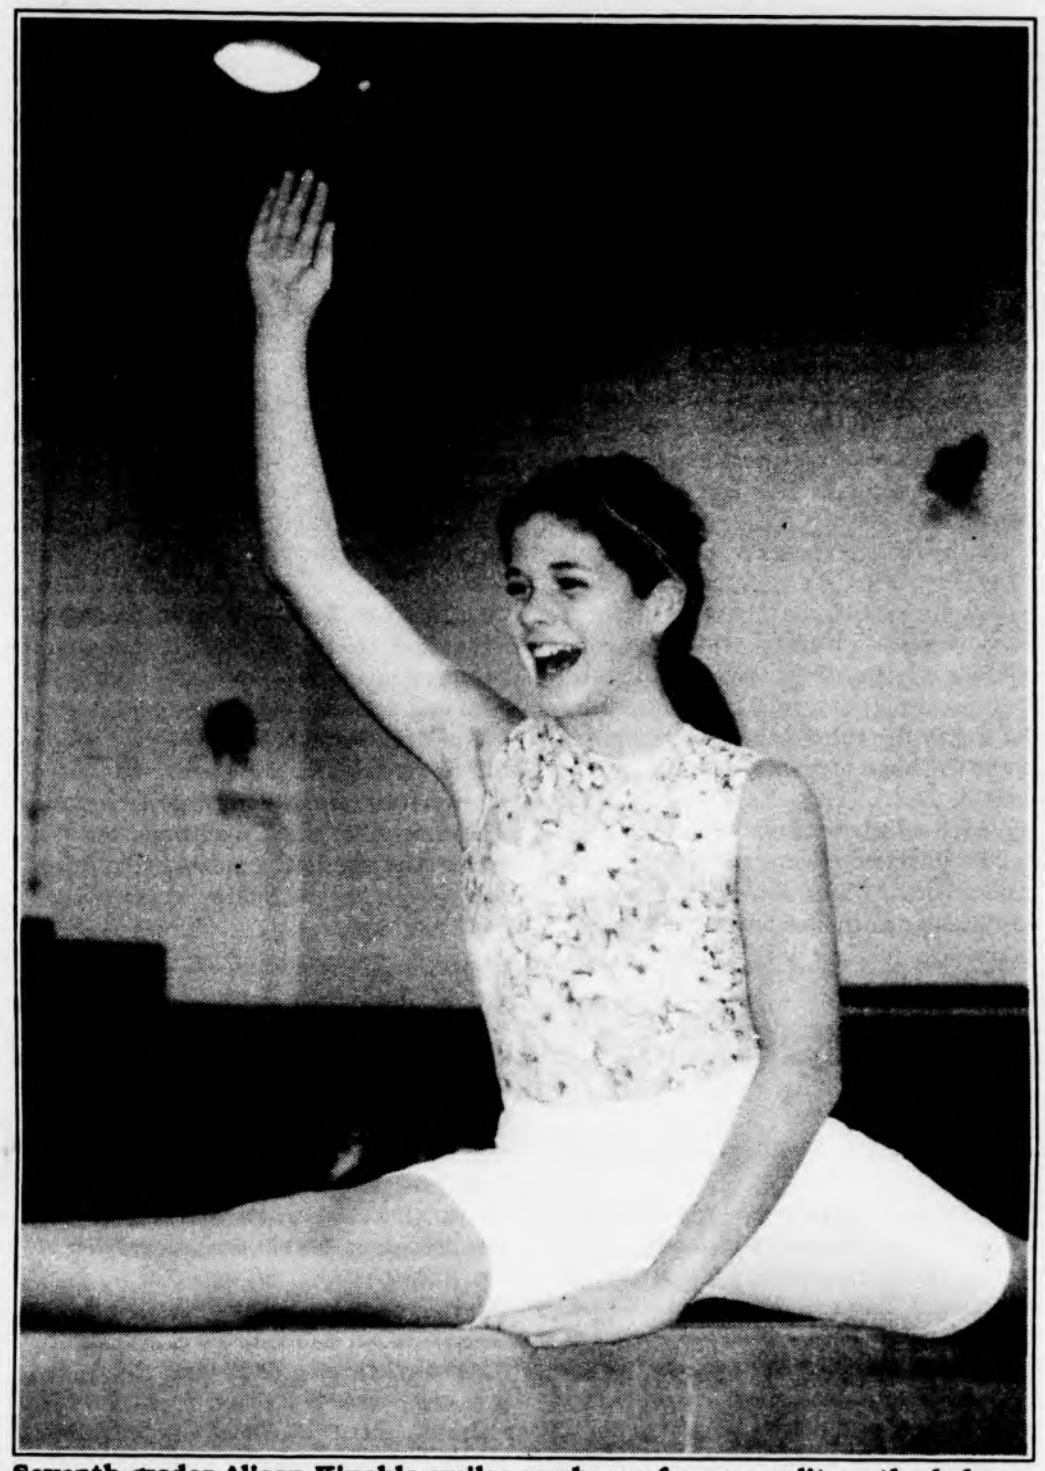
Alison Kinchla (Bars), Jodi Colwill (Beam, Vault) and Maggie Goedecke also performed well for Cohasset.

Sargeant is hoping the boost the team received with its two solid meets will carry on through Monday's meet against Hanover and next Thursday against Carver.

"We're trying to beat all our personal bests on every event," Sargeant said. "We're setting personal bests for every gymnast. And of course, we're looking to beat a 118."

Sargeant expects the meet with the Crusaders to be the tightest of the season.

"It'll probably be the difference between who stays on the beam and who doesn't," she said.



Seventh-grader Alison Kinchla smiles as she performs a split on the balance beam while warming up before a meet against Scituate.

Cohasset co-captain Tara Gallagher warms up against the Sailors with a jump saddle, prior to the Skippers' South Shore League dual-meet.

Skippers rebound, drop Abington by 17 point margin

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

The Skippers' boys squad pulled together after tough losses to two of the better teams in the region, Harwich and Norton, to cap off the week with a 64-47 pasting of the Abington Green Wave.

The week evens Cohasset's record at 6-6, and places them in third in the South Shore League, behind undefeated Scituate and once beaten Norton.

The Skippers were in control from the start in the Abington contest, as they used their superior height advantage to get the ball inside to Peter Bishop any timed they deemed needed.

Bishop collected seven points from inside the paint early in the first half and finished the game with 10.

Paul Bilodeau once again came off the bench for the Skippers with a strong effort as he chipped in with 15 points, and senior guard Doug Ellinger also kicked in a team-high of 15.

Dorian Bryant tossed in eight second-half points coming off the bench.

Abington was led by Eric Wilson with 21 points.

The Skippers jumped out early as they used their height advantage and a scrappy, pressing defense to force the Green Wave into errors as they brought the ball up-court.

Bishop was snake-bit early underneath the basket as he could have easily doubled his first-half point total if the shots weren't rolling around the rim.

Cohasset could not take advantage of some of the scoring chances given to them early and thus only went into halftime with a 28-20 lead.

The Skippers proved the old adage the you can teach everything but height in the second half as they returned to the original inside game-plan and salted away the 64-47 contest.

A bright spot for Cohasset in the second half was when they went inside, they were usually fouled by an opponent, and better than that they actually hit the free throws they were awarded.

Coach Ron Ford has been stressing all year to his team the importance of hitting the shots from the charity stripe.

The Skippers responded with a solid effort from the line.

Cohasset was two of three from the line in the first half, and progressed to 16 of 23 in the final stanza.

Cohasset High ski team off to strong start

Jan. 19 saw both the girls' and boys' squads of the Cohasset High School Ski Team start the 1993 season at Blue Hills Ski Area in Canton with an outstanding team effort. Both squads finished in second place in the small schools division of the Massachusetts Bay East Ski League. The top two teams in each division qualify to send five-member squads to the Massachusetts State High School Alpine Ski Championships, to be held at Berkshire East Ski Area in Charlmont in March.

The Cohasset girls' squad had five of its six starters score for a total of 102.5 points to propel them into second place with 128 points behind perennial powerhouse, Dover-Sherborn. The Cohasset girls' total would have even made second in the large schools division, with only Waltham exceeding their total. Krista Niit of Dover-Sherborn took first place overall, leading a performance with four D-S skiers in the top ten in the division.

Bonnie Krueger scored early, running in the first seed for a time that would hold up for eighth place in the division. Alissa Sexton, running in the second seed, posted a fourth for the best Cohasset performance of the meet. Cara McKenney, running in the third seed, just managed to ease in ahead of teammate Krueger for seventh. Both Gabriella Davidson, an exchange student from Sweden, and Shelley Vanderweil contributed points to the strong Cohasset showing. Sexton and Krueger both competed in the state championships last year as individuals.

Continued performances by the Cohasset girls' squad would allow coaches Jack Dane and Bob Stansell to bring a full complement of five girls to the states for a Cohasset Ski Team first.

Bobby Stansell and Sam Goedecke started the season auspiciously for Cohasset beating all skiers in the division except for four Dover-Sherborn boy skiers. Eric Lodding and Tim Gray of D-S finished one-two overall. With the first four division places going to Dover-Sherborn, this was the strongest team showing in the league in recent years. The potential dominance of the Dover-Sherborn boys' squad may be even greater than apparent at the first meet since the number three- and four-seeded D-S skiers were DNF's. Pete Collins filled out the Cohasset boys' scoring with ninth. Doug Schultz is expected to contribute significantly to the quest for the Cohasset boys' squad to repeat the team's qualifying for the State High School Alpine Ski Championships. Running out of the first seed, Schultz was a DNF in the first meet.

Only Dover-Sherborn put more skiers in the top 10 in the division (four each for the boys' and girls' squads) than the Cohasset squads with three each.

The Cohasset girls' and boys' squads will be trying to put some distance between them and the third-place squads (Milton for the girls, Westwood for the boys) in the upcoming meets to continue their drives for the States at Berkshire East.

Skippers' hockey coach foresees improvement

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

The Skippers have been fighting back from defecits all season, but hockey coach Dennis Walsh expects his 2-7-2 squad will turn the tide with more experience.

"I think other teams will lose and we'll start winning," he said.

Walsh's comments are not as brazen as one may think, coming from a coach whose squad has won only two games in the South Shore League. Next to Hanover, which has simply dominated the SSL and is virtually guaranteed another championship, Walsh sees a cluster of evenly-matched squad.

And the Skippers are right in the thick of the pack.

"I think Scituate, Hull and Cohasset are about even," Walsh said. "Hanover is so strong, but the rest of the league is very balanced."

Cohasset showed its mettle by tipping the scale on Saturday when the squad scored two third-period goals less than one minute apart to defeat Hull, 3-2.

Mike Reynolds scored a pair and freshman winger Nevin Bunstein also tallied for the game-winner.

Charlie Smith had two assists, while Kevin McKenna was solid in net for the Skippers, stopping a number of Pirate threats in the closing minutes.

The defense came through with its best performance of the season to silence Hull. John Kinchla, Charlie Endris and Anthony Wigmore put together their most consistent game yet.

The victory over Hull was an improvement from the 2-2 tie Cohasset skated to with the Pirates, earlier in the season. Reynolds and Bunstein had goals in that game as well.

What Walsh believes the Skippers are lacking are size, maturity and experience, all factors that improve with time.

Even in Hanover's 12-1 shelling of Cohasset, the Skippers only trailed 2-1 after the first period before the Indians simply overpowered the younger squad.

Walsh, though, was not upset with the loss. He fully expected it. What he has been happy with is the development of the underclassmen on the roster.

"I think we're getting better," he said. "The younger kids are getting better."

C.R.D. ski trips offered

The Cohasset and Scituate Recreation Department will co-sponsor two February ski trips.

A children's and youth, aged 10-and-over, trip is scheduled for Sat., Feb. 13, to Ragged Mt., N.H. The cost for this trip is $43 per person. The cost includes motor coach transportation and an all-day-all-mountain lift ticket. Buses will leave from Scituate Town Hall at 6:30 a.m. and from Cohasset Town Hall at 6:45 a.m., returning at about 7:30 p.m. Equipment rental and/or lessons are available at Ragged Mt., and should you desire either, please indicate this at the time of registration.

An adult, age 18-and-over, night ski trip is scheduled for Sat., Feb. 27, to Wachusett Mt. The cost for this trip for night skiing is $40 per person. Buses will leave Scituate Town Hall at 2 p.m. and Cohasset Town Hall at 2:15 p.m. They will return around midnight.

Should you wish to register for either ski trip, please call either the Cohasset or Scituate Recreation Departments at 383-6791 or 545-8738 respectively.

Women welcomed to hoop league

Cohasset women, aged 16-and-over, interested in playing basketball on an informal, pick-up basis, may join an on-going women's league that meets Friday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Wampatuck Elementary School on Tilden Road, Scituate.

You may call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791 for further details, or go to the Wampatuck School any Friday evening to join. A small donation will be collected to help off-set costs.

that interest was growing in the program and it would continue to flourish for at least the next three seasons.

If approved by both the school committees and the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association, one of the schools would be certified as the home team. Players from the other town would essentially be splitting from their own school and represent the other town on the ice.

A possible merger between the two teams would be far more involved than just conducting try-outs for a new roster. There are several issues between the two schools that need to be addressed and approved by both Hull and Cohasset's school committees.

The amount of credits needed to be eligible to play, a source controlling the finance and award procedures would all have to be resolved between Hull's and Cohasset's school committees before a package is sent to the MIAA.

Cohasset High's Athletic Director Clark Chatterton said last Wednesday, he believes the kids would rather the schools merge than lose the hockey program altogether.

Chatterton said there has been talk in recent weeks of the possibility of the hockey team moving to the Atlantic Coast League. He views the step as a detriment to the hockey program.

"It would further Cohasset's plight," he said, "because we'd have to play teams like Hingham, Whitman-Hanson and Duxbury."

Chatterton said a merger "has nothing to do with finances, winning or losing," but is focused "from a safety point of view."

But the letter argues that "Coach (Dennis) Walsh is careful not to use the younger, less experienced players against the stronger players on the opposing teams." And although hockey is a contact sport, the team has had "relatively few injuries" and not more than any other sport the past two seasons.

The team has only three seniors, three juniors and four sophomores, which makes it necessary for the seventh through ninth-graders to be inserted in the line-up.

Chatterton said he doesn't believe the underclassmen have developed enough to play varsity hockey, although there is a JV program also.

Hull's Athletic Director, John Anderson, echoed Chatterton's comments concerning the safety issue.

"We have kids under 100-pounds skating shifts against Craig MacDonald of Hanover, who can bench 380-pounds," Anderson said. "We're taking kids and tossing them into the limelight and they're not ready for it."

Dwindling enrollment is also a factor in Anderson's favoring the merger. Hull has only 140 boys in grades 10-12 and the majority of them play basketball during the winter. The hockey team has only three seniors on its roster, and only one, Matt Ventolieri, has any previous hockey experience.

Anderson also pointed out that many of the Cohasset and Hull players have been teammates on the South Shore Seahawks. The JV program would also serve as a "good feeder system" with players from both schools, Anderson said.

Several players have transferred to different schools in past years, fearing the hockey program would be cut from the athletic program.

"We've lost some of our better kids," said Anderson. "What it (merger) means is keeping hockey in Hull."

Second-year Hull coach Mike O'Donnell says the athletic director and school superintendent have the final say as to whether or not the the Pirates decide to join with Cohasset.

But Cohasset would have to approve also, along with Hull's school committee.

O'Donnell believes the kids want to play next year, even if it means competing alongside the Cohasset players.

"You listen to the kids and there a lot of upperclassmen that would like to come back and play," he said. "If it came down to not having a program, I'd favor the two teams combining."

O'Donnell admitted he has focused his attention on coaching this year's team and is not worrying about what the '93-94 season will bring.

"We've gotten so far as a team from last year," he said, "I've been concentrating on that. All I know is what I read in the newspapers."

Walsh says he is "mixed on the idea of a merger."

"I really think kids like to compete for their own team," he said. "

Walsh did say, however, the combination would result in more kids being able to play hockey. And if it came down to no hockey at all, he would support the move and believed the players ultimately would also.

Walsh said he was confident the school committee would make the right decision after hearing all sides of the issue.

Athletes are not immune to drug abuse . . .

demonstration is scheduled for Saturday at the Unitarian Parish House, as well as an alcohol-free, "Frosty Frolic" Dance at the Community Center.

The main concept of the program, Knowles said, is to familiarize students, "what abuse of substances can do. We're saying things have to be taken into the context they were meant for."

Those familiar with the program believe it is important to reach the children and educate them about substance abuse as early as elementary school. By high school, students are set in their ways and it can be too late.

"The main idea is prevention," said Health Director Michael Gill, "but it only works if it is on-going."

Gill said the teenage use of alcohol in the country is a big problem, "and Cohasset isn't any different."

Teachers are aware of its use and do not walk around with their "heads in the sands."

Athletes, Gill said, face stiff punishment if they are found to have been drinking or using drugs.

"Athletes are like other kids," he said, "however, during the season, the kids take an oath not to use drugs and alcohol. But I know for a fact some have."

To combat the problem of substance abuse by athletes the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA) has developed rules, applicable to every public school in the state. Gill, though, said Cohasset's punishment is even stricter. He knows a handful of athletes who have been thrown off teams in recent years aft they were caught drinking.

"We've lost som star athletes who've been kicked off teams," he said.

Knowles, though, hasn't seen a problem with athletes drinking.

"We have not had a problem with the athletes," she said, "but that doesn't mean they don't or won't in the future.

She says the high school's athletes are concerned with keeping their grades up so they are eligible to play. Most of them play two sports. The majority play three. For that reason, they concentrate on keeping their bodies in shape for the rigors the sport demands.

"Their conditioning never seems to be a problem," Knowles said. "In fact, they're worried they are not in good enough condition."

The girls in particular are very aware of strengthening their muscles for their respective sports. Knowles said they are more aware than the boys that they are looked at as role models by the younger players.

"I believe they take it into consideration as far as what they're showing kids and their behavior."

Still many athletes do drink and are not easily swayed from it. Adding to the problem is that more kids make money and have access to cars, compared to 20 years ago. Knowles acknowledges the different opportunities teenagers have now.

"It's much easier for us to put our heads in the sand and believe it's the same as when we were kids," she said "but it's different."

Knowles said Cohasset's substance abuse, at all ages, is no different from other communities in the area.

"There's a good deal of alcohol use by students as there are in any other town," she said, "not just from youngsters, but through senior citizens."

One Cohasset athlete said, whether or not an athlete decides to use alcohol, depends on his or her commitment to their sport.

"In Cohasset you don't see too much," she said. "Most of the athletes take the sports pretty seriously, especially the wrestlers. They're very serious."

"I think people are more cautious when they're doing a sport. It depends how dedicated they are."

She said there is "a good amount" of drinking on weekends, and drugs, especially marijuana, are easy to obtain. Kids in school know those students who either have the drugs or can get them. But she said drugs practically never change hands in school.

The alarming aspect of alcohol and drug use is the fact that some kids start using them as early as the seventh grade.

"When I was in seventh grade I thought it was the most horrible thing," she said, "but now I hear it goes on."

As for the Drug Awareness Weekend, she said many students scoff at the concept, but there are others that do learn information they may not otherwise have known.

She believes it is particularly important for the pre-high school students.

"I think it's good for the younger kids."

Geography bee winner

Christopher Laas, a seventh grade student at Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School won the school-level competition (Andrew Ross was runner-up) of the National Geography Bee Jan. 7 and now has a chance to win a $25,000 college scholarship. The school-level Bee, at which students answered oral questions on geography, was the first round in the fifth annual National Geography Bee, which is sponsored by National Geographic World, the Society's magazine for children and Amtrak.

The kick-off for this year's Bee was the week of January 4 with thousands of schools around the United States, the District of Columbia, and five U. S. territories participating. The school winners, including Christopher, will now take a written test; up to 100 of the top scorers in each state and territory will be eligible to compete in their state Bee April 2.

The National Geographic Society with its co-sponsors will provide an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., for state champions and their teacher escorts to participate in the National Geography Bee National Championship May 25 and 26. The first place national winner will receive a $25,000 college scholarship, the second place winner, a $15,000 scholarship; and the third place winner, a $10,000 scholarship.

Alex Trebek, host of "Jeopardy", will moderate the national finals which will air as a prime-time special on the Public Broadcasting Service at 8 p.m., May 26.

The National Geographic Society developed the National Geography Bee in response to a growing concern about the lack of geographic knowledge among young people in the United States. A 10-country Gallup survey, conducted for the Society in 1988 and 1989 found that people in the U. S., ages 18 to 24, the youngest group surveyed, knew less about geography than young people in any of the other countries in the survey.

Early release day

Jan. 28 is an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools for Joseph Osgood and Deer Hill Schools only. There are no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

SCHOOL	BUSES DEPART
Deer Hill School	12:25 p.m.
Joseph Osgood School	12:55 p.m.

Lunch will be served in all schools.

This early release day has been approved by the Cohasset School Committee to allow the staff to hold parent conferences at Joseph Osgood School and the Deer Hill staff to hear a report by three staff members on a visit to a "National Site School" in Kennebunk, Maine. Also, some members of the Technology Committee will be demonstrating some hardware and software that may facilitate the teaching process in the future.

Socially aware students

Sixty students from Cohasset Junior/Senior High met Monday, Jan. 11, to discuss and find possible solutions to intolerance.

The general meeting was chaired by Melissa McGowan, a senior at Norwell High School.

After that get-acquainted meeting, the students broke into groups which were led by students from Quincy High School, Boston College High School and/or Norwell High School.

All of the student leaders have experience working with the National Conference of Christians and Jews (a group founded in 1927). The National Conference promotes understanding and respect among all races, religions and cultures through advocacy conflict resolution and education.

PSO open forum

Nominations for next year's board members begin soon. Discover what positions are available for next year's executive board. If a board position isn't your style, there is ample opportunity to participate at the committee level doing fund raising, METCO, community relations, mailings, and much more.

Please join the PSO Executive Board for an informal discussion about how parents can participate in the schools, and enrich the education experience for their children and themselves.

The PSO open forum is Thursday, Feb. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at Cohasset High School senior study.

Auditions for Belles

Cohasset Dramatic Club will cast Mark Dunn's "Belles," a play in two acts and 39 phone calls, at the Cohasset Town Hall, Sunday Jan. 31, 4 to 6 p.m., and Monday, Feb. 1, 7 to 9 p.m. Five women are needed to play ages 30 - 40 and one woman age 19 - 20.

Scripts are available at the public library, Cohasset, for 24-hour use; in addition, scripts will be available for review one hour prior to the start of auditions. Additional information available from Dawn or Joe Rota 545-3195.

Play performances March 25, 26, 27 and 28.

Newcomers Club meets

The Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club holds its monthly meeting Tuesday, Feb. 2 at 9:30 a.m. at the First Trinitarian Congregational Church, Country Way, Scituate.

The speaker is Jennifer Bardsley of Window Expression of Hingham. Ms. Bardsley presents a program on "Approaches to Window Treatment Design" offering her expertise on selecting fabrics and specific treatments. New members are welcome.

For more information please call Sarah at 383-6124.

Financial talk slated

Preparing to survive alone financially, sponsored by the Cohasset Social Service League, is Tues., Feb. 9, from 10 a.m. to noon, free of charge.

The program is presented by Mary Hartwell, Cohasset Social Service League; and Valerie Brown-Matherly, Real Estate and Probate attorney with Friedman, Handler & Karp.

Learn what married women need to know should they suddenly find themselves divorced or widowed.

Despite greater financial independence in recent years, many women may not know if they are legally and financially protected should they suddenly lose their spouse.

Many couples put off the unpleasantness of writing a will or updating an old one, leaving themselves vulnerable to financial loss.

Many women may be managing pension funds or large operating departments at work, but are unaware of how much money it takes to run their household for a month.

What taxes and regulations are you subject to when your spouse dies?

R.S.V.P. 383-0771.

Become a friend

The Social Service League New Friends' program matches volunteers with people in the community who may be physically limited, lonely, or isolated.

Regular "one on one visits" provide an opportunity for listening and sharing.

To become a volunteer, call the League office at 383-0771 or 383-0821.

Furniture class signups

The Cohasset Recreation Department accepts telephone registrations for a furniture restoration-refinishing-revitalization classes, taught by Kenneth Sargent of Cohasset Country Workshop, by calling the recreation office at 383-6791. Class is scheduled to begin Saturday, Jan. 30.

Sessions are four weeks in duration, meeting on Saturday mornings.

The fee for the 10-hour program is $55 per person, and classes are restricted in size to allow for individual attention.

Greyhounds on cable

Thursday, Jan. 28, host Wigmore Pierson's guest on Pierson to Person is St. Margaret's Hospital Anesthesiologist Dr. Janet Bancroft discussing operating room procedures.

The second segment guests discuss greyhounds as wonderful pets after their racing days are over. Guests are Stephen Potter, President of Greyhound Pets of America; Millie Merritt, dog lover; and Robert Chandler, Public Relations Director at the Raynham/Taunton Greyhound Park.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham, and on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

For further information about upcoming guests and additional show information call the Pierson Show's executive producer, Robert Belliveau, at 545-2500.

SAFE Info Night

Stop Any Further Expansion (SAFE) holds an information night Wednesday, Feb. 3 at 8 p.m. in the meeting room at the Super Stop & Shop, Route 3A.

The topic is how to write a comment to respond to the Second Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Report (SSDEIR) for the proposed 27.5 acre "Area V" expansion of the private Cohasset Heights Landfill (CHL). Note: Deadline to submit comments is Wednesday, Feb. 24.

New programs offered

New programs and one night seminars at the Cohasset Community Center include: How To Retire and Live Happily Ever After, Feb. 1: Medicaid Planning, Feb. 8 : Estate Planning Basics, Feb. 22 : Ballet and Jazz ages eight and over, For Kids Only Playgroup ages two yr. nine mos. to four yrs., Mom's Morning Out Babysitting, Gym Dandy, Saturday Gymnastics, Aerobics, and much more.

Please call the Center at 383-0088 to register.

Cohasset Common:
- Snow sculpting: 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Drug and Alcohol Committee literature available in Parish House and Community Center.

Saturday PM: Community Center "Frosty Frolic" dance: 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. (alcohol-free for those participating in Winterfest).

Sunday: (At the high school.)
- 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.: Brunch in the cafeteria presented by the Confirmation classes (only 93 cents!)
- 1:30 to 3 p.m. Fun Fare for Kids presented by Student Council in Sullivan Gym.
- 1:30 to 3 p.m.: Sweet Adelines for all ages.
- 3 to 4 p.m.: Free super sundaes.

Sunday evening: Super Bowl or activities of your choice.

MOVIES OF COHASSET PAST

Burt Pratt, Cohasset's unofficial historian and biographer, will provide narration for an afternoon of films, photos and exhibits at the new Senior Center room at the Community Center as part of Winterfest '93, Saturday from 12 to 3 p.m.

Two encore showings of "The Beauty Queen," the hit of last year's Winterfest activities, are scheduled at 1 and 3 p.m., with various other short videos and films shown in between.

Also in the same room will be two performances, at 12 and 2 p.m., by story teller Susan Pope, for kids of all ages. Food, face painting, hot drinks, and a breathalyzer demonstration will be available at the Unitarian Parish House from 11:30 to 2:30 p.m. and snow sculpting and ice castle building will be offered on the common during the same hours.

Tickets for Sundays are 93 cents. Brunch will be on sale at both locations, and information and times for the Fun Fare and free Super Sundaes will also be available.

Chris Haidell works on his ice sculpture on Cohasset Common during 1992 Winterfest. This year snow-sculpting takes place on the Common from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Dance to 40s tunes at Frosty Frolic

The Cohasset Community Center's annual Frosty Frolic dance, Saturday, Jan. 30, promises to be a spectacular evening in honor of the center's 50th anniversary.

Hors d'oeuvres and desserts are included and are being provided by local South Shore caterers. Michael Levin, owner and chef of Blue Rhonda's, will be on hand with his staff preparing and serving his favorites from a specialty table set in the main hall. Other caterers providing food include Arthur Roebuck, French Memories, The Borrowed Butler, Laura Atherton, and Edith Tibbetts.

The main hall will be transformed to appear as it did during the first dances in 1943. One of the reasons the center began was to hold dances for returning area servicemen and the community. Decorator Elaine Welby has acquired authentic memorabilia, historically dressed mannequins, and other surprises to make the transformation complete.

Dance music will be provided by professional D.J. Doug Coupe from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

There will also be a door prize (your ticket is your chance) and two special raffle items. Tickets are $15 per person and are available at the center or by calling Ticket Chair Linda Chastain at 383-3047.

If you are interested in helping decorate during the day or assisting at night, please call the center or the following committee members: Elaine Welby, 383-9809, Mary Sullivan, 383-6666, Rhonda Myers, 383-2969.

Tickets will be available at the door. All members and friends are encouraged to bring any guests who enjoy an evening of fun and dancing.

Don't miss out on a great way to lift your spirits on a winter night and to join in celebrating the community center's 50th anniversary.

The South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, hosts the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce's Business After Hours Thursday, Jan. 28 from 5 to 7:30 p.m.

Business members are encouraged to bring their business cards for a special drawing. In addition, the Art Center will give a special bonus to new Art Center business members who register that evening.

The Art Center offers three levels of membership through which local businesses can show their support of the arts. For a $250 annual fee, business members receive advance notice of all course offerings, exhibitions, and special events; two complimentary tickets to special events; public recognition in all SSAC media communications; a subscription to Artline, the bi-annual newsletter; priority rental of the SSAC facilities; and a framed certificate of membership.

A sustaining membership of $500 entitles businesses to also receive newspaper publicity with a photo; 25% discount on one rental of the SSAC facilities; and allows the business' employees to take classes at membership rates. Patron membership of $1,000 further qualifies businesses to receive a complimentary program ad in the SSAC Art Festival program book; one free use of the facility for a business meeting with a guided tour of the galleries; an invitation for two to the annual Patron's Dinner; and a 35% discount on SSAC facility rental.

For more information about the Business After Hours or about SSAC business membership, please call (617) 383-9548.

Rabies will arrive all too soon in Cohasset

By Alison Cohen
Mariner correspondent

Pet owners with a laissez faire attitude toward vaccinations have a big scare coming at them. Rabid raccoons may not be sitting on the doorstep, but they're poised to enter the South Shore region altogether too soon.

The strain of rabies decimating the raccoon population in the mid-Atlantic states continued its inexorable march northward with the recent discovery of an infected raccoon in Cambridge. Previously, 39 raccoons, one skunk, one red fox, one woodchuck and one cat had been diagnosed with rabies. The first animal was found in Ashby in September. All subsequent cases had been in Fitchburg and lower Berkshire County until the most recent positive results on animals in Belmont, Arlington and Cambridge.

If your only knowledge about rabies stems from vague memories of a Saturday matinee showing of Old Yeller, it may be time for a refresher course.

Animal control officers, health agents and veterinarians all agree rabies will probably arrive in their neighborhoods by springtime, summer at the latest. Town officials plan to protect their bailiwicks by insisting residents comply with state laws requiring pet owners to vaccinate both dogs and cats against rabies and by taking drastic steps whenever necessary.

Judge Rya Zobel earns Republican endorsement

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

As the Cohasset Mariner went to press Wednesday, President William J. Clinton had not named his next nominee to fill the Attorney General post.

But if a local Republican has anything to say about it — Judge Rya W. Zobel will be the next Attorney General of the United States.

Attorney David E. Place — who was appointed two years ago by Governor William F. Weld to head the judicial nominating council which selects state judges — has known Zobel for 40 years.

He has written a letter to the head of Clinton's transition team, E. Vernon Jordan, recommending Zobel's nomination.

"I consider her (Zobel) a good friend," Place said in a telephone interview. "She is an outstanding judge and lawyer. She is forceful, decisive, brilliant, and very sensitive to the needs of poor people and disadvantaged women and children.

"She is an outstanding person for the president to consider for the job of attorney general," Place said.

"The job of attorney general is to be lawyer of the people and that means all the people."

Place, a former Cohasset resident who served as town moderator for 14 years, explained that when lawyers apply for a judicial appointment in Massachusetts, they are asked which judges they think the most highly of.

"Judge Zobel is the number one choice," he said. "She is leading the pack of judges mentioned.

"I called this to (Jordan's) attention," Place added.

Place, who is with the law firm of Choate, Hall and Stewart, served as general counsel to the U.S. Air Force law group under former President Ronald W. Reagan and was deputy head of the permanent Arms Control Commission in the mid-1980s.

Changes are expected for Cohasset's Teen Depot

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

As the snow changes the complexion of many south shore landscapes this week, the complexion of the Cohasset Teen Depot is changing as well.

Located in a building across the street from the Community Center, the Depot sits empty this winter.

A recent decision to temporarily close the Depot and regroup was made by both the governing board and the advisory board of the local teen center.

Keith Knowles, both a concerned parent and a Depot advisory member, said Monday, "Let people know the teen center is alive and well." It's just undergoing an "evolutionary process."

One of the changes that is helping move the center along is the election of Dan Baird as chairman of the governing board. Making decisions that directly affect what happens to and goes on at the depot is one of the governing boards tasks. The governing board consists of 21 students who range from 7th grade to seniors and all have a vested interest in the program.

"There isn't a lot to do in this town," said Baird. And the main purpose of the Depot is to give kids a place to hang out.

Right now the whole program is changing. Both Knowles and Baird feel it will be for the better but don't want to rush things.

"We're not going to re-open until we get it the way we

Cohasset High gymnast never gives up

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

For a short time last September, Tara Gallagher thought about quitting the sport she loved and bypass the Cohasset High School gymnastics season her senior year.

After the injuries the 17-year-old senior had gone through during the past year, no one really would have blamed her for giving up the sport she was first introduced to at the age of two.

Gallagher sustained a serious elbow injury last year while attempting a difficult double twist at the Ellis Gym in Braintree. The injury forced her to miss a portion of the Skippers' season.

She returned to the team at no where near top form. Because of her fragile elbow, Gallagher was forced to limit her events to the uneven bars and floor routine. Even then, the most difficult moves her elbow allowed

Cohasset's week

Rabies clinic coming

Health agent Dr. Joseph Godzik said the health board will sponsor a rabies clinic later this month.

The Cohasset Mariner will carry the details when the date for the clinic is finalized.

Casual labor okay'ed

Harbormaster Irving Gadow will get to keep the bulk of the amount in the line-item of his budget for casual labor.

Gadow had budgeted for 800 hours (40 hours a week for 20 weeks) at $6.50 an hour.

In a majority decision, selectmen decided to go with the advisory committee's recommendation for 18 weeks rather than 20.

Selectmen Michael H. Sullivan and Martha K. Gjesteby wanted Gadow's casual labor reduced even more.

Sullivan asked that the hours be reduced to 500.

Selectman Merle S. Brown asked Gadow how much it would hurt to reduce the casual labor to 500 hours.

"I went along with the advisory committee's recommendation to 18 weeks. That's basically as far as I can go," Gadow said.

Selectmen directed Gadow to keep a weekly ledger detailing the hours used for casual labor and the work performed.

Gadow explained that he uses casual labor for everything from setting floats to small engine repair.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said the same scrutiny the board exhibited over "small items" like the casual labor budget ought to be shown over "big items." He didn't specify which items.

Laugelle did ask that the fishermen present be allowed to speak.

Robert Figueirdo, 173 Pond St., said the money spent on casual labor was a bargain.

"I don't see what all the discussion is about," he said.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke cut off further comment on the issue because the matter had been decided by the board.

No detail on Doane

Responding to criticism voiced last week by Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle, acting chief of police Brian W. Noonan said there is no need for a detail officer's presence at the Doane Street bridge repair site.

Noonan wrote that because there is a project foreman on-site and the fact the street is a dead end, he does not feel "there is enough of a safety factor problem to warrant continuous detail officers' presence."

Noonan said it would cost taxpayers $920 per week for a detail officer at the site.

Safety Officer Clifton B. Jones said he checks the area six-to-eight times a day and has found the construction workers to be cooperative.

Knowles is thanked Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby thanked Paula Knowles, chairman of the drug-free weekend planning committee, for "all her labors."

"I think a lot of young families came to the weekend events with their children," Gjesteby said. "It was very worthwhile."

Engine on warrant

Selectmen have accepted and recommend approval of an article appropriating or raising funds for an new $230,000 pumper engine.

In a detailed explanation of everything from fire-attack capability to engine life-expectancy, Fire Chief John Nadeau was able to persuade the board the town shouldn't be caught short an engine. The new engine will replace Engine 22, which has been retired.

Selectmen Chairman Jane Goedecke said it isn't clear how the town will pay for the engine.

"We'll discuss with the town accountant what the mechanisms are," she said. Options could include borrowing the money or a debt-exclusion override.

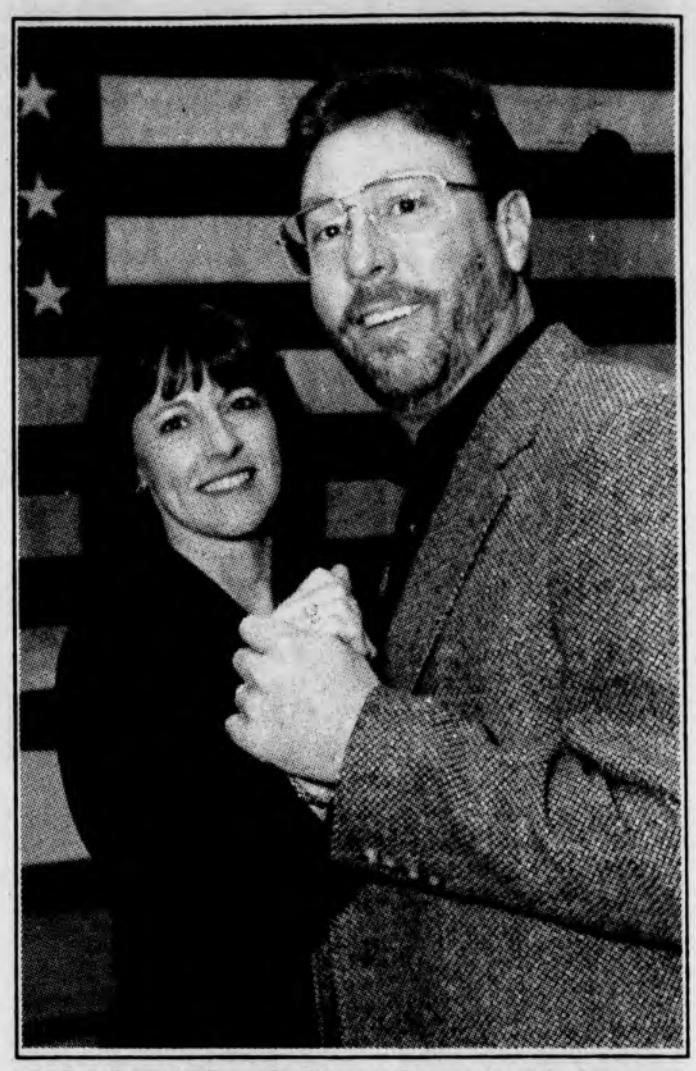
Selectmen will also recommend approval at town meeting to purchase a rubber rescue raft and multiple channel fire radio for the fire department.

Firemen's muster planned

Glenn A. Pratt, president of the Cohasset Community Center, notified selectmen that the center is planning a firemen's muster Aug. 14 as part of its Golden Anniversary celebration.

"This event will be a day of old-fashioned family fun," Pratt said.

He said the center will make a formal request for permission to used the municipal parking lot from Friday, Aug. 13 (PM) through Saturday, and parade re-routing of traffic, when plans are finalized.



Michael and Rhonda Myers dance to 40s tunes at the Frosty Frolic held Saturday night at the Community Center. The entire function room was decorated with 1940s memorabilia and everyone danced away the winter doldrums. The event was part of the center's year-long 50th anniversary celebration. (Staff photo/J. Murray: school reform bill is DOA

House Bill 801, an Act Relative to Improvement of Education in the Commonwealth — better known as the school reform bill — won't see the light of day in its present form, State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray said.

Murray, who was one of only 27 legislators to vote against passage Jan. 29, appeared before selectmen Monday to answer their questions about the bill.

But Murray said she still has too many questions of her own to adequately explain what the 68-page bill and its amendments mean to Cohasset.

"Something passed," she said. "But I won't call it reform. I voted against it. I don't think it will help things at all.

"...I'll be very honest. I see it coming back from the Senate completely changed."

Murray, who was armed with a carton full of copies of the bill and amendments to hand out to the board, said the viability of "education reform" may lie with House Speaker Charles F. Flaherty and Senate President William M. Bulger who are at opposite ends of the spectrum on school choice. School choice, which Bulger favors, would allow students to attend any public school in the Commonwealth without paying tuition costs.

Selectmen Chairman Jane Goedecke had trouble believing her ears.

"They'll let the whole thing go down because of school choice, when everyone from all corners is screaming reform?" she asked.

"As far as we're concerned we should proceed as if there is no education reform bill," Goedecke added.

Murray said the Senate may not even take the bill up until March, so she recommended school committees go ahead and set their budgets.

Susan McNamara, 45 Fairoaks Lane, asked what the bill seeks to accomplish.

"The original intent of the reforms give our kids good education with money to support it," Murray said.

She said she supported the original bill when the amendments were added, she changed her mind.

Reached by telephone, Supt. Stephen Hart said the school board was taking a wait-and-see attitude toward the reform bill.

He noted that he has received correspondence "almost daily" from various organizations detailing changes as the bill was debated in the house.

Hart explained that the funding formula in the bill is very complicated and towns have not yet had the chance to verify the figures used.

Maura Young

Name: Maura Young.

Occupation: Cashier, Marylou's News.

Best day of your life: When I graduated high school.

Most embarrassing moment: When I drove my car up onto a curb and got two flat tires. I was looking in the rear view mirror at a driver who was flashing his highbeams at me when I went off the road.

Goal: To be successful and happy in life.

Favorite season: Summer.

Best vacation: Last June when I went to Florida. It was the first time I was in a plane and the first time I left the Massachusetts border.

Favorite holiday: Christmas.

Pet Peeve: People who don't say please and thank you; basically people without manners.

Favorite book: "Of Mice and Men," by John Steinbeck.

Favorite movie: "My Girl."

Biggest worry: The end of the world.

Favorite place: Cohasset.

Favorite junk-food: Lifesavers Swirled Pops.

Regulations set

Regulations for resident/hauler use at the Cedar Street Recycling Transfer Facility (RTF) are:

The RTF may be used by residents who have a current sticker purchased from the board of health or the RTF for waste generated at their residence only. Persons who recycle must also purchase a sticker to be admitted to the RTF. Certain businesses may also purchase a permit. Landscapers may deposit leaf and yard waste from Cohasset without a permit. Violators may be fined $25.

The RTF is open Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Wastes or recyclables must be placed in their appropriate area. Refuse must not be allowed to spill from a vehicle carrying litter. Certain items are prohibited: demolition waste from contractors, stumps, automobiles, toxic and/or special wastes, large animals and septage. Brush, including Christmas trees, is accepted only on designated days as published in the local newspaper.

A sticker fee will be set annually by the board of health. A fee for truck loads of other than normal household waste is also set. These and other fees for commercial haulers, businesses and recycling are posted in the board of health office.

We've Invested Money For One Out Of Three Cities And Towns In Massachusetts, Helped Them Keep Track Of Hundreds Of Trust Accounts, And Called The South Shore Our Home For Almost 150 Years.

Now It's Time To Introduce Ourselves.

We're Quincy Savings Bank, and when most people hear our name, they think of our reputation for solid customer service and simple to understand and easy to use products.

What they don't know is that one out of three cities and towns in Massachusetts trust us to invest and protect their funds...because our municipal services department has the same reputation for quality and commitment that our branch staff has in the consumer market.

And like all Quincy Savings Bank customers, our city and town treasurers enjoy peace of mind knowing that their deposits are insured in full through the combined coverage offered by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and Deposit Insurance Fund of Massachusetts (DIFM). And our strong capital shows our continuing ability to serve our customers, whether you're among the many thousands of individuals who keep their accounts with us, or the treasurers who trust us with large, municipal deposits.

Whether you're looking for a mortgage loan, line of credit, investment account, commercial services or NOW checking account, we're here to help, with a friendly staff to make banking easy and convenient. Next time you're looking for financial services, give us a try.

Changes expected for Teen Depot . . .

want it to be," said Baird. Including more younger kids is also important to Baird so that the Depot will have a future.

Echoing this desire Knowles insisted that it's important for kids to understand "this is something that is theirs." He added, "They're not puppets" running a teen center with an adult running the show.

Although he is a senior this year, Baird says he'd "like to come back and see it alive and well." And he is doing things now to assure the Depot's continued existence.

The whole program changed last fall when Baird says even board members lost interest. The center wasn't new anymore and "we lost momentum."

He'd like to change a few things to attract people back and keep them coming by. The foremost is the name. He wouldn't let on what it may be in the future but thinks 'Teen Depot' has lost it's spark.

Additionally Baird and other members feel the room is too boring. "It's bare of all emotion," he said. One improvement could be adding a new sound system and changing the lighting to give the room a "more exciting effect."

"If we change the atmosphere, more people will show up," he said.

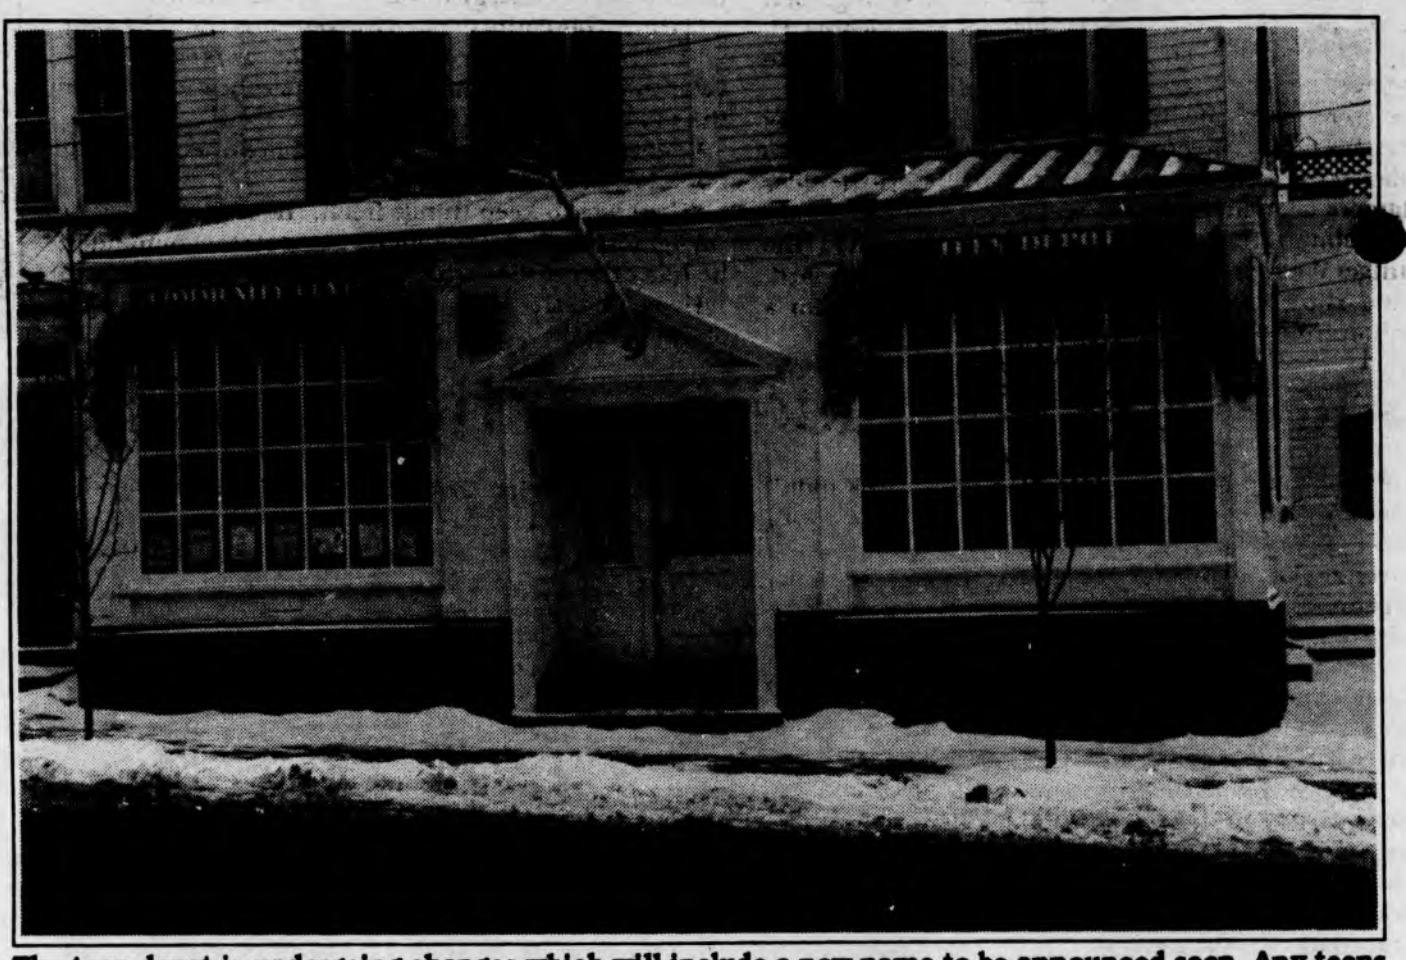
"The kid's haven't given up on it," said Knowles. "They have a desire to see this thing succeed."

He added that funds to support the Depot are donated by concerned townspeople who can see how important it is for kids to have a place to go.

And parents should feel comfortable in letting their child spend time at the center. As well as a pool table, television, music and a Ping-pong table, there is a form of adult supervision.

Knowles said the adults who supervise the center are closer in age to the students and haven't lost their memories of how important it was for them to have a place to go.

They can watch the kids without being a parent, he added.



The teen depot is undergoing changes which will include a new name to be announced soon. Any teens who want to join the governing board should attend this week's meeting at 5 p.m. Sunday at the depot.

Both Baird and Knowles want interest in the Depot to increase and suggested that teens who want to join the governing board attend this week's meeting. It's scheduled for 5 p.m. Sunday at the Depot.

They pointed out that meetings are being held weekly during the transition period.

"We can shut it down...or make it work," said Knowles.

From the determination in their eyes, it looks like Baird and Knowles are going to make the center work.

Dan Baird, CHS senior, is president of the governing board of the teen depot which is still evolving.

Plant daffodils to benefit cancer research

Over 150,000 golden daffodils burst into bloom in nine South Shore communities March 23 and 24 as the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society stages its annual Daffodil Days to benefit the research, education and service programs to cancer patients throughout the area.

Advance orders are being taken up to March 5 for the bright yellow blooms and volunteers will deliver and sell them beginning March 23. Orders may be placed by calling Mrs. Sweeney at 773-8226 or the South Shore Unit office, 341-4210. A bouquet of 10 is $5, and a box of 500 is $250.

The South Shore Unit of the Society carries on a program of help for cancer patients in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth. Some 1400 businesses and individuals have been contacted by volunteers for support.

Statewide it is expected that three million blooms will be sold with a goal of raising more than the nearly $1,000,000 raised last year.

State commander is honored at Legion hall

They came to honor the 29-year-old State Commander of the Sons of the American Legion: Thomas W. Wigmore.

Jan. 30, 150 people assembled at the George H. Mealy American Legion Post 118 in town to celebrate Wigmore's June election as commander.

Wigmore said one of the highlights of the night was when his father, Stephen Wigmore, presented him with a plaque from the George H. Mealy Post, where the elder Wigmore is commander.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle also presented the younger Wigmore with congratulations from the board.

And state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray sent him a citation from the legislature.

Wigmore said since his election in June, he has channeled his energy toward veterans' causes.

"I think this country owes the veterans a lot," he said.

The young state commander has walked through veterans hospitals and kept his speeches focused on the plight of the forgotten vet.

Wigmore's one-year term ends this June, and he is not allowed to run for re-election.

"They like to keep things fresh," he explained.

Wigmore said while he enjoys being state commander, he has other duties which also occupy his time.

He is an assistant harbormaster and vice-chairman of the recreation commission.

Snow days cause no-school calls

Although the two-day snow storm this week didn't cause any major accidents, police were swamped with calls — the non-emergency kind.

Over zealous students and some parents called the police emergency numbers to see if school was cancelled and jammed the lines, Sgt. Robert Jackson said.

"We had an ambulance call that couldn't get through," Jackson said.

He explained that students should turn on television or listen to the radio to hear the school cancellations and not call the police department.

School Supt. Stephen Hart said he makes the decision whether or not to cancel school by 5:30 a.m. Hart said he looks at the weather conditions between 4:30 and 5:30 a.m. and talks with the highway department to see about road conditions.

His main concern is safety of the students and teachers. Hart noted that the METCO students and teachers who live out of town leave their homes very early.

Hart said students can tune into AM or FM radio stations and television stations which make cancellation announcements. They should not call the police or school, he said.

Jackson said he can tell from the kids' voices that they aren't reaching far enough for the radio dial or TV clicker.

"They call as soon they roll out of bed or some just reach for the telephone," he said.

"We try to be as polite as possible but it's an emergency line and it's not proper to call that number (for that purpose)," Jackson said.

He added that luckily the storms did not cause any serious accidents.

Although Cohasset kids may have enjoyed their two-day vacation, the snow days will be added to the end of the year.

This year school gets out later than usual because Labor Day was late, Hart explained.

If there are no more missed days, the last day of school will be June 24, he said.

An Important Message To All Boston Gas Customers

On January 24, our employees who belong to the Local 12003, United Steelworkers of America, rejected the Company's offer of a new contract. The labor dispute only affects those union employees who work in Boston and suburbs to the south and west of Boston. It does not affect union employees north of Boston and in central Massachusetts.

We want to assure all of our customers that the labor dispute should have little or no effect on you. Your gas supply will not be affected and we are doing everything possible to minimize any inconveniences this situation may cause.

Emergency Service Will Continue

If you have a gas leak, please call us immediately at 523-1010.

Appliance Service

During the labor dispute, we will be unable to provide repair service for gas appliances. If you need gas appliance service, simply call your local heating contractor or an appliance service firm.

Paying Your Gas Bill

Bills may be paid at your neighborhood pay stations or by mail: Boston Gas, Boston, MA 02205-9025.

Our Commitment To You Will Continue

We regret any inconvenience this labor dispute may cause you. Boston Gas is committed to maintaining essential services to all of our customers while working to end the dispute equitably.

Bostongas

around town

❑ Everyone in town knows Polly Logan, a petite gal with a mighty voice that has been heard all over the State (country?). A long active member in civic and community affairs, Ms. Logan was a member of the Weld/Cellucci Transition team, past Republican National Committee Woman, board member of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, and the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus.

Anyway, Polly was the guest speaker at the Boston Investment Group (a professional women's association), the subject was (what else) politics. Fun funds, friendships, power and networking for good government held at Schroeder's in Boston, it was grand, and we are sure that "our Polly" had a lot to do with it....what a dynamic gal she is, and how lucky that anyone is that has her on their side...everyone must realize that I could talk about Polly forever, almost everyone's heroine. She is special!

❑ As many of you know, Eric Theriault is spending this semester studying in England, in Arundel (right outside London). He is having a wonderful time travelling as well as studying, and claims the area is beautiful. What an experience!!

Eric isn't the only one happy to be there; two of his pals, Joel Reidy and Pat Conroy, are thrilled too! The reason for that being they are planning to visit him on their spring break!

You can bet a grand time will be had by all. Here's hoping we hear more details upon their return! Okay, boys?

❑ We salute Jason Thayer this week! Jason, son of Kenneth Thayer, graduated from Parris Island Jan. 22 as a full-fledged Marine and will be going to Camp Lei for advanced training. We wish you luck, Jason, and ask that you stay in touch!

Jason Thayer

❑ Let us all send a special hello to Joseph Laugelle, Jr., who is in flight training school in California. Wonder if he was near Super Bowl territory for the Big Game!!

Here's to health and happiness during your training, Joe!

❑ We have another celebrity in our midst... Charles Santoro. Charles is with the Quincy Police Department, specializing in domestic violence.

Recently Ed Bradley of "60 Minutes" went out on the cruiser with Charles, complete with cameramen, and they shot different things (some include shots of Cohasset). The vast increase in domestic violence prompted this segment on "60 Minutes," and will be aired Feb. 7 (that's this Sunday, folks).

Cohasset's own Charles will be on, and at length, as an expert on domestic violence, and it will be thrilling to see one of our own able to help the whole nation combat this dreadful situation. Stay tuned!

And, be sure to thank Charles when you see him. Meanwhile, be sure to watch it.

❑ Polly Doggett of Hugh Strain Road, flew out to Salt Lake City last weekend for the baptism of her 8-year-old granddaughter, Mari Doggett.

Baptism is an important event in the life of a young Morman boy or girl, and Polly "just had to be there."

❑ The Social Service League (Mary Hartwell) and Valerie Brown-Matherly (real estate and probate attorney with Friedman, Handler & Karp) are presenting a program on how to survive alone financially if a woman suddenly finds herself widowed or divorced.

Despite greater financial independence in recent years, many women may not know if they are legally and financially protected should they lose their spouse. They will deal with wills, pensions, how to run a household, taxes and regulations. Be prepared!!

Go and listen to Mary and Valerie Brown-Matherly and find out what women need to know. It is Tuesday, Feb. 9, from 10 a.m. to noon, it's free, and it takes place at Walton Rodgers Hall, St. Stephen's Church, and you RSVP by calling 383-0771 or 383-0821.

Coffee and refreshments will be available.

❑ We welcome Hanna Jean White, daughter of Deborah and William White, who was born Dec. 17 at 4:44 p.m., weighing in at 7 lbs. 5 ozs., at South Shore Hospital.

I'll bet Santa was a happy fella in that house!!

❑ Congressman Gerry E. Studds has announced his 1993 nominations for the United States Service Academies from the 10th Congressional District, a selected for a nominee to the Unit States Naval Academy is John Maynard of Cohasset High School fame.

That's the first stage of the academy application process, and we wish you the best of luck as you continue the process. John, let us know!!

❑ Cohasset resident Allison Killilea, a junior at The Winsor School in Boston, was selected as an All Star for the Eastern Independent League (EIL) First Team. Allison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Killilea, and is one great field hockey player, according to her coach Debra Hill.

❑ Applause, Applause...for all of the people who made the drug-free weekend such a success. Everyone from every age group had a super time...snow sculpture was great, food galore, especially lots of fun for the kiddos...basketball shooting, fun fair, pancakes, topped off with sundaes that they made themselves. Hope all "older" people saw the "Movie Queen," all about our "older days." It was super! It also was a factor in helping Burt Pratt, Gerard Keating and Hot Sullivan start a show in February, to be aired on cable. It will be entitled "Growing Up In Cohasset." Stay tuned for more details. These gentlemen know all there is to know about our fair town, then and now.

❑ That's "all she wrote" for this week, folks. Be sure to let me know what you would like in writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter E. Caruso

Goldsmith/Caruso

Peter Emilio Caruso, son of Emilio and Catherine Caruso of Cohasset, and Nancy Elizabeth Goldsmith, daughter of H. Eugene and Jo-Anne Goldsmith of Essex, Connecticut, were married Saturday, Oct. 10 at All Saints' Church in Ogunquit, Maine.

The Rev. Charles Allen officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by Carla S. Sullivan of Stratford, Connecticut as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Regina Caruso of Cohasset, Heather R. Bonner of New York City, Jennifer M. Gamboa of Leesburg, Virginia, Karen Pellegrino of Belmont, and Hilary Paige of San Francisco, California.

Michael Caruso served as best man. Ushers were Scott Goldsmith of San Francisco, Brendan McMahon of Newton, Ralph Dangelmaier of Newton, Greg Zappin of New York City and Chris Colburn of Cohasset.

The bride is a graduate of Valley Regional High School in Deep River, Connecticut, and holds a bachelor of arts degree from Smith College and a masters from Boston College. She is employed at Boston College.

The groom is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Stonehill College. He is employed at Stonehill College.

After a wedding trip to Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, the couple is making their home in Milton.

obituaries

Thomas P. Brady

Thomas P. Brady, a retired insurance company executive, died Dec. 30, in Grace New Haven Hospital after a long illness. Mr. Brady who was 72 years of age, was born and raised in Manhattan, New York City. He was a graduate of Fordham University, and received an M.B.A. from the University of Chicago. He also earned a law degree from DePaul University. Mr. Brady was a former 30-year resident of Hingham and Cohasset and had been a resident of Branford, CT for the last two years.

Mr. Brady was a former agency manager for Equitable Life Assurance in both New York City and Boston. He was a former president of the Certified Life Underwriters Association and a professor at the Insurance Institute of Northeastern University.

Mr. Brady was a veteran of World War II, serving as an officer in the Army Air Corps. He was an avid bridge, golf and sailing enthusiast, belonging to Hatherly Country Club, Scituate, and Larchmont Yacht Club, Westchester, N.Y.

He is survived by his wife Helen (Howe) Brady, three sons, Thomas Jr. of Bolton, Ma., John of Clinton, CT, and Sean of Old Greenwich, CT, and six grandsons.

Private services were held on Jan. 2 in Branford, CT.

❒ Beware of big government answers to big questions like school reform.

While the state legislature has good intentions it's unlikely we'll see school reform legislation that is meaningful to Cohasset in the near future.

So the best advice coming from state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray is to carry on as usual.

We tend to be wary of centralized government's grand brush strokes for change over local matters. While we are swamped with statistics constantly telling us "our" kids don't perform, can't read, and won't succeed in the 21st Century — that's not the case in Cohasset.

So what's the answer?

There's no question that big urban school districts — like Boston City Schools — aren't working. But the answer there probably lies more with excessive bureaucracy than money which is at the heart of the school reform debate. Boston's per pupil expenditure far exceeds Cohasset's.

Although it's a noble idea, state attempts at "equalizing" education from town to town make us nervous. Of course, all children no matter where they live should have the chance for the same educational opportunities.

But let's face it, places where parents are involved in and care about their children's education — have better schools. No grand, sweeping reform is ever going to change that simple fact.

❒ Just a reminder as the local election season gets ready to begin: we do not accept letters to the editor endorsing candidates. If we did, as you might imagine, we could get swamped with letters from dozens of supporters of a particular candidate. Our editorial page has limited space and we could never accommodate an influx of that magnitude.

The best way for you to support the candidates of your choice is to contact them and go to work. Local candidates don't have the funds or the organization that their state or national counterparts do, so they depend on the enthusiasm of friends and neighbors for support.

We always welcome letters to the editor on the issues. Please remember to sign your letter and include your telephone number for verification purposes only.

❒ Photographs taken by our talented staff are a popular part of the Cohasset Mariner. We welcome your calls, FAXs, or notes informing us about upcoming events that are good photo opportunities.

However our photographers are few in number so we need as much notice as possible in order to have the best shot of capturing your event on film.

But no matter how much notice is given, if another event occurs that our department head sees as taking priority, assignments can get bumped. This is especially true if there's a breaking news story like a fire or an accident.

As much as we would like, we do not have the staff to run out at the last minute to photograph kids playing in the snow, for example.

But this is where you can help. We welcome your photographs; color or black and white are fine. Please identify the people in the photograph and include your name and address if you'd like the picture returned. We often use photos sent in by our subscribers on the Around Town, sports and school pages.

If you want to order a reprint of a photograph which appeared in the Cohasset Mariner, we need the date, page number, and a brief description of the photo along with the name of the photographer. Photos are $10 for an 8x10 or $8 for a 5x7. Checks should be made out the The Mariner Newspapers and mailed to 165 Enterprise Drive, Marshfield 02050, attn. photo reprints.

Any questions, please call us a 1-800-649-6661. Our readers are what makes the Cohasset Mariner special, we value your input.

commentary

(On the final day of Cohasset's drug and alcohol free weekend The Reverend E. Clifford Cutler made the following comments, adapted from Sunday's sermon at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.)

When drugs and alcohol become a problem, it's a spiritual problem. I do not mean by this the kind of moralism that shames a person and tells them they're no good. But the beginning of recovery from addictions and the beginning of a spiritual life are both in the admission that there are some things over which we are helpless. When life gets out of control the need is to be centered in the source of all life which is God.

In a series called "A Hunger for Healing" about the 12-step recovery program (aired on the VISN Channel not available on Cohasset Cable), a man told a story that reminded me of my two sons. Years ago when they were three and five we would go to the Cohasset Pizza House where there is a video machine. On the viewing screen were space ships firing powerful lasers and whole planets blowing up, a real cataclysm. The two boys would race to see which would get to the machine first. They would push the buttons and swivel the joy stick back and forth, exclaiming loudly when they made a hit, redoubling their efforts on the controls. The machine just kept on replaying its program. I smiled at the boys' illusion that they were in control. They did not realize they had to put in a quarter. And I kept this game up for as long as I could.

It is somewhat like our lives when they get off center. We push all the right buttons to try to sustain a winning picture of ourselves. We keep the game up for as long as we can, believing we are in control. Until one day we realize we haven't put in the quarter. It all feels kind of empty. We are afraid that "if someone knew the real me they would not like me or accept me." There is a void. Sometimes we try to fill it by drugs or alcohol, by over-working and controlling behavior. None of this works. The problem of emptiness is a spiritual puzzle that needs a spiritual answer.

A person who had grown up in an alcoholic family talked about trying to fill the emptiness of his life with good works. This person felt if he could pray harder and do more for others he could earn God's love and approval. Of course what he was missing was his own love. God's was already sure. It was not until, with fear and pain, he faced those feelings about himself that he found God — not condemning but accepting. Later he wrote: "God dwells within our feelings, within our pain, and right at the edge of our surrender. It is in acknowledging our helplessness that we come to recognize God in every part of our humanness, including our weakness."

When we accept God's love and esteem of us then we no longer fear that who we are or what we do will be shown up for being empty. To all of us who in our humanness seem most unlikely, God promises healing, love, wholeness, and community. We cannot repay God for this gift. We cannot attain it on our own, nor can we earn it by achievement. We can only accept it as a gift.

This is what it means "to put the quarter in," to be centered in God's love. Then we may free ourselves from excessive button pushing to present a winning picture, and other controlling behavior. Life is recovered so as not to be like a video game program that just keeps running over and over. We are set free from misusing drugs and alcohol (or good works, or over-working) to keep up an illusion or to fill an emptiness. We can acknowledge times of helplessness while holding onto hope. It may be that we recognize God there. And we are set free to be ourselves and to experience life truly with all of its struggle and joy. A drug and alcohol free weekend has the emphasis on the word "free."

Environmental report released

The Cohasset Heights Ltd. landfill (CHL) has recently submitted the Second Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Report (SSDEIR) for the 27.5 acre "Area V" expansion of the private landfill to the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA).

SAFE, the Cohasset-based group opposed to the "Area V" expansion, called on residents and town officials to review this report and send in comments to EOEA Secretary Susan Tierney before the Feb. 24 deadline.

"We urge all residents and public officials of Cohasset, Hingham, and Hull to give this report the critical analysis it deserves and to write a letter to the state," said SAFE President Alix White.

Two copies of the report are required to be available at the town library in Cohasset (ask for it at the front desk). To request a copy of this report, residents can call Ray Quinn, SAIC Engineering, at 508-946-3500.

McNabb not running

John K. McNabb Jr. is not a candidate for Board of Health.

"Although I did take out nomination papers for the three-year position on the Board of Health," said McNabb, "I do not intend to collect any more signatures nor turn them into the Town Clerk."

"I am not running for the Board of Health," he said.

Rabies on the rise . . .

Cohasset Animal Control Officer William Quigley said since Jan. 1, the health board is having every wild animal, suspected of being diseased, tested for rabies at the state lab.

The Cohasset health board also plans to conduct a clinic where residents can have their domestic animals vaccinated against rabies .

REFRESHER COURSE

If your only knowledge about rabies stems from vague memories of a Saturday matinee showing of Old Yeller, it may be time for a refresher course.

Rabies is a viral infection of the central nervous system. It is transmitted by blood-to-blood contact and is often present in the saliva of an infected animal.

The early stages of the disease can be the most dangerous, in terms of transmission. An infected animal will appear healthy and may seem quite friendly. However, it will bite at the slightest provocation. That bite will introduce the virus from the saliva of the infected animal to the blood stream of the victim.

"If you come upon an animal in your backyard or home environment, look for signs of illness, such as staggering, falling, hyper or aggressive behavior or foaming at the mouth," state Department of Public Health spokesman Kate McCormack said.

Uncharacteristic behavior is also cause for suspicion. A nocturnal animal up and about during the day, normally wary wild animals failing to run away may be in the early stages of the disease. Some animals never develop the vicious, aggressive behavior we have come to associate with rabies infection.

All mammals are susceptible to infection, although squirrels, mice and other rodents seem less likely to contract the disease. Once symptoms develop, the course of the disease is rapid and lethal. With humans, timely administration of a series of vaccinations soon after the attack is the only way to prevent the agonizingly painful death that follows.

"If you are bitten or scratched by an animal you are not absolutely certain has been vaccinated, wash the wound immediately with soapy water and call your physician or go to the emergency room," McCormack advises.

Around the world, 25,000 humans die of rabies every year. In the past decade, 13 Americans have died of rabies infections.

One human victim of the rabies reported being bitten on his right index finger by a bat April 13, 1990 in Texas. He seemed well and did not seek medical care until his hand began to feel week May 30. Six days later he died.

Before his death, the Texan suffered through episodes of rigidity, breath holding and terrifying hallucinations. He experienced extreme difficulty in swallowing, so much so that he refused all liquids. There were frequent muscle spasms of his face mouth and neck in addition to continuous drooling. Before he slipped into a coma, he suffered disorientation accompanied by a raging fever.

"You don't want this to happen to you," Dr. Eric Germaine of Norwell Veterinary Hospital said of death by rabies. "Prevention is certainly the way to go."

Fortunately, the long-standing requirement to vaccinate dogs has virtually eliminated the transmission of rabies from dogs to humans.

LOCAL CONTROL

On the South Shore, animal control officers are becoming extremely cautious.

In Marshfield, Animal Control Officer Norma Hawkins said she is part of a statewide task force established by the state public health department that meets once a month. She has established an aggressive policy for dealing with animal bites.

Animals known to have been bitten by other animals are quarantined for 10 days, Hawkins said. Local veterinarians are also ordering pet owners to isolated and confine household pets with wounds of an unknown origin for periods ranging from three to six months, depending on how recently they have been vaccinated.

"We have had so many cases in the past three or four months," Hawkins said. "I already have 40 animals on the house quarantine list."

Hawkins says she tries to monitor pet owners for compliance, but with only a part-time assistant, there just isn't enough manpower to handle the demand.

Even so, Marshfield is in better shape than some surrounding towns.

Hull has no animal control officer while Cohasset's William Quigley is scheduled to work only 10 hours per week. Between the epizootic of distemper raging in the raccoon population and the rabies scare, he has been averaging 18 hours a week.

Even in communities with full-time animal control officers, job demands may outstrip the number of hours available.

"Between unlicensed dogs, strays, injured and dead animals, I'm pretty much straight out every day already," Hingham Animal Control Officer Albert Currie said. With no pound facilities for quarantining animals suspected of exposure to rabies, Currie wonders how he will deal with the new crisis brewing. Past history does not reassure him.

"I get 50 cases of dog bites in the course of a year," he said.

DANGER AHEAD

Animal experts expect things will get worse when warmer weather returns and more animals are out and about. With both rabies and distemper raging through the animal kingdom, there will be little rest for the weary.

"We were inundated this spring, summer and fall," Quigley said. "I had at least over a100 cases easily. At one point it got so bad I had to go before the selectmen to increase my hours from 10 hours a week to whatever was needed."

"I've already had a half-dozen suspected cases involving house cats, wild cats and skunks. Luckily they were all negative," he said. He, too, expects his luck will change.

"It's just a matter of time," Quigley said. "Any mammal can get rabies. It really is hard to control.

TESTING FOR RABIES

The only way to confirm whether an animal is infected by rabies is through laboratory testing.

The procedure requires that the animal be killed, decapitated and the head sent for testing within 24 hours. Although the state laboratory conducts the testing at no charge, communities must prepare and transport the skulls to Jamaica Plain. If a community uses the services of a veterinarian to prepare the carcass, it can become a substantial expense.

And in many cases, raccoons suspected of rabies infection have turned out to be infected with the distemper strain running rampant through animals on the South Shore.

"It's playing havoc with the budget," Currie said. Dr. Greg Mertz of New England Wildlife Center in Hingham estimated it costs the center $100-$130 per animal for euthanasia, surgery and transport fees. They prepared 25-30 animals for testing in 1992. The center gets at least one or two calls every day about wildlife suspected of carrying rabies or distemper.

In the three months since the first positive case, the number of suspected cases has risen dramatically. In December alone, the state laboratory in Jamaica Plain tested 186 animals. Seventeen tests were positive.

Young children should be instructed to stay away from animals, no matter how cute and tame they appear. Most importantly, officials urge, don't panic. As long as you vaccinate your pets and use common sense, the risk is minimal.

Domestic violence: Epidemic emerging from behind closed doors, to front pages

An epidemic is engulfing our nation: one for which the medical community has no quick cure.

It is a plague of violence not in our streets but in our homes, or those of neighbors. It devastates families. It destroys lives. It is domestic violence, a crime against women, children, and the elderly, and it is reaching record numbers in the Commonwealth and on the South Shore.

Domestic violence strikes indiscriminately, regardless of race, age, income, or level of education. The term refers to woman-battering, child abuse, sexual assault and incest, sibling abuse and elder abuse. Every year, up to 4 million women are battered by spouses or "partners," more than 2 million cases of child abuse and neglect are reported, and as many as 1.1 million of the elderly are abused.

The chilling accounts seen almost daily in the media are testimony to the staggering increase in the number of victims, particularly of partner violence. In recent months in America, a woman has been killed on the average of every eight days as a result of domestic abuse. The number of battering injuries suffered by women is higher than the total number of injuries from car accidents, muggings, and rapes combined, shamefully making battering the most common cause of traumatic injury to women in the United States.

According to statistics from Plymouth's South Shore Women's Center, which provides community outreach, legal, educational, counseling and shelter services to the region, the South Shore is no different from other communities. Reported violence is on the rise. For example, the organization's Court Advocacy Program assisted more than 1,300 women last year to obtain and enforce protective orders under the Abuse Prevention Act. The Center received a record 4,400 calls from South Shore residents for assistance and referrals, and it is anticipated that 1993 requests will surpass that figure.

Because hospital staff are often the first, if not the only professionals encountered by victims of domestic violence, the medical community is playing a crucial role in identifying and counseling at-risk patients. Some reliable estimates say that a history of partner violence is indicated in one of seven women seeking general medical care in office practices, and one in three women seen in hospital emergency departments.

Hospital staff are learning more about domestic violence today than ever before, through a variety of educational tools and programs that help them respond to the issue of domestic abuse in families. We at South Shore Hospital commend the many state and national medical organizations that are providing these services to health care professionals, who are in a unique position to help stem the tide of epidemic violence in the home.

Physicians and nurses at South Shore Hospital are trained to recognize this widespread problem, and are providing caring, compassionate treatment to the growing number of victims they encounter.

We also applaud the work of the many South Shore organizations which play a critical role in assisting victims and educating the community about domestic violence and related issues. To help these groups deal with the epidemic of violence in the home, we support Governor William Weld's proposed allocation of an additional $7.7 million for fiscal 1994 to fund new and expanded programs for battered women.

If the Legislature approves this request, the state would spend $16.25 million in fiscal 1994 on programs related to domestic violence, including the expansion of existing grants and contracts for counseling and shelter services, and increased funding of existing domestic violence units in district attorney's offices.

As cities and towns across the South Shore grapple with the issue of domestic violence, we encourage Massachusetts legislators to play a leadership role by supporting this much needed funding increase. If you agree, please contact your legislators and request their backing of the governor's proposal.

For more information about resources for domestic violence, call the Massachusetts Coalition of Battered Women Service Groups at (617) 426-8492.

We welcome your comments on this or any other articles in the series. Please call the Public Affairs Department at (617) 340-8564, or write to us.

Pancake breakfast: family fun at a great price

The best buy in town Sunday morning was breakfast at the high school cafeteria.

For just 93 cents, locals could chow down on pancakes, eggs, home fries, sausage and juice — served with a smile and the enthusiasm that comes with good works.

The event was part of the second annual, town-wide drug and alcohol-free weekend which featured a myriad of activities from a Friday night basketball game to 'sundae' fun.

"This is the result of a tremendous community-wide effort by a whole lot of people," said Drug and Alcohol committee member Ralph Kidder, who was enjoying the breakfast with his family Sunday.

"This brought the whole community together around a real tough social issue," he said.

Coach Ron Ford was also on hand, still smiling after Cohasset High's Friday night win over East Bridgewater.

He said about 800 spectators were on hand for the game.

Ford explained that he discussed substance abuse with the team.

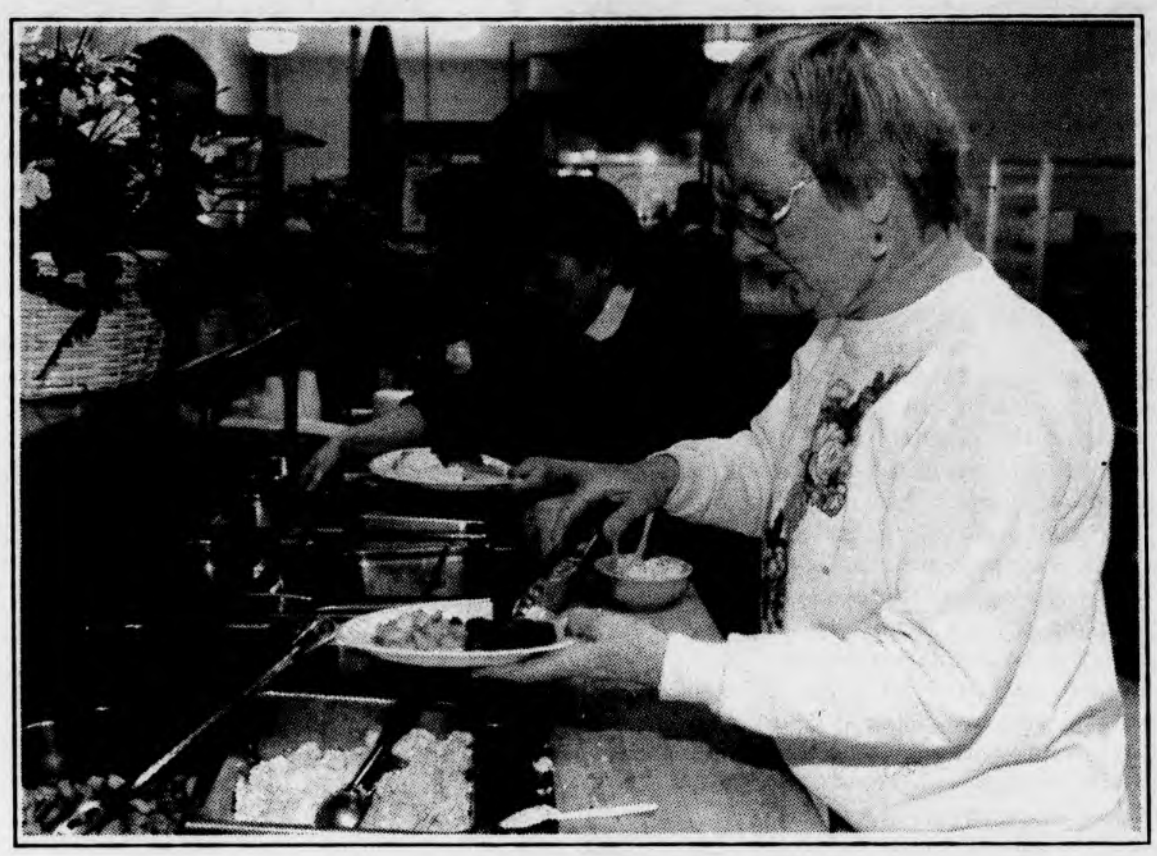
"Our kids upheld no drinking during the season," Ford said emphatically. He added that Cohasset's rules are stricter than the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association's. In Cohasset kids aren't suspended for a game or two but for the entire season if they drink.

"The players put pressure on each other and that means on and off the court," Ford said.

Cohasset Chamber of Commerce president Bob Martin said he came to the breakfast because "the price is right."

He added the entire weekend was a great way to get people together.

Kidder explained that the planning committee will meet in a few days to discuss the weekend — which involves no public money — and how to improve it for next year.



Paula Knowles, who chaired the drug-free weekend committee, and Mary Mack serve up lots of pancakes for hungry customers Sunday morning in the high school cafeteria.

Lady Skippers lose, men win against Clippers

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

The Cohasset boys' and girls' basketball squads were sitting at opposite ends of the emotional spectrum this week after the girls dropped a tough 73-39 loss to the Norwell Skippers, while just 20 minutes down the road, the boys were taking the measure of Norwell, 55-51, in a thrilling encounter.

The girls are now 1-11 for the year, 0-10 in SSL play, while the boys squad upped their record to 8-6, and are currently tied for third place with Norwell with an 8-4 South Shore League record.

Girls' coach Loreen White stopped just short of taking volunteers from the stands to play for her squad, as the team was depleted to just seven players due to absence and injury.

White was missing regular starting guard Katie Carrol who fractured a bone in her ankle earlier this season. First-team center Adrienne DeVaughn also didn't play.

One of the seven available players was Megan Rhodes, who White said was "not really near 100 percent yet after the strained muscle she suffered in her shoulder recently. But I guess she is a quick healer."

Rhodes turned out to be a quick enough healer to lead the Skippers with 15 points.

Erin Murphy chipped in with 10 points in the losing effort.

The Lady Skippers got off to a slow start, getting down by as much as 12, early in the first half.

They fought back though, and after two baskets each by Murphy and Rhodes, and a pair of free-throws from Liz Corcoran, were right back in the game at 21-16.

But Norwell returned the favor after calling a time-out of its own. The Clippers then went on a scoring spree of their own to push the lead to 39-20 at the half.

The leading scorer for Norwell was senior guard Nancy Spring, who poured in 23 from just about every conceivable angle on the floor. Julie Christie added 13 of her own for the victorious Clippers.

The boys' squad had a fight on its hands as a scrappy Norwell team battled to the last second in the 55-51, Cohasset victory.

Paul Bilodeau, who is fourth in the SSL in scoring with 16-plus, led the varied offensive charge with 20 points as nine Skippers reached the scoring sheet.

Doug Ellinger chipped in 10 points also in the winning effort, while the Norwell team was lead by Mark Hetzel, who poured in a game high 21 points. He also pulled down 12 rebounds in a losing cause.

The Skippers dominated the first half by using their distinct height advantage to try and pound the ball inside to Peter Bishop and Chris Goodman. Cohasset took a 26-18 lead into halftime.

Although Norwell never did lead in the game, the Clippers saved their best for last as they pulled to as close as 51-49 with 40 seconds left. But they were unable to capitalize on their golden chance to take the lead when Skipper sophomore Joe Slotnick stole the Clippers' attempted inbounds pass, and got the ball up-court to Bilodeau. He was fouled on his drive to the hoop and missed the front end of the one-and-one free-throws.

But Skipper fans needed not worry as Slotnick, once again, interjected himself into the mix as he grabbed the rebound and and got the ball out to Ellinger. He was immediately fouled with only 30 seconds left to play with Norwell still just three points back.

Ellinger kept with the best case-scenario for Norwell and missed his free-throw. The ball, though, ended up in Bilodeau's arms and he was fouled immediately with 17 seconds left.

Skipper fans saw a light at the end of the tunnel when Bilodeau sunk both of his foul shots.

Norwell streaked right back with a Hetzel jumper to trail 53-51 with 10 seconds remaining in the contest.

Bilodeau was fouled again on the in-bounds play and sank the last two free-throws to end the exciting encounter.

Both the boys' and girls' squads are beginning to wind down the season schedule. The girls finish out their last three games of the year, taking on Scituate on Friday and Hanover next Monday at home. They then travel to Hull to finish out the year on Feb. 10.

The boys play Scituate on Friday and then Hanover on Feb. 8. Cohasset plays Hull two days later before traveling to Medway for its tournament on Feb. 14 and 15.

The Mass State Tourney is expected to begin on Feb. 19, and a invitation to participate is possible for the boys squad.

Cohasset hockey merger with Hull seems unlikely

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Cohasset High officials project there will be more than enough players to field a varsity hockey team for at least the next four years without having to merge with Hull.

Twenty-one players have been projected to be on the team by the '96-97 season. There are currently 19 players on the Skippers' roster.

The projection, based on the number of players now on the team and plus two-thirds of the Seahawk/Metro League players who were between the ages of 10 and 14 on Dec. 31, 1992, who are not on the high school team.

The projected numbers were presented by Cohasset High Athletic Director Clark Chatterton at the Hockey Boosters meeting, Monday night.

"All we're doing is presenting information," said Chatterton, who has until May 1 to submit a merger package to the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA).

In order for the merger with Hull to even be considered, Chatterton said, it has to be agreed upon by the school committees, coaches and athletic directors from both towns.

Hull Athletic Director John Anderson and varsity hockey coach Mike O'Donnell both said last week they would support combining squads if it would keep hockey alive in Hull. The program has lost several talented players to private schools in recent years because of talk that hockey would be cut from the athletic program.

Cohasset JV coach Kevin Lewis said it has to be proved to the school committee that there are enough numbers to support a hockey team, which was shown with the four-year projections presented by Chatterton.

Lewis said he would favor a merger if there was a need.

"Lets face it," he said, "if we had 10 kids and Hull had 15 a merger would make sense."

The strong opposition from parents was still prevalent as 20 attended the meeting.

Twenty-seven parents and players signed a Jan. 26 letter to CHS Principal Mary Gallagher, citing their reasons against joining together with Hull.

"I think they stated their case in the letter and I didn't see any change from that," said Cohasset varsity coach Dennis Walsh. "I think the parents voiced their opinion and the school committee will make its decision. Whatever happens, happens."

Ellen Endris, one of the parents who signed the letter, said they "we're pretty much all agreed" to keep the team in town.

"If we did merge with another town," she said, "a lot of our kids wouldn't play. We feel badly for Hull but our interests are for our own kids."

Endris said, however, if a proposal by Gov. William Weld passed, which would allow students to decide what school they want attend, "it could turn out that Hull kids may come to Cohasset to play hockey anyway."

Lewis said another issue that arose at the meeting was how could the present team, and those in the next couple of years, be more competitive.

Cohasset has the smallest amount of students of any school in the South Shore League between grades nine and 12. The 306 students are 150 less than the next smallest school in the league.

Lewis believes an alternative was for the Skippers to play every team in the league twice rather than three times. At the same time, more non-league games against comparable squads such as Boston Latin and South Boston could be scheduled.

Chatterton, though, said he is concerned with the possibility of the SSL and Atlantic Coast League merging in hockey. Cohasset's swimming, gymnastics and wrestling teams all compete outside the SSL because of small rosters.

If the two leagues did merge, some of the schools would be four times the size of Cohasset.

"That's the last thing I want us to do is merge with the Atlantic Coast," Chatterton said. "I just don't think we can compete with the bigger teams on a regular basis."

Skipper JV's on winning streak

The Cohasset JV hockey team extended its unbeaten streak to three with victories over Brockton and Norwell, and a tie with Marshfield. The team tied Marshfield 3-3. "Bubba" Kinchla had two goals and Kevin Smith added one. Mike Shields and Matt Graves had assists.

In a one-goal game, the Skippers defeated Norwell 6-5. Mike Riley, Pat Reynolds, Kevin McKenna, and Mike Shields were the goal scorers.

The team shut out Brockton 2-0 behind the strong goaltending of Geoff Tozzi and Steve Baker. Shields and Ed Hamilton scored for the winners. Matt Lewis and Kevin Smith had assists.

Matt O'Connor, Adam Donovan, and Graves were solid on defense. Kinchla, Graves and Ridge played well up front.

Pain doesn't stand in Gallagher's way . . .

her to perform were one-armed, back-handsprings.

The elbow finally healed, but Gallagher was in for another unpleasant setback.

She badly sprained her ankle last September, this time while trying to do the same move. Gallagher was eventually put in a cast because the ankle wasn't healing as fast as it should have.

Gallagher became extremely frustrated and was on the verge of following her doctor's advice to quit gymnastics permanently.

But she decided to tough it out.

"Doctors hate gymnasts," Gallagher said with a laugh. "After I went to see my second doctor I was thinking of it (quitting). He told me to quit gymnastics but I had put so much into it and it was my senior year."

Gallagher's coach Ruthann Sargent understands her motives for coming back and continuing, despite the pain. Sargent, too, had her doubts about Gallagher's return.

"I'm actually surprised she's been able to stick it out," Sargent said. "But once you get involved, you love the sport. I was concerned that she was going to get hurt worse. It has been frustrating for her. Here's a senior who wants to do her best but hasn't looked her best. But I'm glad she stuck it out."

And like last year, the injury has held Gallagher back in competition.

"Its really only affected my floor," she said, "because I can't do any tumbling. In high school if you don't do any flips with no hands it hurts your score. I can't do them because it hurts my ankle too much."

Even with the injury, Gallagher has turned out to be Cohasset's top gymnast. She has been the overall winner in six of seven dual meets and recorded a score of 8.2 on the uneven bars, which, along with the bars, is Gallagher's favorite event. In the one all-around she didn't win, Gallagher finished second.

In Monday night's 117.1-92.3 win over Hanover, Gallagher set a personal best of 8.3 on the beam and a season best of 8.0 for her floor exercise. She placed first in all four events on the way to a 31.8 all-around win.

The bars, though, is where she excels the most.

"I guess it just comes easier to me," she said of her success. "It's mostly keeping everything moving. You can't stop. You have to work on upper-body strength."

Gallagher says the key to her gymnastics success is a combination of the upper-body strength and the ability to stay focused and relaxed during competitions. The only time she becomes nervous is prior to a major meet against quality gymnasts.

"It depends on my competition," she said. "High school's not really that nerve racking. You have a few meets in a week, so if you don't do well you can redeem yourself a few nights later in another meet."

"I think Tara's attitude has made her more relaxed," Sargent added. "She tries to hit personal goals and not put pressure on herself. Tara will just say 'oh well, I messed up on that routine.'"

One meet, though, where Gallagher is sure to be nervous is the South Sectional Tournament, an event that which has grown in importance to her this season.

"It's important for me to make it," she said. I've never made it before so it'll be interesting to see how I do."

Gallagher was third in the SSL Meet as a sophomore, the same position she's expecting this year.

"I'm going to go in thinking I'll get third because I don't want to put too much pressure on myself," she said. "If I don't put pressure on myself I do well."

Without her injured ankle, Gallagher believes she could improve on third.

"Julie's (Scituate gymnast, Smollett) incredible," she said, "but Leslie (Whitaker of Carver High) and I have pretty much the same ability. But she doesn't have a bad ankle. She'll be able to do some things I can't."

Sargent, though, sees Gallagher's injury as a blessing in disguise, in a roundabout way.

Because she has been forced to stay away from practicing the more difficult moves, Gallagher has concentrated on her dancing and technique. Sargeant said they both have "become very clean" and she could make up the points in those areas during her routines.

There is also pressure on Whitaker to hold onto second place behind Smollett, who is the class of the SSL. With no pressure on Gallagher, a smooth performance could get her the second spot.

But Sargent believes Gallagher also wants to make up for time lost due to her injury.

"I'm also sure Tara has felt cheated," she said. "I really think she wants to show everyone in the league how much she has suffered and how good she really is."

Gallagher says she has gotten far more from gymnastics than the strength she has developed working out six hours a week in the off-season and eight during the winter. The sport has tested her both physically and mentally, as well as teaching her how to win and lose gracefully.

"It's good for your confidence," she said. "You have to get out there alone and you learn how to lose because it's competitive. When I was younger I was upset when I lost, but now in high school it relaxes me.

"I've been doing it for so long and it's an individual sport," Gallagher continued. "Even if the team isn't very good, you can work out and do well on your own. It's the type of sport where you have to work a long time to get results."

Gallagher has gotten results. And she'll more than likely be getting some pretty impressive ones in the coming weeks. Then maybe the pain will subside a little more.

Gymnasts prepared for Carver

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

What was a good enough performance to defeat Hanover earlier in the week by the Cohasset girls' gymnastics team, may not be potent enough to drop Carver High School in the battle for second place in the South Shore League.

A victory over the Crusaders on Thursday will guarantee the Skippers (8-3) second place in the league.

But Cohasset head coach Ruthann Sargeant says her squad will have to turn it up a notch from the 117.1-92.3 win over the Indians on Monday.

An off-night on the Bars put the Skippers behind by three points until strong showings on the Beam and Floor Exercise gave Cohasset a lead it would not relinquish.

"Against Carver we can't perform like that," said Sargeant of Cohasset's low scores on the Bars. "We had a good performance on beam and it pulled us up."

The Bars will be the first event against the Crusaders and Sargeant is gearing the Skippers to go after the dog that bit them.

"We need to get a headstart," she said. We're a much better team than them on Bars. It's really going to be who masters the Balance Beam."

Cohasset will again look to co-captain Tara Gallagher against Carver. Gallagher swept every event in the Hanover meet, setting a personal best in the Beam (8.3) and a season best in the Floor exercise (8.0).

Jodi Colwill finished behind Gallagher in the Beam, also hitting a personal record of 7.6. Erica Hettstrom followed with a 7.3.

The strong showing made up for the relatively low Bar scores of 6.8 and 6.2 from Meghan Pratt and Julie Smith.

Gallagher, Colwill and Hettstrom also swept the vault, while the 31.0 team score in the Floor was the best of the season. Hettstrom (7.8) and Pratt (7.7) finished second and third to Gallagher.

Smith (7.5), Carolyn Pratt (7.4) and Maggie Goedecke (5.6) all hit personal bests in the Floor.

Spring soccer registration ongoing

There are still some openings on the Boys Under 10 Team, Boys Under 8 Team and Girls Under 8 Team. Any young athletes in grades kindergarten through fourth who were born after August 1, 1984 are eligible to play on these in-town teams. The season begins April 3 and will continue for 10 weeks for the Boys Under 10 and for eight to 10 weeks for the Boys and Girls Under 8 teams. The cost is: Boys Under 10: $40; Boys Under 8: $30; Girls Under 8: $30.

All soccer players will be issued a uniform and the game schedules will not conflict with Little League. Depending on the numbers, the players in each league will be divided into two age groups.

Additional registration forms are available at either the Deer Hill School Office or the Joseph Osgood School Office.

All registrations must be returned to: Cohasset Soccer Club, 38 Linden Drive, Cohasset, MA 02025 by Friday, February 12. There will be no exceptions.

The Cohasset Soccer club is also sponsoring two courses this spring for any interested individuals.

Nominations for next year's board members begin soon. Discover what positions are available for next year's executive board. If a board position isn't your style, there is ample opportunity to participate at the committee level doing fund raising, METCO, community relations, mailings, and much more.

Whether you are a parent who has been active in the past, or you are new to the school system, your ideas, suggestions, and questions will be welcomed.

Please join the PSO Executive Board for an informal discussion about how parents can participate in the schools, and enrich the education experience for their children and themselves.

The PSO open forum is Thursday, Feb. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at Cohasset High School senior study.

Early release day

February 4 is an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools. There are no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

School	Buses Depart
Junior/Senior High	12 p.m.
Deer Hill School	12:25 p.m.
Joseph Osgood School	12:55 p.m.

Lunch will be served in the elementary schools and food service will be available at the junior/senior high school.

This early release day has been approved by the Cohasset School Committee to allow the staff at Joseph Osgood to conduct parent conferences. Deer Hill School staff will have three CORD programs-demonstrations of new software, health curriculum training and an explanation of the Woodcock Johnson Test. The staff at the high school will continue exploration of innovative strategies of instruction and assessment.

Bulger is on cable

Thursday, Feb. 4, Host Wigmore Pierson's guest on Pierson to Person is Massachusetts Senate President William M. Bulger (D-Boston).

Topics to be discussed include the Boston Garden, walking-the-beach bills, education reform, 1994 elections, term limits and Governor Weld.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m., from the on on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

For further information call 545-2500.

Encore! this weekend

Several Cohasset singers are featured in Mass. Hysteria's "Review of 1992," a satiric look at people in the news during the year just ended, when the Unicorn Singers and Broad Cove Chorale perform their Encore! concert at Brandon Woods (110 Charles St., Hingham) this Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

The talented Hingham writers of parody have also created a brand new mini-version of Gilbert & Sullivan's popular "HMS Pinafore," which takes place on the Hingham commuter boat, the "M.V. Albacore," during a morning trip to Boston.

This year's concert also features a superb jazz quartet performing several portions of the Bolling flute and jazz piano trio suite, in an "encore" of the Cohasset First Night concert at First Parish Church.

Patrons are encouraged to purchase reserved tables for 6 — while they last — at $60 for Saturday night at 8 p.m. or $48 for Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m., and to bring a festive picnic to enjoy during the concert. A portion of the room's 200 seats will be saved for those who prefer to buy single unreserved seats, also at tables for 6, at $10 on Saturday or $8 on Sunday. Tickets will not be available at the door; they should be purchased at Noble's Camera in Hingham Square. For more information or to make reservations, leave a message before Saturday at 749-6561.

Preparing to survive

Preparing to survive alone financially, sponsored by the Cohasset Social Service League, is Tues., Feb. 9, from 10 a.m. to noon, free of charge at Walter Rogers Hall in St. Stephen's Church.

The program is presented by Mary Hartwell, Cohasset Social Service League; and Valerie Brown-Matherly, Real Estate and Probate attorney with Friedman, Handler & Karp.

Love-o-grams offered

The Second Congregational Church Youth Group of Cohasset holds a general information meeting Sunday, Feb. 7, at 7:30 p.m.in Bates Hall. All interested parents, potential advisors and benefactors are invited to attend.

Valentine Love-O-Gram. Song or sonnet. To help raise money for the Appalachia Service Project, the youth group will telephone a loved one on the 14th with a singing valentine or an amorous poem.

The cost is $3 for one or $5 for two. (Can you really put a price tag on love?) For more information or to order, call the church at 383-0345 .

SAFE, a citizens' group opposed to expansion of the Cohasset Heights Landfill (CHL), sponsors a Dump Walk, at 2 p.m., Sunday (Feb. 7).

Participants should meet at the entrance to Whitney Woods, Rte. 3A. The purpose of the walk is to see CHL from the conservation land around it.

For more information please call 383-6202 or 383-1829.

Amateur Gardeners meet

The Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset meet Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 1 p.m. for the Annual Recipe Exchange Luncheon at the home of Mrs. Martha Hurtig. Co-hostess is Mrs. Jean Gould.

AFS weekend slated

The Cohasset Chapter of AFS Intercultural Programs has planned a special international weekend Feb. 4 to 6. Beginning this afternoon, several Cohasset families will welcome to their homes 10 AFS students in the South Shore area, as well as some of their host brothers and sisters.

. This event provides a new experience for the students and gives Cohasset families a chance to learn more about the AFS program. The weekend includes dinner with the families Thursday evening, a full day of classes at Cohasset High School Friday, as well as activities planned specifically for the AFSers by some of the teachers and a get-together just after school.

Friday evening the families and their young guests gather at the First Parish House for a pot-luck supper. Each AFSer will be introduced by AFS area representative Marge Farrell, and all will be invited to tell the group something about themselves and their home countries. Following the dinner there will be a party for the AFSers and their local hosting students.

Anyone who would like to attend the dinner, or who might be interested in more information about AFS programs, please call Liz Kuhn at 383-0580.

On the lighthouse trail

James W. Hyland, founder and chairman of the Lighthouse Preservation Society is the featured speaker on lighthouse history at Kimball's, Tuesday, March 2, beginning at 6:45 p.m.

The Cohasset Historical Society and the Cohasset Lightkeepers' Corporation are jointly sponsoring the dinner (6:45 p.m.) and slideshow (8 p.m.).

Proceeds will equally benefit the Historical Society's "Save the Museums" Fund and the rehabilitation of the Lightkeepers' home on Government Island by the Cohasset Lightkeepers' Corporation.

"Everyone loves lighthouses," Hyland says. "Recently a great deal of media attention has focused on how to preserve these important maritime treasures. With automation and severe budget cutbacks threatening many of these sites with neglect, the future of America's lighthouses is in question. At the forefront of national concern on this subject is the Lighthouse Preservation Society, a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation and documentation of our country's lighthouse heritage."

Reservations ($25/person) may be made by calling the Cohasset Historical Society at 383-6930 or the Cohasset Lightkeepers' at 383-0505. All checks should be payable to the Cohasset Historical Society, c/o 14 Summer Street, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Nancy Hansen-Connolly

Nancy Hansen-Connolly combines the best of both worlds.

The local artist uses stories and books to create art.

"I'm attracted to illustrations and I love to read," says the Doane Street resident.

special friends

So taking children into the world of African and African-American folklore — as Nancy will during her upcoming library workshops — is a natural match for her interest and talent.

"I use storytelling as a way to get children involved," she explains. "It's like building something, like building a structure but with words."

During the workshops, Feb. 16 and 18 at the Paul Pratt Library, Nancy will tell children about how tribal art relates to African stories.

She explains that when Africans were brought over as slaves, they couldn't bring anything with them except their stories.

"Stories shared were a way of keeping people together," she notes.

During the first workshop, the children will create masks from clay following a Swazi folktale, called "The Moss Green Princess."

Masks can express a mood and Nancy encourages participants to "tell me how it feels."

"And I hope to get them interested in using books as a reference," she adds.

The second workshop features an African-American story called "Sukey and the Mermaid," which takes place on an island off the coast of South Carolina.

Children will create two-dimensional drawings about the story using craypas, a type of soft, wax crayons and then will paint over their drawing, which can then be etched into, creating a unique effect.

Nancy hopes the workshops will spark the children's interest in folktales.

"I hope they'll want to find out more about them," she says. "And look at the book list in the library which has a good collection of stories from different countries."

The workshops, which are open for children in grades one-through-five, are 1-1/2 hours long and are paid for through a grant from the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council. There is no charge for admission or materials. Pre-registration is required by calling the library at 383-1348. There is also a sign-up sheet at the library.

Nancy, who holds a bachelor of fine arts from the Mass. College of Art, is a faculty member of the South Shore Arts Center and Fuller Museum. She has also participated in artist-in-residence programs in Hingham, Cohasset, and Scituate schools.

She enjoys reading historical fiction and adds she's had "a long term love affair with the library."

Pro-lifers hear battle cry to fight fetal tissue trials

By Mary Ford

'Technically and morally, are there things we should not do and not use our tax dollars to fund.'

— Dr. Joseph Stanton

A 200-plus, standing-room-only crowd packed the large basement room at Resurrection Church in Hingham Sunday to listen to and pay homage to a man who has never flinched in his opposition to abortion.

And Stanton — who is active with Massachusetts Citizens for Life and his local organization, the Brighton-based Value of Life Committee — seized the moment with powerful rhetoric to sound the alarm among pro-life groups about something new: fetal tissue research.

Stanton was invited to speak by the Right to Life Committee (RLC) at Resurrection Parish. The group's spokesman Bob O'Brien said the RLC is dedicated to providing education on right-to-life issues like fetal tissue research.

Although the use of fetal tissue in research has been conducted legally on a small scale, with the influx of federal dollars following President Clinton's executive order, the industry will explode, Stanton said.

Not only is the 73-year-old, Yale-educated medical doctor appalled by the new president's lifting of the ban on use of federal dollars for this purpose — he raised the legal question of who holds the rights or guardianship over the unborn.

"We're supposed to allow the parent or guardian to act in the best interest of the child. But if the material protector has ordained that child be killed.

"Can the parent give valid permission to use the tiny body for medical research?" Stanton asks.

"If we do, we pay a price. And if we fund it with our tax dollars. Does it do something to us?"

Stanton likened the use of fetal tissue for research to the crimes against

SAFE: landfill expansion plans should be dumped

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Three strikes and you're out — unless you are the Cohasset Heights Landfill, Inc.

The waste disposal concern recently made a fourth request to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA) to expand its present 23-acre landfill to an adjoining 14.2-acre parcel.

EOEA rejected three former applications to enlarge the refuse area.

The landfill abuts Route 3A and Crocker Lane and was established in 1976.

In her decision to deny CHL's third attempt at expansion, Environmental Affairs Secretary Susan Tierney said the project, "does not adequately and properly comply" with the state's environmental policy act.

Cohasset Heights Landfill, Inc. (CHL) has now submitted another expansion request in the form of a second supplemental draft environmental impact report (SSDEIR).

CHL owner Paul Barry would not say he was optimistic about getting state approval this time around.

But Barry did say, if rejected, he plans to try again.

"It's a business like any other business," he said.

"(Expansion) is a way to stay in business and make a living."

EOEA will not make a decision until after Feb. 24 — the last day for receipt of public comments on the project.

According to the report, CHL proposes to increase the tonnage of trash accepted at the landfill per day from 299 to 500.

And construction and demolition debris would no longer be the only type of waste accepted at the landfill.

Garbage, institutional and municipal waste, and commercial solid waste would also be buried at the dump.

The plan also calls for construction of two materials facilities. A recycling facility

The Keelers have a partnership in life and business

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

You can't keep the Keelers out of the kitchen — technically-speaking.

The dynamic husband and wife team operate the Red Lion Inn in Cohasset and the newly-opened Hingham Landing in Hingham.

During their 18-year marriage, Paul and Judy Keeler have worked side-by-side for all but four years.

"We like to work elbow-to-elbow," Judy said.

"It's more fun."

And it's more profitable.

The couple credits their "together" status for bringing a homey feeling to the historic Red Lion Inn — which has translated into more customers.

"It's like inviting people into our home," Judy said.

And it is truly a family affair. Son Matthew Keeler, 17, buses tables at the Inn while Ryan, 11, helps fold napkins.

Alas, 9-year-old Jessica has yet to take up the family trade.

"We don't want them to be restaurateurs, unless they really want to," Paul said.

The Keelers began operating the Inn in 1990 and opened their second restaurant, The Hingham Landing, in October of 1992.

♥ Love that works ♥

Remarkably, the Keelers say they don't talk shop when away from the restaurants.

"We've learned how to separate our family life from our business life," Paul said.

"Not as much though early in our careers."

One recreational pursuit which used to test the separation rule was dining out.

"It was awful," Judy said.

"We'd go out to dinner and he'd be flipping stuff over to see where the china was from and critiquing everything."

"I waited until the plate was empty," Paul reminded his wife dryly.

With The Hingham Landing off to a successful start, Paul spends about 70 hours a week at the Hingham restaurant.

Cohasset's week

Firefighters are interviewed

Selectmen interviewed three young men from the Civil Service local preference list Monday night to full a firefighter/EMT vacancy in the fire department.

Cohasset resident John J. Dockray, who is employed with Hingham Mutual Fire Insurance, said he's always wanted to be a firefighter.

"The job gives you a personal high," said Dockray, who is a call firefighter with the Cohasset Fire Department. "It gives me a sense of accomplishment."

Brian M. Peebles, who is temporarily living in Springfield but would relocate to Cohasset, said he likes to help people. Peebles is employed as an EMT with a private ambulance company.

"I like helping people and combining use of my brain and my back," he said.

Michael J. Worley, a Dedham resident, personal experiences sparked his interest in being a firefighter.

"The Quincy fire department came to my house twice. Once when my father had chest pain and to put out an electrical fire," he said.

Worley is an EMT with Brewster Ambulance in Boston.

All three men indicated a local preference for Cohasset on the civil service list.

Selectmen took the matter of appointing a new firefighter under advisement until their next board meeting Feb. 22.

Town hall use approved

Selectmen will allow the MBTA citizens' advisory committee to use the town hall auditorium for the group's Feb. 25 meeting.

Bill payments okay'ed

Selectmen approved payment of the bills:

- $853.05 to Tibbetts Engineering Corp. for engineering services for the month of December for the Doane St. project.
- $1,394 to Civil Designs Inc. for engineering services for beach and highway repairs for Sept. 18 through Jan. 31 .
- $495.08 to Goodwin, Procter and Hoar for legal services for the sewer department for the month of December.
- $2,150 to Nucci Vine Assoc. for professional services regarding harbor dredging for Oct. 10 through Jan. 25.
- $2,467.50 to town counsel Richard A. Henderson for professional services for the month of December.
- $52,296.31 to J. B. D'Allessandro Corp., the contractor hired for the Doane Street culvert project.

Treasures in the attic

The library plans to dispose of some of its attic treasures, according to Trustee Sheila Evans.

Proceeds from the sale of items ranging from oil paintings to a brass andirons will go to the library's endowment fund.

"We had decided it's our fiduciary duty to turn unused gifts into money to be added to the endowment," Evans told selectmen.

By law, selectmen must declare the items surplus.

The library's endowment is $350,000, Evans said. The $12,000 income from the endowment supports the library budget.

Evans said auction houses are interested in some of the more valuable items.

One of the more unique items on the list is a plaster cast bust of Fabian Hall, who was an editor of the Harvard Crimson around 1909. Harvard would like the bust, she said.

Roberts nabbed in raid

The former owner of Roberts Food Marts in Hanover and Cohasset was arrested on drug charges Feb. 7 when agents of the South Shore Drug Task Force, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the Plymouth County sheriff's department raided a Humarock home.

William D. Roberts, 34, of 18 Brunswick St., Scituate, was charged with one count of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute, possession of cocaine and conspiracy to violate the drug laws.

Also arrested in the raid was Charles S. Hegarty, 40, also of 18 Brunswick St. He was charged with two counts of possession of cocaine, a class B substance, with intent to distribute and two counts of conspiracy to violate the controlled substance laws. He was also charged with possession of cocaine.

Scituate Police Chief Thomas Neilen said the raid and subsequent arrests resulted from a month-long investigation. He added that about 10 grams of cocaine were seized in the raid.

Both men pleaded innocent Feb. 8 in Hingham District Court. Judge Alvin Tamkin continued their cases until Feb. 19.

No all-night parking

Through March 15, overnight parking is prohibited on any Cohasset street.

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on any street for longer than one hour between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. during this period, police said.

Nomination papers ready

Nomination papers for the town election on Saturday, April 3, are available at the Town Clerks office.

The last day for candidates to obtain nomination papers is today, Thursday, Feb. 11 until 7 p.m.

All nomination papers must be submitted to the registrars of voters for certification of names and addresses on or before 5 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 16.

What's open, what's not

Presidents' Day will be observed Monday, Feb. 15, and that means federal, state and local government offices will be closed, as will be schools and libraries.

There will be no mail service, and the stock market and banks will be closed as well.

According to the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, manufacturing plants, retail stores and supermarkets, liquor stores, taverns and bars can be open.

Amethyst, recognized as the birthstone for February, is a variety of quartz that varies in color from a light lavender to a blackened purple. Ideally it is a deep medium purple with reddish overtones. The color purple has long been a favorite of royalty and is seen in many of the crown jewels.

It was once believed to bring peace of mind and to also prevent intoxication!

Amethyst should be protected from extreme heat and sunshine that can fade its color, but it is quite durable and of sufficient hardness to be worn everyday.

This Valentine's Day plan a visit to King Jewelers and view our fine collection of amethyst gems.

Parks to stay user-fee free

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Tree and Park Supt. Peter Laugelle walked away empty handed Monday night.

Still stinging from ever-tightening budgets, Laugelle tried to make a case for charging user fees for use of town fields to generate enough revenue to maintain the fields.

But for the most part selectmen didn't like what they heard.

"With budgets severely cut, other towns have gotten to this point," Laugelle argued

He proposed collecting $5 per head for children over 12 and adults who participate in softball leagues, men's football, the South Shore Soccer Camp, and baseball clinic sponsored by the Cohasset Community Center.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said it "made sense" to charge profit-making clinics.

"But a user fee is a tax that I'm not comfortable with," he said. "There are two different issues here."

Sam Hassan, 61 Hull St., who plays men's football said that group would offer to line the fields themselves rather than pay a fee.

"I feel it's discrimination and double taxing," he said.

But Hassan said he would support charging profit-making groups a fee.

"They should pay. It's crazy not to charge them. Don't drop the ball here," he said.

Laugelle, who also sits on the recreation commission, explained that the recreation department charges a percentage to outside organizations to cover the administration costs involved in conducting registration and collecting money.

Laugelle said the bottom line is his budget needs money for seed fertilizer, and loam for the fields.

"I'm looking for money," he said. "And if we don't do something, we'll have to eliminate something."

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle suggested that Peter Laugelle argue for a higher budget on the floor of town meeting. Rocco Laugelle is opposed to fees.

"We are nickeling and diming every resident in town to death," he said.

Selectmen said they needed more data from the recreation commission and community center about the groups using the fields.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said there "are other mechanics than user fees" that could be used to raise money.

The board voted unanimously not to accept Laugelle's article to enact user fees into the warrant for town meeting.

McDonald to listen

State Senator Brian McDonald will hear comments on the proposed Cohasset Heights Landfill expansion at 8 p.m., Feb. 17 in the meeting room at Super Stop & Shop.

The information session is sponsored by SAFE, a grass roots organization opposed to the expansion.

Preparing to survive

'Preparing to Survive Alone,' presented by the Cohasset Social Service League will be shown at 8 p.m. Feb. 17 on Channel 3.

The program is presented by Mary Hartwell of the Social Service League and Valerie Brown-Matherly, real estate and probate attorney.

Cedar Tavern, Feb. 19

The Cedar Tavern in New York City was a gathering place for the artists involved in the abstract expressionist movement of the 1950's.

The Cedar Tavern at Cohasset provides a forum in which the same spirit of art can be found by the artists of Boston's South Shore.

Come join painters, poets, sculptors, dancers, photographers, writers; musicians, architects, composers, and people of your communities.

The Cedar Tavern meets at 6 p.m. on the third Friday of each month at the South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, Cohasset. Call 383-9548 or better yet, stop by.

Tablescapes IV featured

The South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, presents "Tablescapes IV," a two-day event uniting the talents of local businesses and artists, February 12 and 13. Among the 22 artists, designers and decorators participating, are many Cohasset residents and businesses.

Kathryn Morgan of Kathryn Morgan Interiors will feature "Teatime with Flowers", an elegant setting of hand-decorated china upon an imported English tea table. The table, uniquely called a "spider table" due to its eight legs swinging out from under the drop leaves, will also be complemented by a large floral painting done in the Flemish style of the late 1600's

Well-known artist Jeanne Replogle will spotlight her "Breakfast with Bunnies" setting with an original painting of children in the field. Arlene Ferreira of Country House Antiques will incorporate new and antique china, crystal and silver pieces in "Anniversary Celebration at our Country House".

Antiques are also the focus of a collaborative setting by Mary Green of the Green Gage Plum of Cohasset with son John Green and his wife Serena Brundige, of Scituate. They will replicate the interior of an old farmhouse, incorporating antiques from Mary's shop with hand-crafted wooden beams and fireplace created by John, and an original painting by Serena.

Also participating with unique table settings are Kathleen Fox of Designing Woman, Elaine Welby of No Place Like Home, Inc., and The Barn. Janet Lamp is the chairperson for the fund raiser, the proceeds of which will benefit the Art Center, a non-profit arts and educational organization serving all of the South Shore.

Tickets for Friday, Feb. 12 from 1 to 6 p.m. and Saturday, Feb. 13 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. are $10. A Champagne Reception will be held Friday evening, Feb. 12, from 6 to 9 p.m. with a $15 admission fee.

For tickets and information, please call 383-9548.

Election '93 update

As of Monday, the only races in this year's town election are for seats on the recreation commission and board of library trustees.

Two positions are available for nomination to the recreation commission, one for five years and one for four years. There are three seats up for nomination on the library trustees.

James E. Carroll, Jr. 14 Elm Ct. and Lillian M. Curley, 28 Margin Ct. have taken out papers for a seat on the recreation commission. Incumbent Richard P. Barrow is seeking re-election to a fourth term on the board. Terese Duggan, who is moving, recently stepped down from the board.

Incumbents Lucille McLoughlin, Sheila Evans, and Doris McNulty have taken out papers for library trustee along with Ellery Clark, 262 Jerusalem Rd.

Nomination papers may be obtained until 7 p.m. tonight at the town clerk's office and must submitted to the registrars of voters before 5 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 16.

Photos wanted

The South Shore Art Center has issued its annual call for entries for the 1993 Juried Photography Exhibition.

Entry forms may be requested from the Art Center by calling (617) 383-9548. Entries will be accepted at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset Friday, Feb. 19 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday, Feb. 20 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. There is an $8 non-refundable fee per entry.

Pro-lifers hear battle cry to fight fetal tissue trials

unconsenting human beings committed by the Nazis earlier in this century.

He compared Americans who look the other way to the Germans during World War II. And he warned that under the cloak of 'research' — a "redeeming feature" — abortions which occur at 4,000 a day in this country could increase.

"People asked, 'Didn't you know?' "

"But in a society where the SS was on every street corner and kids were alienated from their parents and indoctrinated by the state — possibly they may not be aware.

"But we do know that 4,000 perfectly normal unborn children are being destroyed every day in the name of parental societal convenience.

"And now we can help cure diabetes and Parkinson's disease."

Fetal tissue experiments include taking live tissue from fetuses and transplanting it into individuals suffering from Parkinson's disease or diabetes. In the case of Parkinson's disease live fetal brain tissue has been transplanted into sufferers.

"Is this not human vivisection?" he asks.

"This is America and it can't happen here.

"We are not allowed to carry out medical experimentation on non-consenting human subjects," Stanton said.

Stanton said the fetus has an inherent dignity and should not be used as a research object for the convenience of other human beings in the "ruthless pursuit" of medical progress.

"Technically and morally, are there things we should not do and not use our tax dollars to fund," he said.

"The rights of the individual even though unborn is proof that humanity is not lost — that's what medicine once thought of the unborn in my lifetime," he said.

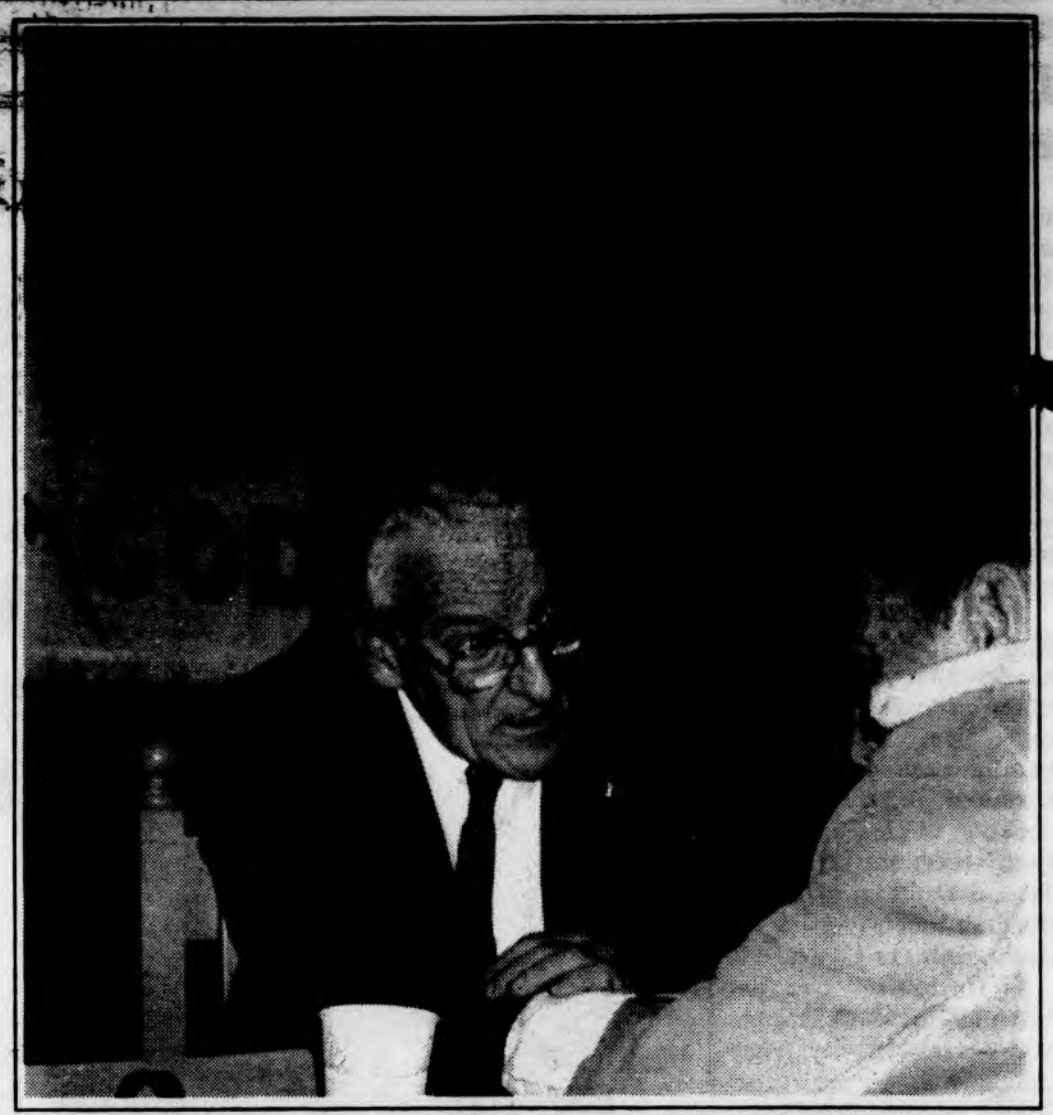
Stanton sounded the battle cry for action.

"Know the baggage of those to whom we give our vote," he warned.

And he said the debate over human life goes to the heart of who we are.

"Speaking of values. There is a war going on in this country of ours, a war for the soul of our nation.

"The morality being imposed is one of atheistic, secular humanism."



Dr. Joseph Stanton, a member of Massachusetts Citizens for Life, speaks with a supporter after his talk on fetal tissue research. (Staff photo/Mary Ford) is proposed on Route 3A, near the entrance of Crocker Lane, while a materials processing operation (MPO) is aiso included in the plan. Approximately 100 tons of asphalt, concrete and brick would be crushed daily at the MPO, but the final product would eventually be moved off-site.

The proposed expansion has been opposed at every stage by the local grassroots organization, SAFE.

SAFE — Stop Any Further Expansion — is again organizing a letter campaign against the latest CHL expansion plan submitted to Secretary Tierney.

The opposition group held an organizational meeting Wednesday, Feb. 3 at the Cohasset Stop and Shop.

Approximately 24 residents, primarily from Cohasset, gathered to receive information on how to join the letter campaign.

SAFE vice-president John K. McNabb Jr. said the organization hopes to generate 100 opposition letters.

"There were 51 comments last time — we hope to double that."

McNabb said the letter campaign has an effect.

"Last time, Tierney commented that 51 was a large number of letters."

SAFE sees potential contamination of Lily Pond, the town's water supply, as the biggest threat posed to the community by expanding the landfill.

SAFE president Alix White said the pond is about one mile from the landfill, and closest to the unlined portion of the refuse area.

"The number one potential problem is the pollution of Lily Pond," McNabb said.

"As far as we know, Lily Pond is not polluted — but we are talking about the future."

With the expansion, the landfill is expected to reach 200 feet above sea level — and 160 feet above Lily Pond.

McNabb said CHL's report does not address the critical issue of where the leachate from the landfill would drain.

White agreed that the CHL plan falls short.

"They have to post a type of insurance bond" for liability, she said.

"But it says right in the report that pollution is excluded. All we care about is the pollution."

White also said the increased traffic is a concern.

She said she expects the current traffic generated by the landfill to triple because the amount of material processed at the landfill is expected to triple — from 299 to 900 tons daily.

The report estimates an increase of 2.4 percent— or 36 more one-way truck trips to the landfill.

White said SAFE will contact Hingham about joining the letter campaign to oppose further expansion of the Cohasset Heights Landfill.

Barry says SAFE's lobbying efforts to stop expansion of his landfill go with the territory.

"It's part of business," he said.

❑ Attention! Make sure that you are included on the Plankowner's Wall at the Lightkeeper's Residence. When this building is completed it will knock your socks off! Hats off to Joe McElroy and Herb Towle for establishing the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation to renovate this historic building.

Call 383-0787 and ask for Bob Martin for details on the Plankowner's Wall....

❑ Speaking of history, and historians, here's hoping that Burt Pratt gets well soon. Burt suffered a heart attack last week, and from all reports he is doing very well. Come on Burt, spring is coming, and everyone's looking forward to your special cable series on old Cohasset (who would know it as well as you?)...everyone loves you and hopes you get well real soon!

❑ In case you haven't noticed, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Atkinson and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McKeough are extremely happy they had an early Christmas present, named Kathryn Elizabeth (don't you love that name?). Kathryn was born Dec. 21 at New England Memorial Hospital and weighed in at 8 lbs. 10 ozs. Between parents and grandparents, she will have an awesome life and we are happy for all of you!

❑ Ms. Tegan R. Hamilton of 363 Jerusalem Road makes the news this week. She is the member of St. Lawrence University Class of 1994, an English writing major and member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority (also a participant in the International Study Program in Kenya). She is a graduate of the Holderness School. We surely hope that she will send us news of all her adventures as they happen!

❑ All right, Peter Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Smith of 21 Fisher Road! Peter made the dean's list at Babson College for the fall semester and that is certainly a feather in your cap! Babson is one of the top independent colleges of management in the United States. You will do well, Peter, and we congratulate you!

❑ Hope Gaston of Cohasset has qualified for the fall term honor roll at the Holderness School. Hope is a sophomore and was also busy outside the classroom. Besides participating in an on-campus job program required of all students at Holderness, she sang in the school chorus and played a key roll in the success of a girls' junior varsity soccer team that posted a record of 7-3-2. Hope is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Gaston, 111 Jerusalem Road.

❑ Want to hear some interesting news; something you can have a "hand" in? Marie Ahs, a gal from Billdal, Sweden, is coming to Scituate in the fall. She is staying with her aunt and uncle on Gannett Road. Why write that you ask? Because one of Marie's friends, Cecelia Calais, also from Billdal, would like very much to study here too. Cecelia is looking for a home (host family), and her family is welcoming a student to study in Sweden. Please call 545-4914 if you are interested and ask for Delia. She will give you all of the information that you need! Wonderful opportunity to give you a chance to go through the senior year with a young lady, and grand chance for Cecelia!

❑ Talked to Lawrence Figueridо last week; as you know, he lives in Florida now. His house is being rebuilt from the hurricane last fall, but he is doing just GRAND! He sounds really happy, and wishes his friends health and happiness. He loves us and we love him!

❑ Congrats to Matthew A Berger who made the dean's list at the University of Rhode Island. We applaud you and your efforts, Matt. Keep up the good work!

❑ We lost a grand lady recently, Edna Pratt. A real lady, a wonderful person and one who cared about all. We will all miss Edna, but will never forget her! Our sympathies go to her family.

❑ Here's hoping that Bill Niles, who is in South Shore Hospital as this is being written, is better real soon and back at his home at 60 Elm Street before he can say "Jack Robinson" (a very old expression). We wish you well, Bill!

❑ We must also include "Gramps" (Bill Adams) in our hopes for a speedy recovery...right now he is in rehabilitation at Youville Hospital in Cambridge. Your neighbors and friends miss and love you!

❑ Finally, we salute Tom Wigmore! As you read last week, he had a party in his honor at the Legion, to be honored as commander of the Sons of the American Legion. Anyone who knows Tom knows what an admirable job he does. They are lucky to have him and so are we! Congratulations, Tom, you deserve every accolade that you get!

❑ Would you please call with your news, it is ours!

Dear Jackansons Customers,

Rushing from season to season in the retail business leaves very little time to take a critical look at the day to day operation of a store of this size. However, in January, we forced ourselves to take a hard look at the strengths and weaknesses of Jackansons, and we have decided to make some changes which will be effected during March, 1993.

In order to facilitate these changes, we will be starting anew in many areas and have decided to put almost all merchandise in the store on a 50% Clearance Sale from Wednesday, February 17 through Saturday, March 6, 1993.

With very few exceptions, almost everything within the store will be sold at 50% off, including seasonal merchandise that is usually held until the tent sale in July.

After the sale ends on March 6, we will begin deleting certain departments, downsizing and expanding some, adding new ones and relocating others. Renovation and remodeling will be kept to a minimum, and Jackansons will remain open for day to day operations while we are making these changes during the month of March.

The purpose of this letter is to inform you, our customers, of the impending changes and to give advance notice of the gigantic 50% off sale, which will begin at 7:30 a.m. on Wednesday, February 17. Watch our in-store flyers and ads in the Mariner for further details.

Thank you all for the success that you have brought us for 12 years. We look forward to being your store for many more years to come!

Human vivisection?

Information.

It's amazing what we do with it and how arguments and opinions can change when we have it.

Take fetal tissue research, for example. It has a dry, clinical ring to it.

So it comes as no surprise that there hasn't been a lot written about fetal tissue research in newspapers or magazines. And the issue hasn't reached the talk show circuit on radio or television — where many of us get our information.

President Clinton's recent lifting of the ban on the use of federal funds for fetal tissue research occurred without any of the brouhaha surrounding more glamorous topics like hiring illegal aliens as nannies or lifting the ban on gays in the military.

In fact tax dollars spent for medical research sounds like a good idea especially when mentioned with incurable diseases like Parkinson's or diabetes.

I went to Dr. Joseph Stanton's talk at Resurrection Church in Hingham Sunday as a reporter covering an event — someone, who admittedly knows far more about Prop. 2-1/2 — than a developing fetus. (See story page one).

Although I left still knowing more about the local budget process than medical research and related ethics — I did come away somewhat enlightened on the use of fetal tissue for 'experimentation.'

The information I obtained makes me want to take a step back and examine the issue.

Don't get me wrong, I am not taking a pro-life or pro-choice stance here. And I am not trying to kid myself either — I realize human life is at the center of any meaningful dialogue on abortion or fetal tissue research.

This paper will continue to provide coverage of both sides of the abortion issue when it affects Cohasset — whether a pro-choice rally at the rotary or anti-abortion protester being dragged out of a political event.

But my consciousness was raised enough Sunday on the use of fetal tissue for research to be concerned. And I think we ought to understand more about the issue before our tax dollars are used to pay for it.

As Dr. Stanton explained medical research of any note in this country is dependent on tax dollars. So although this type of research has been conducted on a small scale privately, lifting the ban opens the door to what he calls "ruthless pursuit" of medical progress.

The fact is that the research uses live fetal tissue from aborted human fetuses. In the case of Parkinson's, live fetal brain tissue is transplanted into the brains of sufferers.

At the very least the matter ought to the subject of open and full debate in which the latest information on the issue is made available to everyone.

Stanton calls using fetal tissue "human vivisection." If the same practice involved animals, there would be protests from the Canadian to Mexican borders, he contends.

He also raises the legal issue of who has the right to give permission for these "tiny bodies" to be used in research if the natural guardian has opted to terminate the pregnancy.

Stanton preached to the choir Sunday. More than 200 abortion foes packed the church and gave Stanton thunderous applause and a standing ovation.

But even an ardent supporter of pro-choice was compelled by his words to look at the issue from all sides.

Quietly I weighed what he said and read the information provided.

The question I came away with is: does the end justify the means?

The answer may go right to the heart of who we are.

As Stanton says, "This is America.

"We are not allowed to carry out medical experimentation on non-consenting human subjects."

Or are we?

Amusement park traffic concerns

letters

To the Editor:

I learned math decades ago, but guess I never got it right.

I still can't understand how development firm GID will build an amusement park at the Hull-Hingham-Cohasset line with just 600 parking spaces.

Fact: they expect 9,600 people on peak days.

Even my rusty slide rule says something's wrong here. Imagine the traffic jams. Atlantic Avenue, 3A and 228 will resemble the Expressway at 5.

GID's answer is to propose that people park at the Rockland and Hingham Ferry commuter lots and ride "trackless trolleys" to their park.

I wonder if the good citizens of Hull, Hingham, Cohasset, Norwell and Rockland may have a thing or two to say about that.

What the South Shore needs on summer Saturdays and Sundays is more traffic along 3A, 53 and 228, don't we?

Red Cross needs Friendly Visitors

To the Editor:

In years past, the Red Cross had a group of volunteers who were known as Friendly Visitors. Their "job" was just that. In addition to visiting, they also did many of the jobs mentioned in the following article.

With the passing of time, we have lost many of these volunteers because of age, death, etc., and at present we have only two active Friendly Visitors left. The lives of many shut-ins and nursing home residents have become even more lonely with the loss of the service and help these wonderful volunteers offered.

With the increase of older people living alone and in nursing homes, we feel we should try to rekindle the public's interest in the concept of the Friendly Visitor. We would like to enlist your help.

It would be greatly appreciated if you might find space in your newspaper to publish the enclosed article some time in the near future. This would allow us to reach so many we could not otherwise.

Any consideration you might give this worthwhile project would be greatly appreciated.

Jeanne M. Stone
Volunteer Coordinator

What does a Friendly Visitor do?

We ask the question in the hope that you will read the answer of one such Red Cross Friendly Visitor, and will be inspired to perhaps want to join her. The following answer to the question is in our volunteer's own words. We will not give you her name, as she doesn't want credit, only help with a job that needs doing...

"Mostly it is a job of your own making. I have been associated with a nursing home where I serve at times under the Activities Director. She lets me know if there is a specific need for my services such as accompanying patients on a nearby trip, helping with a handwork project, assisting at the Christmas Bazaar, or helping with the monthly birthday party for patients. I am also a twice-a-week "drop-in" person, and circulate with their favorite mint candies.

Over the last ten years at the nursing home, I have made friends for whom I do special things. It might be shopping, driving them when they wish to go out for lunch, or providing food or drinks (with staff approval) should they tire of the nursing home menu.

My friends are quite used to my drawing on their services and talents when needed.

One plays cribbage regularly with a patient, another provides all the pink Canada Mints which seem to be a favorite with everyone, and many friends really rally round when there is a large party.

Some of these activities could very easily apply to the housebound.

You can really set your own limit on what you do. There is always someone who's need will fit into your schedule."

Interested? We would like to have a few interested people who would like to meet and discuss the possibilities of getting a group started in this kind of undertaking. There are so many who have no family or friend to share with. Could we perhaps help?

Call Jeanne Stone at the South Area Red Cross, 770-2600.

"We the People"

stop thinking about how it was but, how it is and start thinking about how it will be and how things should be more and more in our society teenaged kids are killing each other out of curiosity to see what it's like because, they have no respect for the essence of life young people full of rage must expel it somehow to make room for the love that they possess so we take the toy guns off the shelves and we try to pass firearm laws as if the guns commit murder by themselves what is it that makes every human being unique unique in our own way it's the soul, our inner being can you comprehend what I'm trying to say are you not bothered by what you are seeing where do we hear about the soul not in politics,
not from scientists,
but, religion
now I'm not very religious and I'm not what some consider a Christian but, if there ever was one thing that could help us help us get along it's the Ten Commandments, to teach the youth of America teach them right and wrong but, the schools, they can't teach it and I guess the parents of today have better things to do so ultimately, what society is saying is our children, they don't need it and so now I say to your face that the blame should be placed on you shame on you for you, the soulless, I have no sympathy because, you don't respect, cherish, or embrace our deepest core, the element, this wonderful gift life, and the value of it so now you are silent well you are not so innocent when we the people talk about family values parents say don't tell me how to raise my kid that's not what I'm trying to tell you but, there are certain things, by which we all should live conspiracies, cover ups, and corruption in our government and we glorify war now our kids, like the politicians, are detached and withdrawn they play the video war games, with graphics so real simulating war, with their toy guns aimed at the T.V. and they subconsciously see how easy it is to kill to kill without having to feel in the movies it's all sex, drugs, racism, and violence keep in mind we lead by example guidance in silence suicide, homicide, and the right to die
A.I.D.S., drug raids, and we as a race will fade
I'm not speaking of the black race or the white race but, the human race
if we are not going to change it then we might as well forget it and all we can do is say I'm sorry...

Representative Murray really cares

To the Editor:

These days, we read so many articles that make us wonder, "What is this world coming to...Nobody cares etc," so I thought I would make people aware of the goodness that's out there.

My husband and I needed some information from the State House via Mary Jeanette Murray, our State Representative. Well, lo and behold, if she didn't deliver it to our door at 6 p.m. on a snowy-like night, with difficulty finding our house.

Thoughtfulness is greatly appreciated

To the Editor:

The Cohasset Recreation Commission would like to extend its most sincere gratitude to Mr. Joseph S. Laugelle for his very kind donation of an electric "Memory Correct" typewriter.

During the past 17 years Mr. Laugelle has continually kept the needs of the recreation commission in mind, through various donations of materials and equipment.

Skinny's continuing thoughtfulness is greatly appreciated by all.

Affairs of the heart matter at South Shore Hospital

Valentine's Day may be the season of the heart for most people, but it's an everyday affair at South Shore Hospital. No one knows that better than the more than 700 men and women invited to return to the hospital later this month to be recognized for successfully completing the hospital's outpatient cardiac rehabilitation program. They all experienced one of the most serious illnesses, heart disease, and have worked with their doctors and other care givers at South Shore Hospital to overcome it.

Many are not that fortunate. Every minute, someone in America dies from heart disease. Nothing kills more men between the ages of 20 and 64. Although men are up to four times more likely to die from heart disease, women are rapidly narrowing this ratio.

The toll of this disease in human terms is without measure. How can a numerical value be assigned to the loss of a family member, friend, or colleague? But we do know that the financial costs of heart disease in America is staggering. Heart disease and strokes will cost the Untied States $100 billion this year in treatment and lost productivity.

We all know someone who has experienced heart disease. Increasingly, people are becoming aware that they have this illness, or thanks to increasingly sophisticated medical care and medications, they are being successfully treated for illness that would have been life threatening only a few years ago. At South Shore Hospital, which cares for the sixth highest number of cardiology patients in Massachusetts, we offer a cardiology fellowship program with Brigham & Women's Hospital and a pediatric cardiology clinic in conjunction with New England Medical Center. We are presently seeking state approval for a diagnostic cardiac catheterization laboratory. The proposed new service will be performed by highly trained cardiologists. Cardiac catheterization is a technique for examining the heart and circulatory system by inserting a small tube or catheter into a patient's artery or vein. From this, physicians can determine the extent and severity of heart disease.

Even as health care grows more advanced, people continue to grow ill and die from heart disease that could have been preventable. February is designated National Heart Month, a time when we re-learn the key factors that place us at risk for heart disease.

Age and family history of heart disease play a role. But many other factors can be controlled which we can begin to address today. These include regular exercise, a diet that is low in fats, keeping our cholesterol at a safe level, eliminating exposure to cigarette smoke, and avoiding unnecessary levels of stress.

South Shore Hospital is taking advantage of this year's healthy heart month to reach out to the residents of its communities with this overview of the facts of good care for one of your body's most critical organs.

The hospital salutes the medical and nursing staff, and members of the cardiac rehabilitation team. They have made possible the sophisticated life-saving cardiac care at the hospital, whose results are symbolic of this month's cardiac rehabilitation reunion. By treating their illness and helping many of them to make necessary life style changes, the hospital has made a major contribution to the community, and to hundreds of individuals and their families.

For more information about the cardiac rehabilitation program or the Happy Hearts Club for cardiac patients and their families, call (617) 340-8824.

We would be pleased to hear from you with comments about this message. Just call the Public Affairs Department at (617) 340-8564, or write us.

Basic format for summer playground 1993 approved

By John M. Worley
Recreation director

The Cohasset Recreation Commission has been evaluating and discussing the 1993 Playground Program format during the past four months, because of the enormous success of the program registration and daily attendance numbers which have been increasing during the past two years. In order to be able to continue to provide the safest and best summer program possible, the commissioners have instituted some program modifications and adjustments.

Registrations for the 1993 Playground begin Monday, June 21, continuing thru Thursday, June 24. Open House, which every parent is encouraged to attend, will be held Thursday, July 1. The seven-week program will begin Tuesday, July 6, and conclude on Friday, August 20.

For the convenience of parents, the commissioners have instituted a mandatory activity fee, which must be paid at the time of registration, in full, and will cover the costs of all field trips and entertainment, except Music Circus registration. The fee will be about $25 per child, which provides for a considerable cost discount over the seven weeks of trips and special activities. Included in the activity fee will be a Playground T-shirt for each child.

Program tuition fees for resident children will remain the same as the 1992 fee charges:

• 3-4 year olds: 9 a.m. to noon - $115

No new, non-resident children will be accepted for this program which will be capped at 60 children maximum. Non-resident children from 1992 will be accepted on a space available basis at a fee of $215 per child. There will be no weekly or daily fee rates available for this specialized program directed by Ms. Irene Volpe.

• 1/2 day 5 year olds: 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. - $125.

Non-resident fee $225 - space available only. There will be a weekly charge rate of $25 per child, however, the maximum qualification is two weeks only. Per diem charge is $10 per child, but restricted to one week only (five days). Registration for 1/2 day 5 year olds will be limited to a total of 30 children.

• 5-12 Year olds: 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. - $140

Non-resident fee $240 - space available only. Weekly rates are $30 per child, up to a maximum of two weeks. Per diem rates are $12 per child, up to a maximum of one week (5 days).

The mandatory per child activity fee of about $25 is applicable to all groups/children. Discounts for children in same family are available for all resident children registering and is $15 per additional child. Non-resident discounts for second/subsequent children are not available.

FACILITY ADJUSTMENT

Due to both increased numbers of children registering and higher daily attendance figures, the Recreation Commission has unanimously concluded that it will be necessary to divide children for the 1993 Season, employing use of both the Osgood and Deer Hill Schools as follows: 3-4 year olds, 1/2 day 5 year olds; full day 5, 6 and 7 year olds at the Osgood school. 8-12 year olds at the Deer Hill School.

Most 8 plus year olds have early morning swim lessons. No children at the 8-12 year old program at Deer Hill will be walked to/from the Swim Center. Parents may drop children off at Deer Hill after swim lessons.

There will be a meeting in May for parents interested in the finite details of the 1993 Playground Program and for parents who may be interested in volunteering as a parent support group.

There are a couple of primary considerations regarding the decision to divide the Playground Program by age groupings. While we have added staff members to meet the increased enrollment and attendance, during the past two years, additional staffing alone cannot fully compensate for the increases. Having moved in the direction of facility saturation at Osgood, adding more staff could not guarantee the level of safety of the children that we deem top priority. Further, facility saturation can be compounded by our extremely wide age spectrum of children, ranging from three to 12 years old. Dividing the children and program by ages at two very adequate facilities relieves the above problems, while further allowing the staff to deliver age and space appropriate programs to all children.

The eight to 12 year old Deer Hill Program will be more "team" oriented than in past seasons, not just in the context of sports alone, but rather in an enhanced atmosphere of espirit de corps, with groups competing to achieve objectives and goals, as well as group, or team, identity.

At their Dec., 1992 meeting, Recreation Commissioners voted unanimously to re-engage Ted Carroll as Playground director and Irene Volpe as 3-4 year old Program Co-ordinator. The 1993 Season will be Ted's 10th and last year at the Playground Program, having begun as an instructor in 1984.

Further details and information regarding Summer Playground will be released during the year, as they become available.

Cabaret is coming

The Music and Worship Committee of the First Parish in Cohasset cordially invites you to bring your friends to "Cabaret" Saturday, Feb. 27, in the Parish House, 23 North Main Street, Cohasset.

A contribution of $10 includes 6:30 p.m. appetizers; 7 p.m. dinner; 8 p.m. Cabaret. Cash beverages.

Please make checks payable to First Parish Cabaret and mail to 23 N. Main St., Cohasset 02025.

Safe ice guidelines

With cold weather, ice skating season is approaching. The following should be used as a guideline for safe ice.

Ice safe for	0-30°	30-40°	40-50°
Single skaters	1 3/4"	2 3/4"	6"
Couples	2 3/4"	3 3/4"	8"
Crowds	3 3/4"	4 3/4"	12"

These figures are for clear, fresh water ice only; for snow ice, add two inches; for water logged ice, add three inches; if skates cut in, go home! Salt water in mild climates is always treacherous, keep away from it. Also thickness in 40-50° column are safe depths for short periods of time only. Remember, common sense is the most important denominator.

Elms Meadow skating

The deepest portion of Elms Meadow is towards the Spring Street dam (about 12" to 18"); the shallowest is towards the back of the area, which is 3" or so.

Do not throw debris on the ice to check for safety. This only clutters up the ice, making skating dangerous, and does not give you an accurate indication of ice strength.

Slide walk slated

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset meets Tuesday, Feb. 23, at Walton Rogers Hall, St. Stephen's Church. Tom Foster, Regional Director of the Trustees of the Reservation on World's End, invited you to take a slide walk with him through the park.

Come review the history and look at the park as it stands today.

Coffee is served at 9 a.m.

Training seminars set

Training seminars for people interested in volunteering at the New England Wildlife Center, a non-profit wildlife animal hospital located in Hingham, begin Sunday, Feb. 21.

These sessions run from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. for four consecutive weeks.

Attendance is required at these seminars before working in our clinic.

Any further information needed, call either our clinic line at 749-1248 or our office line at 749-5387.

Learning disabled adults

Thursday, Feb. 11, host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person will be discussing adult learning disabilities: what they are, who has them, how they can be overcome, legal rights and South Shore resources for learning disabled adults.

Scheduled guests are Jack Carey, former Weymouth selectman and president of the Learning Disabilities Network; Mary Beth Maneen, educational therapist; Carolyn Cowen, disabilities network co-director; and Judy Walker, network student.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8-9 p.m., on Channel 53 in Hingham, and on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

For further information about upcoming guests and additional show information, call the Pierson Show's Executive Producer, Robert Belliveau, at 545-2500.

Cooking, table etiquette

Children ages seven, eight and nine will be able to participate in a new cooking and table etiquette class being offered at the Community Center beginning March 4.

This five-week class meets Thursday afternoons from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Children will experiment with recipes in the kitchen, practice table manners, and learn how to set an entire table for a special occasion.

For the last class, each student will invite a guest for dinner. The cost for this program is $50. To register or for further information, please call the center at 383-0088.

"Come to the Cabaret"

Chase away those mid-winter blues with a gala night of song, dance, comedy, and jazz at the annual Cohasset High School Winter Cabaret Wednesday, Feb. 24, at Kimball's by the Sea.

From 6-7:30 p.m. enjoy a delicious light buffet supper and view original student art. From 7:30-9 p.m., emcee/choral director Bryan Marks and band director Colleen Wheeler will thrill you with the talents of the senior chorus, band, and barbershop quartet in a festive cabaret setting. In lieu of the traditional auction, art teacher Colleen Lucas will offer a creative display of student-designed notepaper for sale. Arts Boosters chairmen Debbie Niessink, Olga Nohe and Donna O'Donnell have organized a bountiful assortment of door prizes. Every year this evening is a winner and space is limited, so reserve now to guarantee a seat.

Tickets are $10 for dinner and the show. To make reservations, send your check, payable to Cohasset Arts Boosters Club, to Olga Nohe, 10 Surrey Drive, Cohasset, by Feb. 20. Proceeds will benefit Cohasset High School Music and Art Curriculum Enrichment. For further information, please call 383-1273.

Talk on evolution tonight

Curious about how it all began? The Beechwood Congregational Church on Church St. in Cohasset sponsors a three-part series on Creation vs. Evolution — Who's Got the Truth? Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Feb. 11, 18 and 25.

Amateur Gardeners meet

The Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset meet Tuesday, Feb. 16, at 1 p.m. for the Annual Recipe Exchange Luncheon at the home of Mrs. Martha Hurtig. Co-hostess is Mrs. Jean Gould.

Join the parade

If you know the best thing about Cohasset and you can make a float or organize a marching unit – join the Harborfest Parade! The theme of this year's parade gives everyone, be they organizations, neighborhood associations, or you, the chance to tell thousands of people how you feel. Scheduled for June 20, the parade will also feature awards for the best presentations, whether marching unit or float.

Plan now to join this wonderful event and be a part of the fun. For more information, please call Keith Knowles at 383-1331.

On the lighthouse trail

James W. Hyland, founder and chairman of the Lighthouse Preservation Society is the featured speaker on lighthouse history at Kimball's, Tuesday, March 2, beginning at 6:45 p.m.

The Cohasset Historical Society and the Cohasset Lightkeepers' Corporation are jointly sponsoring the dinner (6:45 p.m.) and slideshow (8 p.m.).

Proceeds will equally benefit the Historical Society's "Save the Museums" Fund and the rehabilitation of the Lightkeepers' home on Government Island by the Cohasset Lightkeepers' Corporation.

"Everyone loves lighthouses," Hyland says. "Recently a great deal of media attention has focused on how to preserve these important maritime treasures. With automation and severe budget cutbacks threatening many of these sites with neglect, the future of America's lighthouses is in question. At the forefront of national concern on this subject is the Lighthouse Preservation Society, a non-profit organization dedicated to the preservation and documentation of our country's lighthouse heritage."

Reservations ($25/person) may be made by calling the Cohasset Historical Society at 383-6930 or the Cohasset Lightkeepers' at 383-0505. All checks should be payable to the Cohasset Historical Society, c/o 14 Summer Street, Cohasset, MA 02025.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Philip Murphy, CRS, GRI

INFLATION IS INFLATION

QUESTION: Is it true that it does not make sense to buy real estate when the inflation rate is low?

ANSWER: Let's not kid ourselves. Whether it's 4% or 20%, inflation is inflation and unless you do something to protect your hard-earned money from losing its value, you lose.

If you hide $1,000 in your mattress, and sleep on it for ten years at a 5% inflation rate, the $1,000 will be worth only half of its buying power when you remove it from the mattress. On the other hand, if you purchase a home for $100,000, its value would have appreciated 50% to $150,000 during the same 10 years that you incubated your cash in the mattress.

Wig hosts friendly chat with senate prez Bulger

Power, school choice, the new Boston Garden, the governor and new president were just of a few of the subjects bandied about with state Senator William M. Bulger on the Pierson to Person show last week.

The program had the friendly aura of a fireside chat.

Host Wigmore Pierson, who repeatedly called Bulger "Mr. President" mostly lobbed softballs at the senate president.

Retired Globe columnist David Wilson tried to light a few sparks by weakly pressing Bulger on why he initially blocked the proposed new Boston Garden project and his stance against term limitations.

But nevertheless, the program provided an excellent opportunity for Cohasseters to see one of the most powerful figures in state politics.

A staunch supporter of school choice, Bulger said it's the natural right of parents to be able to choose their children's schools.

He said it is hypocritical of people who can afford to and do send their children to private or parochial schools not to allow that choice for others.

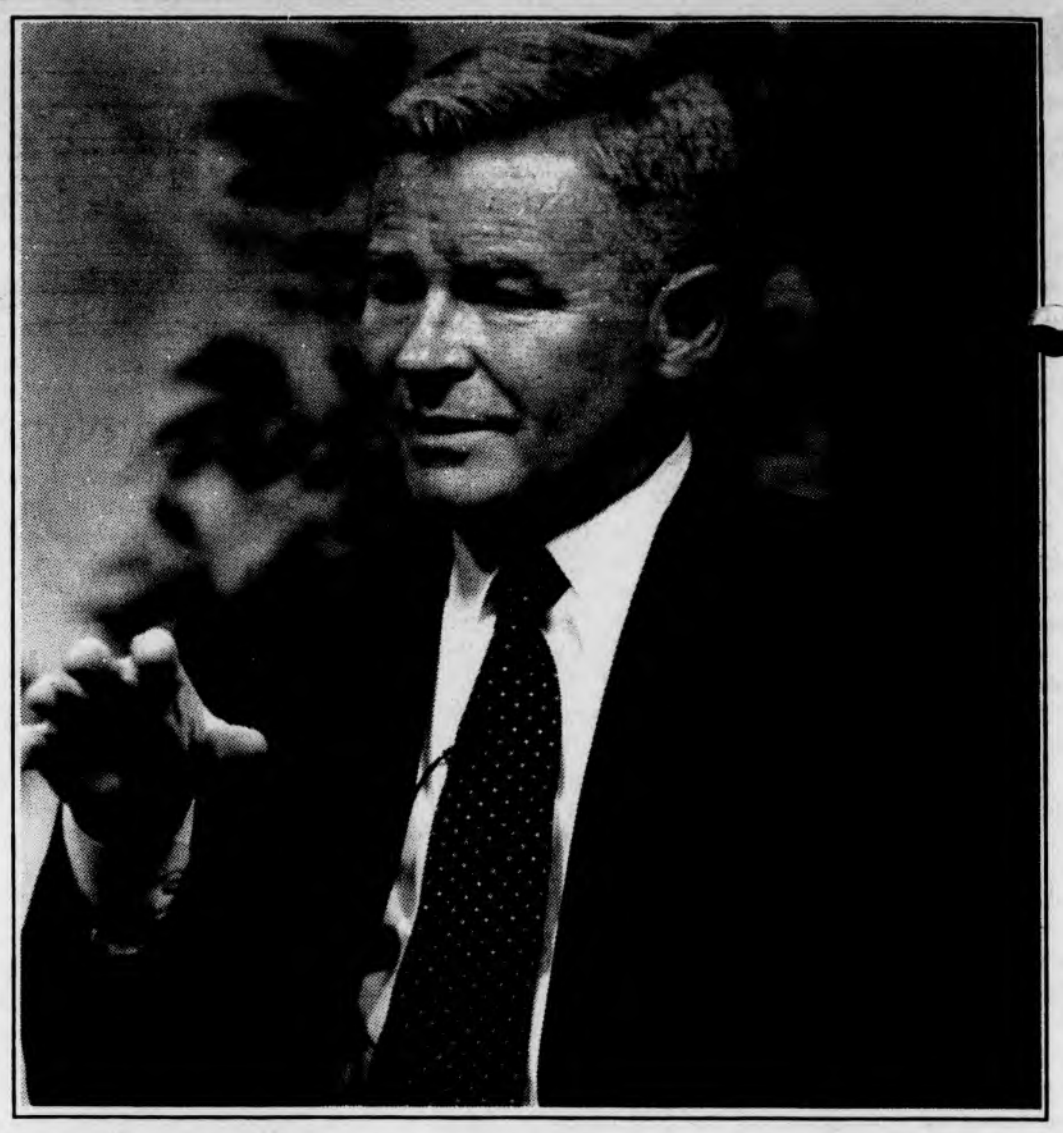
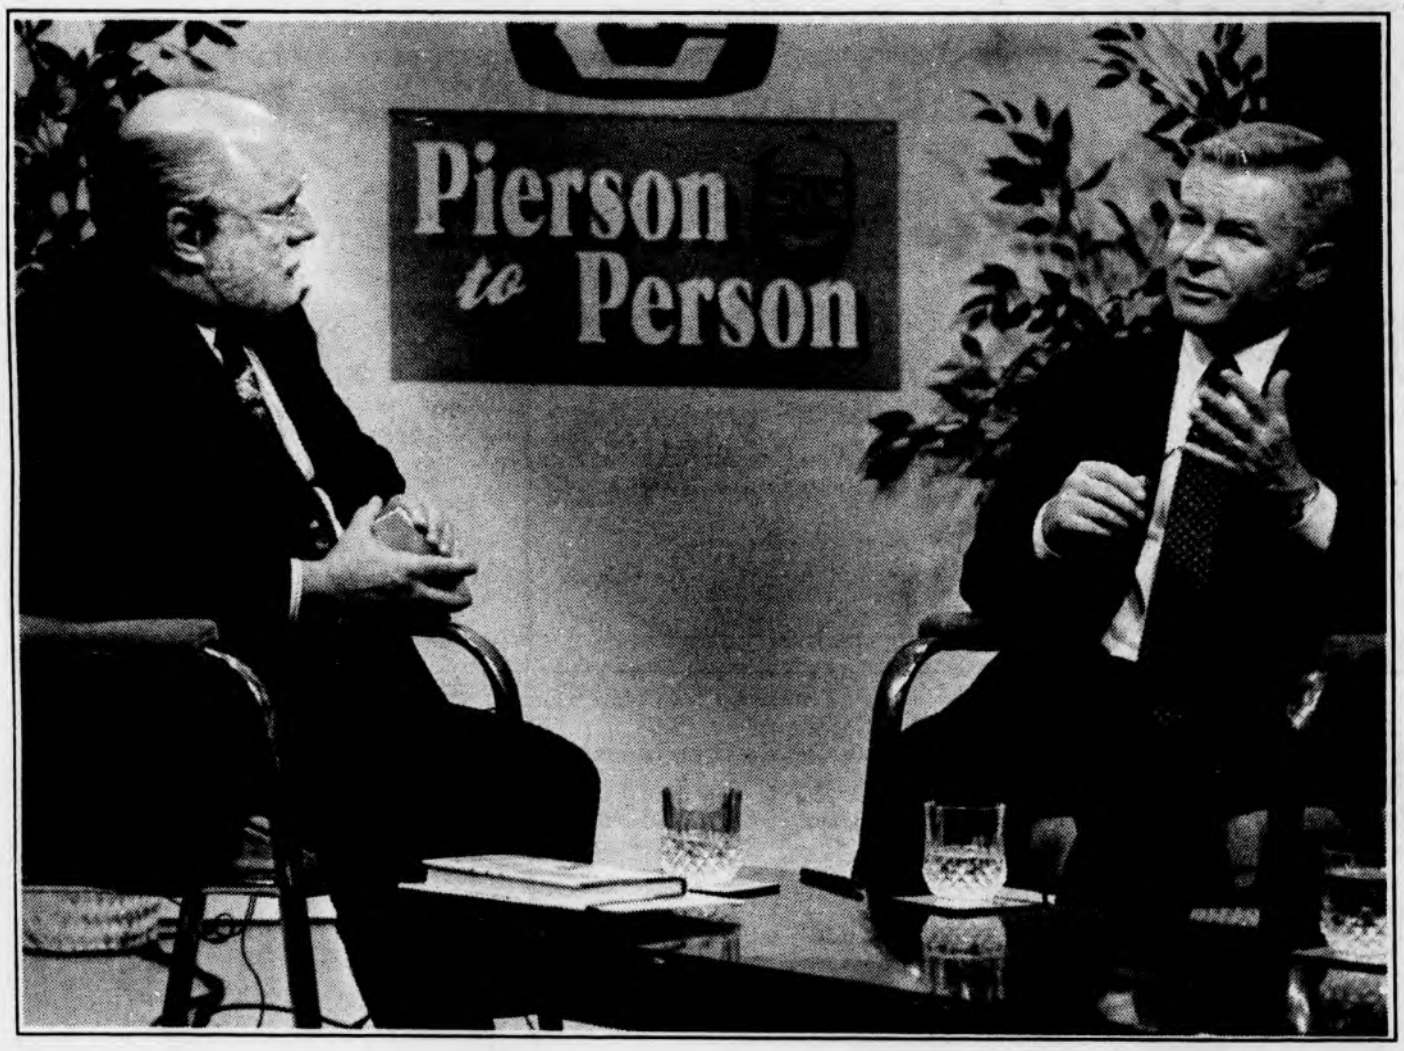
(Staff photos/ Buzz Wadsworth)





'People at the Globe look down on the Herald. But believe me, the Globe is just the Herald with verbs.'

— state senate president William M. Bulger

Bulger also supports the 'walking the beach bill' which would allow public access to privately-owned beaches.

And he didn't have a lot of good things to say about the print media.

"People at the Globe look down on the Herald," he said. "But believe me, the Globe is just the Herald with verbs."

Wilson also pressed Bulger on term limitations which he strongly opposes.

Bulger explained that initiative petitions in this state still must go through the legislative body and not all make it to the ballot.

Bulger says his working relationship with Governor Weld is excellent.

"We get along very well. I want him to be successful as governor. All our fortunes rest on that," he said.

He added that he's also gotten on equally well with former governors Michael Dukakis and Edward King.

But he didn't express much confidence in President Clinton to this point.

"I would not have done it his way," Bulger said about the first few weeks of the Clinton presidency.

"I am disappointed that he's allowed himself to be distracted. I think he needs to take more time to reflect.

"There are profound questions that take a great deal of good judgement," he said.

"...I feel uneasy about what Clinton's doing, he is not a candidate anymore."

Skippers drop rematch to Indians

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

The Hanover Indians came back from a 72-36 trouncing earlier in the year to defeat the Cohasset boys' basketball squad 61-59 in a thrilling South Shore League encounter.

Cohasset drops to 9-8 with the loss, while Hanover pulls to 10-7, one full game ahead of the Skippers in the league standings.

The Skippers were led by the combination of Paul Bilodeau and Dorian Bryant with 14 points apiece, while Mark Rodgers led all scorers with 16 points for the Indians.

Joe Slotnick chipped in with 10 points in the losing cause.

The Skippers took a 26-25 lead at half-time of the game, using a superior inside height advantage to push their way to the small lead.

Hanover jumped out quickly after the break with a 3-pointer by Tim Fleming, one of his four on the evening, as they took a 37-30 lead with 12:30 left in the game.

Cohasset coach Ron Ford called a time-out to try and calm his team down, but the Indians kept coming at the Skippers, leading by as much as 51-38 with four minutes left in the game.

At that point, Hanover coach Ron Garrison instructed his team to take the air out of the ball and go to a four-corners offense to waste as much time off the clock as possible; a strategy that very nearly cost his squad the win in this important league contest.

The Skippers trailed 54-45 with just over 1:30 left to play, and although things looked bleak, Cohasset kept fouling Hanover, which obliged by missing some key free-throws. Along with two 3-point bombs by Bilodeau, Cohasset found itself with the ball, trailing by only 4 with 10 seconds left.

A runner by Doug Ellinger made the score 61-59 with two seconds left on the clock, but time finally ran out on the Skippers chances as Hanover just let the clock run out before in-bounding the ball.

Lady hoopsters ambushed by Indians

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

The girls basketball team, depleted by injuries down to a squad of only seven, fell to defeat at the hands of the Hanover Indians, 53-36, in recent South Shore League action.

The Lady Skippers now fall to 1-15, while Hanover moves up to 9-8 with the victory.

In what has now become a recurring theme for the last part of this year, coach Loreen White lost freshman Andria Mercurio for the remainder of the year because of a finger sprain sustained in a prior Skipper contest.

Add to that senior Katie Carroll being out for the year with an ankle injury, and the absence of inside force Rene Prisble for the game, and you have the making of a short bench for White to work with.

The Skippers must be commended for an outstanding effort, though, in trying to get around the injury hurdles put before the team. After Jen Knowles' basket, Cohasset only trailed 35-30 with 7:30 minutes to play in the game.

Any chances of a win were quickly taken away from the Lady Skippers though as they awoke in time for a 15-0 run themselves to put the game out of reach.

Sophomore Adrienne DeVaughn was a dominating force inside for Cohasset while chipping in a team high 16 points, and Erin Murphy popped in six points in the losing effort.

Things started out bleak for the hometown team as a tough Hanover full-court press kept the Skippers offensive cohesion to a bare minimum, allowing the Indians to work their way to a 29-12 half-time lead.

A combination of a new fire in the eyes for Cohasset and sudden cold shooting on the part of Hanover, led the Skippers right back into the game at 35-30. But five straight points by Lind Hartney sent the Indians on a run that would eventually seal the game for the Indians.

Hartney led all scorers in the game with 21 points.

Cohasset finished out the year against divisional rival Hull yesterday, February 11. Results were unavailable as the paper went to press.

Wrestlers on right course

Cohasset went through its dress rehearsal on the mats in the North Attleboro Tourney, but the Skippers' toughest meet is still on the horizon.

And if Cohasset's third-place finish is any indication, the squad should be ready to roll at the South Sectional meet.

"We were competing against some of the best teams in the state," said head coach Torin Sweeney. "We're wrestling better as the season goes on.

The Skippers picked up three first-place finishes and two wrestlers remained undefeated on the season. Ryan Freeman (23-0) and Nate Fiore (25-0) kept their perfect individual records intact by winning the 112 and 140-pound divisions respectively. For Fiore, an all-scholastic last year, the win represented his fourth tournament victory of the season.

Steve Harrington ran his record to 22-3 and picked up his second tourney win by taking the 145-pound weight class. Ray Jones (152) finished second, while Sacha Ordeliede (135) and Dan Baird (160) wrestled to third-place showings. Andy Church and Brian Sasso also performed well in the highly-competitive meet.

At 8-5 on the season, Cohasset completes its regular schedule this week with a meet on Wednesday against Plymouth and three matches Friday when they take on Milton, Southeastern and Silver Lake.

At Larry Bird's retirement ceremony Marshfield's Camp Milbrook was mentioned as the place where everyone realized Bird was a legitimate NBA player.

Camp Milbrook used to be the site of the Celtic's rookie camp because general manager Red Auerbach held a summer basketball camp there.

The rookie camp has since moved to Brandeis University but in the summer of 1979 Bird was in Marshfield fresh from his stellar senior season at Indiana State.

Bird remembered the large crowds that came to Milbrook to watch him play. There were also large crowds who flocked to Marshfield High School, where the Celtics held scrimmages open to the public.

"The second day I had Rick Robey guarding me and I knew I would be a star," Bird said at his retirement ceremony.

In fact one of those who came to watch Bird at a Marshfield High scrimmage was an on-duty Pembroke police officer. He was later reprimanded for leaving his post to go watch Bird.

According to a Boston Globe story, a pass Bird made at Milbrook showed everyone how special he was.

A player was breaking towards the hoop and Bird threw a three-quarter court underhand pass.

The basketball courts at Milbrook were not regular black-top but were some high-tech tennis surface. Anyway, the ball landed and spun backwards to the breaking player, who then laid it in the basket.

Apparently, Bird had played ball on that surface before and remembered some of its quirks.

It was the beginning of the legend.

You think hitting a shot from half-court is tough. Apparently, it's not as hard as some people think.

At the half of each home basketball game at Silver Lake High School, a contest/fund raiser is held by the Boosters.

A person gives $1 in return for a shot from half-court. If the person hits the shot they wins a prize.

Until last year the prize was $10. However, a Booster official explained why the prize was changed to free pizza slices and candy this year.

"Last year three people hit right in a row and bankrupted us," he laughed.

At last Monday's boys' game against Taunton, about 15 shots were taken from half-court. Incredibly, four went in the basket. If the $10 prize were still in effect, the Boosters would be out $25.

For those of you who aren't too familiar with the sport of wrestling, Whitman-Hanson head coach Bob Gay used an analogy which showed the significance of the Panthers' 34-23 victory over perennial power, Wayland High School.

"To beat them," Gay said, "is equivalent to beating Brockton at football or Durfee

Gymnasts, coach, claim share of awards

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

The Skippers' gymnastics team had to deal with a formal dance the night before and one-day postponement because of poor weather conditions. With that in mind they were bound to be a bit out of synch for last weekend's Pilgrim Conference League Meet.

Bleary-eyed and sore, Cohasset's gymnasts set several personal and season best records as well as walking away with the league Sportsmanship Award.

Head coach Ruthann Sargent was also recognized as Coach of the Year, an honor that took her completely off-guard when it was announced.

"I've been coaching for so long and it's something that was shocking because I never thought I'd get it," said Sargent.

Tara Gallagher finished pretty much where she expected, in third place behind overall winner Julie Smollett of Scituate and Leslie Whittaker of Carver. Gallagher had been hoping to overtake Whittaker, but a fall on her first vault landing cost her half a point.

Sargent, though, didn't believe it was Gallagher's day for a second-place finish.

"I don't think she would have beaten her because her floor exercise limited her," Sargent said.

Gallagher, though, didn't go home empty handed. She was picked as a league all-star and finished with an 8.2 on the Beam.

"I thought overall she did very well," Sargent said.

The youngsters, who represent the future of the team, also fared well in the 16-squad meet. Erica Hettstrom finished fifth in both the Uneven Bars and Floor Exercise. Her floor score of 7.9 was a personal best, as was the 7.5 she finished with in the Vault.

Jodi Colwill and Tafana Fiore finished just outside of the medal winners, but Colwill's 7.65 on the Vault and Fiore's 7.6 Balance Beam routine were both personal records.

The strong showing in the league meet helped ease the disappointment of a controversial 124.15-119.5 lost to Carver, in a showdown for second place

Sargent said the judging of Cohasset's scores were very low in certain events, despite the fact the gymnasts nailed their routines.

"I think the team average (118 for the season) is great," Sargent said, "but I felt the judging was very unfair in the last meet against Carver.

"Granted, I thought we should win but I felt we were underscored. Unfortunately, what the judges see with their eyes is different from another."

The meet was not a total disappointment, though, as Gallagher set a season best in the All-Around (32.05) and Hettstrom recorded a 29.2 personal best for second and third behind Whittaker.

Sargent is scheduled to attend a meeting at the MIAA on Thursday where the seeds for the South Sectional tournament will be picked. Sargent will recommend Gallagher for all four events, while also making a bid to get Hettstrom and Pratt into the meet in the Floor Exercise competition.

Cohasset Junior/Senior High School parents are standing firm in their opposition of a merger with Hull Junior/ Senior High School. But one Skipper parent said the issue may be moot if Gov. Weld's proposal to allow students to pick the school they want to attend passes.

"It could turn out that Hull kids may come to Cohasset to play hockey anyway," she said.

When the Atlantic Coast League coaches meet this week to pick the hockey all-star squad, don't expect Whitman-Hanson coach Bob Corliss to be shy when it comes to his Panther squad. Corliss said on Friday he intends to nominate six of his players and hopes two or three will be selected.

A final note on Larry Bird Night. We'll never see the likes of Bird in these parts again, but last Thursday night's salute with its laser beams and 2-1/2 hour length bordered on the absurd. A tribute like the one given to Magic Johnson upon his retirement would have been more appropriate, especially for Bird who avoided the limelight more than any superstar in Boston sports history. I mean Bob Costas' interview of Bird's mother asking what he was like as a boy? As long as he was hitting his patented fall-away jumps, Boston fans wouldn't have cared if he was a cross-dresser when he was growing up in French Lick. Thank God for obstructed-view seats.

Reynolds' hat tricks lead team

Mike Reynolds scored three times against both Latin Academy and Hull in last week's hockey action.

The Skippers tied Latin 5-5. Pat Reynolds and Nevin Bunstien scored one goal each. Charlie Smith, Mike Reynolds, Bunstien and Mike Riley has assists. The Skippers were trailing 5-2 and rallied for three goals to tie the game. Cohasset struck for four goals late in the third period to defeat Hull 5-2. Goal scorers were Mike Reynolds, Bunstien and Smith. Smith had three assists. Kevin McKenna made several key saves to preserve the victory. Charlie Endris, John Kinchla, Anthony Witmore and Dave Noble were solid on defense. The Skippers finish the season this week with games against Hanover and Scituate.

JV extend win streak

The Junior Varsity team defeated Hingham 3-1 to extend its unbeaten streak to four. Mike Riley and Pat Reynolds scored the goals. Kevin McKenna, Matt Lewis and Reynolds had assists. Geoff Tossi played a superb game in goal. The JV's finish the season with games against Quincy and Plymouth.

JV hockey blanks Hingham's Big Red

Cohasset JV ninth-grade goalie Geoff Tosi had the shutout against the Hingham Junior Varsity hockey team last Thursday at Pilgrim Arena. Two goals were scored by Cohasset junior Mike Riley and one by freshman Pat Reynolds.

Cohasset looked sharp against rival Hingham. The Cohasset JV hockey team is coached by Kevin Lewis and Varsity coach Dennis Walsh.

Cohasset is second in MBE Ski League

The big story of the second ski meet of the season in the Mass. Bay East Ski League was the complete romp of the Dover-Sherborn men's squad in the small schools division. D-S took the top six places and seven out of the top 10 spots in the slalom race held Monday, Jan. 25. Eric Lodding again set the pace with a second first-place finish. Only the Cohasset men were also able to make the top 10 with Bobby Stansell, Doug Schultz, and Pete Collins capturing the seven, eight and nine spots. Mike Equi rounded out the scoring garnering a 16th place in division.

The Jan. 25 meet was originally slated as a giant slalom. Due to the marginal conditions the course was altered to the shorter slalom format. Some competitors arrived prepared for the GS format with equipment specifically suited to giant slalom. The conditions took their toll with a greater than usual number of falls and DNF's.

The strong showing gained the Cohasset men's squad a second place in the meet and strengthened their hold on second place for the season.

The women's results followed that of the first meet with Krista Niit and Allison Lupinetti of Dover-Sherborn one-two in division and leading 4 D-S women into the top 10. Alissa Sexton skiing in the first seed for the Cohasset women took fourth. Cara McKenney and Bonnie Kruegger finished seventh and eighth, giving Cohasset three of the top 10 spots.

As with the men the Cohasset women skiers placed second in the meet in division keeping them slightly ahead of Milton for second place in division. The coveted top two spots assure a team entry in the Massachusetts State High School Alpine Ski Championships in March.

Coaches Jack Dane and Bob Stansell hope to have both their squads at full strength for the next meet. The Jan. 25 meet fell in the middle of midyear exams. Some skiers scoring in the previous meet did not compete due to academic commitments.

Upcoming meets will be held at the Blue Hills Ski Area, Canton, Mondays, Feb. 8 and 15 at 5:30 p.m.

Road race set

Plans are well underway for the Seventeenth Annual Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea. The race will take place Sunday, April 4 at 1 p.m. preceded by a 10k Walk at 10 a.m. The event which is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Cohasset is under the direction of Roy Fitzsimmons and Peter Logan. Proceeds from the event help fund the many in-town causes that Rotary supports.

The entry fee is $10. Each entrant receives a shirt with the race logo and free refreshments. Registration is limited to the first 800 and ends March 30. Prizes are donated by many of the local restaurants and businesses. The race has been rated most scenic by the New England Runner Magazine and always draws runners from throughout New England and other states.

Applications are available at Curtis Liquors, Good Sport or by sending a self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 36, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Ski trips offered

The Cohasset and Scituate Recreation Department will co-sponsor two February ski trips.

A children's and youth, aged 10-and-over, trip is scheduled for Sat., Feb. 13, to Ragged Mt., N.H. The cost for this trip is $43 per person. The cost includes motor coach transportation and an all-day-all-mountain lift ticket. Buses will leave from Scituate Town Hall at 6:30 a.m. and from Cohasset Town Hall at 6:45 a.m., returning at about 7:30 p.m. Equipment rental and/or lessons are available at Ragged Mt., and should you desire either, please indicate this at the time of registration.

An adult, age 18-and-over, night ski trip is scheduled for Sat., Feb. 27, to Wachusett Mt. The cost for this trip for night skiing is $40 per person. Buses will leave Scituate Town Hall at 2 p.m. and Cohasset Town Hall at 2:15 p.m. They will return around midnight.

Should you wish to register for either ski trip, please call either the Cohasset or Scituate Recreation Departments at 383-6791 or 545-8738 respectively.

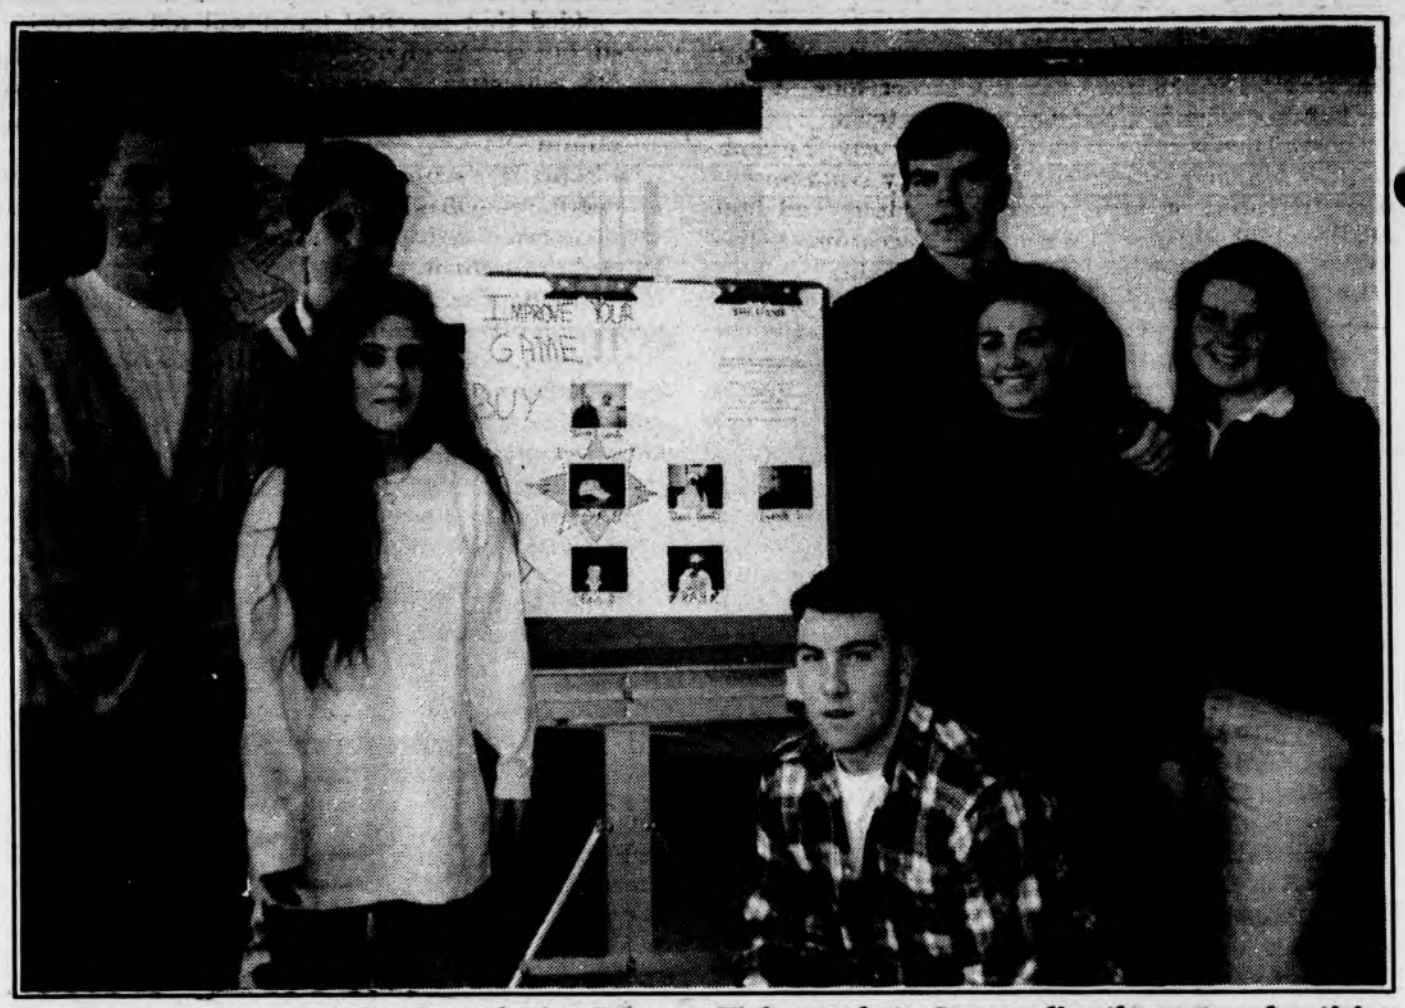
It's hats on! for CHS management class

Mix a little school pride, a hot fashion item, and management class — and presto what have you got?

A nifty fund-raiser for the student council scholarship fund.

Well, it wasn't quite that easy.

But an enthusiastic bunch of students in Joan Wool's high school management class have taken their studies literally.



Mrs. Wool's management class is marketing Cohasset High game hats. Surrounding the poster advertising the caps are: Justin Littlehale, Nicole Batts, A.J. Sless, Chris Rolandelli, Doug Schultz, Amy Young and Kim Ward. (Staff photo/Mary Ford)

They're turning some book-learning into the stuff of real life: capitalism.

Not only has the class has done the marketing research behind their product — Cohasset High School game caps — but they created the design; made the contacts; developed a business plan and projected a profit margin; and are in the midst of the advertising and promotion stage. And the project included some effort that is uniquely school-based: permission from the administration and student council.

The project also involves lots of work on the computer with word-processing and spread-sheet programs

The class plans to sell 200 hats which will gross about $2,500 and net about $750 for the scholarship fund.

The students hope the caps will be sold out by the spring sports' rally and if early results are an indicator, they should have no problem.

They've already been able to sell 20 hats without anyone actually seeing one. The first three-dozen hats should arrive within two weeks. And the early sales competed with tickets for the school semi-formal and student budgets recovering from the holidays.

The price per hat is $12.50 but the class is offering discounts for those who buy two or more.

The students like the hands-on approach to their business class.

"We're not just hearing how to market a product but we're finding out how deals are cut," said senior, Doug Schultz.

The class is using flyers, posters, and the school radio station to advertise.

And the kids will target some high-profile people soon for sales. They plan to sell hats to the school committee and possibly selectmen and other officials.

Ben Franklin talks to Deer Hill students

Benjamin Franklin came to Deer Hill School Thursday and Friday, inside Bill Mzikle.

Mzikle does more than perform the legendary American. For the past eight years he has spent much of his time inhabiting Franklin's cosmic skin.

Mzikle disdains the idea he is a history teacher.

"I try to teach cognitive skills, the history is secondary," he says.

"I'm trying to be provocative. Franklin participated in the rebellion, but he really didn't support it. You don't get all that patriotic stuff with him. I'm trying to develop cognitive skills, to keep them learning."

Mzikle has taken Ben all over the country from the Museum of Our National Heritage, where he first went before an audience, to San Francisco — and Ben has spoken to all types of audiences. These days Mzikle has taken a page from Franklin about his own life...he likes being in front of kids because he feels useful.

Schools seek parental input on AIDS curriculum

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Cohasset Public School Health Coordinator Michael Gill wants to make parents the cornerstone of any elementary school AIDS curriculum in town.

"We will incorporate parents along the way," he said.

AIDS — or acquired immunodeficiency syndrome — was the cause of death for 30,000 adults and 309 children in the United States in 1991, according to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

The same department reported that as of Jan. 1, 1993, Cohasset had "less than five" AIDS cases.

Gill said there may be an elementary AIDS program in the schools by the end of this academic year — depending on an established need in town.

"The literature tells us there is a need," he said.

"But whether the findings reflect our kids' concerns in Cohasset is the issue."

The subject is currently introduced in the seventh-grade in mandatory health classes.

At the elementary age level, Gill explained, children's understanding of AIDS is generally limited to fearing contraction.

Elementary AIDS programs are aimed at calming their fears, he said.

Gill is currently writing a set of proposals on a possible elementary AIDS program which he will submit to school administration officials within the next two weeks.

If School Supt. Stephen Hart finds the proposals worthy of consideration, Gill said he will discuss the guidelines with the community health education committee.

"The committee is made up of parents, students and faculty," Gill explained.

Then, we will host parent orientation nights to share concerns, curiosity."

He added that parental input will not merely be invited, but sought after.

"AIDS education is one of the first areas where schools have solicited parents' involvement to form curriculum."

Gill hopes the school-parent partnership approach to elementary AIDS education in Cohasset will prevent the outcry expressed against a similar program recently unveiled in Hingham.

The Hingham schools alienated several parents last month when they presented a completed elementary AIDS curriculum which had been developed over the course of five years.

The schools first solicited parental input on the controversial subject just six weeks before classes were scheduled to begin.

The Hingham elementary AIDS curriculum is voluntary and offered to only grades five and six.

Initially, the schools had incorporated grade four into the curriculum but parents convinced school officials to eliminate that age level from the voluntary classes.

Gill said while parental input is crucial to determine a need for an elementary AIDS curriculum, studies show parents are often poor judges of the breadth of their children's knowledge.

"Studies show parents frequently underestimate what their kids are exposed to," he said.

Gill should know.

His doctoral dissertation is titled, "Parent Assessment and Child Knowledge About AIDS."

To compile the piece, Gill compared what parents assumed their child knew about AIDS and what the child said they knew about AIDS.

"Parental perceptions are frequently inaccurate," he said.

Gill hopes to share his findings with parents in the coming months during discussions of a possible elementary AIDS curriculum.

Vacation fun planned

The Cohasset Recreation Department hosts a five-day February School Vacation Program at the Deer Hill School, Sohier Street. The program runs Monday through Friday, Feb. 15 to 19.

Area youngsters age five to 12 may attend the program between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Special rates are available for five-day registrations and family discounts, as well as daily rates, are available.

The program consists of sports, games and arts and crafts, and much more.

To pre-register, call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791, or you may register at the Deer Hill School during program hours, the week of the program. Children will be accepted on a first-enrolled basis as daily numbers must be restricted.

Release day update

The staff of the Joseph Osgood School conducted Parent Conferences Thursday, Jan. 28. Report cards went home recently and conferences have been scheduled for Feb. 4 as well. This is an important time for parents and teachers to meet and discuss each student's progress. Any parent who desires a conference, please call your child's teacher to set up an appointment.

The staff of Deer Hill School had two programs, given by our own teachers, during this release day. The afternoon began with a report by Joann Magoun, Nancy Magnussen and Betty Cisneros on a "National Site School" they visited in Kennebunk, Maine. This school has received recognition for its use of innovative instructional techniques. A discussion followed the workshop on integrating some of these methods at Deer Hill.

RADON
Gets You Where You Live

Message from Gerard

Read almost any publication on health these days and you will be encouraged to participate in some form of exercise to enjoy a longer and more productive life. In response to this line of thinking, your Council on Aging has developed a wide range of exercise classes for the benefit of our seniors. These programs vary in physical demands and leave open an opportunity for you to choose the program most suited to your needs and capabilities.

Whether you choose water aerobics, exercise with Karen on Mondays and Wednesdays, gentle exercise with Chris on Tuesday, Tai Chi with Tony on Fridays, walk with Ann on Wednesdays, walk with Jane on Fridays, bowling at the Center on Thursday or Line Dancing with Rita on Wednesday, the programs are varied enough to satisfy ones needs. This affords a great opportunity to stimulate the vascular system and at the same time have a little fun. Since our mission is to make seniors more functional so that they can remain active and participate more fully in life, we encourage you to join in this effort by enrolling in one or more of the above programs.

Phase I of the Senior Center expansion program has been completed and again we thank Glenn Pratt and the directors of the Community Center for providing for us this much needed and enlarged facility. While the construction is finished, we are still in need of another $40,000 to complete payment of bills. If you are in a position to assist, please send your contribution to the Friends Of The Council On Aging.

On New Year's Eve the Community Center launched its "Celebrate 93" festivities. The Community Center and the Council On Aging opened their doors wide to kick off the program at 5:30 p.m. They were joined by St. Stephen's Church, Town Hall, Second Congregational Church, and First Parish Church in accommodating the necessary programs to keep everyone occupied up until the grand finale at 10 p.m. Whether it was Chili at the Parish House, dinner at St. Stephen's, a show at the Town Hall, dessert at Second Congregational, or chowder and pizza at the Senior Center all appeared to be well patronized. The various singing and musical groups were excellent and the music and dancing at the Community Center drew a large crowd. Several senior couples were among the most active dancers to rock and roll music. The event was well planned and organized even to a room for baby feeding and changing. One of the more impressive sights was the large number of baby carriages parked outside Town Hall. There were over 1500 buttons sold. We congratulate Rhonda Myers and her committee for giving Cohasset a real family first night. This was a very ambitious and successful undertaking. Let's hope it continues.

Gerard Keating

SHARE NEW ENGLAND

Bagging Day: At the Share Warehouse on Will Drive in Canton will be Wednesday, Feb. 24. You can ride with Eileen Corbett from Town Hall, call Eileen at 383-6467. This can be your two hours of community services.

Distribution Day: Your order will be given out Saturday Feb. 27, from 8:30 to 10 a.m. at the Deer Hill School on Sohier St. Mark this date so you will not forget. No orders are saved, and there are no refunds. Call John Kierce at 383-0578 if you want to help with SHARE.

COA NEEDS HELP

The Council on Aging is serving lunch to senior citizens Tuesdays and Thursdays. If you have a few hours, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. to help serve meals, set up or clean up, please call Linday Guild at 383-9112.

MENU FOR LUNCHES

Thursday, Feb. 11: Meatloaf w/onion gravy, whipped potato, Harvard beets, dark rye bread, fruited jello.

Tuesday, Feb. 16: VALENTINE CELEBRATION – BBQ beef ribs, red bliss potatoes, corn with pimentos, snowflake roll, Merry-Go-Round-Cake.

Thursday, Feb. 18: Cream of cauliflower soup, oven baked chicken leg, rice medley, whole wheat roll, chilled fruit.

Tuesday, Feb. 23: Ziti with meat sauce, Italian blend vegetables, Scali bread, chilled fruit.

Thursday, Feb. 25: Veal Marsala, whipped potato, green beans, whole wheat bread, bread pudding.

TRIPS - TRIPS

The Cohasset Council on Aging will accept telephone registration for an up-coming trip to see "Le Grand David" at the Cabot Theater. Le Grand David and his own spectacular magic co. is a turn-of-the-century-style extravaganza complete with dancing, classical music, grand stage illusions, stunning costumes and elaborate sets. This will be an afternoon of outstanding entertainment. Cost $30, due and payable to: Cohasset Council on Aging, 3 North Main St., Tel. 383-9112.

Big Apple Easter Trip – April 15 and 16. Trip includes Radio City Music Hall Show, stay at Helmsley Middletown Hotel, dinner at Patsy's and luncheon at Tavern on the Green. Cost: $229 single and $239 double. Call Libby at 383-0711. Deadline is March 11.

AARP to meet

The next meeting of the South Shore Chapter #1139 of the American Association of Retired Persons will be Thursday, Feb. 25, at 1:30 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, Route 3A, Hingham.

After a short business meeting, Helen Collameco will lead us in a program of "Line Dancing." Refreshments will be served. Do come and join the fun. Any member of the National AARP or ARTA may join a chapter and is welcome at this meeting.

Animals in snuggies

The Cohasset Girl Scouts will sponsor an activity for all girls from grades K-6 Monday, Feb. 15, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the 2nd Congregational Church, Highland Avenue, Cohasset.

During the day, the girls will learn how animals settle in for the winter. Do they put on winter coats as you do? Where do they go to keep warm? Where do they find food?

The cost is $2 for scouts and $6 for non-scouts. Bring a bag lunch (drink will be provided). The deadline for registration is Feb. 12. Call Georgine Butman, 383-2528.

Kids' art workshops

During the February vacation, the Paul Pratt Memorial Library will offer two workshops featuring African folklore and African masks.

The workshops are offered Tuesday, Feb. 16 and Thursday, Feb. 18 from 1 to 2:30 p.m. for children in grades one through five. Signup is at the library and admission is free.

The workshops feature storytelling in conjunction with clay sculpture and three-dimensional painting. Nancy Hansen-Connolly, local artist and teacher uses storytelling to stimulate creativity and imagination and to share information about different cultures with her students.

Masks are a unique medium in that they can express many emotions. In her workshops, Nancy encourages children to "tell me how it feels" as they create their masks and paintings. The results are always fascinating!

The workshops are paid for with a grant from the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council. Pre-registration is required by calling the library at 383-1348. There is also a sign-up sheet at the library.

Love that works

Judy manages the Cohasset operation alone and puts in about 40 hours at the Inn.

When do they get to see each other?

"It's quality time, not quantity time," Paul said.

He added that their idea of a night out, is a night in.

"I'll make a nice dinner at home, with a bottle of wine," she said.

"I don't critique her cooking," Paul said.

"Other than to tell her it's great."

Restaurants have been at the center of the Keelers' relationship from the start.

"We met 18 years ago when we were both working at the same restaurant," Paul said.

The restaurant had a policy that management and help could not socialize, and Paul was a manager and Judy was a hostess.

As love bloomed, Judy eventually left her job and became a waitress elsewhere.

Paul said he proposed to her while she was working at the restaurant.

"I went to her restaurant and I asked her to marry me," he recalled.

"She made me write it on a cocktail napkin and have everyone in the bar sign it to prove I said it."

"I still have the napkin," she said.

Although they've worked in the same industry, taking over the Red Lion Inn three years ago was the couple's first foray into self-employment.

"To go from your own job to starting your own company is very scary," Judy said.

"But we are very happy we made the decision."

Paul said although he works long hours, part of the reason he wanted to be self-employed was the independence it provides to spend more time with his family.

"This way, I can still catch my son's Little League game or go to a movie."

Love match: Judy and Paul Keeler enjoy a rare quiet moment alone in the lounge of The Hingham Landing, a restaurant they opened together in October.

(Staff photo/ Dori Dwyer)

This Valentine's Day the Keelers will be the envy of any couple.

They will be the only couple dining alone in a swank restaurant.

Dinner will be served after closing at none other than...The Hingham Landing.

Cohasset Mariner

Vol. XV, No.19 | Thursday, February 18, 1993 | 1-800-649-6661 | 50 cents

Hull amusement park traffic a key concern

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

What is being touted as the key to Hull's economic revival is seen by some residents as opening the door to Cohasset's decline.

Opponents of the proposed $31 million Nantasket Point Family Park & Pavilion in Hull say traffic in Cohasset will become unbearable if plans for the amusement complex go through.

"You can't get back to your own property in the summer now," Eileen Colwill said. Colwill lives less than half-a-mile from the proposed 38-acre site.

She is considering moving if Nantasket Point becomes a reality.

"It would devastate our lives," she said.

"I would sell."

She is not alone.

Her Hingham neighbor, Gail Cadigan of Hull Street lives one-quarter mile from the proposed site.

"I would sell, but I'm sure it (the park) would destroy the property value."

Cadigan said she is not opposed to amusement parks, but the Old Hall Estate on Nantasket Avenue is not the place.

"If there was something less intrusive, and keeping with a residential setting, it would satisfy everyone."

Colwill said her objections to the park emanate from one concern.

"Traffic, traffic, traffic."

General Investment and Development Co. (GID) of Boston purchased the land in 1986. GID project manager Kinney O'Rourke said the company wasn't sure what they would do with the parcel, but decided on an amusement park after viewing convincing demographic studies.

"Boston is the only metro area in the USA today that does not have an amusement park of any kind," O'Rourke said.

"The primary reason is the land is scarce and more expensive, considering the relatively short season of operations."

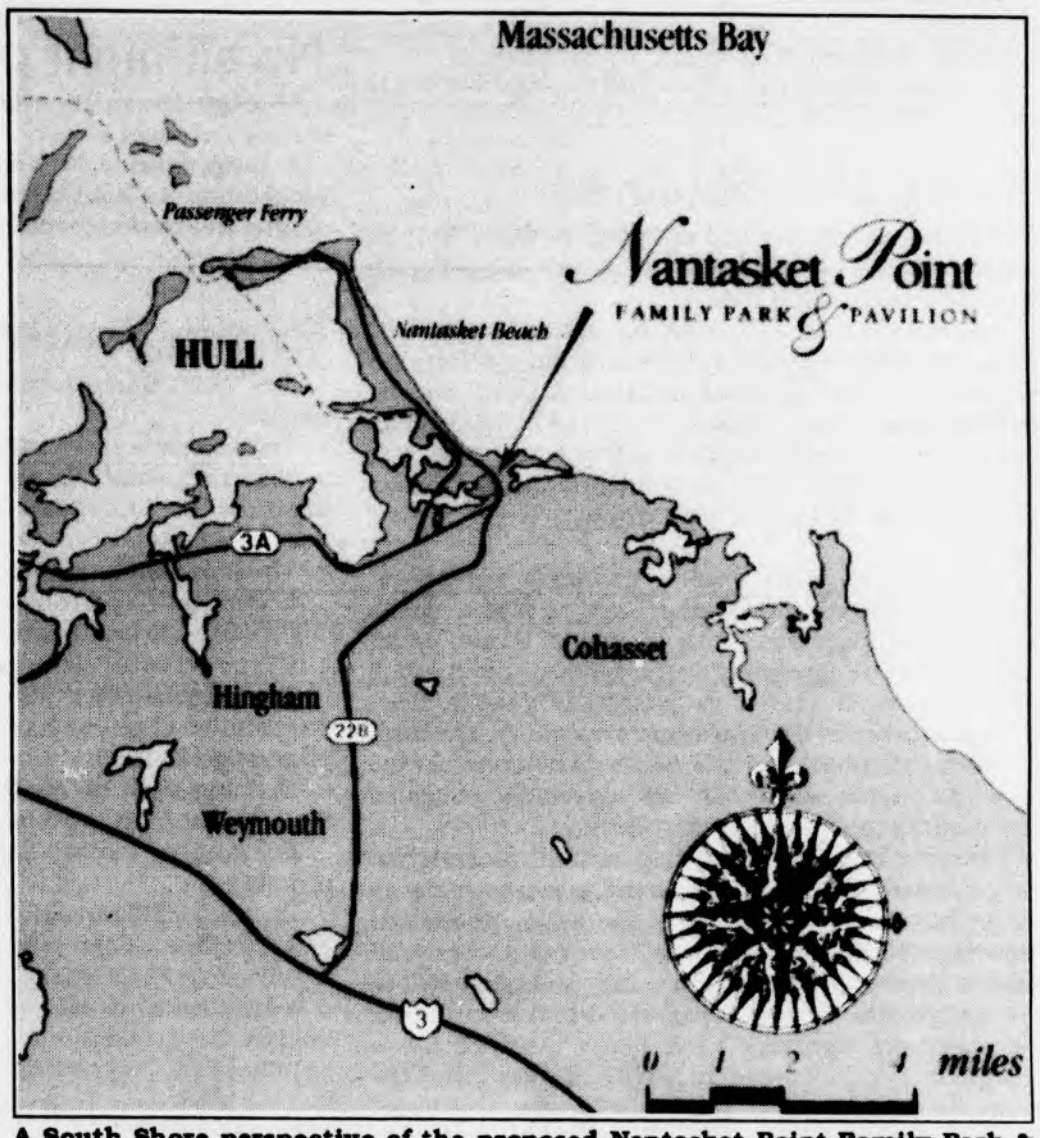
Kinney, who lives in Hull, said the park will evoke a Victorian theme and be open from mid-April to October with extended summer hours. It will offer approximately 20 attractions, including a 100-foot-high Ferris Wheel and a 30-foot-high roller coaster.

"It will be for anyone from six to 60," he added.

Nantasket Point will offer 600 parking spaces and is expected to attract 9,800 visitors on peak summer days, he said.

Unfortunately for Cohasset residents near the Hull line, many of those visitors will cause further traffic snarls in the summer.

(See page 3)



A South Shore perspective of the proposed Nantasket Point Family Park & Pavilion in Hull near the Hingham line. The park's developer, General Investment and Development Co., proposes to have on-site parking for 600 cars, and is investigating the possibility of shuttle service from two off-site parking lots in Hingham.

Recycling surge results in a surplus of suppliers

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

The recycling rage has a down side — at least for communities which jumped on the bandwagon early.

Towns like Scituate and Cohasset, which began recycling programs in the late 70s, no longer operate in a market with few competitors.

While the cost to haul away separated items to a recycling company is usually less than the cost of disposing of the items in a landfill or burning them, recycling pioneers miss the money they used to receive for their "product."

Ten years ago, when community recycling programs were in their infancy in Massachusetts, companies paid communities for their wastepaper and other recyclable items.

Chairman of the Cohasset Recycling Committee Arthur Lehr Jr. laments the loss in revenue.

"There was a time when we were able to sell the newspapers — before the big glut," Lehr said.

"Now there's not enough manufacturers around for the supply."

Lehr's Scituate counterpart, agrees.

"We netted $10,000 every year," he said.

"We got paid for paper, oil, cardboard — now its completely turned around."

Banks and Lehr say their towns were among the first in the state to begin formal recycling programs.

As part of a small group of organized suppliers of Library trustee is only election contest

Leave it to the library trustees to spice up the town election.

The only race in the April 3 town election is a four-way contest for three positions on the Trustees of the Paul Pratt Library.

Jerusalem Road resident Ellery Clark, 83, will try to unseat one of the three incumbents: Lucille McLouglin, Sheila S. Evans, or Doris McNulty.

Town Clerk Marion Douglas says it's too soon to estimate the turnout.

"It will probably be lower than usual," Douglas conceded.

Rabies clinic planned

The board of health will sponsor a rabies clinic Saturday, March 6 in the town hall auditorium.

Dogs will be vaccinated from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. and cats from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

All dogs should be on a leash and cats should be in a carrier.

The fee is $6 per animal.

For more information, please call the board of health office at 383-9900.

Guilty plea obtained

The former owner and operator of Wells Yachts-South, a yacht dealership in Hingham, pleaded guilty to federal bank fraud Feb. 1.

United States Attorney A. John Pappalardo announced that Frederick P. McLaughlin, 48, formerly residing at 32 Nichols Road in Cohasset, pleaded guilty before United States District Judge Harrington to an Information charging Bank Fraud in connection with loans McLaughlin obtained from Shawmut Bank for the purchase of yachts sold through Wells Yachts-South.

The charges stem from a financing agreement, commonly called a floor-plan line of credit, which McLaughlin negotiated with Shawmut Bank. Under the terms of the agreement, McLaughlin drew on a $2.5 million line of credit to purchase yachts from manufacturers for the dealership's inventory. The bank held secured interests in the yachts as collateral for the loan. As yachts were sold, the agreement obligated McLaughlin to repay Shawmut Bank.

However, from 1986 until August 1989, McLaughlin concealed from Shawmut Bank the sale of as many as 37 yachts, and failed to repay the bank. He caused reports to Shawmut Bank to indicate yachts were still held in inventory when, in fact, they had been sold to private parties. He also represented to the bank that the inventory securing bank loans included boats which, in fact, belonged to private parties who had merely consigned them to the dealership to sell for them. On Aug. 21, 1989, McLaughlin suddenly disappeared after closing the dealership without any advance notice to employees, customers or the bank.

McLaughlin has been held in custody without bail since his arrest Nov. 23, 1992. He faces up to five years in prison and a fine of $250,000. Judge Harrington scheduled sentencing for March 22.

The case was investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and is being prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney Victor A. Wild of Pappalardo's Economic Crimes Unit.

No all-night parking

Through March 15, overnight parking is prohibited on any Cohasset street.

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on any street for longer than one hour between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. during this period, police said.

Burning season opens

The 1993 Open Burning Season in Cohasset has begun.

Permits are issued on a daily basis. Residents seeking a burning permit should call the Fire Department business line, 383-0616, on the day burning will be conducted.

The following information will be requested of you:

* Name (of responsible party supervising the fire)
* Address (where burning will be conducted)
* Type of materials to be burned.

Burning shall be conducted between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. and shall be conducted on land proximate to the place of generation.

Burning shall be conducted at a location greater than 75 feet from any building and

Burning of leaves, grass, hay, and stumps is prohibited.

Burning shall not cause a nuisance.

A complete set of rules for Open Burning is available for review at Fire Headquarters, 44 Elm St.

Permit issuance may be suspended at any time by the Fire Department due to environmental conditions or noncompliance with the rules by a permit holder. Permits are issued between the hours of 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. at 383-0616.

Safety should be a primary concern. A water hose, tools, and constant supervision of an active fire are strongly recommended.

Burning season ends May 1.

Appliance fee set

There is a $10 fee per appliance for all residents disposing appliances containing chlorofluorocarbons (CFC's) in their cooling units. Examples of such appliances are refrigerators, air-conditioners and dehumidifiers.

New regulations require removal of CFC's before they are sent to the scrap dealer.

RTF regulations set

Regulations for resident/hauler use at the Cedar Street Recycling Transfer Facility (RTF) are:

The RTF may be used by residents who have a current sticker purchased at the board of health or the RTF for waste generated at their residence only. Persons who recycle must also purchase a sticker to be admitted to the RTF. Certain businesses may also purchase a permit. Landscapers may deposit leaf and yard waste from Cohasset without a permit. Violators may be fined $25.

The RTF is open Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Wastes or recyclables must be placed in their appropriate area. Refuse must not be allowed to spill from a vehicle carrying litter. Certain items are prohibited: demolition waste from contractors, stumps, automobiles, toxic and/or special wastes, large animals and septage. Brush, including Christmas trees, is accepted only on designated days as published in the local newspaper.

A sticker fee will be set annually by the board of health. A fee for truck loads of other than normal household waste is also set. These and other fees for commercial haulers, businesses and recycling are posted in the board of health office.

Solicitation is permitted only within 75 feet of the exit gate.

The entire regulation is available for public review at the board of health offices, town hall.

Proposed park is causing concern . . .

Cohasset officials have not yet taken action on the proposal— unlike Hingham, where they are already consulting attorneys about options to stop the park, or at least the traffic.

Hingham Selectmen Chairman Kevin Costello said the town would file a law suit if the park is approved. He said the anticipated traffic would destroy the small-town atmosphere of Hingham.

Rte. 228 overlaps Main Street in Hingham and would provide the most direct access to Hull for those not living in the area.

According to a 1985 traffic study of Main Street, the average daily traffic volume was 20,405 vehicle trips. The study was conducted on a Friday in late June. Main Street volume rose to 22,526 vehicle trips per day when the study was repeated on the following Saturday.

Hingham Traffic Supervisor Sgt. Robert Myers said he wasn't sure what impact Nantasket Point tourists would have on Main Street.

"We handled it before, with Paragon Park," he said.

"But it is still a large amount of people."

Paragon Park closed in 1985.

The other major road which leads to Hull is Rte. 3A, which cuts through Hingham and Cohasset.

Myers said a study done several years ago on the average daily traffic volume at the Rte. 3A rotary which leads to Cohasset from Hingham registered approximately 32,000 vehicle trips.

However, the most critical traffic impact study has yet to be made public.

The GID traffic impact study which was submitted to the Hull planning board with its amusement park proposal several weeks ago contains statistics O'Rourke refuses to divulge.

"I'm not prepared to discuss what the report says yet," he said.

Hull planning board members were unavailable for comment as the Mariner went to press.

O'Rourke did say GID hopes to mitigate travel problems by providing more parking options and expanding current commuter boat schedules.

The Hingham Shipyard on Route 3A and the park-and-ride lot in Rockland on Pond Street near Route 3 are possible satellite parking areas GID is considering for weekend use, O'Rourke said.

Chris Hendricks from Bay State Cruise Company of Boston, which operates two trips per day into Hull, said the commuter boat company has already been approached by GID.

"Our chief operating officer has had dialogues with people who talked about developing that area," he said.

Hendricks, who is a vice-president with Bay State's sister company, Spirit Cruises Inc., said he did not know if any expansion plans were confirmed.

O'Rourke said GID is committed to its amusement park plan and may offer concessions to surrounding communities. "Everything is on the table."

He declined to name specific measures GID might offer surrounding towns.

O'Rourke added though, that his view of the project is parochial.

"I have to look at this from Hull's point of view," he said.

"It would be really good for Hull."

Hull residents, who appear divided on the issue, will have the ultimate say at town meeting, which begins April 12

A two-thirds vote is needed to give GID permission to convert its proposal into a reality.

Only one contest in town election . . .

She said absentee ballots are a good gauge and will be available about two weeks before the election.

To increase public awareness of where their officials stand on issues, the Cohasset Mariner is asking all interested candidates to reply to the question of the week. (See page 10).

Selectmen Martha K. Gjesteby and Jane O. Goedecke are unopposed in their bids for re-election.

Interim Town Moderator George L. Marlette is running unchallenged for election to a three-year term. Selectmen appointed Marlette as interim town moderator last fall after former moderator William D. Weeks stepped down.

J. "Ted" Carroll is running unopposed for to fill an unexpired term on the recreation commission created when Terese Duggan stepped down. Richard Barrow is unchallenged in his bid for a fourth term on that board.

Other unopposed candidates are: Marion L. Douglas (town clerk); Elizabeth B. Ripley (treasurer/collector); Harold Litchfield (highway surveyor); James W. Lagrotteria (assessors); Nancy L. Sandell (school committee); William E. Baird and Robert V. Davenport (health board); Robert H. Sturdy (planning board); Edward M. Guild (sewer commission); and William J. Montuori (water commission).

Surplus of suppliers due to recycling surge newspaper and other recyclable items, they commanded a price for their product.

Today, with more and more communities instituting mandatory recycling laws, supply outstrips demand for most products and it is the buyer who controls the price.

However, Hingham Transfer Station Manager Joseph Haley approaches the business of recycling from a different stand-point.

Newly instituted three years ago, the Hingham recycling program was never expected to produce revenue.

Savings, however, was the goal.

Haley said he hasn't been disappointed.

He estimated that Hingham saved an acre of valuable and limited landfill space last year through recycling.

He said the acre is worth approximately $220,000.

"We pay $200 in hauling costs for one twenty-yard container of newspapers. Compare that to $1,000 if it were the same size container of trash," he said.

The company Hingham hauls its newspapers to is North Shore Recycled Fibers of Weymouth.

Maurice R. Banville, market development manager at Recycled Fibers, says recycling, like any other business, operates on a supply and demand basis.

"We used to pay for the paper — but now there's a lot of paper on the market," he explained.

The incentive for communities to recycle — besides the obvious environmental benefits — has changed over the past several years, he observes.

"It is really a 'cost-avoidance' issue now," Banville said.

As landfills become filled, communities need somewhere to put their trash, he explained.

Hingham saved an acre of landfill space last year through recycling, according to transfer station manager Joseph Haley. He said the acre is worth approximately $220,000.

Recycling companies usually cost less than trash companies, Banville said, so communities are increasing their efforts to separate trash into recyclable products.

Banville said the imbalance between supply and demand for at least one recyclable item — wastepaper — is being corrected.

"More and more mills are being fitted"for recycling, he says.

North Shore Recycle Fibers is a division of the Newark Group — a privately held corporation which Banville said has gross annual sales of $700 million.

Recycled Fibers is New England's largest paper recycling entity, and the division handles 30,000 tons of wastepaper a month.

Unlike many of its competitors, Recycle Fibers isn't simply a middle man for used paper.

The company also operates three paper mills in Massachusetts, specially "fitted" to produce paperboard from wastepaper.

Through a hydropulp process, wastepaper is immersed in a hot water mixture and broken down by a huge mixer.

Eventually the mixture is refined, put on massive rolls and steam-dried to a desired thickness.

The end product is paperboard — a skinnier, more flexible cousin of cardboard. Pizza boxes, tissue containers and the back of notebooks are made of paperboard.

There will be no lack of raw material for paperboard after 1993.

New state guidelines ban the landfilling of paper beginning in 1994.

The company also collects plastic, which is then resold to other companies.

While Banks agrees the global profit from widespread recycling is more important than the town's lost revenues, he said there is way demand can keep pace with supply of recyclables.

"The federal government should institute recycling laws."

Ellery H. Clark, Jr.

Ellery H. Clark, Jr., 262 Jerusalem Rd., announces his candidacy for library trustee.

Clark was born August 6, 1909 in the house where he still resides. Clark, sprightly Cohasset native, graduated with honors in 1933 from Harvard. He holds a masters in history from Boston University. A Navy captain, Clark is a combat veteran and was a history professor at the United States Naval Academy. He also served 38 years as a USNA cross country and track coach. He is founder of the U.S. Naval Institute's Naval Review. He is co-author of three volumes on naval history and is sole author of three books on Boston Red Sox history.

He serve don the Cohasset school committee in 1940 and is a member of the Cohasset Historical Society, BoSox Club, and Society for American Baseball Research.

In 1992, Clark was awarded title of "legend" by his club, the Boston Athletic Association. To date in his 72-year career, Clark has 85 track firsts, 23 seconds, and 23 thirds. His is the current Massachusetts Senior Olympics outdoor titlist and record holder in six events in his age group. He is New England indoor champion and record holder in five events.

Selectman

Martha K. Gjesteby

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby announced this week that she will seek a third three-year term on the Cohasset Board of Selectman.

Currently, she serves as vice chairman of the board of selectmen and is a member of the Joint Regional Transportation committee and the Citizens' Advisory committee to study the feasibility of the Old Colony Railroad.

Additionally, she is a member of the Massachusetts Municipal Association Public Works Committee and an executive member of the 10-town South Shore Coalition, having served as chairman of the Coalition in 1992.

Martha was a member of the Metropolitan Area Planning Counsel Executive Committee for 10 years, serving as treasurer or secretary of the counsel for six of those years.

While she has worked on numerous subcommittees and projects over the years, she said the one which she feels has produced the best town-wide and regional benefits, is the drug committee which she founded in 1989.

"Only the idea for the committee was mine; a group of parents and interested citizens took that seed and did wonderful things such as the annual drug-free weekend," Gjesteby said.

She is a former member of the Cohasset Planning Board, School Committee (two terms), and the Capital Budget Committee.

Gjesteby is a member and former director of the Cohasset Community Center and the Community Garden Club; and has had a long association with the Historical Society and Friends of the Paul Pratt Library.

Gjesteby, who holds a B.S. in Chemistry from Simmons College, resides on Old Pasture Rd. with her husband Arne. Four grown children all graduated from Cohasset Public Schools. The Gjestebys have six grandchildren (a seventh is pending).

The Social Service League of Cohasset sponsored a seminar Feb. 9 urging women to participate in household financial matters. Mary Hartwell, a member of the Social Service League and Valerie-Browne - Matherly, of Cohasset, a divorce and progate attorney addressed the group. Some of the points covered were promoting women to be alert and knowledgeable in health insurance, assets, checkbook knowledge, investments, attorney and accountants and wills. The program was taped and is available at the Social Service League for borrowing. Please call 383-0771 or 383-0821 if interested. L-R in the photo are Ruth Wilcox, chairman of the Family Service Committee, Valerie-Browne-Matherly, an attorney and Mary Hartwell of the Cohasset Social Service League.

❑ Hunneman Coldwell Banker's Awards presentation was held at the Vista Hotel in Waltham to recognize the achievements of the company's top producers. Award winners from the Cohasset Office were Martha Freeman, Joyce Hoffman, Laurajean McDonald, Penny O'Brien and Claire Watts. Congratulations for a fine year!

❑ Pat and Maria Plante recently returned from a two-week trip to Houston, Texas, where they welcomed the birth of their seventh grandchild! Their daughter, Anna, and husband, Mark Karski, became the proud parents of a beautiful baby girl, Elena Ann. Elena Ann was born at the Houston Northwest Medical Center Jan. 22. Her mom, Anna, is a 1982 graduate of Cohasset High School.

What wonderful news for all of you!

❑ Happy birthday greetings go to a special lady this week, and we mean special! Ruth Rawson celebrated her special day with her friends last week, and a grand time was had by all. (You should have seen the beautiful cake, as pretty as the beautiful lady it was made for!)

❑ Allison (Laglow) Ludlow and Jenn (Knowlesy) Knowles received their certificates at the National Women In Sports Day recently. These two young ladies were chosen to represent Cohasset High School because of their outstanding achievement during their athletic career.

❑ Mark Tuesday evening, March 2, on your calendar now! That's the date of the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation and the Cohasset Historical Society's 'nner meeting and illustrated lectur 'with James W. Hyland, founder and cha ıan of the Lighthouse Society.

The evening is entitled "On ıe Lighthouse Trail," and will be held at Kimball's By the Sea. Proceeds from this jointly-sponsored dinner meeting and lecture will be applied to restoration of the lightkeeper's house on Government Island, and repairs to the Captain John Wilson House and Maritime Museum in Cohasset Village.

If you cannot attend the dinner, please consider a donation to be shared equally by the two sponsoring groups. The dinner begins at 6 p.m. with a reception (cash bar), dinner at 6:45 p.m., and the lecture at 8 p.m., and the cost is $25 per person.

Make checks payable to Cohasset Historical Society and return to Cohasset Historical Society, 14 Summer St., Cohasset, MA 02025.

❑ Hats off to Andrew R. Kilgore, son of Mrs. Jo-An R. Kilgore. He was named to the dean's list of Emory College located in Atlanta, Georgia.

❑ News from Thayer Academy's Headmaster William J. Elliot, who announced Thayer's first term honor roll...Upper School Honors went to Christina 0. Rousseau, class of '94, daughter of Diana T. and John Rousseau Jr., and Marisa Verrochi, daughter of Junemarie and Paul M. Verrochi. Middle School Honors go to Matthew Verrochi, son of Paul M. and Junemarie Verrochi.

❑ Great news from Middlebury College, located in Middlebury, Vermont....Kristein K. Martin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Martin, and Nicole C. Greco, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Greco, have both attained dean's list status, the second highest recognition for academic achievement, for the fall term at Middlebury.

Don Massa (aka Dom Marconi) and Donna Williams of Cohasset prepare for the big Murder Mystery Dinner starting at 7 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 27 at the South Shore Conservatory, Cedar Hill, off 19 Fort Hill St., Hingham. Tickets are $25 per person and benefit the Conservatory scholarship fund. Please call 749-4053 for information.

We congratulate you both!

❑ Most of you remember Bob Donovan, formerly with the South Shore Music Circus...he wants Cohassetites to be sure they have a chance to be on "Wheel of Fortune!" They are going to have a random drawing of 375 people and you can be part of it by picking up all the necessary information at Marshall's. WHDH is running the production, to be held at Park Plaza March 24. Applications have to be returned by Feb. 28, so get hopping to Marshall's for all of the details. Don't forget, 375 people will be auditioned, you could be one!

❑ Stonehill College sends us news to make us proud of two more Cohasset residents...Frank Willshire, a junior, earned highest honors for the fall semester, and Kerry Murphy, a sophomore, earned honors status.

We salute both of you!

Welcome Cassandra Abigail Eisenstadt, born Jan. 8 (she weighed 7 lbs. 10 ozs.). Cassandra is the daughter of Thomas and Deirdre Eisenstadt of 400 Atlantic Ave. and joins her brother, Timothy, who you know must be thrilled!

It's hard to imagine a police cruiser in Cohasset without Officer Carmelo Conte behind the wheel, after all he's been there for 42 years!

He has worked for five police chiefs and how many of us have seen him on various "details" around town? We surely wish you well in your retirement. Make it full of health and happiness!

At least we know that son John will still be an officer. He is president of the police association and we love him too!

Hats off to Deana Genovese for achieving Dean's List status at Plymouth State College in New Hampshire for the fall term! Deana's proud parents are Alan and Linda Genovese of Howe Road.

A Cohasset High 1990 grad, Deana is majoring in child studies.

Keep up the good work, Deana!

That's the news for this week; be sure to let us in on what you did during your vacation!

Follow safe ice guidelines

With cold weather, ice skating season is approaching. The following should be used as a guideline for safe ice.

Ice safe for	0-30°	30-40°	40-50°
Single skaters	1 3/4"	2 3/4"	6"
Couples	2 3/4"	3 3/4"	8"
Crowds	3 3/4"	4 3/4"	12"

These figures are for clear, fresh water ice only; for snow ice, add two inches; for water logged ice, add three inches; if skates cut in, go home! Salt water in mild climates is always treacherous, keep away from it. Also thickness in 40-50° column are safe depths for short periods of time only. Remember, common sense is the most important denominator.

Elms Meadow skating

The deepest portion of Elms Meadow is towards the Spring Street dam (about 12" to 18"); the shallowest is towards the back of the area, which is 3" or so.

Do not throw debris on the ice to check for safety. This only clutters up the ice, making skating dangerous, and does not give you an accurate indication of ice strength.

Question of the Week

Just because there are no contests for the 'biggies' like selectman and board of health in Cohasset for the April 3 election — we want to make sure Cohasset voters don't react with a great, big collective yawn.

So we're going to try something new to generate a little interest and to let Cohasset citizens see where their candidates stand.

Each week, the Cohasset Mariner will ask candidates to respond to the Question of the Week. Each candidate is invited to submit a written reply to the weekly question.

Candidates must limit themselves to 200 typed words (or less), double-spaced. Please keep to the issue and be accurate. We remind the candidates that answers must be submitted by noon Tuesday for publication in that week's issue.

Answers can be dropped off at Colonial Pharmacy or Cohasset News in Cohasset Village; mailed to P.O. Box 71 Cohasset 02025; or 'FAXed' to the Mariner at 617-837-4843.

This week two candidates have sent in their announcements. In addition to replies to the weekly question, a limited amount of space will be reserved for other campaign announcements and events scheduled by all candidates.

So here goes:

Pretend you're talking to someone who is considering buying a home in Cohasset. How would you convince him or her to make the move? Talk about the schools, budget problems, the economy, the crime, etc. Be honest.

Just a reminder, the Mariner will not accept letters to the editor from candidates during the campaign. We also do not accept letters endorsing candidates. The Mariner will publish letters regarding campaign issues but all politically-oriented letters will be cut off two weeks before the election.

No candidates are endorsed by the Mariner Newspapers and no preferential treatment is offered any candidate seeking public office.

Candidates are encouraged to advertise their campaign in this newspaper. For more information about our advertising rates, please contact Judy McCaffery-Perry at 1-800-649-6661.

Congratulations to all the candidates and happy running!

The Mariner welcomes letters to the editor. Please include address and telephone number for verification.

letters

To the Editor:

The Drug Free Weekend Committee would like to give special thanks to the following groups and individuals for their help and support during Cohasset's second annual Drug Free Weekend:

To the Cohasset School Department, without whose help and cooperation this weekend could not have taken place; to Canteen Corporation and its employees for their contributions of labor and food for the Brunch and Super Sundae festival; to the Cohasset High School Student Council for planning and running the Fun Fair enjoyed by so many on Sunday; to the kids and teachers at Deer Hill School for the great posters; to Rev. Ed Atkinson for the use of the Unitarian Parish House; the Cohasset Pizza House for their efforts during the Food Bazaar; to Mary Ford and Molly Hochkeppel for their newspaper support, Kathy Bryanton and the Council on Aging, Cohasset Knoll, the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, the Stop & Shop Cos., Cohasset Basketball Boosters, Continental Cablevision, Teen Depot, Mary Jeanette Murray, and Burt Pratt.

Our special thanks also go out to Phil Lehr (and son), Linda Keller, John Murphy, and Rosemarie Mercurio for their added help during the weekend.

And to Brendan Mulcahy we extend a special thank you. His help was an invaluable part of every event during the weekend.

Committee appointments made

State Senator Brian J. McDonald, D-Weymouth, will serve as Chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee and Senate Vice-Chairman of the Joint Transportation Committee. McDonald will have additional responsibilities on the Joint Commerce and Labor, Local Affairs and Taxation Committees for the 1993-1994 legislative session.

McDonald said that committee appointments were made upon the best interests of each Senator's district.

"I requested appointment to four committees based upon the perceived needs of my constituency and received appointment to three of them," he said.

McDonald can be contacted at his Senate office, Room 416-B at the State House, or by calling 722-1646 with matters of concern.

MARY JEANETTE MURRAY

House Republican Leader Peter Forman (R-Plymouth) today announced committee assignments for the Republican members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives for the 1993-94 session.

"I am pleased to appoint Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset to be the ranking member on the Committee on Counties and the Committee on Local Affairs," said Forman. "I am well aware of her positive contributions to the important matters which have come before these committees in the past and I'm sure Rep. Murray will continue her awareness and expertise on these committees."

The Committee on Counties considers all matters concerning the various counties of the Commonwealth, including the salaries, civil service status and tenure for county employees.

McDonald and the Arts

The South Shore Art Center will host an informational meeting of South Shore cultural organizations and individuals with State Senator Brian McDonald Feb. 26 at 10 a.m. The focus is to identify and encourage the rich cultural resources in our region. To attend, please call Pat at 617-383-9548 by Feb. 24. The meeting will be held at the Art Center, 119 Ripley Road, Cohasset. Refreshments.

Art center thanks firemen

Fortunately there was no fire at the South Shore Art Center recently when several Cohasset firefighters made a call. There was, however, a need for a very tall ladder and some careful maneuvering to remove artwork hanging from the 30-foot ceiling of one of the galleries.

The Art Center thanks Chief John Nadeau, Cliff Dixon, Lee Andrews, Don Hasse, Eric Winslow, Jordan MacNeill and Philip Pratt for their assistance.

coa report

Volunteers are the heart of our organization

Volunteering in America is as old as the Mayflower Pact, when founders of our nation came ashore and pledged to work, not for money, but for a "just and equal life."

The value of volunteerism has not been diminished by progress. If anything, it has been enhanced.

Today, with public resources shrinking and society's needs growing, voluntary service is essential to maintaining social solvency.

Some characteristics of volunteers include skills, motivation, conscientiousness, dependability, influence and availability, all of which enhance our service to the community.

We at the Cohasset Council on Aging are most grateful for the many, many wonderful volunteers who continue to lend their time, talent and energy for the benefit of the senior residents living here in Cohasset.

We thank the fifty-plus drivers who drive the van; the thirty-plus servers and helpers of the nutrition lunch program; the many ladies who help to send out warrants and tax bills for the Town of Cohasset; the dedicated volunteers who help out weekly at the office: the Shine counselors, the walking club leaders, program instructors, and most of all our wonderful, wonderful COA Board members who dedicate many hours to improve the quality of life and to make the lives of Cohasset's senior citizens safer, happier and greatly enriched. We love our volunteers!

Volunteers are needed for the following positions: van drivers morning and afternoon, luncheon helpers for Tuesdays and Thursdays, computer data entry for weekly schedules, Share registration and bagging, office helpers to man the phones mornings and afternoons. Volunteers needed for crafts, baking, fund-raising projects, visiting homebound elders, and greeters for Special Programs. Please call 383-9112.

WEATHER CANCELLATIONS

On stormy days, when the weather forces the closing of schools, all Council on Aging programs will be canceled. The Senior Shuttle will not run, luncheons will not be served, and there will be no classes held. If the Town Hall is closed, the Council office will be closed. Remember to listen to Radio Station WJDA (1300) in Quincy for program cancellations between 7:30 and 9:30 a.m.

DISCRIMINATION BECAUSE OF AGE

Anyone 40 years of age or older is protected under the Federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act. The law in Massachusetts applies to employers with six or more employees, and in general, covers hiring, discharges, layoffs, promotions, wages, or other terms of employment.

The Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination is the agency responsible for enforcing the law. There are a number of steps to take in filing a complaint with your employer. Proving age discrimination is difficult but can be done.

For more information, including advice and help in filing, call Age Discrimination in Employment Project at 1-800-822-2003.

COUNCIL ON AGING QUESTIONNAIRE

In our monthly newsletter (the VISTA) you will find a questionnaire from the Community Center and the Council. Please take the time to fill it out and return it to the Council's office. We are looking for your input and ideas for future programming.

TRIP TO THE JOHN F. KENNEDY LIBRARY

Next Wednesday, Feb. 24, a trip is planned to review the 60-foot replica of the White House at the J.F.K. Library followed by a lunch at the Old Colony Restaurant. The size of this model is 60 feet, very near the total size of the front of the Community Center Building. It is an outstanding copy of the White House.

The bus leaves from S&S parking lot at 11 a.m. The cost is $25.

MARCH TRIP

Seventh in a series

Our year in review: Learn about us before you need us

Before you need hospital care, you should make it a point to learn as much as you can about the health of your local hospital.

We at South Shore Hospital are committed to helping you to know more. These weekly messages are an example. Another is our annual report, available to anyone who wants a copy. Here are some highlights from the report and other facts that you should know.

In 1992, South Shore Hospital cared for 99,000 patients, provided $5.4 million in uncompensated care, won national recognition, began a $40 million modernization program, launched a regional emergency response program and other new services to help the community, and raised $1.1 million in donations.

One of our proudest moments was when our excellence was recognized nationally. The Joint Commission on the Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO) awarded South Shore Hospital its highest recognition, the coveted three-year accreditation with commendation. Our hospital is one of only two in Massachusetts to earn this national distinction, which since January, 1991, has been awarded to only 6 percent of 2,672 U.S. hospitals surveyed. JCAHO evaluates the quality of a hospital's staff performance, patient outcomes, and working environment.

Another indicator of our good health and value to the community came with a $53.8 million tax-exempt bond financing in April. The offering, which sold within a few hours, was rated at a very favorable level by Moody's Investors Service and Standard & Poor's Corporation, and was insured by the Municipal Bond Investors Assurance Corporation (MBIA).

Those funds, along with continued support from the community, helped the hospital launch a five-year modernization program that will create much needed new facilities, renovations, and technology. The program will help make sure the community has access to quality and value-added health care, and the best and brightest physicians, nurses and technical staff.

This is not growth for growth's sake. It is a response to ever increasing numbers of people turning to us for their health care. With a 25 percent growth in admissions since 1989, South Shore Hospital is one of the busiest and most respected medical centers in Massachusetts. This, thanks to excellent work of our medical and nursing staff, and the professionals who support them.

Our cardiology program, the sixth largest in the state, was last year selected by Brigham & Women's Hospital to serve as the site for its prestigious cardiac fellowship. This program helps our patients by offering intensified cardiac care, and allows new physicians to draw upon the experience and expertise of South Shore Hospital cardiologists.

Our cancer management program continues to grow, and was awarded the highest reaccreditation level by the American College of Surgeons.

Last May, we began an Advanced Life Support program to provide 24-hour paramedic coverage to 11 communities throughout the region. The 15 paramedics have made thousands of ALS "runs" and are credited with saving many lives. Soon, the program will expand to other South Shore communities.

Other clinical advances included expansion of our pain management clinic; a neonatal high-risk program for newborns with medical complications at birth; a transitional rehabilitation program to keep older patients from being institutionalized unnecessarily.

In 1992, the hospital's affiliate, South Shore Visiting Nurse & Health Services provided 206,000 home care visits, a 26 percent increase in one year. It added a 15th South Shore community to its service area, and expanded service with the addition of a cancer care team and a nursing rehabilitation program.

We had a good year financially as well. South Shore Health and Educational Corporation, which is the not-for-profit parent of both South Shore Hospital and South Shore Visiting Nurses, reported the following for its fiscal year ending September 30. SSHEC generated $125.5 million in operating revenue and $121.2 million in expenses. After $2.8 million in added costs to retire old debt and nonoperating revenue of $2.5 million, SSHEC had $3.9 million of income over expenses available to reinvest in facilities, equipment, staff and patient programs.

Hospital care during the year ahead may well see some of the most significant changes in decades. Policy decisions and proposals for national health care reform will change much of our health care system. What will not change, however, is South Shore Hospital's commitment to this region.

As we continue into our eighth decade, we hope that you enjoy the year ahead in good health. But rest assured, if you or your loved ones need us, we are here, around the clock, and ready to care for you even as we continue to meet our obligations to prepare for the future.

Want to know more? We will be pleased to send you our 1992 annual report as well as a calendar listing our health education programs for 1993. Just call the Public Affairs Department at (617) 340-8564, or write us.

Boys prepping for tourney

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

The boys basketball team recently finished its regular season with a second-place showing at the Medway Invitational Basketball Tournament, defeating the Medway squad 52-16 in the opening round. The Skippers then fell to a powerful Milford squad 78-50 in the championship game.

Cohasset finished the regular season at 11-9, and coach Ron Ford has applied for participation in the Division 3 tourney. The seedings for the post-season action is expected to be announced Friday morning.

"We had a goal of 11-9 as the cut-off point for the tourney this year," Ford said, "and the kids worked their hardest to attain that goal."

"All in all, I'm very happy with the way that the kids responded this year, and the way that the year has gone for the team. Of course I'd be happier if we were 12-8 or 13-7, but for the first year in this type of program I think that the kids have done well."

Ford characterized the opening game of the Medway tournament as the "freakiest, most unbelievable game that I have ever seen", but was still more than happy to accept the win.

"Medway had scouted our game against Hanover," he said, "and they thought that they could attack us by coming right at our inside people. But we blocked three or four of their shots right away early in the game, and we just went on from there."

The Skippers led by a 31-9 margin at half-time and were never contested on the way to their 52-18 victory.

"The team was sky-high before the game," said Ford, "and they were on a mission to get the job done that needed to be done. There was no way that they were going to be denied."

"Overall, this was the best defensive game that I have ever seen this team play. Medway is a good team, but we just caught them having a real off night."

The luck of the Skippers ran out, though, when they fell to Milford 78-50 in the championship game of the tournament.

"They just simply dominated us", said Ford, "they are a very good Division 1 team and they played like it on that night."

On the subject of the impending state basketball tournament, Ford said that "we played a really tough schedule all this year against some very good Division 1 teams, but in the tourney we will be playing against teams within our own division, and I think that we can more than hold our own."

"If we get hot, we can go a long way in this tourney."

Tourney games are expected to begin on either Monday or Tuesday, February 22 or 23.

Cohasset's Paul Bilodeau reaches high in an attempt to snare a rebound from Whitman-Hanson's Brian Lussier in the ACL/SSL All-Star Game. Bilodeau will lead the Skippers into Division 3 tournament action next week after the team recently finished up its regular season schedule.

Archie's aiming for Super-8 tournament

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Frank Quinn doesn't put too much stock in weekly rankings.

After 30 years of coaching the Archbishop Williams High School hockey team, Quinn has learned that rankings differ from newspaper to newspaper, week to week. To pay attention to any of them is fruitless.

What Quinn does know, and what most confident about is this year's Catholic Central League champions should do well no matter where they are ranked or what tourney they end up in.

With a 10-1-1 record in the CCL (15-2-1 overall), he knows fully well the league itself is a good indicator of how Archies will fare in the tourney. The Bishops beat Matignon two of three times and played a tough Arlington Catholic squad to a 3-1 loss, one of the goals coming on an open-net shot. Throw in games against Dom Savio and a host of the state's most consistent teams, and Quinn sees Williams belonging among the elite. At least one team from the CCL usually qualifies to play in the prestigious Super-8 Tournament every year.

And Quinn thinks it's Williams' year.

"We have a good feeling," he said. "I think if you're doing that on a given night you can beat anybody."

The Bishops are currently one player away from full strength as they wait for the tournament pairings to be released on Monday. By the time the tourney starts, though, the team will have its roster intact and healthy.

Quinn had to do without Scituate's Jaret Ford on the first line for three weeks after he sustained a knee injury. The injury, though, is healing nicely and Quinn expects him back soon.

When Ford returns he'll most likely be back on the first line with Weymouth's Jarrod DiBona and Quincy's Steve Bartkus. The pair wound up with 87 points between them and finished 2-3 in the CCL scoring race.

"They're both snipers," Quinn said of Archies' top-two scorers.

Pat Sullivan (22 points) of Weymouth heads the second line with Sean Sweeney of Randolph and Quincy's Brian Sullivan. Randolph's Mike Phinney, Weymouth's Tim Higgins and Scott Peacock of Stoughton comprise a well-balanced third line.

One of the squad's major strengths is the amount of talent on each of the three lines. Quinn has complete confidence in their ability to score goals and wear out the competition.

"We're confident our first and second line can play with any first line," Quinn said, "and our third line can play with any team's second. If they (third line) can get out there and control part of the game for us, we're satisfied."

Williams has two strong goaltenders in Scituate's Bill Jakobus and Hanover's Jim Dinneen. Quinn rotated the pair evenly all season and found it to be the right combination in avoiding injuries and keeping each netminder better rested.

The defense in front of Jakobus and Dinneen is arguably the best in the league. Quinn has gone with a four-man rotation of Abington's John DeMarco, Jeff Thomas of Hull, Avon's Dennis Collum and Weymouth's Jeff Morris.

The NHL all-star game showed that the South Shore is one of the top areas in producing hockey talent .

Pembroke's Kevin Stevens, who starred at Silver Lake High School and then Boston College before becoming an all-star for the Pittsburgh Penguins, scored a goal for the winning Prince of Wales Conference.

Also Marshfield's Jeremy Roenick, who starred at Thayer Academy before becoming an all-star for the Chicago Blackhawks, scored a goal for the losing Campbell Conference.

Last season both Stevens and Roenick joined a select group of six American-born players who have scored 50 goals in a season. The other 50-goal scorers include Pat LaFontaine, Brett Hull, Bobby Carpenter and Joey Mullen.

Both Stevens and Roenick, who spend much of their off-season in the South Shore area, earn over $1 million per season.

Stevens, who stands 6'3" and weighs 220 pounds was a standout catcher at Silver Lake and may have gone on to play in the big leagues if hockey didn't beckon. In fact, one of this column's authors remembers hanging Stevens a curve ball during a game against Silver Lake. The ball is probably still rolling somewhere in Kingston.

The Stasny brothers were the scourge of the NHL for several seasons, playing for the Quebec Nordiques, but they're not the only hockey players who have ever had a family tree associated with their squad.

On the South Shore, the Cohasset hockey team has its own version of "Brother Act."

The Skippers have five brother combinations within the program: Chris and Kevin McKenna, John and Brendan Kinchla, Mike and Brian Riley, Mike and Patrick Reynolds and Matt and Jared Graves.

The act should remain pretty much intact next season. Mike Reynolds is the only senior of the bunch.

Whitman-Hanson head basketball coach Bill Sweeney said he would need three players in each game to score in double figures this season for the team to win on a consistently. Sweeney was right on the mark. The Panthers finished with a 4-16 record and in each one of its victories, three players scored in double figures. In the final game of the year, W-H lost a close, 63-59 contest to Randolph. Sweeney's prediction held true. Derek LeCombe had 15 points, Dennis Nash dropped in 11 and Brian Lussier finished with nine.

The Hanover Indians had a better season than the Cleveland Indians, judging by the number of players selected for the South Shore League all-star team. Nine of the SSL champions were picked to the squad, including Jeff Ramsay, Scott Munroe, Craig MacDonald, Jeremy Smelstor, Adam Worrall, Jeff Becker, Jon Balewicz, Ted Ahola and

Skippers hockey teams' season closes

The high school hockey team ended its 1992-93 season last week with losses to South Shore League Champion Hanover (7-1) and Scituate (5-3).

Kevin McKenna turned aside 41 saves against the Indians in a gallant effort. Nevin Bunstein scored for the Skippers with assists going to Charlie Smith and SSL All-Star Mike Reynolds.

Pat Reynolds, Mike Riley, Bubba Kinchla, Mike Shields, Matt Graves and Matt Louis all played well up front against the Division 2 power.

Cohasset lost a heartbreaker against the Sailors. The Skippers started out strong and took an early lead behind a pair of goals by Smith. Scituate, however, staged a comeback to win. The game marked the last career contest for Mike Reynolds, Smith and John Kinchla.

The JVs had their unbeaten streak snapped at four with a 4-3 loss to Quincy. Kevin Smith and Dave Hansen were the goal-scorers. Brian Riley, Mike Shields and Matt Lewis all registered assists.

Cohasset rebounded nicely, though, dropping Plymouth in the next game. Kevin Smith had a hat trick, while Pat Reynolds, Shields, Hansen, Pat Ridge, Brian Riley, Matt O'Connor and Gr[illegible]s all played well for the young Ski[illegible]r squad. The JVs finished their season at 4-4-1.

Skaters shine in Bay State Games

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

Several young local figure skaters did quite well recently in the annual Bay State Games competition held recently in Western Mass.

Kara Protulis took home first place in the Artistic Solo competition of the 13-17 age group, while Marisol Perry took second place in the 16-17 year-old free-style skating group. Lauren Wood placed third in the Artistic Solo for the 17-20 age group.

Perry is a 16-year old junior at the high school who began figure skating when she was six.

She's a veteran of past Bay State Games competitions, and said that she was "happy with the way that I had skated. I just went out there and did the best that I could."

Marisol would like to continue skating through college and eventually get into the teaching aspect of the sport as a career.

Wood, a student at the University of New Hampshire, and Protulis a senior at CHS, could not be reached for comment on their performance.

Extra points . . .

Sean Killgoar.

Abington had the next highest amount as James Baggett, Kevin McGrath, Mike Barrett and Marc Barry were also picked. Brian Gagnon and Eric Green (Scituate), Mike Reynolds (Cohasset) and Mark Hendrickson (Hull) were also chosen.

Sophomore Ray Geever of Whitman-Hanson High School was one of seven Atlantic Coast League players and five Panthers chosen for the all-star team. Geever, who has led the ACL in points for the entire season was joined by teammates Sean Forbes and Mark Christienson. Brian Hurcombe and Pat Noone were also picked as honorable mentions.

Panthers head coach Bob Corliss was especially happy to see Forbes named to the first-team after just missing a selection last year.

"Forbsie is going to be one kid I'm going to miss," he said. His work ethic in practice is second to none."

As for Geever, who had 25 goals and 13 assists as of last Friday, his statistics and plus-24 rating were more than enough to get him on the squad.

"He spoke for himself," Corliss said. "I didn't have to make an arguement for him."

It may have been merely coincidence or something in the maternity room formula, but Cohasset All-Stars Mike Reynolds (hockey) and Tara Gallagher (gymnastics) hold a special place in their hearts for the South Shore Hospital in Weymouth. The pair were born at the hospital one day apart in the same year.

Gymnastic offerings

The center offers a wide variety of gymnastic classes taught by coaching director Ruthann Sargent, Assistant Director Patti Donahue, and staff members, Tiffany Zaniboni, Karen Clemente, Susie O'Brien, and Tara Gallagher.

There are tumble bugs (age 3), Tumble Tots (age 4-5), Preschool, Beginners, Intermediates, Team classes, Jr. High and High School all ages. Classes are offered Monday through Saturday and run for a period of six or ten weeks.

New classes being offered are Wednesday evenings, 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. High School (permission by instructor). Monday evenings 7 to 8 p.m. 11-17-year-old Beg./Int. and High School Advanced. Saturdays will be beginning in March and will run for six weeks. Call the center today for more information at 383-0088.

Road race set

Plans are well underway for the Seventeenth Annual Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea. The race will take place Sunday, April 4 at 1 p.m. preceded by a 10k Walk at 10 a.m. The event which is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Cohasset is under the direction of Roy Fitzsimmons and Peter Logan. Proceeds from the event help fund the many in-town causes that Rotary supports.

The entry fee is $10. Each entrant receives a shirt with the race logo and free refreshments. Registration is limited to the first 800 and ends March 30. Prizes are donated by many of the local restaurants and businesses. The race has been rated most scenic by the New England Runner Magazine and always draws runners from throughout New England and other states.

Applications are available at Curtis Liquors, Good Sport or by sending a self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 36, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Ski trip planned

An adult, age 18 and over, night ski trip is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 27, to Wachusett Mt. The cost for this trip for night skiing is $40 per person. Buses will leave Scituate Town Hall at 2 p.m. and Cohasset Town Hall at 2:15 p.m., and return at about midnight.

Should you wish to register for the trip, please call either the Cohasset or Scituate Recreation Departments at 383-6791 or 545-8738 respectively.

Hoop tourney open

The Coastal Athletic Club is forming basketball teams to compete in the AAU/Junior Olympics Tournament Season. Registration is open to all South Shore boys ages 11 to 15 and girls ages 14 to 16.

Registrations to be held at South Shore Vo Tech on Route 123 (Webster St.) in Hanover Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Feb. 23 and 24, and March 2 and 3, from 6:30 to 9 p.m.

A $15 fee and a copy of a birth certificate are required. Tryouts will begin March 5. For more information call 871-2697.

Body fat testing Feb. 22

Bay State Bodybuilding, in conjunction with Lifestyle Enhancement and Assessment Program (LEAP) will conduct body fat percentage testing Monday, Feb. 22, at their health club in Cushing Plaza. The method to be administered is Bioelectric Impedance Analysis.

Included in the program is a nutritional and exercise consultation.

The testing will take place from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. at 15-minute intervals for each individual. The fee is $12 and is open to the public. To arrange an appointment, call Bay State at 383-6465.

Clay mask workshop

On a snowy Tuesday afternoon, 23 children participated in a clay workshop in the children's room at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. The workshop began as Nancy Connolly told stories of mythical beasts found in African Folklore to the children. Next, the children were given a block of clay from which to sculpture a mask.

She also demonstrated methods of sculpting, such as stuffing the clay with newspaper to round out the mask or adding clay to exaggerate features, such as the nose, mouth and eyes. There were many additional materials available at the workshop to enhance the masks, fork tines for monster teeth or eye brows, glittery pipe cleaners, sequins and toothpicks for carving details. Shyer types were told "You don't need an eraser. You just need a thumb if you don't like what you did!" Each artist carefully carved their initials in their individual masks as they were completed and brought them home to dry, adorned with a colorful assortment of materials.

This creative workshop was made possible through a grant from the Cohasset Arts Council Lottery.

Thursday, Feb. 18, from 1 to 2:30 p.m., there will be another workshop at the library involving three-dimensional painting and folklore. There is a sign up sheet at the library. Space is limited to 25 children from Grades one through six.

Join the parade!

If you know the best thing about Cohasset and you can make a float or organize a marching unit – join the Harborfest Parade! The theme of this year's parade gives everyone, be they organizations, neighborhood associations, or you, the chance to tell thousands of people how you feel. Scheduled for June 20, the parade will also feature awards for the best presentations, whether marching unit or float.

Plan now to join this wonderful event and be a part of the fun. For more information, please call Keith Knowles at 383-1331.

Infantry reunion slated

25th Infantry Division Assoc. announces the 44th Annual Reunion-Convention, August 5-8, in Louisville, KY, for veterans who served in the division during WWII, occupation of Japan, Korea, Vietnam, Operation Desert Storm and in peacetime.

For more information on the reunion and association, contact Andy Ansell, R.D. #1 Box 336, Acme, PA 15610.

Life is a Cabaret!

The Music and Worship Committee of the First Parish in Cohasset cordially invites you to bring your friends to "Cabaret" Saturday, Feb. 27, in the Parish House, 23 North Main Street, Cohasset.

The contribution of $10 includes 6:30 p.m. appetizers; 7 p.m. dinner; 8 p.m. Cabaret. Cash beverages.

Please make checks payable to First Parish Cabaret and mail to 23 N. Main St., Cohasset 02025.

Solve the mystery

Don't miss the special murder mystery dinner event at the South Shore Conservatory Saturday, Feb. 27 at 7 p.m. With special assistance from the drama department under the direction of Ellen Kelly, Cox Recital Hall will become the Velvet Room Speakeasy. Trustee Don Massa and his lovely wife Donna Williams of Cohasset, are organizing the event, a benefit for the Conservatory.

This swank joint, owned by Dom Marconi, is frequented by gangsters in striped suits and gun molls in boas. Bugsy, the Dom's bodyguard, will be frisking all the hoods so leave your weapons outside.

Sip bootlegged gin (or gingerale) from a teacup. Have dinner with the area's shadiest characters!

Whisper the secret password to be admitted to the backroom gaming tables!

Watch the stupendous floor show put on by members of the Conservatory faculty and family!

And best of all, help solve the mystery of the murdered dinner guest (it might be you!).

Guests have their choice of playing either a major or supporting role in the evening's drama or coming as a customer of the Velvet Room to eat, drink, dance and enjoy the entertainment.

Tickets are $25 per person and must be purchased in advance by Feb. 19 as roles will be assigned. Proceeds benefit the Conservatory's Scholarship Fund. For information please call 749-4053.

J. 'Ted' Carroll

Carroll seeks election to fulfill the unexpired term of Terese E.Duggan, who recently resigned her post due to relocation to California.

Carroll is currently employed as a sports administrator, at the South Shore Sports Center in Hingham, having held the position for eight years. He is seeking an associates degree in Business Administration at Quincy College with intention of pursing a bachelor's degree in sports management.

Carroll has wide experience in the recreation field. He has served as playground program coordinator for the recreation department and has coordinated soccer and basketball programs and clinics. Currently, he serves as administrative supervisor of the Cohasset Teen Depot.

"Because of 10 years experience in the field of recreation and sports, coupled with my service to the recreation department in various capacities, I feel eminently qualified for this post," Carroll said.

He is a member of the both the Massachusetts (MRPA) and National (NRPA) Recreation and Park Associations and is vice-chairman of Cohasset's Drug and Alcohol Committee.

New fire engine's cost: a burning controversy

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

From the moment Fire Chief John Nadeau stepped before the Advisory Committee Tuesday night, he was under fire.

Nadeau pressed for approval of a new fire engine and in the process raised both the voices and the financial consciousness of advisory members.

With an eventual ticket price of nearly $250,000, the new engine represents to Nadeau a way of "really increasing our (the department's) tactical arsenal."

Asserting that a new fire engine has been "on the agenda for several year," Nadeau said he is trying to make sure his department is able to do their job.

Currently, the Cohasset fire department has three fire fighting vehicles.

Two of these are used daily and the third, a 31-year-old engine, has been out of service for more than two months.

Nadeau said in order for his department to be effective and safe the department needs to have three working engines.

"I'm not at all comfortable with two pumpers," he said.

Explaining how a fire situation is handled, the chief said three vehicles are very important from a safety and tactical point of view.

The newest truck, a 1987 model, "is the attack engine," he said. And its water capacity is only 500 gallons. When the water from the first engine is expended, in a mere three minutes, another supply is needed.

That is where the second and third vehicles come in, he said. They offer support and assistance in rescue and fire suppression.

When advisory committee member Ken Ingber asked how many times three engines have been needed at once in the past ten years Nadeau said, "It doesn't happen a lot."

"But," continued the chief, "we had 16 alarms in 36 hours during the December storm."

> 'So, let it burn, the most expensive house in town is worth less than the engine's cost. I'm deadly serious.'
> Advisor Peter O'Connor

The third fire truck serves two functions to the fire department "One as strictly a back-up, and one as the third piece of apparatus that is used on a regular basis," Nadeau said.

And even if the third engine returned to service, the chief said, he wouldn't feel safe relying on the older piece of equipment.

"It was the pride of the fleet in the 60's," he said, but pointed out that "the opportunity for failure is too great" with the older truck.

"And I'm not going to ask firefighters to do something I wouldn't do myself," said Nadeau.

The mascot dressed in the bright yellow rain outfit pranced in front of the Skippers stands during Tuesday night's Division 2 South Sectional game against 18th-ranked Cathedral.

But when Cohasset head coach Ron Ford put South Shore League All-Star Paul Bilodeau into the contest, the mascot should have switched sides.

Bilodeau was about to rain on Cathedral's tournament appearance.

Banks hold key to future for troubled car dealership

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

U. S. Bankruptcy Judge William C. Hillman has taken action which could begin foreclosure proceedings at Spensley Chevrolet on Route 3A.

However, Spensley's attorney Gary D. Thomas of Hanover, said the Chevrolet dealership which has operated in Cohasset for the past 19 years will remain in operation.

"Spensley Chevrolet is not intending to go out of business and they are making every attempt to stay in business," Thomas said.

Owner Lloyd Spensley also indicated that he intended the dealership to continue operations in Cohasset.

Spensley owes South Shore Bank, Quincy Savings Bank and Baybank South $1,697,000.

According to court documents, Spensley also owes Cohasset $23,251 in real estate taxes.

The banks were blocked from foreclosing on the Cohasset dealership when Spensley sought protection by filing Chapter 11 under the U. S. Bankruptcy code in August.

Under Chapter 11, collection of debts is automatically frozen.

Last month, however, Judge Hillman removed the block.

The key is whether the banks will foreclose on the property or work out alternative financing with Spensley.

South Shore Bank attorney Stephen Wald declined to comment.

According to court documents, the banks could foreclose on other Spensley properties in Weymouth and Wareham where they also hold mortgages.

The combined market value of those properties is estimated to be $1,800,000.

A court official who declined to be named reported that Spensley could also arrange a sale and lease-back for his Cohasset property which would provide the cash to pay the banks, and allow Spensley to operate on the same site.

Thomas declined to comment on whether Spensley is considering the sale of the Weymouth and Wareham properties in order to keep the Cohasset dealership.

The banks allege that at least $870,177.29 of the total amount owed them was the result of a check-kiting scheme in 1991.

Ecuadorian teacher views work with a contemporary perspective

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

American Field Service teacher Victoria Amores possesses an attitude more commonly found in Massachusetts than in her native Ecuador.

Like many women in the United States — and few in Ecuador — Amores is the working mother of a 4-year-old.

"Women work in Ecuador, but when the children are grown and in school," the 25-year-old explained.

Amores said she was criticized for accepting the five-month teaching assignment she recently began in Cohasset because she would have to leave her husband and child.

"Many people thought I was abandoning the baby and it was cruel, but my husband and I discussed it and agreed."

Amores' husband is a surgeon in Ecuador. Because

Cohasset's week

Assault arrest made

A 19 year old Hingham man was arrested and charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon after a Cohasset man was found bleeding from his head. Ptlm. David Cogill made the arrest as police answered an altercation complaint at a resident party Feb. 20 at 12:30 a.m. at 729 Jerusalem Rd.

Brian M. Valcourt, 19, of 8 Oak Rd., Hingham was charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (beer bottle). He pleaded not guilty to the charge in Quincy District Court and was released on his own personal recognizance. His next court hearing will be in May.

The victim, Robert Anderson, 21, of 729 Jerusalem Rd., was taken to South Shore Hospital for treatment and later released.

New firefighter is Dockray

The newest member of the fire department is John J. Dockray.

Selectmen unanimously chose Dockay over two other candidates.

Fire Chief John R. Nadeau also recommended Dockray be hired to fill the firefighter vacancy.

The new recruit is already a call firefighter.

"Dockray ranked highest on the Civil Service Exam," Executive Secretary Greg Doyon said.

Brian Peebles and Michael Worley were the other candidates for the job.

Police chief's contract set

In other public safety matters, selectmen and the new Police Chief Brian W. Noonan have reached agreement over Noonan's three-year contract.

According to the terms, Noonan will receive an annual salary of $48,000 for the year ending February 1994, $49,000 for the following year and $51,000 for the third year.

Selectmen will swear Noonan in as the town's official Police Chief Monday, March 1.

Storm money needed

Selectmen will sponsor a town meeting warrant article to appropriate $28,457 for damages sustained in the Dec. 12 storm. Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said Cohasset should also receive $31,301.11 from the Federal Emergency Management Agency — which covers what the agency estimates to be 75 percent of the total damage.

In a separate article, selectmen will request an additional $68,697 to repair Jerusalem Road and Atlantic Avenue for damages sustained during the Oct. 91 Nor'easter.

Doane Street snags

Selectmen terminated the Tibbetts Engineering Corp. contract for supervisory services of the Doane Street culvert replacement project.

Apparently, Tibbetts has charged the town approximately $10,000 — which was the company's estimate for services — but the project is not completed.

Selectman Michael Sullivan questioned the accuracy of Tibbetts bill for services.

"Have they done the work to justify $10,000?"

Selectman Merle Brown said Tibbetts attributed a lot of their billable time to review of shop drawings on the Doane Street project.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby asked Executive Secretary Greg Doyon to again ask a representative from Tibbetts to explain, and justify, the unexpectedly high bill.

"It seems like an awful lot of time on shop work," she said.

"We'll table the bill until we find out why they spent so much time on this with shop drawings and come before us."

Selectmen also granted an extension to J. B. D'Allessandro Corp. to conclude the Doane Street project.

"The ground is softer in the spring and it is easier to landscape," Doyon explained. "They also need a temperature of 40 degrees and rising to put the asphalt down."

The project completion date was pushed back to April 15, 1993.

Upon the request of Selectman Brown, the board also approved the installation of a stop sign at the corner of Doane and Church streets.

Expansion questioned

Selectmen are drafting their own letter to send to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA) citing their concern with the proposed landfill expansion.

Cohasset Heights Landfill owner Paul Barry has submitted a Second Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Report to EOEA requesting permission to expand the existing 23-acre landfill into an adjoining l[illegible] acres.

Selectman Merle Brown said the board's letter, which has not yet been made public, "brought out concerns over the smell, site and finances — Do they have enought to clean it up?"

Sandy Beach wall

Selectmen approved construction of a 4-ft. wall along the Sandy Beach Parking lot. The cost will be approximately $65,000.

However, prior to construction, the town must receive permanent easements from private owners whose property will be affected.

Snow budget melts away

Like other towns, Cohasset's snow removal budget is barely in the black.

Highway surveyor Harold W. Litchfield informed selectmen of the budgetary constraints last week. The board said he should overdraw the account.

The highway surveyor received $45,000 this year for snow removal.

As of Friday, Feb. 19, there was $1,000 left in the account.

Selectmen praised Litchfield for consistently excellent snow and ice removal during this season's storm.

Public garage studied

Selectmen asked the public works garage study committee to revisit the possibility of putting the garage in the gravel pit land near the Little League Field or at the transfer station on Cedar Street.

The committee excluded the gravel pit land from consideration because the Conservation Commission expressed concern.

Committee member Terry Atherton said he would revisit both sites and continue discussions with the conservation commission.

PSO phone-a-thon March 10

The PSO will hold its annual phone-a-thon fundraiser Wednesday, March 10, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and encourages the community to support this event by pledging a donation to help continue the many enrichment activities the PSO provides for students during the school year.

The phone-a-thon is the PSO's primary fundraiser. Proceeds received fund the Teacher Grant Program, one of the major projects supported by the PSO, and many ongoing PSO activities and special events.

The teacher grant donations are used by teachers for supplementary programs and materials and aids not covered by the school budget, including the artist of the month program, field trips, purchase of various library books and supplemental classroom enrichment materials.

All parents of Cohasset school children belong to the PSO. Dues are not charged to support the organization which relies heavily on member contributions. The PSO is hoping for 100 percent member participation. Anyone interested in a full mid-year report of the PSO activities should request one from their PSO rep. March 10.

PSO open forum

Find out how to get involved in your child's school and in the community.

Nominations for next year's board members begin soon. Discover what positions are available for next year's executive board. If a board position isn't your style, there is ample opportunity to participate at the committee level doing fund raising, METCO, community relations, mailings, and much more.

Whether you are a parent who has been active in the past, or you are new to the school system, your ideas, suggestions, and questions will be welcomed.

Please join the PSO Executive Board for an informal discussion about how parents can participate in the schools, and enrich the education experience for their children and themselves.

The PSO open forum is Thursday, Feb. 25 at 7:30 p.m. at Cohasset High School senior study immdediately followed by the school committee public hearing detailing the 1993-94 school

One aspect of the P.S.O program is to offer grants to buy items not covered in the school budget. Ed Leonard, school adjustment counselor, wrote a grant for additional playground equipment for Joseph Osgood School students. Students find the playpark popular during recess time. With the new equipment, students will have other choices to use at that time. Second graders at the Osgood School showing off their new equipment are left to right, Trey Curry, Ian Kidder, Terry Baroudi, Evan Pestone, Brian Litchfield and Terence Hurley.

Candidates needed

The Parent School Nominating Committee meets in early March to prepare its list of candidates for the 1993-94 executive board. Anyone interested in a board position or if you would like to make a recommendation, call Ruth Wilcox (383-1827) or Joan Kovach (383-6358).

This year there are openings for senior and junior high school representatives, fundraising, PSO activities, and others.

The list of nominees is mailed to the PSO membership in April and voted into office at the annual meeting April 28.

The Nominating Committee consists of three current members of the executive board and three members from outside the board with the PSO Vice President serving as chairman. Nominating Committee members are representative of all three schools. Members of the Nominating Committee include: Janet VanHartesvelt, Donna O'Donnell, Sue Mrikleham, Barbara Meehan and Kathy Walsh.

Black History Month celebrated with book exhibit

By Richard Hayes, Librarian
Special to the Mariner

The new exhibit in the lobby of the library celebrates "Black History Month." The commercial poster says "Black is Readable." Both the "month" and the poster are inadequate to the theme: this is American history, and these lives and events, dramatic, tragic, inspirational, may be read by thoughtful citizens throughout the year and throughout life.

No conflict has shaped American history more than the dilemma of slavery and the struggle for African American justice.

The new biography, Thurgood Marshall: Warrior at the Bar, Rebel on the Bench, by Michale D. Davis and Hunter R. Clark, is worthy of every American's study. The book was published just weeks before Marshall died last month. Marshall was born in 1908, at the peak of Jim Crowism and Ku Klux Klanism in the southern city of Baltimore. He spoke fondly throughout life of his tough city upbringing.

His maternal great-grandfather, whose name the family never knew, was brought to America by slave traders in the 1840s. His grandfather was a slave from the Congo. According to Thurgood, he came not from the "cultured tribes" as the family boasted, but "from the toughest part of the Congo."

Marshall described his great-grandfather as "one mean man," or the "baddest nigger" in Maryland.

For those who wish to know what is "politically correct" regarding this expression, Marshall also reports that his father told him: "Anyone calls you 'nigger' you not only got my permission to fight him — you got my orders to fight him."

Marshall applied to the University of Maryland Law School in 1930, in his home town, but was rejected; no black had ever been admitted. He left his home state, despite the financial burden, and enrolled in Howard University law school in Washington, D.C.

He became America's most prominent civil rights lawyer, winning 29 civil rights cases before the Supreme Court, including Brown v. Board of Education in 1954, overturning the prior Supreme Court position that "separate but equal" was constitutional, laid down in Plessy v. Ferguson 90 years before. This case, which desegregated America's schools, inflamed the ancient conflict to near-Civil War passion. A young law clerk to Justice Jackson wrote: "It is the majority who will determine what the constitutional rights of the minority are...Plessy v. Ferguson was right and should be reaffirmed." The writer was William H. Rehnquist, who became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court in 1986, 19 years after Thurgood Marshall was appointed to the Supreme Court.

Let the Trumpet Sound: The Life of Martin Luther King, Jr., by Stephen B. Oates, was inspired, Oates says, by the terrible realization that 1859, the year John Brown raided Harper's Ferry, was "only yesterday" as he watched the news of King's assassination in 1968.

Oates was working on a biography of John Brown, the violent white abolitionist. He went on to write books on the slave rebel Nat Turner, and then on Abraham Lincoln. These four books Oates calls "a biographical quartet on the Civil War epoch and its century-old legacies," stories of "driven, visionary men inextricably caught up in the slave and race issues of their day."

King and Marshall disagreed sometimes on strategy in their common cause. Marshall complained that King dumped his legal cases on the NAACP, which Marshall served as chief counsel. Marshall and others objected to King's techniques of mass movement and civil disobedience but fought and won many cases for King and others on the dangerous front lines.

The Autobiography of W.E.B. Du Bois is an impressive account of a century of great social change in America and in the world. Du Bois (1868-1963) was a leader at the turn of the century in the movement for black liberation. Forty years older than Marshall, 60 years older than King, he died at age 95, just five years before King was killed. He was a scholar and world traveler, a founding father of the NAACP and of the Pan-African movement against world-wide colonialism.

Writing in the 1950s, after trips in the communist nations, he spoke glowingly: "Is it possible to conduct a great modern government without autocratic leadership of the rich? The answer is: this is exactly what the Soviet Union is doing today. But can she continue to do this? Can you make the worker and not the millionaire the center of modern power and culture?" Communism failed to deliver an answer; Du Bois' criticism of America, where "the ideal of every American is the millionaire," continues to challenge the nation.

Du Bois had a dynamic relationship, and quarrel, with Booker T. Washington. The autobiography describes some of these events. One involved Monroe Trotter, a prominent Boston black. Trotter's newspaper, The Guardian, 'was "the first Negro paper to attack Booker T. Washington. Washington's friends retorted by sending Trotter to jail when he dared to heckle Washington in a public Boston meeting."

Booker T. Washington, 1856-1901, by Louis Harlan, describes the most powerful black American of his time. He was born a mulatto slave on a Virginia farm, and founded Tuskegee Institute in 1881 in the Black Belt of Alabama. From this base he built a powerful Tuskegee Machine of influence throughout black America. His power depended in part on accommodation with the white power structure of the country. His efforts took place in a time when conditions for blacks were worse than at any time since the end of slavery.

Harlan says: "Most of his public utterances on civil rights contained weasel words that his critics said vitiated his purposes, but he contended these were necessary to gain any hearing at all from whites. He saw his own unique role as the axis between the races, the only black leader who could negotiate a social peace with the whites, but whose influence could be destroyed by an instant of self-indulgent flamboyance."

"Against the intransigent black critics...headed [illegible] W.E.B. Du Bois, Washington was ready to employ ruthless secret methods of espionage, provocation and sabotage that seem utterly at variance with the Sunday-school morality he publicly professed," says Harlan.

Washington proposed a new model for black development in the new century, "a new Negro for a new Century." This was in part an effort to dismiss nostalgia for the pre-eminent black leader before Washington, Frederick Douglass, escaped slave, abolitionist orator, Reconstruction leader, who died in 1895. William Monroe Trotter founded a new black newspaper the Guardian, in 1901, and became Washington's most vigorous critic. Trotter also denounced Presidents Roosevelt, Taft, and Wilson, among others (prominent men with whom Washington had political and social ties). Trotter's co-editor George Forbes said, "It would be a blessing to the race if the Tuskegee school should burn down..."

A Washington ally in Boston was a black Harvard student, Roscoe Bruce. He undertook to control Forbes. In addition to co-editing the Guardian, Forbes was assistant librarian of the West End branch of the Boston Public Library. Bruce spoke with the director of the Boston Public Library, James Whitney, and reported back to Washington: "Dr. Whitney is enthusiastic in his admiration for you and Tuskegee...He promised to do whatever he could to shut Forbes' mouth." The Trotterites planned to use celebrations of Lincoln's birthday in Boston and New York to condemn Washington's conservatism on the suffrage issue.

Washington counterattacked with a strong pro-suffrage statement. President Roosevelt was worried that a too enthusiastic endorsement of him by blacks might hurt him among whites. Washington wrote to Boston leaders to keep the Lincoln's birthday resolutions "very mild so far as they refer to Roosevelt and his interest in the colored people." These tensions led to a "riot" at the Columbus Avenue A.M.E. Zion Church when a crowd of 2,000 largely supported Washington and booed Trotter. Trotter and a few others were arrested. Newspapers around the country printed headlines proclaiming a riotous assembly questioned the leadership of Booker T. Washington. For many whites, this was their first awareness that some blacks disagreed with Washington.

Toward the end of his life, he abandoned his earlier optimism and sharpened his criticism of racial injustice. He had seen more reactionary racial policies in the Woodrow Wilson era, he had witnessed the enormous popularity of the vicious film "Birth of a Nation." As the last black leader born in slavery, and as a Southerner, he continued to identify with southern rural blacks. The migration to northern cities and the struggle for civil rights would produce a different kind of leadership.

Community Center activities

GYMNASTICS

Saturday gymnastics classes will be offered at the Center in March. Beginning March 6, this new six-week session includes classes for pre-school girls and boys, 11 a.m. to noon, beginner girls, noon to 1 p.m., and beginner boys, 1 to 2 p.m.

The cost is $39. Call the Center at 383-0088 to register for this Saturday class.

PUPPET SHOW

A favorite for young children is the pre school puppet show with Pat Boylan. The special feature for Friday, March 5, will be "Peter Rabbit." The puppet show begins at 10:30 a.m. and the cost is $2 per person at the door.

Life is a Cabaret!

The Music and Worship Committee of the First Parish in Cohasset cordially invites you to bring your friends to "Cabaret" Saturday, Feb. 27, in the Parish House, 23 North Main Street, Cohasset.

A contribution of $10 includes 6:30 p.m. appetizers; 7 p.m. dinner; 8 p.m. Cabaret. Cash beverages.

Please make checks payable to First Parish Cabaret and mail to 23 N. Main St., Cohasset 02025.

Solve the mystery

Don't miss the special murder mystery dinner event at the South Shore Conservatory Saturday, Feb. 27 at 7 p.m. With special assistance from the drama department under the direction of Ellen Kelly, Cox Recital Hall will become the Velvet Room Speakeasy. Trustee Don Massa and his lovely wife Donna Williams of Cohasset, are organizing the event, a benefit for the Conservatory.

This swank joint, owned by Dom Marconi, is frequented by gangsters in striped suits and gun molls in boas. Bugsy, the Dom's bodyguard, will be frisking all the hoods so leave your weapons outside.

Sip bootlegged gin (or gingerale) from a teacup. Have dinner with the area's shadiest characters!

And best of all, help solve the mystery of the murdered dinner guest (it might be you!).

Guests have their choice of playing either a major or supporting role in the evening's drama or coming as a customer of the Velvet Room to eat, drink, dance and enjoy the entertainment.

Tickets are $25 per person and must be purchased in advance by Feb. 19 as roles will be assigned. Proceeds benefit the Conservatory's Scholarship Fund. For information please call 749-4053.

Body fat testing March 2

Snow again postponed body fat testing at Cushing Plaza Feb. 22 but has been rescheduled to Tuesday, March 2.

Bay State Bodybuilding, in conjunction with Lifestyle Enhancement and Assessment Program (LEAP) will conduct body fat percentage testing at their health club in Cushing Plaza. The method to be administered is Bioelectric Impedance Analysis.

Included in the program is a nutritional and exercise consultation.

The testing will take place from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. at 15-minute intervals for each individual. The fee is $12 and is open to the public. To arrange an appointment, call Bay State at 383-6465.

The South Shore Art Center's annual Juried Photography Exhibition opens with a reception Friday, Feb. 26 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Art Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset. Three professional judges selected the best in black and white, color and special effects photography from hundreds of entries submitted by professional and amateur photographers from all over New England.

One of the judges, John Jacob, will deliver a gallery talk at the opening at 6 p.m. Jacob is Director of Exhibitions at the Photographic Resource Center in Boston. He has also guest-curated exhibitions throughout the country and has lectured and published extensively on contemporary art and photography.

The other judges are Virginia Beahan and Laura McPhee. Beahan is a professional photographer who has exhibited nationally and internationally, most recently in Chile. She has taught at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts and the Tyler School of Art in Pennsylvania. McPhee is assistant professor at Mass. College of Art. Her photographs were recently on display at the Photographic Resource Center and the Akin Gallery in Boston and published in the book, Flesh and Blood.

An awards ceremony will follow the gallery talk at 6:30 p.m. The exhibition remains on display at the Art Center through March 25. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The opening reception and exhibition is open free to the public.

The Polaroid Corporation is sponsoring the continuation of the exhibition in New Bedford Public Libraries, April 8 through May 10. For more information, please call 383-9548.

Fire engine controversy burns . . .

Other members of the advisory committee appeared to allow the issue of money supersede safety as they argued against the new truck.

Offering a quick solution Wayne Sawchuk said, "It certainly is the day and age to have a shared pumper with the other communities" in the area. There have got [illegible]be great trucks locked up in people's fire stations right now...with the doors and windows boarded up."

Nadeau disagreed and said the current fiscal situation has forced many towns to trade in old equipment and use everything they have.

Ingber asked about using a neighboring town's engine during emergencies and said the risk of a delayed response "comes with the territory."

"I'll tell you right now I'm not going to commit those troops inside a building unless I've got a water supply established," asserted Nadeau. "That's crazy."

The chief's explanation was cut short by Peter O'Connor who said, "So let it burn, the most expensive house in town is worth less than the engine's cost. I'm deadly serious."

Committee chairman Nan Roth interjected at this point and tried to figure out what amount of each year's budget would go to paying for the new truck if the town decided to purchase it.

A figure of almost $40,000 per year for 10 years was estimated including an anticipated interest. This subject apparently fanned the flames and the discussion got more heated.

The chief tried to convince the group and told them "we're at risk right now."

Disagreeing, Sawchuk said, "It's a totally delayable purchase."

Ingber said that the price should not come as a surprise and perhaps if a situation is not worked out, firefighters should not be put at additional risk and the town should "let buildings burn."

At one point the chief tried to make it clear that by denying this purchase the board is "limiting the tactical options that I have."

"You're going to be home asleep. We're going to be out there on the street dealing with that situation," he said "And two or three or four minutes makes a big, big difference."

Sawchuk then asked, "If it hasn't been used for two months...how much is it needed?"

"I think you had your mind made up before you came to this meeting," said Nadeau.

Sawchuk admitted he had his mind made up prior to Tuesday evening and said if he didn't ask these questions, "no one in this town would."

Other options were explored and the group decided not to make a motion on the engine that night.

"There is no reason to decide now," said Roth

The committee did support a new rescue boat and vital signs monitor for the fire department.

The advisory committee will meet again Thursday night at 8 p.m. at town hall.

Banks hold key for car dealer . . .

of the banking system to get money by cashing checks with insufficient funds.

Thomas denied the check-kiting charge and said the 1991 debt was the result of the banks' having extended a line of credit to Spensley.

When the debt was not repaid, Spensley gave the banks a mortgage to the dealership property at 828 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, Cohasset.

According to court documents, the Cohasset property has been appraised for between $800,000 and $1,335,000.

If the banks choose to foreclose, standard mortgage foreclosure proceedings usually take several months to execute.

The bankruptcy court requires that Spensley Chevrolet submit a reorganization plan by March 5.

The plan will help the judge decide whether Spensley Chevrolet should be liquidated , or whether the dealership can remain in business.

SHARE distribution and sign-ups set

SHARE is a non-profit organization dedicated to community service and self-help, offering good food at great savings for those who participate.

SHARE participants pay $13 for the food and pledge two hours of volunteer service once a month. In return you receive 15-17 food items, good wholesome nutritious food purchased from growers and processors, with a retail value of $25-$35. SHARE has no eligibility or income requirements and is not connected in any way to any government program.

Distribution this week will be Saturday, Feb. 27 from 8:30 to 10 a.m at the Deer Hill School. Registriation will also be taken for next month.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Philip Murphy, CRS, GRI

SHOULD YOU PAY OFF MORTGAGE?

QUESTION: I have a mortgage loan that is fifteen years old and now have accumulated enough money to pay it off early. Do you think this is wise or could I put my money to better use?

ANSWER: It depends on the difference between current interest and your mortgage interest. Chances are you might be better off to keep the mortgage that is old, the interest on the debt and the interest you'd get from investing it would probably not be too far apart. With the right investment, you might even get a higher rate of return. The advantage is that you have a cash reserve while still earning almost as much, if not more than you would save by paying off the debt.

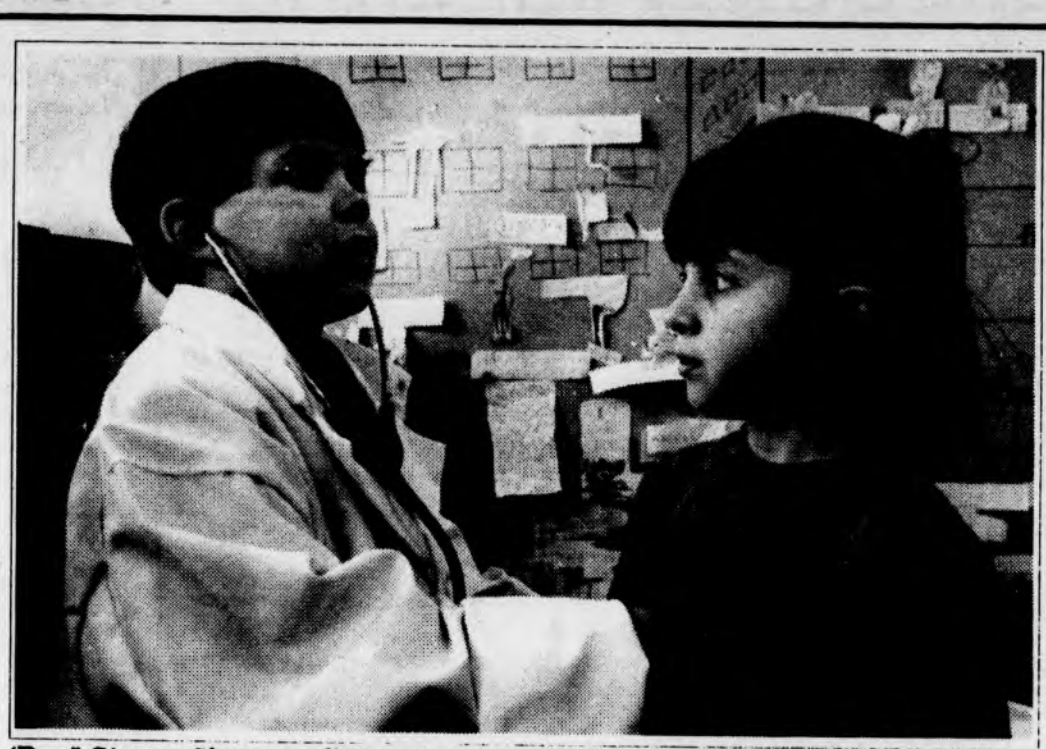
❑ Hope that everyone saw the article on the front page of The Boston Globe last Sunday, all about Dan Pompeo and his hockey prowess! Dan plays for Babson College, and is among the leading Division 3 scorers in the country. This is his last year at Babson, and his last regular season game is going to be against Colby College where he will face off against his brother Brian. Lots of hockey fans have been watching Dan play since he donned his pair of skates in youth hockey, and he has provided plenty of thrills ever since. Dan's thinking of playing hockey in Europe next year. We'll bet he'll have plenty of fans there too!

❑ Going from cold to warm in the sports arena, Jane deLima is the New England three-meter diving champ! Jane competed in Rhode Island and finished second in the one-meter board and first on the three-meter board. Not only is she the champ, Jane was named Athlete of the Week at Northeastern University where she is a student. Cohasset is truly lucky, divers especially, as she is the diving coach for the Cohasset Swim Center. You can bet all of her team is thrilled for her. We are too!

❑ Received a nice note from Evelyn Pearson last week, from St. John in the Virgin Islands. She lives there for a good part of the year, and had a real fun night recently with Bud and Dot Ahern and Jane and Bob Tis. They also saw Maureen Healy, who had just been married and will be living on their sailboat after their honeymoon. Evelyn's house has been busy, and soon will be busier.



'Doc" Steven Simmons listens to Christine Lovallo's heartbeat in Mrs. Price's class at the Osgood School. The students learned about hospital and medical education during a recent health curriculum unit. (Alan Chapman photo)

Her family is all going to be there in March (including her brand new granddaughter, daughter of Margit, who was born in June in Santa Fe). What fun, and who isn't envious after all of the terrible weather this winter. Wouldn't it be nice to stroll a beach and be warm?

❑ Hats off to Stuart Weier, Jr., son of Stuart and Shelley Weier, who earned honors during the fall semester at Skidmore College.

❑ Accolades continue this time for Davis Rosser Walp, a senior majoring in psychology at the University of Rochester, who was named to the dean's list for the fall semester.

❑ Vanderbilt's news is great too Richard Lydon Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Campbell, earned high honors for the fall semester. Richard is in the school of engineering!

❑ Noble and Greenough School has news for us. Michael A. Russell, a senior and the son of Michael and Jane Russell, and Colby R. Lawrence, a junior and the daughter of Dr. Robin and Marylou Lawrence both achieved academic distinction for the first semester. Congratulations!

❑ Cohasset's own Martha Evans made the New York Times front page on Valentine's Day with her marriage that took place Feb. 6 in Cohasset. Martha married Geoffrey Morris, the executive editor of National Review, a conservative journal that publishes everything from articles about America's moral decline to T-shirt ads. Martha is the assistant to the marketing director of the Library of America in New York. They even received a fax from William F. Buckley Jr.!

❑ People are still talking about Tom Wigmore and his party to honor his June election as State Commander of the Sons of the American Legion. One hundred-fifty people attended and Tom was especially thrilled when his dad, Steve, presented him with a plaque from the George H. Mealy Post where he is the Commander. We salute you too, Tom!

❑ Has anyone noticed that our streets are among the best during all the recent snow? In other towns, lots are barely passable! Hats off to Harold Litchfield and his able crew for doing a super job!

❑ We hope that Rosemary Laugelle is feeling better real soon! A trip to Florida to recuperate will be just what the "Doctor" ordered. Get well quickly!

of his busy schedule, her mother watches her daughter.

Amores said she views the time away from her family as a sacrifice that will be rewarded with a higher paycheck when she returns to Ecuador.

"It is important to teach abroad, and it will mean more money," she said.

Amores teaches Spanish to grades 7—12 at Cohasset High School and junior high school.

She is an advocate of the total immersion approach to foreign language acquisition.

"I speak Spanish as soon as I get in the door. I don't speak English at all," she said.

At the private international school where Amores teaches in Quito, students are required to take English. She said the American educational system should also require students to study a second language from the earliest grades.

However, the educational tools available to students in America are more plentiful than those in Ecuador, she said.

"They have games they can play here on a computer to learn a foreign language. It's great."

Amores noted that only the poorest children attend public schools in Ecuador.

"There's usually 50 in a class," she said.

People of any means send their children to private schools, she added.

There is one constant in the private and public schools in Ecuador — a heavy, non-elective course load.

Amores said while most students here take six classes, in Ecuador eight classes is the norm.

"They go to school for the same amount of time, but there are not study halls," she explained.

There are also no varying subject levels, except for foreign language instruction.

"Everybody takes the same level. I don't think that's very good," she said.

Ecuadorian students do not have a choice in what subjects they study. Amores would also like to see the rigidity of the required curriculum change.

Whether in Ecuador or America, though, Amores said the children she teaches are basically the same.

"My eighth-graders here are like the eighth-graders I teach at home," she said.

Despite the similarities in students, there are still some adjustments for Amores.

"My lunch is my dinner (in Ecuador), so I eat a big lunch (here)," she said.

"I don't eat your dinner. Maybe just a cup of coffee and then bed."

She also finds it hard to believe most people just talk at parties in America.

"It is interesting that you don't dance at parties. I find that very interesting."

Amores is living with Edward and Betsy Connolly during her stay in Cohasset.

"It's a normal, typical American family," she said.

"They are very friendly."

Radioactive waste

The state has issued a hefty package of proposed regulations regarding the safe management of low-level radioactive waste (LLW) and is seeking public comment.

The regulations are in draft form, and public hearings will be held during the next two months. In addition, written comments will be accepted through March 31.

The regulations, drawn up by three agencies — the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Management Board, the Department of Environmental Protection and the Department of Public Health — attempt to detail options for long-term LLW management in an effort to secure dependable access to a disposal facility.

According to the state, many facilities such as hospitals, research laboratories and nuclear power plants are storing LLW on their premises or shipping it out of state to Barnwell, S.C., Beatty, Nev., or Richland, Wash.

Access to the Barnwell facility, which receives the majority of Massachusetts' waste, is expected to be halted next year.

LLW proliferates. Latex gloves, disposable protective clothing, paper towels and other items used routinely in hospitals or labs could be contaminated.

Liquid and glassware used in medical or biological research could contain LLW.

LLW can be generated in the course of normal maintenance at nuclear power plants too.

According to the state LLW management board, more than 450 hospitals, universities, biotechnological firms and other businesses are licensed to use radioactive materials in Massachusetts.

Nearly 25 percent of them shipped LLW out of state. Most will decay to acceptable levels within 100 years, but a small amount will remain radioactive.

The purpose of the public review is to help decide whether the Commonwealth should identify a site within Massachusetts and build and operate a specific facility to store, treat or dispose of LLW.

If the management board decides that is the direction the state should follow, it will make grants available to a community that wants to evaluate the potential economic impacts of having an LLW disposal site within its boundaries. In addition, a system of property values would be devised to protect that community should it be designated as the LLW disposal site.

The regulations also address other issues, such as promoting the reduction of use of radioactive materials or the substitution of other materials which decay relatively sooner.

In the terms of public health, the use of LLW is beneficial. Radioactive material is used for diagnoses and therapies in the medical field. Economically, the biotechnological and pharmaceutical companies in Massachusetts play a strong role in the states industrial base. And, nuclear power plants provide energy.

All provide significant employment. Without proper disposal procedures, Massachusetts could be held hostage to escalating fees imposed by out-of-state commercial disposal sites.

It is important for all of us to become informed about this issue. Copies of the regulations — and executive summaries — are available at city and town halls as well s public libraries.

The first public hearings will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 22 at Gardner Auditorium at the State House and at 7 p.m. Feb. 23 at Memorial Hall in Plymouth.

A hearing at 7 p.m. March 9 is scheduled for the Hill-Roberts Elementary School in Attleboro.

Written comments will be accepted by writing to the office of the Management Board, 100 Cambridge St., Room 903, Boston MA 02202. Comments regarding DPH or DEP proposed regulations should be addressed to those agencies as well.

For copies of the draft documents, call the management board at (617) 727-6018.

letters

To the Editor:

We are treated to periodic puff pieces in the Mariner on what a great job the health education curriculum is doing in the Cohasset schools (Feb. 11 recent edition).

I think, however, that if more parents were aware of what exactly is in that curriculum, especially in the grade schools, at least some of them would be appalled.

The fact of the matter is that there is no state law mandating either sex or A.I.D.S. education in Massachusetts. It is my experience that a small number of people are pushing this type of "education" on a mostly opposed or apathetic population.

All across this nation the results of sex education have been at best counterproductive, and at worst a diaster.

And with good reason has it been a disaster. The road to hell is paved with good intentions.

Question of the Week

Each week, the Cohasset Mariner will ask candidates to respond to the Question of the Week. Each candidate is invited to submit a written reply to the weekly question.

Candidates must limit themselves to 200 typed words (or less), double-spaced. Please keep to the issue and be accurate. We remind the candidates that answers must be submitted by noon Tuesday for publication in that week's issue.

Answers can be dropped off at Colonial Pharmacy or Cohasset News in Cohasset Village; mailed to P.O. Box 71 Cohasset 02025; or 'FAXed' to the Mariner at 617-837-4843.

In addition to replies to the weekly question, a limited amount of space will be reserved for other campaign announcements and events scheduled by all candidates.

Just a reminder, the Mariner will not accept letters to the editor from candidates during the campaign. We also do not accept letters endorsing candidates. The Mariner will publish letters regarding campaign issues but all politically-oriented letters will be cut off two weeks before the election.

No candidates are endorsed by the Mariner Newspapers and no preferential treatment is offered any candidate seeking public office.

Candidates are encouraged to advertise their campaign in this newspaper. For more information about our advertising rates, please contact Judy McCaffery-Perry at 1-800-649-6661.

Last week's question was:

Pretend you're talking to someone who is considering buying a home in Cohasset. How would you convince him or her to make the move? Talk about the schools, budget problems, the economy, the crime, etc. Be honest.

Here's how the candidates answered.

Jane O. Goedecke

Candidate for Re-election
Cohasset Selectmen

"I did not have the good fortune to be born in Cohasset. My husband and I consider ourselves both clever and lucky to have chosen Cohasset 18 years ago. I remember our reasons then: natural beauty, proximity to the ocean and to Boston, a small town with good schools. I believe those reasons are still valid today. But now I know Cohasset from the inside and I think there are many more reasons to locate here than those the realtors point out.

"Cohasset is a town with strong community feeling. The Habitat project and the work at Government Island attest to the commitment our citizens feel to improving the town. There is support for public services. Recent positive votes on override ballots show that we understand the cost of government and education and are willing to pay for it if it is efficient and beneficial to the population.

"Anyone who contemplates moving to Massachusetts and certainly anyone who already lives in the state is aware of the grave economic problems we have been facing. I believe Cohasset has handled the crisis well and, relative to many towns around us, is in a healthy financial state. We may be able to avoid an override ballot this year. Significant increases in insurance costs are a concern but we hope to be able to absorb them with savings in other areas. Our free cash level, at about $450,000, is acceptable, although there are potential labor settlements that may put pressure on it.

"Thinking of moving to Cohasset? We welcome you, but not if you think this town is just fine and can run itself. We need people who want to get involved, who see ways they can improve on the good we have and who want to make a difference. See you at town meeting!"

Ellery H. Clark Jr.

Library trustee candidate

"Only a reasonable distance from Boston, vibrant, versatile Cohasset is considered by almost all their citizens as very desirable and would welcome new houseowners and their families. The town is in a beautiful land and maritime area, with many recreational facilities.

"It has an excellently rated school system tp which many newer residents have been attracted. The Rotary Club Awards many scholarships to Cohasset High graduates, later backed up by subsequent good or better college records. Professional, practical education is available at Regional Vo-Tech High. Outstanding Paul Pratt Memorial Library, named after respected early business leader Pratt, has access to 1.2 million books, through its membership in Old Colony Library Network. Friends of the Cohasset Library, with both financial and volunteer aid, have been of great assistance.

Goedecke to run again

Jane O. Goedecke, 100 Nichols Road, announced recently that she is a candidate for re-election to the Cohasset Board of Selectmen.

Currently serving as chairman, Goedecke is seeking her second term on the five-person board.

"I feel very positive about what the Board has accomplished during the last two and a half years and I want to continue in that effort," Goedecke said. "There have been significant personnel changes during my tenure and I want to provide the support and continuity those department heads will need to serve the town successfully." Fire chief, police chief and town accountant have all been appointed during the last year.

Before being elected selectman, Goedecke served on the advisory committee for four and a half years, two and a half as chairman. During that time she served as the board's representative to the Long Range Planning Committee for Cohasset Schools.

A Cohasset resident for 18 years, Goedecke is active in other town activities as well. She served for five years on the Friends of the Paul Pratt Library Committee, three years as chairman. She is a member of the Cohasset Garden Club and serves on a subcommittee of the club responsible for landscaping the rear of the Lightkeepers' Cottage on Government Island.

Goedecke founded the Cohasset Chapter of the AFS International Student Exchange and served as the group's president for two years. She is chairman of Youth Group Committee of the First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church.

A graduate of Wellesley College with a degree in Political Science, Goedecke held various positions in sales and marketing for a national book publisher. She is married and the mother of two children.

Marlette runs for moderator

Cohasset Atty. George Lane Marlette has announced his candidacy for a three-year term as moderator for Cohasset.

He is serving as acting moderator due to the resignation of longtime moderator William Weeks.

Marlette, 32, a 19-year resident of Cohasset is a practicing attorney in Brockton.

A graduate of Derby Academy and the Holderness School, he received a B.A. from Gettysburg College.

He was awarded a Juris Doctor, cum laude, from New England School of Law in 1988 and is admitted to practice before the state and federal courts, and is a member of the Plymouth County, Norfolk County and Boston Bar Associations.

He has served on the School Facilities Committee in Cohasset, and most recently served as Chairman of the Board of Registrars for the town, a committee on which he served six years before stepping down as required by law to assume the moderator's duties.

Marlette served on the Board of Directors, Brockton Visiting Nurse Association, and the Board of Directors of the Salvation Army.

He is a member of the Brockton Rotary Club and the Old Colony Masonic Lodge. He is a licensed private pilot and aircraft owner.

"I hope to demystify the process of Town Government in a way which will make it more appealing and accessible to everyone in town. It is my intention to work with town counsel and local officials to streamline and speed up Town Meeting business, and open up the appointment process in a way which will encourage people to participate in town government." Marlette said.

Marlette is unopposed in the April 3, 1993 election.

Question of the Week

Ellery H. Clark Jr.

"Town crime is low, the town has an able Council on Aging and Senior Center, also her Drug and Alcohol Committee. Fire safety and prevention are effective.

"Many churches of dedicated leadership and members exist. There is community interest and participation in a great variety and depth of areas.

"Think, act Cohasset now! Buy in Cohasset!!!"

Next week's question for any of the candidates is:

One way to expand the tax base in this town is to attract more business into our borders. Do you think Cohasset is a business friendly community? Why would businesses want to locate in this town?

TAX ASSISTANCE FOR SENIORS

Free Income Tax Service for anyone 60 years old or older with low to moderate income.

Volunteers will be available from Feb. 1 through April 15 at the Cohasset Council on Aging, 3 No. Main St.

Richard Walsh and Joe Buckley, counselors, are available Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. Please call for an appointment at 383-9112.

Please be prepared to bring a copy of your 1991 federal and state tax returns, plus W-2s, 1099s, Social Security forms SSA-1099, tax forms and any other pertinent tax information for 1992.

If you are unable to come to the council office, Betty Van Slyck will be glad to come to your home. Please call her at 740-1534.

RETIRING IN 1993?

If you are past 62 and thinking about retiring anytime in 1993, call a Social Security representative now to discuss your plans. Because Social Security rules permit people to work and receive retirement benefits at the same time, it could be to your advantage to have your benefits begin in January, even if you are not actually retiring until late in the year.

For additional information, call Social Security, toll free number, 1-800-772-1213-business days between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m., to make an appointment to discuss your retirement plans.

Beating cancer: what you should know about early detection

A report on cancer by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health reveals an alarming trend: Between 1982 and 1989, the total number of cancers in the state increased by 9.6 percent, compared to the national average of 7 percent.

The report compares a variety of cancer rates in Massachusetts communities to state-wide averages. On the South Shore, for example, Carver, Holbrook and Quincy each had more cases than expected of lung cancer; Whitman had more lung cancer than expected in women and leukemia among men.

Although Massachusetts residents died from cancer at a greater rate than from heart disease in 1991, the report is not all gloom and doom; Norwell, Hingham and Duxbury had fewer than expected cases of lung cancer in men, among other encouraging results. And, in the midst of these statistics, it is important to remember that many cancers are treatable if detected early enough.

Breast cancer is among those that are treatable. The bad news is that it has reached epidemic proportions in the state, striking one in every eight women.

Two-thirds of breast cancer victims are more than 50 years old, but the disease occurs in younger women, and even occasionally men.

The National Cancer Institute recommends a three-point breast cancer detection plan for women, featuring monthly breast self-examination, regular breast exams by a doctor or other health professional, and mammography beginning at age 40. Recognizing that technology and education can play an important role in saving lives, South Shore Hospital's Women's Diagnostic Center offers mammography services and instruction in breast self-examination, provided in a comfortable, caring environment.

For men, early detection is critical to successful treatment of prostate cancer. Cancer of the prostate is the second most common cancer and second leading cause of cancer deaths among American men. The risk of developing prostate cancer increases with age—it rarely occurs in men under 50—and black men are at greater risk than white men, for unknown reasons.

We strongly encourage every man over the age of 40 to have a digital rectal exam as part of his regular physical checkup. Men over 40 should also be alert to any urinary problems and painful conditions that could be symptoms of prostate cancer.

There is some good news for men on the lung cancer front: smoking is on the decline, leading to a 2 percent decrease in lung cancer among Massachusetts men. Unfortunately, women and young people continue to pick up the smoking habit at an alarming rate. In fact, as many as 3,000 Americans take up smoking every day.

The old adage "Prevention is worth a pound of cure" holds true when it comes to cancer. Research indicates that lifestyle can have a significant impact on our health in general, and on cancer in particular. Smoking (and exposure to cigarette smoke), diet, sun exposure—these and other factors within our control can play a role in whether or not we beat the odds.

The hospital's Cancer Management Program is helping South Shore residents take control of their health by providing free community cancer screenings for breast, prostate and skin cancer. Nearly 300 residents last year benefited from free consultations with specialists at these screenings.

The Cancer Management Program does more than diagnose and treat cancer—it helps patients cope with the emotional impact of the disease. The hospital's Living with Cancer Support Group, which meets twice monthly, helps cancer patients and their families live with the lifestyle changes associated with cancer.

For more information about the support group, call (617) 340-8795. To make an appointment with the Women's Diagnostic Center, call (617) 340-8200.

Cohasset wrestlers on their way to division championships

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

They entered the Division 2 South Sectional Wrestling Tournament as Daveys and finished up the two-day meet as Goliaths.

One of the smallest schools in the division, the Cohasset wrestling team, will send a strong contingent to the Division 2 State Championships at Marshfield High School on Friday. Several grapplers have solid chances of advancing to the all-state meet the following weekend.

"This is probably the strongest team we'll bring to the states," said head coach Torin Sweeney, following the Skippers' fourth-place finish behind Carver, Dedham and Whitman-Hanson. "It's really an indication of how strong our tradition has been over the years."

Nate Fiore (140 pounds), Ray Jones (152 pounds) and Ryan Freeman (112 pounds) will all be seeded first come Friday. Steve Harrington (second at 145 pounds), Dan Baird (second, 160 pounds) and Sasha Ordelleilde (fifth, 135 pounds) Tournament pressure is nothing new to Fiore and Jones. The pair finished second and third respectively in the state tourney in '92, qualifying them for the New England Meet. Fiore wrestled to a sixth-place finish, while Jones had the meet of his life in finishing second.

Sweeney believes the pair gained valuable experience from the competition and are more prepared this season for another shot at the New England Meet. He also isn't ruling out any of the other state qualifiers either.

"They really know what it's all about and that makes it easier for them," he said of Fiore and Jones. "I think with Danny and Ryan scoring all those points it's going to help.

"With Ray and Nate both making it last year you never know, but they all have a chance at making it. I certainly hope two or three will be there."

The Skippers finished the regular season with a 10-6 record, but were plagued by injuries and sickness all winter.

Ben Chittick and Max NiVaud both finished with strong varsity records. Brandon DeVoe and Mike Lennon should lead the Skippers next season after Jones and Fiore graduate.

Look for gymnastics 'clan' to be serious contenders for championship

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

You can quit calling the Cohasset gymnastics squad a 'team.' Next year they'll more than likely be referred to as 'the clan.'

Ruth Ann Sargent's 10-6 squad will feature a healthy crop of underclassmen, all of whom gained experience in pressure situations this year in the highly-competitive South Shore League.

And Sargent sees nothing but success in the Skippers' future.

"They've got a lot of drive and dedication," said Sargent, who will be getting married this August. "They take instruction very well. None of them have developed poor attitudes you sometimes get with the older gymnasts. They were taught to cheer for everyone on the team and the competition and not just think of themselves."

For that reason, Cohasset picked up the Sportsmanship Award in the Pilgrim Conference, as well as several other medals. Senior co-captain Tara Gallagher was named a league all-star and captured third in the all-around competition behind Scituate's Julie Smollett and Carver's Leslie Whittaker. The Skippers will lose Gallagher, but have a deep squad which Sargent believes could challenge the Sailors for the league championship.

"I think their goal is to capture the title," she said. "The bulk of the team is younger kids. We'll have one sophomore and two seniors. Scituate is still going to be good but they're still losing two good girls (Smollett and Alexi Poulos)."

Eighth-graders Meghan Pratt and Erica Hettstrom look to be the top-two returnees at this point. Pratt finished fourth in the floor exercise at the league meet and Hettstrom nailed fifth in the uneven bars. Sargent is hoping to expand their events to help make up for Gallagher's loss.

"I would think that Meghan and Erica would pick up the two all-around spots for next year," she said.

Fellow eighth-graders Julie Smith and Jodi Colwill competed in multiple events this year and should continue during the '93-94 season.

"That's a clan of very talented eighth graders," Sargent said.

The seventh-grade group includes Kristin Reynolds, Alisa Kinchla, Carolyn Pratt and Maggie Godecke. Reynolds and Godecke are extremely versatile and can be called upon to compete in any even, while Pratt specialized in the beam and floor exercise this season. Kinchla was plagued by the flu all season and never was able to reach her potential, while co-captain Aimee Mitchell broke her finger in the middle of the season and was out for the rest of the season.

"Unfortunately that happens to everyone," Sargent said. "But it seems as though it hits Cohasset every year. Our number-one goal was to keep everyone healthy."

Freshman Tara Fiore just missed winning a medal at the league meet with a fine seventh-place finish on the beam. Fiore also does the floor exercise and has competed in the all around on occasion.

Junior Kara Protulis juggled figure skating with her gymnastics workouts. She injured her ankle on the vault, last season, but performed steadily this year on the vault, balance beam and floor.

Several gymnasts have already been working out at the Cohasset Community Center three to four times a week. Many of the them plan to attend the U.S. Gymnastics Training Center, this summer, at Mount Holyoke College. Bela Karoli, who coached Olympic gold medalists Nadia Comaneci, Olga Korbut and Mary Lou Retton will be one of several guest lecturers at the camp. The instructors are top notch in the sport, as well.

"They do have phenomenal instructors," Sargent said. "You get out of the camp what you put in. I think the kids on the team realize how good they are now. They want to keep it up. You're talking about a lot of work. You have to be in the gym practicing. The sport has Skipper gymnast Tara Gallagher (left) is all smiles after placing third in the all-around competition in the South Shore League meet. The meet marked the end of Gallagher's high school career, but head coach Ruth Ann Sargent says the team has a strong crop of youngsters coming back next season to make a run at perennial league champion Scituate. Dave McKee

by Joe & Dave

The old joke runs like this: I went to a fight and a hockey game broke out.

Well, the opposite came true for fans at the Weymouth-Archbishop Williams hockey game last Wednesday night at Pilgrim Arena in Hingham, as a melee broke out immediately after the game ended.

The brawl, which involved spectators only, required several police cars to be called to the scene and mace to be sprayed on the crowd. The police made an entrance worthy of Batman as they drove into the rink by way of the Zamboni door.

Crowds can become emotional in a high-pressure high school game and with the numbers involved, one shove or the wrong word could start something that a detail officer or two cannot stop.

Two days prior to the Weymouth-Archbishop Williams game, one of the Mariner reporters covered a hockey game between Hingham High School and Weymouth. Pilgrim Arena was sold out and the fans lined the rink like Sardines in a can.

In fact, the game was so exciting and fast-paced that the reporter did not realize he was crunched up next to former Boston College coach Len Ceglarski until late in the second period.

At that game there were no brawls despite the large crowd and intense rivalry.

When word reached the Mariner office that a "riot" had broken out at the Weymouth-Archbisop Williams hockey game, an editor of one of the papers said, "I was in Los Angeles when the Rodney King riots were. Don't tell me about a riot at a hockey rink in Hingham."

This may anger many basketball coaches, several of whom we have a great deal of respect and admiration for. But here goes anyway. After this season the MIAA should do away with its open format for the state basketball tournament and return it to the way it was three years ago. It doesn't take a scholar to see that there are too many teams that should be playing past their 18th-20th game of the season.

In the girls' Division 1 South seeds, Norwood High School is ranked number one with a spotless, 19-0 record. Taunton High is at the bottom of the list at 4-14. Nauset (19-0) is at the top of the heap of the Division 2 Boys, while Sandwich received the last seed of 31 teams with its 3-15.

A look at the South seedings show that of the 167 teams (Plymouth North and South not included at this point) in the three boys' and girls' divisions, 51 squads have records less than .500. That's 31 percent of the team total.

The tournament was not originally designed to serve as a come one, come all show-case. In actuality the preliminary round of the tournament has turned into a farce. Several teams with records not even close to .500 wave hello then goodbye before quietly exiting after a brief appearance.

The pros and cons have been argued back and forth by several coaches. Many coaches hold firm to the point that the tournament gives their players valuable experience for two or three years down game and career-tying high of 38 points to send the 15th-ranked Skippers (now 12-9) to an 85-65 win, advancing them to the first round, later this week, against second-seed Tri-County.

Bilodeau, who will be attending Thayer Academy this fall, took matters into his own hands when Cathedral came onto the court ready to play.

"I was pretty angry," he said. "It could have been my last game at Cohasset so I stepped it up."

Bilodeau, who suffers from an asthma condition, generally doesn't come in the game for the first eight minutes, but Ford saw the need to bring him in sooner.

It proved to be a good move.

Trailing by seven (29-22) in the closing minutes of the first half, Bilodeau rattled off four 3-pointers in the last 2:45 to give himself 23 points at the half and a 40-34 lead for the Skippers.

"He comes to play in the big games," said Ford. "We were down and we needed someone to pick us up. He proved it tonight.

"If he keeps playing like that we're going to do something in this tournament."

Cathedral was the obvious aggressor early in the game as Troy Greer (32 points) opened the game with the first of his five 3-pointers. As tough as he was with the outside shot, the speedy guard was virtually impossible to stop when he drove through the lane. Greer's speed and the crisp passing of Marcus Merritt (11 points) and Elgin Physic (18 points) disrupted the Skippers' effectiveness under the boards and their ability to dictate the tempo of the game.

"We're missing our two guards and our kids didn't respond at first," Ford admitted.

Cohasset suffered another blow when Chris Kondrat was knocked unconscious at 7:01 of the second half, after banging heads with a Cathedral player. He was taken off the court on a stretcher and is expected to miss the remainder of the tournament.

Consecutive free throws in the first half from Greer and Merritt, and an easy jumper by Merritt, gave Cathedral its biggest lead of the game, 20-12, before Bilodeau's 3-point binge.

Bilodeau started the second half with a quick 15-foot jumper and from then on it was all Cohasset.

The Skippers went up by eight went up by 15 (62-47) with 8:11 to go on a 3-point shot from 6 foot senior Joe Andrade. Andrae, who has had an up-and-down season, scored all of his 14 points in the second half. He proved to be the best man on the night at the free-throw line, connecting on seven of eight shots.

"He came in when we needed him and just played a monster game for us," Ford said.

Sophomore Dorian Bryant played a strong inside game in the second half and Chris Goodman also was consistent throughout.

Cathedral began to force the fouls with just over two minutes to play, trailing 73-60. Bilodeau came out for good shortly thereafter and received a standing ovation from the Cohasset fans. He's hoping the cheering will continue for the Skippers.

"I really want to win the state championship a lot," he said in the Cohasset locker room, minutes after the final buzzer. "We're really playing well right now and everyone's getting along."

Bilodeau did say, though, Cohasset had areas it would need to improve on if the teams stands any chance of advancing deep into the tourney.

"We need to get more offensive and defensive rebounds," he said. "We were a much better team than them and they were getting a lot of rebounds."

Yes, but it was the Skippers that got the scoring, mainly from you guess who.

Final registration

The final registration for the Cohasset Little League, Senior Little League, and Big League programs will take place Saturday, Feb. 27, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Deer Hill School. Anyone who has not registered by that date risks losing the opportunity of playing baseball at those levels in 1993. Anyone who is unable to register at that time is encouraged to call John Carr at 383-0311 to obtain an application.

New teams forming

The Cohasset Youth Baseball Association and Cohasset Little League are pleased to announce the formation of a 14-15 year old Senior Little League (Pony League) traveling team. This team will be in addition to the two Cohasset entries in the present Senior Little League program. The Senior Little League (Pony League) welcomes all interested 13, 14, and 15 year olds to an organizational meeting Sunday, Feb. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Deer Hill School. Coaches, parents and other volunteers are encouraged to attend this organization meeting. It is expected that the Cohasset Senior Little League will be able to build upon its outstanding success from 1992 and build very competitive, enthusiastic and exciting teams in 1993.

The Cohasset Youth Baseball Association and Cohasset Little League are extremely proud and pleased to announce the formation of the Cohasset Mariner's baseball team for players age 16, 17 and 18. This team will be entered in the newly-formed Big League sponsored by the Little League program and will compete against similar teams from neighboring towns on the South Shore. Anyone interested in participating in this program should attend the organizational meeting Sunday, Feb. 28, at 6 p.m. at the Deer Hill School. Players and/or parents should be prepared to bring the registration fee of $45 and to complete the registration form.

It is expected that the season will commence on or about June 1, 1993 and will not conflict with the high school baseball program.

the line. But in the same breath they say its a 'can't lose situation' and there is 'no pressure on the team.' Is that going to be the same attitude the team will have going into the tourney, say in 1995, when it is 15-5? Hardly.

The MIAA has to draw the line at some point. A better solution would be to allow any team with a record of .500 or better into the tournament. This format would leave the post season wide open for upsets, not decimations, in the early rounds. Another idea would allow the top-two teams from every league into the tournament, the way the format is set up in hockey.

The MIAA no doubt had the players in mind when it came to opening the tourney and the organization should be credited for that. But it took a good idea too far. To use a worn cliche, "winning isn't everything." But when it comes to qualify for a tournament, it has to stand for something.

While the basketball and hockey teams are busy prepping for the start of this week's South Sectional tournament, Whitman-Hanson's Tom Newton and Mandy Petty are aiming for Saturday's All-State Track Meet at Harvard University. Newton has been on a tear all season. He was undefeated during the indoor track season and hasn't lost a race since November. In Saturday's Class B Meet at Harvard, Newton easily captured the two mile with a time of 10:01. Panthers' head coach Mike Miranda is picking Newton, who has a personal best of 9:54, to finish in the top three in the all-state meet.

"Tom's a strong kid so he'll go right out," Miranda said.

Petty placed sixth in the high jump with a personal best leap of 5 feet. Miranda expects Petty should equal that mark this Saturday.

Elizabeth Eaton

Elizabeth (Ferguson) Eaton, 73, of Cohasset died suddenly of a massive heart attack in Washington, D.C. Feb. 15.

She leaves her husband of over 50 years, Louis F. E[illegible]n Jr.; two daughters, Elizabeth E. Steadman of Duxbury and Deborah E. Peck of Washington, D.C.; two grandchildren; and a sister, Nancy F. McManemon of East Livermore, ME.

She was born in Newton and brought up in Pittsfield, NH.

Mrs. Eaton and her husband had lived in Cohasset since early 1946.

Mrs. Eaton was a graduate of Colby Academy in New London, NH, and Mt. Holyoke College. She was an active alumna and participated in fundraising for the college. She also served as a class officer and reunion chairman. She was president of the Class of 1941 at her 50th reunion and was awarded the Medal for Eminent Service to the College.

Mrs. Eaton was much involved in civic affairs in Cohasset. She was elected to six three-year terms as Trustee of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. She served as a Girl Scout leader, Secretary of the Cohasset Red Cross, Executive Secretary and a forty-five year member of the Cohasset Dramatic Club, a Life Member of the Cohasset Historical Society, a member of the South Shore Art Center, and a former president and member of the Cohasset Discussion Club.

She was a member of the First Parish Church in Cohasset, where she had taught Sunday School and had sung in the choir for over forty-five years.

She was active in sports. As a young girl, she was an accomplished equestrienne, having earned a trunkful of trophies and blue ribbons at horse shows throughout northern New England in the 1930s, and having won a ribbon at the old New England Horse show at the Boston Garden. She had been a member of the Cohasset Gold Club for over 45 years and was Ladies Tournament Chairman in 1959, and again in 1984.

She was a former Secretary of the Ladies South Shore Golf League. She had been to Scotland to play golf with her husband 19 times, usually for three weeks or a month, including a week at Royal Dornoch.

She was twice a Ladies Doubles tennis champion at the Cohasset Golf Club and was a charter member of the Cohasset Tennis and Racquet Club, where she still played tennis during the winter.

She was one of the founders of the Roaring Twenty Ladies Bowling League of Cohasset in 1964 and was still an active bowler. She was a former Girls Athletic Instructor at Derby Academy.

She worked for a number of years at the Cohasset Consignment Shop of the Social Services League, and was, with her husband, one of the group of couples who organized and ran the Cohasset Subscription Dances.

For over ten years she had a radio program reading poetry of her choice, called "Poetry Now, with Betty Eaton," recorded at the Talking Information Center in Marshfield.

She had been involved with the Friends of the Boston Symphony for a considerable period and served as the Southeast Co-chair. She regularly attended the Friday afternoon concerts for many years, and was a member of, and frequent visitor to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

She travelled widely with her husband. In addition to her many visits to Scotland and to Wales and England, she had been in all but two of the fifty states, several times to Europe, twice to the Greek Islands, twice to the Canadian Rockies, to China, to New Zealand, and frequently to Bermuda.

Memorial Services were held at the First Parish (Unitarian) Church in Cohasset, Feb. 21 at 2 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the First Parish Church, or Mt. Holyoke College Alumnae Fund, South Hadley, MA.

George F. Cenedella

George F. Cenedella, 75, of Cohasset, a retired employee of the Campenella and Cardi Co., died Sunday at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth, after a brief illness.

Mr. Cenedella worked for the Cohasset Highway Department and the Herald Litchfield Co. of Cohasset after retiring in 1982.

He was an Army veteran of World War II.

Born and educated in Milford, he lived in Hingham before moving to Cohasset in 1966.

He leaves his wife, Marieta (Lorina) Cenedella; two sons, George F. Cenedella Jr. of Cohasset and Richard D. Cenedella of Duxbury; a brother, Robert Cenedella of Milford; a sister, Mildred Morse of Cape Cod, and a granddaughter.

Arrangements for a private funeral service and burial were made by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, Cohasset and Norwell.

Growing together

Houses of worship in Cohasset will be the focus of a Lenten educational offering entitled, "Growing Together Through Understanding." The series of five Tuesday evenings begins March 2 at 6:30 p.m. with a simple meal of soup and breads at St. Stephen's Church, 16 Highland Avenue, Cohasset. The program portion of the evening begins at 7:30 p.m. at the various places of worship in Cohasset.

The first evening's program will take place at the Panagia/ Nativity-Assumption Greek Orthodox Church, 817-819 Jerusalem Rd., March 2. The next week, March 9, the Vedanta Centre at 130 Beechwood St., a Hindu expression of faith, will be featured.

Attend any or all sessions. You may begin at St. Stephen's with the meal at 6:30 p.m. or join the program at 7:30 p.m. at the church appointed for that night. If you are coming for the meal, please call the church office (383-1083) by the Sunday preceding to reserve a place.

New cemetery directors nam

Mary Jane E. McArthur was re-elected president of the Cohasset Central Cemetery.

Re-elected as officers for the coming year were Joseph R. Busk, III, vice president, Mary C. Hartshorne, clerk, and Elinor Tower Campbell, treasurer.

The cemetery is located on North Main Street and Joy Place.

Also elected as directors were Margaret R. Charles, Margaret B. Cotter, Daniel C. Cotton, Sheila S. Evans, Jane M. Hamilton, Robert C. Jordan, Jr., T. Gerard Keating, Jean H. Simonds, David H. Wadsworth, William D. Weeks and Edward F. Woods.

An amendment to the by-laws, specifying three-year terms for directors, and several financial reports were approved. Elinor Campbell reported despite the fact that all lots in the cemetery have been sold, from time to time, a lot owner will return an unused lot to the cemetery making it then available for sale.

Several of those present voiced concern that the cemetery's attractive columbaria vaults, large enough for three or four cremation urns, appear to be relatively unknown.

In light of the shortage of cemetery space in Cohasset, (which a Town Committee is currently addressing) some believed that efforts should be made to publicize the availability of the columbaria vaults for purchase. A committee was appointed to consider this matter.

Call 1-800-649-6661 to subscribe to the Cohasset Mariner.

Voters have option for harbor land buy

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Town Meeting voters will have the ultimate say whether the town should purchase 1.66 acres of harbor-front land.

But in the interim the proposed purchase of the Hagerty property — which is bordered by Government Island on one side and Parker Avenue on the other — is getting support from town officials.

Selectmen voted Monday to recommend to town meeting passage of the article which would authorize the town to borrow up to about $470,000 to buy the property which is assessed at $660,000.

If the town borrowed the entire amount, it would add about $14 a year to the taxes of a house assessed at $200,000.

The ad hoc committee on land acquisition will soon send out a flyer to residents detailing the proposed purchase. Printing and mailing costs are being paid by the Cohasset Conservation Trust, a non-profit organization.

Harbor Committee Chairman John "Fritz" Pfaffman, who represents that board on the land acquisition committee, said owner Mary Hagerty approached the harbor committee last May about the possibility of selling the land to the town.

Selectmen subsequently appointed the ad hoc committee to look at the property and see if a town purchase is possible, Pfaffman said.

Republicans have an ally in Clinton

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

The best news Republicans have had in a while can be summed up in two words: Bill Clinton.

That's the message that state Republican party officials delivered Sunday to about 150 local party activists meeting at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

While Republicans credit the Clinton landslide in Massachusetts with washing out incumbent state senators in an avalanche that decimated Gov. William Weld's veto support — state party chairman James Rappaport is confident the Elephant will make a big comeback in '94.

And taking a page from Clinton's book, Rappaport advocates Republican activism at every level to "spread the word."

"The principles that bind us together as Republicans — the size and role of government, limited taxation and accountability — those issues clearly differentiate us from Democrats," Rappaport said.

"If we effectively hone in on the issues, Bill Clinton helps us out enormously. But more importantly, he helps the soul of the party."

Rappaport said clearly defined differences between the two major parties make Democrats vulnerable.

"Remember we only have nine (state senate) seats to protect and they have 31," he said.

Mooring fines finally land in Cohasset

It's official.

Mooring holders will have to pay $100 if they don't pay their mooring fees by April 1 and $25 if they fail to reaffirm their name on the waiting list by the deadline.

Voters at the special town meeting last fall approved a by-law that allows a 15-day grace period for late payment of mooring fees. Prior to the new by-law, mooring holders automatically lost their moorings if they did not pay by the deadline.

The fines could save the town money in legal fees. The town's prior by-law resulted in a flood of appeals before the Department of Environmental Protection. Of the 18 mooring appeals cases recently before the DEP, 14 were from Cohasset.

Harbor Committee Chairman John "Fritz" Pfaffman said the state would look more favorably on the new by-law and rule in favor of the town if anyone does appeal, so the change would be in the town's best interest.

Selectmen voted to set the fees at Monday's meeting.

Pfaffman noted that mooring bills go out in January so in actuality mooring holders have about 90 days to pay before April 1.

The board felt the $50 fine for failure to reaffirm recommended by the harbor committee was too high.

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby said the $100 fine was a "wake-up call" for mooring holders but said $25 was sufficient fine for failure to renew one's name on the waiting list.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle objected to the fines saying they set a precedent.

"Why not charge someone $200 for not getting their sticker on time?" he asked.

Snow plowing hazard

Police warn that private snow plowing contractors should not leave snow on the street because it creates a safety hazard.

Sgt. Robert Jackson said leaving snow on the street is in violation of a town by-law.

"We'd like to educate the public to be more conscious of this," he said. "The results of leaving snow in the street has caused accidents."

Jackson said he knows of at least one recent accident caused by snow left in the street and of a couple near misses.

Education bill input

State Senator Brian McDonald (D-Weymouth) didn't have any good news to report about the House's version of the education reform bill except to say that the Senate version will be different.

"The current bill pits the town side of government against the school side in many instances and that's not a healthy situation," he said.

McDonald said the bill "would be dramatically different" when it comes out of senate ways and means committee.

He said he is strongly committed to not mandating programs on the cities and towns when they don't have ways to raise revenue.

"My primary concern with the bill is the funding mechanism," he said. "It is an interest area of mine to see education improved."

McDonald explained that the current bill doesn't adequately address the funding issue. He said it's a "back-door attack" on Prop. 2-1/2.

He explained the bill would make communities to fund 'x' dollars a year for education which would then force the communities to ask for overrides to pay for the police, fire, and roads.

McDonald said legislators know that overrides for police an fire have a chance of passage while overrides for education are "virtually impossible."

Theme park discussion

Selectmen will invite proponents of the proposed theme park in Hull to a meeting to educate the board about the issue.

"First we need to set up a mechanism to find out what's happening and then determine the impact on the town," Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said in the interim he would communicate with the newly appointed task force in Hingham "to see what they've surfaced."

Walter Schroeder, 715 Jerusalem Rd., warned that time is running out. Hull voters will vote on the theme park proposal at their April town meeting.

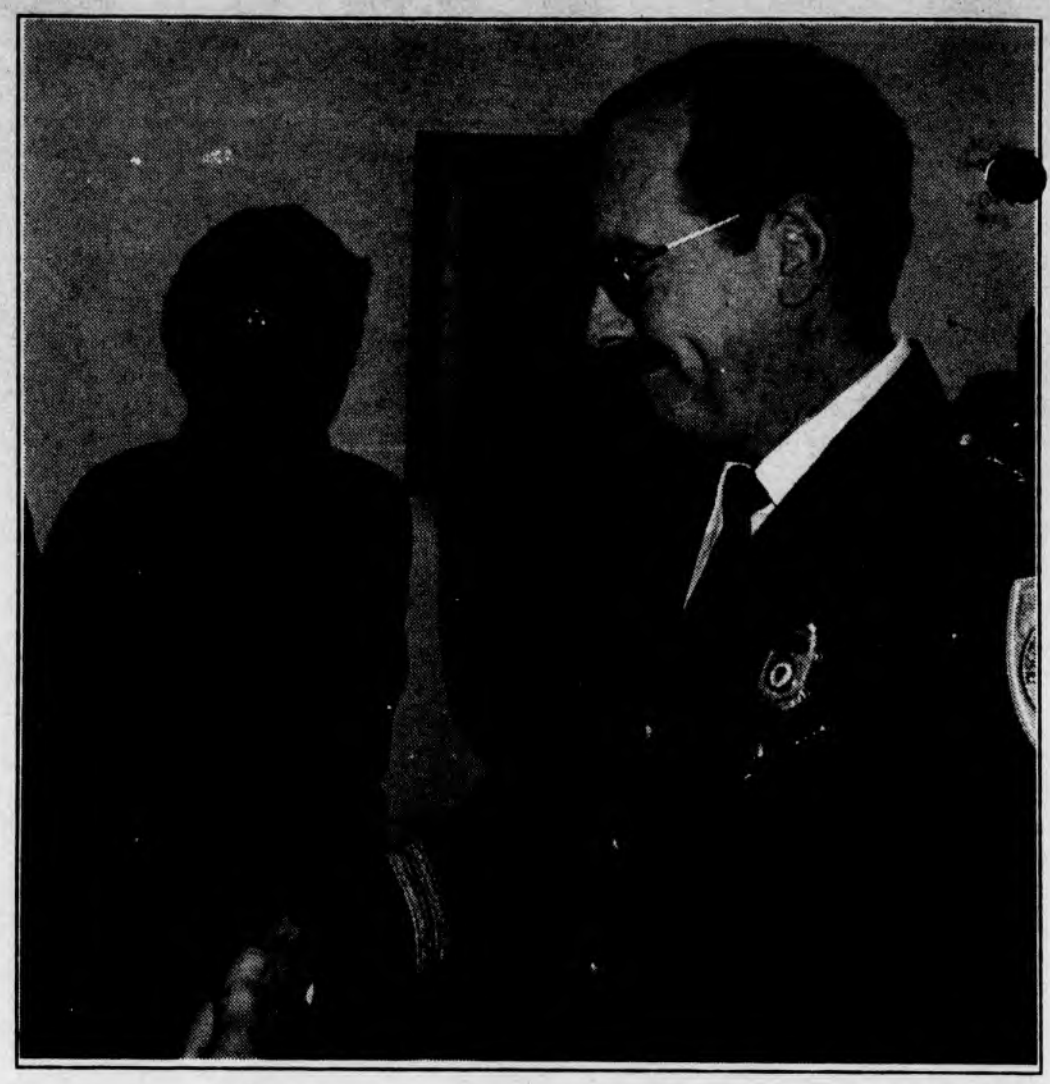
Schroeder said the park would create traffic problems on Forest Avenue and across Jerusalem Road. He said parking would also be a problem. He didn't think proposals to bus people from satellite parking lots in Hingham would succeed.

"We all know what people do to avoid paying for parking or being bussed."

Schroeder said he was also concerned about sound and light pollution.

"Right across Strait's Pond is where the park is going to be," he said.

"I'll be honest with you, as a town next to this — we should be very careful and act very quickly."



Police Chief Brian W. Noonan is congratulated by members of the board of selectmen following the swearing-in ceremony Monday. Judge Patrick Hurley administered the oath. The selectmen's office was packed with family and friends who wished the new Chief all the best. Shown in the background, selectman Martha K. Gjesteby proudly looks on. Noonan, who has been serving as acting chief, was chosen from a field of about 87 applicants. He replaces former chief Joseph Kealey who retired from the position.

Watch batteries come in many different sizes. Your watch determines the size of the battery as well as how long the battery will last, anywhere from one to five years.

Now that most watches have quartz movements, consumers should be aware that the battery that powers their watch is just like any other battery. When a battery is left in your watch after it has stopped it can leak an acid that can ruin your watch movement. Bring your watch in right away after stopping and we will check the battery and change it when necessary.

Come in to King Jewelers and see our selection of fine quartz watches.

Art Center lobbies senator for support

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Freshman State Senator Brian McDonald (D-Weymouth) discussed creative financing with a group of concerned citizens at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset Friday.

The artistic constituents queried McDonald about his commitment to provide state money for the arts.

"I will do anything and everything to increase funding for the arts," McDonald said.

The center was founded in 1955 and serves 43 South Shore communities.

"I'm here to learn as much as anything else, and be as supportive as I can be,"McDonald added.

His audience brimmed with teachers.

South Shore Art Center Executive Director Lanci Valentine pointed to the declined in state funding.

"The Massachusetts cultural budget is $6.1 million," she said.

"It was $27 million in 1989."

McDonald said the state made a larger appropriation to the arts in 1989 because it was a time of unprecedented growth.

"I would be less than honest to say any increases now would be more than incremental," McDonald said.

Chairman of the local cultural council Allison Moskow informed McDonald that Cohasset received $2,000 from that $6 million budget to distribute to creative endeavors.

"We received $7,600 in requests. We could only give funds for two out of eight programs," she said.

Thomas H. Hamilton of Cohasset is a principal in the real estate firm Gallery 360. He said the presence of art in a community makes it easier to to sell homes in that same community.

"I see every day how important it is to have something like this (the South Shore Art Center) when we are convincing people to live here from Chicago, Texas..."

McDonald told the group that the link between art and the economy should be included in any lobbying efforts to increase money allocated to the arts.

"What is often underscored is the role the arts play in the economy," he said.

"Take the Berkshires. Take Tanglewood away" and that area feels the impact, McDonald said.

Mandy Avery from Weymouth is an artist and featured regularly in the South Shore Arts Center.

Avery told McDonald the Massachusetts Lottery was conceived to provide funding for the arts. "The lottery was started for the arts," Avery said.

"Now where is the money going?"

McDonald said a portion of the money is returned in the form of local aid to cities and towns in the Commonwealth.

Valentine said the South Shore Arts Center operates on a $300,000 budget. Of the total, one percent, or $3,000, is from state revenues.

Valentine said she was glad to hear others on Beacon Hill wanted to distribute more money to the arts.

Governor William F. Weld, she said, recently indicated that he wanted to increase the Massachusetts cultural budget by $600,000. She added that State Senate President William Bulger said he would like to see an even higher increase.

Republicans have an ally in Clinton

Rappaport called on Republicans to write letters to the editor, run for office, and to speak out even at the work place.

"The Massachusetts Teachers Association sends bulletins out to its employees all the time. If we talk about what's important and why it's important, we'll have resounding success in '94."

Party executive director Gene Hartigan praised local state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray's personal style. Murray, a Republican representing Hull, Hingham and Cohasset, was unopposed in her bid for re-election in November.

"The name of the game is hard work," he said. "Many (officials) go home at night and pack in saying they've done their civic duty.

"The Democrats go home and pick up the phone," he said.

Hartigan said while actual numbers of registered Democrats vs. Republicans in the state seem to work against the party, there are available voters.

"There are lots of independent voters out there who need a push," he said. "It's your game, don't let other people define what that game is."

Both Hartigan and Rappaport stressed calling up the foot soldiers to work for grass roots support such as recruiting town committee members. Hartigan also noted that fund-raising efforts are up due to a new phone system which increased the party's ability to 'telemarket' by 2-1/2 times.

Although Weld's social agenda is at odds with some Republicans, the general consensus was that Weld looks good in '94.

'The principles that bind us together as Republicans — the size and role of government, limited taxation and accountability — those issues clearly differentiate us from Democrats.'

— state Republican party chairman James Rappaport

Local activists Dan Daly of Hingham and Polly Logan of Cohasset (who both support abortion rights) said they did not think Gov. Weld's stance on social issues will not hurt his re-election bid in '94. Weld is pro-choice and appointed a task force to focus on the problems of gay teenagers.

Daly, who tried to unseat incumbent U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds in November, said he will work on Weld's re-election effort.

"The economy is the number one issue," Daly said. He noted that Weld's fundamental difference with Democrats is on "the role of state government and our pocketbooks."

Logan, who was wearing a 'Women for Weld' button said that while all Republicans don't agree with Weld 100 percent, "they will look at the large picture to see what he's done fiscally."

Recycling effort honored

Cohasset was recently recognized for its outstanding recycling program.

The award was presented by Salem-based North Shore Recycled Fibers at the last month's Massachusetts Municipal Association Meeting and Trade Show at the Marriot Copley Place, Boston.

North Shore Recycled Fibers recycles more than 30,000 tons of papers and plastics per month from more than 100 communities and businesses at its baling facilities and mills throughout the state.

Parking ban okay'ed

There are four fewer parking spaces on N. Main Street.

Selectmen voted to create a no parking zone two spaces wide on both sides of the street at both ends of the crosswalk in front of the Carriage House for safety reasons.

The portable pedestrian-crossing sign will remain in the center of the crosswalk.

Waste bans to start

Citizens utilizing the Cohasset Recycling Transfer Facility are reminded that recycling is mandatory. Newspapers, corrugated cardboard, magazines, white office paper, computer paper, glass, metal cans, plastic bottles with a "2" on the bottom, scrap metal, batteries, tires, waste oil and yard waste must be recycled.

As of April 1, two more so-called "waste bans" go into effect. The substances which will no longer be accepted at SEMASS, the town's disposal facility, are glass and yard waste. At the present time there continues to be small quantities of glass and yard waste mixed with the rubbish.

Users of the Recycling Transfer Facility are urged to keep all yard waste and recyclable glass out of the general rubbish so the town will avoid any potential penalties in the future. Please assure that glass is clean prior to recycling as there are no facilities for washing glass at the Recycling Transfer Facility.

Betty will be missed

It saddens all of us associated with the library to note the death of Betty Eaton. She was a Friend and a volunteer at the desk for 30 years and served as a trustee for almost two decades. Her dedication and service will be greatly missed.

Friends enter contest

The Friends of the Cohasset Library have made their first entry in the Massachusetts Library Association's annual publicity contest.

Their entry consists of the design and application of a new logo for the library and extensive newspaper publicity — both aimed at enhancing public recognition and regard for the library.

The logo, inspired by the 90-year-old weathervane on our library building, was applied to new bar-coded library cards, fund-raising stationery, and a book bag sold as a fund-raiser. Graphics design and weekly articles are volunteer efforts of the Friends' Board.

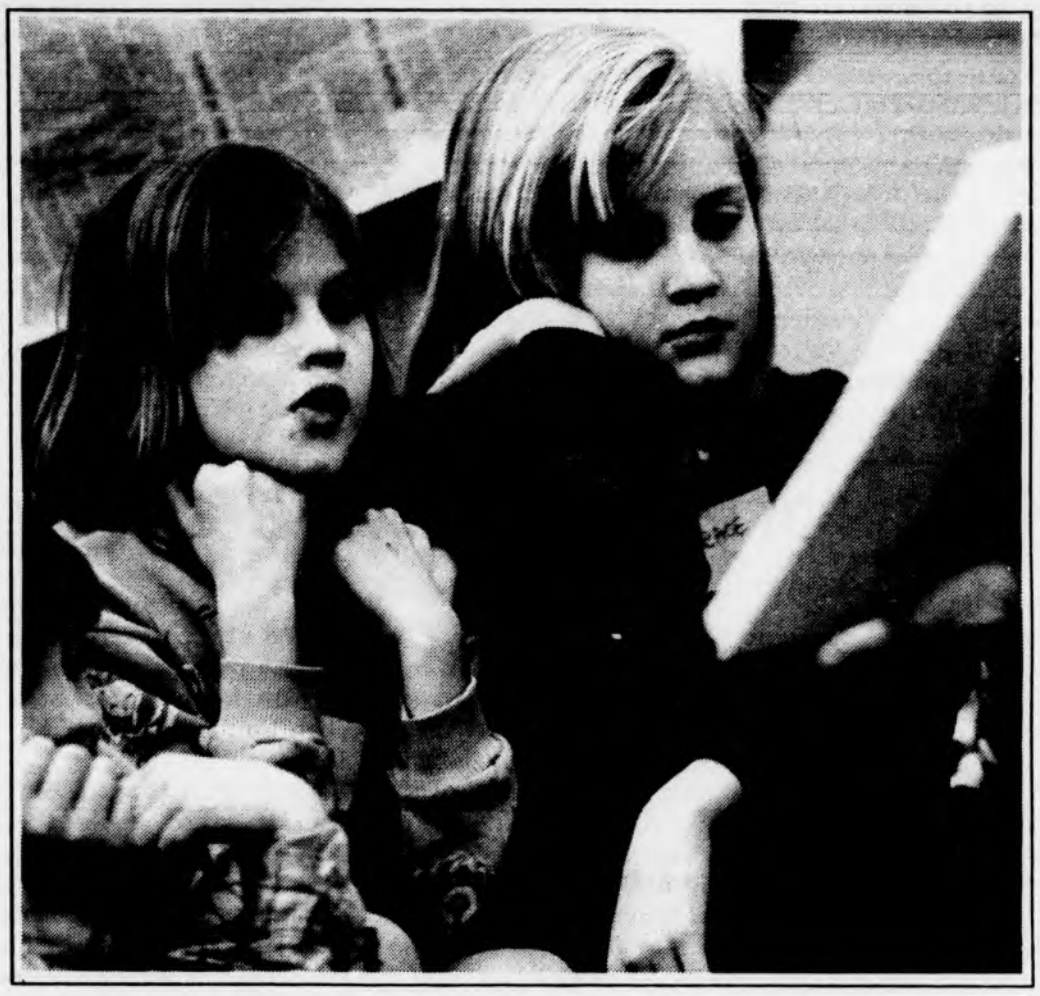
Results of the contest will be announced in May.

Library story hours

Registrations are currently being accepted for the spring series of preschool story hour at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. The series begins March 12 and lasts for six weeks. Sessions will be offered at 10 a.m. Thursdays and Fridays.

Thursday story hour is currently full but names will be taken for the waiting list. There are openings in the Friday session. Children must be at least 3 1/2 years old to participate.

To register, call the Children's Librarian at 383-1348.



Emma and Grace Gardner contemplate the possibilities during the recent clay mask workshop led by local artist Nancy Connolly in the children's room of the library. The popular event was made possible through a grant from the Cohasset Arts Council Lottery.

Burning quote fans flames on board

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Advisory Committee member Peter O'Connor would not comment after hearing that a selectman suggested he step down for making what some officials feel is an inappropriate comment in a meeting last week.

Fire Chief John Nadeau appeared before the advisory board Feb. 23 to lobby for a new pumper truck with a price tag of about $250,000.

After explaining why he feels the fire department needs a new pumper, Nadeau told the advisory committee it was "crazy" to commit firefighters inside a burning building without a water supply established.

O'Connor was quoted as saying in response:

"So Let it burn, the most expensive house in town is worth less than the engine's cost. I'm deadly serious."

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said Monday that O'Connor should resign.

"I couldn't believe that a person in town in the position he or she is in would come out with a statement like that 'let the house burn'," Laugelle said.

"..Many persons have commented on it. It's a terrible thing to say. I couldn't believe it. I would consider asking this person to resign."

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan, who attended the advisory committee meeting, agreed.

"I tend to agree with you. I was there. It's important to treat people with respect. This is one committee I've been to where not everyone on the committee treats people with respect," Sullivan said. He added the comment was "inappropriate and condescending."

"The way the fire chief was treated at that meeting was inappropriate and shouldn't continue," he said.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said the key is "respect."

"The point that is most important is respect," she said.

Goedecke went further and said that inappropriate comments had been made before.

"This is the first time this person was quoted. It's the first time he didn't get away with it. I hope he won't get away with it again."

Advisory committee extinguishes fire engine

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

At last Thursday's advisory committee meeting, in a majority decision the board voted against recommending the purchase of a new pumper.

Ken Ingber made the motion to "not recommend" the truck at town meeting and his motion passed 4-2.

Ann Whelan, Wayne Sawchuk and Deborah Cook also voted against the recommendation.

"The timing isn't right, right now," said Cook.

Sawchuk also wanted to make it clear that the town has more than three trucks in service, it was an additional pumper that was being sought.

"There are more fire engines than we have people to drive them," he said.

The fire department currently has two pumpers in service, a ladder truck which has no pumper capability, a pick-up truck, and an ambulance.

Taking issue with last week's mariner story, committee chair Nan Roth said that it "was not a fair view of the situation."

She wanted to point out that a fire regionalization plan for the area would take pressure off Cohasset's fire department in the case of an emergency.

But, according to Fire Chief John Nadeau, that type of thinking is exactly what he hoped would not happen.

"One of the assumptions that we made was that communities would continue to provide their own levels of fire protection. They wouldn't begin relying on the possibility of regionalization to reduce expenditures," he said.

"It's a classic case of almost abdicating their own responsibility by trying to put it on to regionalization," he continued.

The chief stressed that there are many decisions to be made before anything is implemented.

"Realistically, (regionalization is) probably two to three years away, if it were to happen," said Nadeau.

Voting for the pumper were both Michael Putziger and Roger Whitley.

And regarding the cost of a new engine Whitley said, "This is when we should be doing it."

Committee member Peter O'Connor was absent and therefore did not get to vote.

The group agreed that during town meeting they will let people know that the committee had differing opinions on this issue.

Register to vote

Registration for the Annual Town Meeting, March 27, and Annual Town Election, April 3, will be held at the Town Clerk's office Saturday, March 6 from 9 a.m to 10 p.m.

March 6 is the last date to register before the Annual Town Meeting.

Rabies clinic planned

The board of health will sponsor a rabies clinic Saturday, March 6 in the town hall auditorium.

Dogs will be vaccinated from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. and cats from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m.

All dogs should be on a leash and cats should be in a carrier.

The fee is $6 per animal.

For more information, please call the board of health office at 383-9900.

Land purchase option sails through AdCom

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

In an effort to finalize their budget recommendations for the town meetings later this month, the Advisory Committee held a special meeting last Thursday.

Among the issues discussed was the question of what to do with waterfront property adjacent to the town boat ramp on Parker Ave.

Planning Board Chairman Alfred Moore explained that the current owner wants to offer the property to the town at significantly less than the assessed value.

"After a lot of discussion we arrived at a price of $470,000," he said. "The bottom line is to acquire the property."

The planning board has, since that discussion, been trying to find ways to offset the cost to the town.

Reselling the house sometime in the future for $200,000 was one possibility mentioned by Moore.

Showing a large aerial view of the land, Moore said, "It's primarily the waterfront access that we're concerned with."

Committee members voiced their concern about other uses and the possibility of condominiums was brought up.

Moore said that if the town doesn't buy it, "who knows where it's going."

"This is why we should acquire it now while the acquiring is good," he added. "Thirty years from now if we have a sewage plant, you don't know what you could get over there...a lot of these things can come to haunt you."

Along the lines Moore admitted that there were probably different groups in town that would want the property used in one way or another.

"Those issues can be thrashed out down the road, once we have the parcel," said Moore. "In the immediate short-term, we assure the town access to its own boat launching ramp."

He explained that if "both abutting properties decided to fence out the public, it would be virtually impossible to launch a boat unless you possess the skills to back it all the way down Parker Avenue...the town only owns the strip right to the ramp."

After a little more discussion committee chair Nan Roth said "We all feel the town should do it."

Roger Whitley agreed.

"My feeling is...this is available, don't let it go," he said.

"The right use is the town use," committee member Michael Putziger added.

Advisory committee members voted unanimously to recommend purchasing the property.

Thanking the members for their time and support, Moore told them that a copy of the aerial photo would be available at town meeting for residents to see.

Other budget discussion that evening included:

• Clarifying the definition of 'abutter' in town documents.

Currently an abutter is measured in how land touches land. This article will allow water neighbors to be considered abutters if approved.

The situation is an important one for Cohasset because so much of its land is waterfront property.

The committee voted to recommend approval of the new wording.

• Following a discussion about full versus part-time positions in the town, Ken Ingber made two different motions to increase the hours of the fire department's secretary — both of which failed for lack of a second.

The committee then debated the positive and negative points of giving full-time benefits to part-time workers and eventually the group decided to leave the current situation alone.

• In a related decision, the advisory committee decided to suggest a 2% cost-of-living increase for non-union town employees.

The next advisory committee meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, March 16 at 8 p.m.

Burning season opens

The 1993 Open Burning Season in Cohasset has begun.

Permits are issued on a daily basis. Residents seeking a burning permit should call the Fire Department business line, 383-0616, on the day burning will be conducted.

The following information will be requested of you:

* Name (of responsible party supervising the fire)
* Address (where burning will be conducted)
* Type of materials to be burned.

Burning shall be conducted between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. and shall be conducted on land proximate to the place of generation.

Burning shall be conducted at a location greater than 75 feet from any building and

Burning of leaves, grass, hay, and stumps is prohibited.

Burning shall not cause a nuisance.

chairman, submitted the article through the planning board because that was the easiest and fastest route to get it on the warrant, Pfaffman explained.

He added that the committee believes the house on the property — which currently houses the showroom of Cohasset Colonials — could eventually be sold to offset some of the purchase price.

More than a year ago Hagerty sold Cohasset Colonials, a reproduction furniture kits manufacturer, which now rents the property from Hagerty.

The ad hoc committee has focused on acquiring the property first and is not involved in determining possible uses for the property.

However, Pfaffman said the acquisition would allow greater access to the harbor and the land could potentially be a recreational resource.

"It's going to make it possible for the people of the town to have greater access to the harbor and save the land from further pollution.

"It will keep the land in the town's hands one way or another for perpetuity," he said.

Other members of the ad hoc committee are: Veneta Roebuck of the Conservation Commission, Hamilton Tewksbury of the Government Island Study Committee, Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle, Roger Porter of the Cohasset Conservation Trust, Richard Barrow of the Recreation Commission, and Russ Bonetti, Parker Avenue resident.

around town

❑ This week we begin by saluting Maura Ann Corkery, the daughter of Bob and Claire Corkery of South Main Street. Maura recently joined the Peace Corps and is in Armenia, scheduled to be there for two years. Maura spent her first week in Washington D.C. for orientation, then flew to Yervan, Armenia.

Her first three months were spent studying their language. Her assignment is to teach the English language to Armenian children (they will probably be teaching each other, which will be great!).

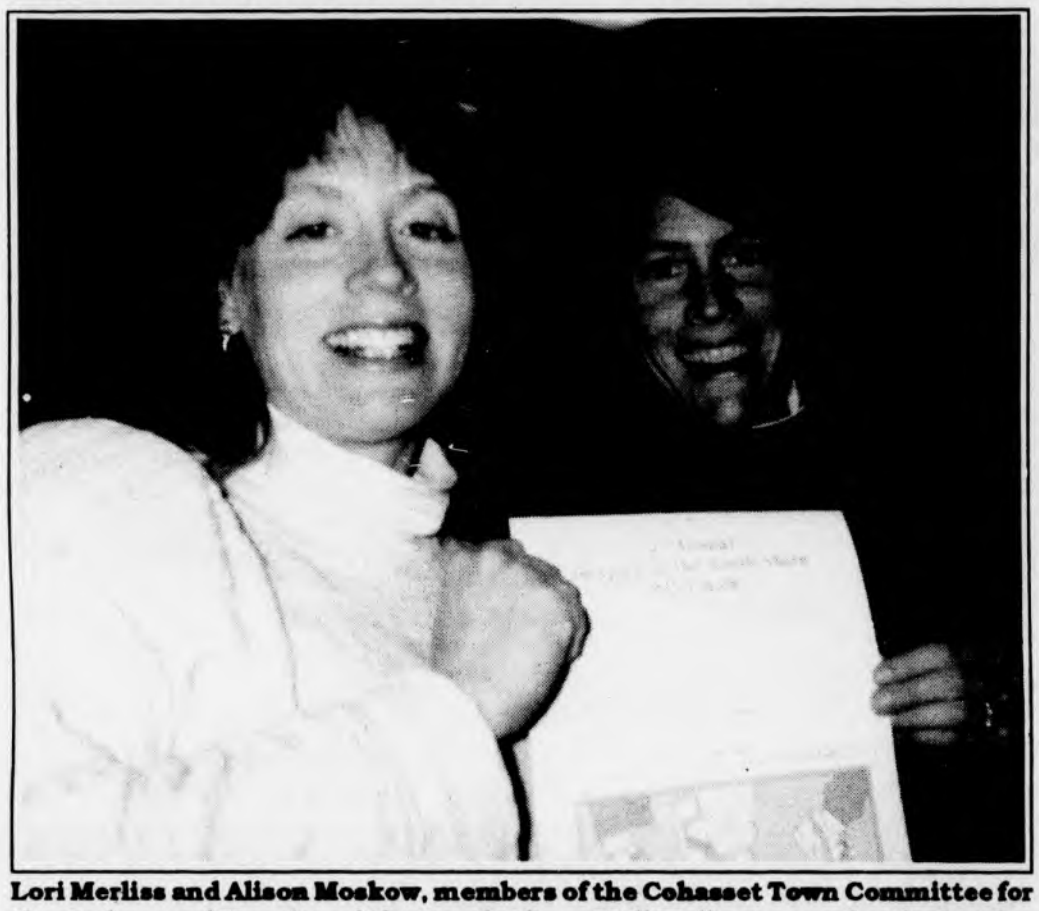
Congressman Joe Kennedy recently returned from a trip to Armenia, where he met and talked to Maura, then called her parents upon his return to the United States! He reported that she is doing extremely well...it must be an awfully hard thing to do, living in a foreign country where they have shortages of food, fuel, etc. That's dedication!

Maura is a graduate of Cohasset High School, Class of 1984, and received her BA from UMass Amherst. Hopefully she'll send us news and pictures. It would be great to keep up with her progress with the children!

❑ Jason R. Cameron, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce T. Cameron of Jerusalem Road, was named to the dean's list for the fall 1992 semester at St. Michael's College in Colchester, Vermont. Jason is a junior business administration major who is spending this semester in Switzerland studying, skiing and having a wonderful time. We'll give you a full report upon his return.

❑ Attorney Richard Campbell has been named a life member of the Fellows of the Massachusetts Bar Foundation. Campbell was presented with a plaque of recognition from the foundation president Charles B. Swartwood III at the recent Massachusetts Bar Association's mid-year meeting at the Westin Hotel at Copley Place in Boston. Fellows are members of the Massachusetts Bar Association who have demonstrated outstanding dedication to the welfare of the community and supported the mission of the association in promoting the reform of law and facilitating the administration of justice. The bar foundation is a charitable organization that finances legal research, makes loans and grants to law students, and helps support legal services for the poor.

Cohasset residents Peggy Corrigan and Angi Walsh have been spending a lot of time of the phone. They have not joined the telephone sales force or been hired by the telephone company. They are, in fact, rehearsing for Mark Dunn's two-act play, "Belles," presented by the Cohasset Dramatic Club. The play takes place during the course of one weekend and involves the lives — and telephones — of six sisters. Play performances are March 25-28. For ticket information, please call Dawn or Joe Rota at 545-3195.



Lori Merliss and Alison Moskow, members of the Cohasset Town Committee for the 2nd annual Hospice of the South Shore Mall Walk, gear up for the big day at a recent town captain meeting. The event is from 7 to 10 a.m., Saturday, March 6, at the Hanover Mall. For more information, please call Hospice of the South Shore at 843-0947-ext. 877.

❑ Lisa A. Cheney, a sophomore at Framingham State College majoring in psychology, made the dean's list for the fall 1992 semester. To earn selection for the dean's list a student must earn a quality point average of 3.25 or higher And Lisa did it!

Congratulations on working so hard and having it pay off. Keep up your great work!

If you know any of their whereabouts, please call Anna at 383-9539 or Katherine Gent at 843-0490.

❑ Alan and Janice Heilner of Jerusalem Road and their family of four spoke Sunday morning at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, in Hingham. Bishop Bill Thurston had invited them to speak on "The Atoning Sacrifice Of Our Lord Jesus Christ." Brooke and Stephan spoke first, then Dane, the youngest, sang "Let There Be Peace On Earth" accompanied on the piano by his eldest sister, Ashley. The sermon was further developed by parents, Janice and Alan.

The Heilners are newcomers to Cohasset, having moved here last summer from Connecticut. Alan, a life-long Morman, holds the priesthood and has served in many capacities in this lay church.

❑ Congratulations go to Lisa Thibeault, who was awarded an MBA in business administration and management from Boston University this winter.

Isn't it grand to be a graduate? Here's hoping the job market goes up for you so the search won't be too difficult, Lisa! Good luck in your quest.

❑ We also commend Richard G. Abbadessa of Old Coach Road who was selected for inclusion on the dean's list at the University of Massachusetts Lowell for the fall semester 1992. Richard is majoring in criminal justice. Maybe some day there will be two Abbadessas on the Cohasset police force!

❑ The outstanding academic achievements of undergraduates at Vanderbilt University were recognized recently with publication of the fall 1992 dean's lists for the College of Arts and Science, School of Engineering, Peabody College of Education and Human Development, and Blair School of Music.

Richard Lydon Campbell, school of engineering, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Campbell, earned high honors for the fall semester, and we applaud him for his efforts!

obituaries

Frederick Good Jr.

Frederick L. Good Jr., 79, of Cohasset, an insurance broker and a founder and past president of South Shore Music Circus, died Saturday, Feb. 20, at South Shore Hospital, South Weymouth.

He was a member of the Cohasset advisory committee and zoning board of appeals.

Mr. Good was a broker with Hollis Terran Insurance Co., Boston, for many years, and for five years with Mahoney and Wright Insurance Co. of Cohasset.

He was a member of the board of the United Way and a trustee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and a member of the Cohasset Yacht Club, Cohasset Golf Club and the Old Cohasset Hunt Club.

He was a Navy veteran of World War II.

Mr. Good was born in Cambridge and lived 50 years in Cohasset. He was a 1929 graduate of Buckingham, Browne and Nichols School, Cambridge.

He and his wife, Genevieve (O'Malley) Good, would have been married 50 years in March.

Mr. Good leaves two sons, Frederick L. Good III of Cambridge and Roger N. Good of New York City; two daughters, Gretchen Good LeTowt of Wellesley and Galen Good Call of Carmel, Calif.; and six grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Donations may be made to the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 106 S. Main St., Cohasset 02025 or Ducks Unlimited Foundation, one Waterfowl Way, Memphis, Tenn. 38120.

Catherine Howell

Catherine (Pumphrey) Howell, 82, of Cohasset, a licensed practical nurse at Children's Hospital and several nursing homes for 30 years, died March 1 in South Shore Hospital, South Weymouth, after a long illness.

Mrs. Howell retired in 1962.

Born in Canada, she lived in Squantum 26 years before moving to Cohasset seven years ago.

Wife of the late Joseph Howell, she leaves two sons, James Howell of Abington and Edward Howell of Encino, Calif.; a daughter, Katherine Zerrilli of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; a brother, Jeremiah Pumphrey of Newfoundland, Canada; two sisters, Margaret McCarthy of Quincy and Nora Finch of Ontario, Canada, and three grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated March 3 in Star of the Sea Church, Squantum. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery, West Quincy.

The Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston, handled the arrangements.

editorial

Tiger

We don't have any idea how old Tiger is. When he adopted us way back in 1985, the veterinarian estimated his age at that time to be about three.

He's a fixed Tom Cat. But having his reproductive abilities terminated — didn't affect his machismo one bit.

Tiger is an outside cat. He spends the nights roaming in the woods in our neighborhood and the days inside with us.

In his younger years, it wasn't unusual for Tiger to get into a scrap or two. He lost a piece of his right ear in one scuffle.

But next to his cat food — especially sliced beef in gravy, savory stew, or ground chicken — Tiger likes to sleep.

He's not fussy: anyone's bed or stomach will do.

Tiger would never hurt a human. He likes to cuddle and purr. I'll never forget one of the first days he spent with us, he scaled the rail-ladder up to the top bunk to get acquainted with one of my sons. Not familiar with his noisy purring, my son yelled, "Help, Mom! He's growling at me!"

Now we've grown accustomed to his ways. And as all cat lovers understand, it's Tiger who's allowed us to live with him for the past eight years.

But Tiger is now going to be a legal cat. Next week, all domestic cats in the Commonwealth must be vaccinated against rabies. Rabies is a dreaded disease that is rapidly making its way via the fox and raccoon population to Cohasset and other South Shore towns.

Cats like Tiger are at increased risk. Because they love the great outdoors, if they come in contact with an infected raccoon or fox, they might contract rabies.

Then there's the chance that cats can bring rabies into the house and that would pose a serious danger to their families.

Even though treatment for rabies has improved, it's no picnic. Timely administration of a series of vaccinations (that's shots) is the only way to prevent the disease which can be fatal.

Around the world 25,000 humans die of rabies every year. In the past decade 13 Americans have died of rabies infections.

The long-standing regulation that requires all dogs to be licensed and vaccinated has reduced the risk of transmission of rabies from dogs to people.

But vaccinating cats in Massachusetts has not been required.

Next week that all changes.

The Cohasset Board of Health is making is easy for us to get our cats and dogs vaccinated. For just $6 per animal, dogs will be immunized from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. and cats from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., Saturday, March 6 at Town Hall.

All dogs must be on a leash and cats in a carrier.

So mark you calendars.

Tiger and I will be there. How about you?

Candidate's Question of the Week

Each week, the Cohasset Mariner will ask candidates to respond to the Question of the Week. Each candidate is invited to submit a written reply to the weekly question.

Candidates must limit themselves to 200 typed words (or less), double-spaced. Please keep to the issue and be accurate. We remind the candidates that answers must be submitted by noon Tuesday for publication in that week's issue.

Answers can be dropped off at Colonial Pharmacy or Cohasset News in Cohasset Village; mailed to P.O. Box 71 Cohasset 02025; or 'FAXed' to the Mariner at 617-837-4843.

In addition to replies to the weekly question, a limited amount of space will be reserved for other campaign announcements and events scheduled by all candidates.

Just a reminder, the Mariner will not accept letters to the editor from candidates during the campaign. We also do not accept letters endorsing candidates. The Mariner will publish letters regarding campaign issues but all politically-oriented letters will be cut off two weeks before the election.

No candidates are endorsed by the Mariner Newspapers and no preferential treatment is offered any candidate seeking public office.

Candidates are encouraged to advertise their campaign in this newspaper. For more information about our advertising rates, please contact Judy McCaffery-Perry at 1-800-649-6661.

Last week's question was:

One way to expand the tax base in this town is to attract more business into our borders. Do you think Cohasset is a business friendly community? Why would businesses want to locate in this town?

Here's how the candidates answered.

Jane O. Goedecke,
selectman candidate

I think Cohasset has been guilty in the past of not being as helpful and inviting to business as we might have been. I don't believe this was so much a sin of commission as of omission or lack of understanding. Cohasset is primarily a residential community and we have not always appreciated the fact that the needs of residents can only be met when there are sufficient healthy businesses to provide services and increase the tax base.

Organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce and the Village Renaissance have helped all of us to appreciate more fully the interdependence that exists among all taxpayers in Cohasset. I do believe that the atmosphere is now a positive one and I think Bob Martin and the Chamber especially can take a lot of credit for that.

More work needs to be done to make our bylaws and regulations clear and consistent for all. In the next three years I will do my best to assist in that process.

Ellery H. Clark Jr.,
library trustee candidate

Yes, I think Cohasset is a business-friendly town. I believe we have enough and very good restaurants here now. But we need a good music store.

Music is very popular and appeals to all ages, perhaps most to teen-agers, but with junior and senior adults close behind. These are but some of the more popular: Classical, semi-Classical, Pops, Country/Western, Instrumental, Symphony, Rock, including Light Classical. Also sheet music, cassette tapes and various musical instruments. A music store would of course not be seasonal.

Another possibility which both Hingham and Scituate possess is a car wash. Ours well might have automatic and self-service bays. Our car wash should be brushless.

Next week's question for any of the candidates is:

How could the town pursue public-private partnerships with the business community that would be mutually beneficial and save the town money? Be specific about your department — the library, recreation department, schools, town hall and public safety, health, etc.

Ingber clarifies the debate over new fire pumper

To the Editor:

The lead article in the Feb. 25 Cohasset Mariner ("New Fire Engine's Cost") generally captured an Advisory Committee meeting accurately. However, an unfortunately provocative statement was incorrectly attributed to me. I positively do not agree with a fire fighting policy of "let houses burn."

I also recognize a relationship between spending and risk. It is generally true that a level of equipment that is adequate on almost all occasions may be inadequate on rare occasion. Fire Chief Nadeau is certainly correct to be circumspect in committing personnel inside a burning building to offensively fight a fire (and rescue victims) without adequate equipment supporting the firefighters. Further, the fact that our highly professional and articulate Fire Chief has forcefully advocated that the town ought to buy the new pumper will be a significant factor in the Advisory Committee's ultimate recommendation to Town Meeting.

In my view, however, the Advisory Committee has not yet taken a position on the proposed purchase — at least as of this writing — because we have not been persuaded that the third pumper is a good allocation of limited town resources this year.

A third pumper historically has been used very infrequently.

The town avails itself of (and provides) mutual aid, and I believe there may be other regional resources that the Fire Chief or the Board of Selectmen can creatively tap immediately, well in advance of a formal and comprehensive regionalization program that may be on the horizon.

There probably is a significant excess of equipment in the region, perhaps making a new equipment purchase inefficient and unwarranted. In addition, the purchase may be premature if made without the benefit of forthcoming recommendations from active study committees currently looking into these matters.

After assembling as much information as is reasonable, I expect the Advisory Committee to make a recommendation that appropriately balances physical and fiscal responsibility.

AFS host families are appreciated

To the Editor:

We want to commend some very special people in our community. AFS celebrates Host Family Recognition Week, March 1-8. This year in Cohasset the Waal family is hosting Gisley Lima from Brazil, a senior at Cohasset High School, and the Connolly family is hosting Vicky Amores from Ecuador, a visiting teacher who arrived in January and will be at Cohasset High School through June.

Like 3,000 other American families this year, the Waals and the Connollys opened their homes and their hearts to AFSers. In doing so, they have shared our country's values and culture while providing an unforgettable cultural experience for themselves, Gisley and Vicky.

AFS hosts are not paid. They give of themselves and their love to create lasting ties between themselves and the world. Students and teachers are carefully screened in their home countries and are insured. They come ready to fully participate in home, school and community life.

The Waals and the Connollys represent one of our most precious resources, and we recognize their contributions and appreciate all they have done as host families. We ask that you and the rest of Cohasset join AFS in commending them for their lasting contribution to world peace and the global family that is AFS. If more families around the world were to join the AFS family, perhaps we would be that much closer to international understanding. People need to think globally and act locally. Understanding begins one person at a time, and the Waal and Connolly families are contributing to that understanding right here in Cohasset.

McDonald for tax incentives

The Massachusetts State Senate has passed an economic development package that is aimed at jumpstarting the state's economy. The package provides significant incentives for business growth, increased exports, job creation, capital access for small- and medium-sized businesses, economic aid to high unemployment areas, capital investment in recycling equipment, and development of a strategic plan to improve and maximize the fishing industry.

According to State Senator Brian J. McDonald, (D-Weymouth), the plan that passed the senate increases the investment tax credit by 100 percent across the board for capital investment and triples from 1 percent to 3 percent the investment tax credit for new capital investment.

"The incentives provided for business in this package are geared to help reinvigorate the economy. There are now significant incentives for business to invest in capital improvements and greater incentives than ever for business to make capital investments that will result in the creation of new jobs," McDonald said.

McDonald noted that there are differences in the versions passed separately by the House and Senate and that those differences would be worked out in a conference committee between the two branches.

"This is an exciting package. It represents a real step forward; it's fair to business, the taxpayer and will have positive results in both the short and long term," McDonald said.

Report card on our kid's health: Can't we do better than C-minus?

If our children or grandchildren today got report cards on their overall health, safety, and fitness, they'd average only about a C-minus grade, according to the American Health Foundation. Their poor health is substantially attributed to poor diet, physical inactivity, alcohol and drug use, and injuries from auto accidents.

How sad that American children today are less physically fit, more disease-prone, and increasingly likely to die from murder, drugs, or AIDS than in the mid 1980s. Their cholesterol levels are on the rise, and obesity among American children is near epidemic proportions.

Mental health issues also are of concern, with an estimated 7.5 million young people suffering from mental disorders, many caused by substance abuse. Mental disorders in our youngsters account for more than $1.5 billion in treatment costs annually, yet less than one in five of afflicted children now receive appropriate treatment.

In Massachusetts, motor vehicle injuries to children are up dramatically primarily because seatbelt use among children is on the decline. According to the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau, motor vehicle injuries to children ages 6-15 increased 43 percent in 1992, and rose 8 percent among children age 5 and under. Injuries that involved bleeding or broken bones were up 97 percent among 5 to 15-year-olds.

Although there was some good news on the children's health front — dental health improved, and the number of youngsters who smoke is decreasing — the overall statistics make for a gloomy prognosis for the next generation.

While no single easy solution is available, certain measures can improve the health and safety of our children, nationally and locally. South Shore Hospital encourages parents to become better informed about and involved in fitness-related activities with their children. Children need more than a couple of gym classes a week to stay healthy into adulthood. Regular exercise must become a life-long habit, and parents can serve as important role models when it comes to fitness.

We believe that good nutrition can also improve the overall health of our youngsters. An estimated 15 million children and teens are at high risk of eventual heart disease. Poor dietary habits are associated with the development of serious health problems in later life, including heart disease, cancer, stroke and diabetes. Like their parents, children benefit from a diet high in fruits and vegetables and low in burgers and fries.

And parents must continually reinforce the dangers of alcohol and drug use. Few problems cause more anguish for families, and none account for more injuries and death.

We urge parents with children in their autos to take responsibility for ensuring that the kids ride safely by using child safety seats and safety belts. A sudden stop can throw a child violently and cause serious injury. Remember that the Massachusetts child passenger safety law requires that all children 12 years old and under be fastened in a safety belt or properly adjusted car seat when riding in a motor vehicle.

Please let's not take the health and safety of our children for granted. If they are to grow up to be healthy adults, we must work together and do all that we can to protect their health.

Scholarships offered

For the 20th consecutive year, officials and directors of the Pilgrim Skating Arena, Inc., 75 Recreation Park Drive in Hingham, will award scholarships to selected high school seniors in the South Shore communities.

This year 15, non-restricted scholarships of $1,500 each will be presented to seniors chosen on the basis of their applications to the Scholarship Committee of the Board of Directors of the Pilgrim Arena. Any graduating senior, intending to further his or her education beyond high school at any accredited institution, whether in scholastic, technical or artistic fields of endeavor is eligible to apply.

Applications are available starting Sunday, Feb. 14 in the Pro Shop of the Pilgrim Skating Arena, and must be filled out completely and returned no later than March 26. Each applicant must pick up and sign for the scholarship application in person. If you have any questions, please call the arena at 617-749-6660.

'Opera to Go' at Osgood

Students at the Joseph Osgood School will participate in an educational performing arts program, Opera to Go, presented by Young Audiences of Massachusetts, Wednesday, March 17.

Young Audiences is a non-profit organization which brings live professional dance, theater and music education programs to schools.

The Joseph Osgood School program is entitled "Introduction to Opera." Opera-to-Go introduces children to the different singing voices and demonstrates how an opera singer's voice can communicate emotions: joy, sorrow, rage, fear and exuberance. Without use of costumes or props, operatic drama creates images of a fearsome serpent, a magic potion, a temper tantrum, a frantic getaway, and a mysterious train ride. In this popular participatory program, children help improvise a short fairy-tale opera.

Programs are funded in part by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency. Interested parents, educators and arts program sponsors are invited to call Young Audiences at 577-0570 for information about this and other programs.

PSO phone-a-thon March 10

The PSO will hold its annual phone-a-thon fundraiser Wednesday, March 10, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and encourages the community to support this event by pledging a donation to help continue the many enrichment activities the PSO provides for students during the school year.

(Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

The phone-a-thon is the PSO's primary fundraiser. Proceeds received fund the Teacher Grant Program, one of the major projects supported by the PSO, and many ongoing PSO activities and special events.

The teacher grant donations are used by teachers for supplementary programs and materials and aids not covered by the school budget, including the artist of the month program, field trips, purchase of various library books and supplemental classroom enrichment materials.

All parents of Cohasset school children belong to the PSO. Dues are not charged to support the organization which relies heavily on member contributions. The PSO is hoping for 100 percent member participation. Anyone interested in a full mid-year report of the PSO activities should request one from their PSO rep. March 10.

PSO candidates needed

The Parent School Nominating Committee meets in early March to prepare its list of candidates for the 1993-94 executive board. Anyone interested in a board position or if you would like to make a recommendation, call Ruth Wilcox (383-1827) or Joan Kovach (383-6358).

This year there are openings for senior and junior high school representatives, fundraising, PSO activities, and others.

The list of nominees is mailed to the PSO membership in April and voted into office at the annual meeting April 28.

The Nominating Committee consists of three current members of the executive board and three members from outside the board with the PSO Vice President serving as chairman. Nominating Committee members are representative of all three schools. Members of the Nominating Committee include: Janet VanHartesvelt, Donna O'Donnell, Sue Mrikleham, Barbara Meehan and Kathy Walsh.

Spring dance slated

A parent-sponsored eighth-grade dance will be held at the Community Center March 19 from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

All eighth-graders have been given flyers for appropriate dress. To encourage the entire class to attend, students should refrain from wearing any formal apparel and corsages which pertain to asemi-formal affair. Refreshments will be served.

Please encourage your child to participate in either the decorating or refreshment committee.

Release day update

Thursday, Feb. 4, the staff of the Joseph Osgood School held their second week of parent conferences. Report cards were sent home recently and the children received a narrative report rather than letter grades. Conference time is important for home-school communication and for measuring progress in several academic and specialist areas.

At Deer Hill School, the staff attended a workshop given by the school's special education teachers, Polly Gallagher and Judy Ritts, on interpreting the Woodcock Johnson Test.

Teachers at the Jr./Sr. High School used this release day to continue their year-long exploration of innovative means of instruction and assessment. Portfolio assessment is one area that is being researched by several staff members.

Fiore battles to wrestling title

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Nate Fiore has had a hidden agenda all season long. The four mile workouts he put in that weren't necessarily required as a member of the Cohasset High School wrestling team. Extra time spent in the weight room. More distance work on the roads. One more repetition, make it two.

For Fiore, the senior whose name has become synonymous with wrestling at CHS, the extra work he put in became quite apparent last Saturday at Wayland High School as he battled his way to the Division 2 State Championship in the 140-pound weight class. With the title came the distinction of being the first Cohasset wrestler ever to capture a state championship.

"It's fantastic," said head coach Torin Sweeney. "He dedicated himself all year-round to it and thank God he did it."

It was no easy task for Fiore either. He had to out-duel the No. 2 seed, Luke Vanjillian Bergy of Wellesley through a double-overtime for the win.

Both wrestlers earned an escape in regulation to tie the score. Neither scored a point in the first overtime. Fiore won the coin toss and chose the down, defensive position, needing an escape within 30 seconds to win the championship. Fiore nearly got the escape in the first 15 seconds but was forced out of bounds. With seven seconds left he got out of Bergy's grip to score a 2-1 victory.

Sophomore Ryan Freeman (112 pounds) and senior Ray Jones (152 pounds) will join Fiore this Friday at the New England meet at Chelmsford High School.

Freeman made it to the finals and lost a close, 2-0 decision to the No. 1 seed from Triton. It was the first loss at 112 pounds for Freeman this season.

Jones lost 6-5 in the semifinals but rebounded well to take two matches and nail down third-place.

Steve Harrington (145 pounds) placed sixth, much to Sweeney's delight.

"You're talking about 80 teams in the state," he said. "If you place in the top six, you're one of the best in the state."

Fiore and Jones are no strangers to the New England meet and the pressure surrounding it. Jones finished second in his weight class last year, while Fiore took home sixth-place.

"As long as they fall into a good spot they could do well," Sweeney said. "I think both of them sit in a good position."

Despite the fact he has never wrestled in the New Englands, Sweeney doesn't foresee Freeman becoming intimidated by the stiff competition.

"The state meet didn't shake him so I don't expect this meet to."

Sweeney plans to concentrate on maintaining his wrestlers' condition this week. Running will be emphasized with some live wrestling thrown in to break up the boredom of road work. He said the three wrestlers will practice with those athletes from Division 2 Champion Carver and Whitman-Hanson, who also qualified for the New England meet.

Westwood next foe for red-hot Skippers

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

The team last qualified for the tournament in 1986, when it won the state championship. Last year the Skippers entered the open basketball tourney before bowing out quietly.

This season, however, the Cohasset High School has been anything but quiet in the Division 3 South Sectional tourney.

Seeded a modest 15th with an 11-9 record, the Skippers have run off three consecutive victories, eliminating Cathedral, second-seeded Tri County (47-31) and seventh-seeded Ashland (58-56). They play the 14th-seed, Westwood, tonight (7:45 p.m.) at Durfee High School.

"This has been the furthest we've been in a while," said head coach Ron Ford of his South Shore League squad. "They want to win the South Sectionals and believe they can do it and go on further."

Cohasset has been spearheaded by all-star Paul Bilodeau, who scored a career-high 38 points in the Skippers' 85-65 win over Cathedral in the opening round. Bilodeau, who averaged 19-plus points during the regular season but has been on a tear of late with a 26-point tourney average.

"He has really upped his game," said Ford.

Because of Bilodeau's asthma condition, Ford played him between 16 and 20-minutes per game during the regular season, while monitoring how he felt very closely. He increased his playing time to a maximum of 24 minutes.

The Westwood game could mark the first time in the tourney that the Skippers have been at full strength. Point-guard Doug Ellinger was on crutches against Cathedral, nursing a sprained ankle, but has been inserted into the lineup sparingly in the last two games. There is also a chance Chris Kondrat will dress for the Westwood game. Kondrat was having the best game of his season against Cathedral before being knocked unconscious and when he banged heads with another player chasing a loose ball. If Kondrat is able to play, he will add to breaking the Westwood press.

Ford, though, knows getting by Westwood will be no easy task. He sees them as a well-coached, scrappy team which is quick to take advantage of mistakes. Ford is happy with Cohasset's defense, Joe Slotnick and Dorian Bryant in particular, but is convinced the Skippers will have to "step up" their rebounding to win.

If Cohasset can win another, they'll be one game away from a South Sectional title. And who knows where the Skippers will go from there.

Boy do we know our hoops.

Last week we wrote about how high school basketball teams with .500 or less records should not be invited to the state tournament. We still believe that but please don't tell the Rockland girls' team.

All the Lady Bulldogs (9-12 record) did last Wednesday was upset highly regarded Hingham (14-6) 58-56 in overtime thanks to some out of this world three-point shooting.

For example with 18 seconds left in the game and Rockland trailing the Harborwomen 52-49, guard Kristen Cowing launched a three-pointer from the top of the key that just squeaked over the out-stretched arms of Hingham's all-star center Jessica Locke.

The ball banked into the hoop to tie the game at 52-52. In the three-minute overtime, Rockland put the game out of reach with another three-pointer to win 58-56. By the way, Cowing did not call the bank on the tying three.

Locke, who had a monster game for Hingham with 26 points could only shake her head at the end of the game thinking about Cowing's three-ball.

"I could not believe that shot," she said. "It was a lucky shot but she made it. You have to give her credit."

The two teams faced each other three times during the regular season and each time Hingham won by at least ten points.

I know it was only one game and one upset, but it sure was fun to watch. I felt like renting "Hoosiers" that night. Instead I rented, well that's another story for another time.

If you've been to enough basketball and hockey games, you really begin to appreciate the acoustics in a gym, compared to those in a skating rink. A reporter from the Methuen Journal, who was assigned to cover the Methuen/ Whitman-Hanson Division 2 South Sectional game, Saturday, had a pained look on his face nearly every time the rink announcer at the Watertown Skating Arena spoke over the public address microphone.

"Half these announcers sound like Charlie Brown's school teacher," he said.

I wish I had said that.

It would be interesting to find out how many hours of work went down the tubes for the Whitman-Hanson hockey cheerleaders when an employee at the Watertown Skating Arena told them they wouldn't be able to hang the colorful posters they had made for the big event on the wall. The red and black streamers they brought along were also taboo. The employee did have a point. A poster with the words "Geever Fever" etched across it surely would have distracted the Methuen players enough for the Panthers to pull out a victory.

• • •

And to that one Methuen fan who yelled incessantly during the game: Take an anatomy course before you attend your next hockey game fella. The referee's head was no where near where you said it was.

Double wins are as good as gold for Protulis

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Kara Protulis' double gold medal figure skating performance in the Level 7 Division at the Bay State Games was not just an indication of her talent and ability to come through under pressure. They represented so much more for the 17-year-old Cohasset High School student.

The wins proved Protulis has taken a giant step in finally working her way back from a year's worth of frustration and injury.

Protulis sustained torn ligaments and a bruised bone in her ankle practicing a balance beam dismount last year during a CHS gymnastics workout. The injuries, in and of itself, was serious enough, but Protulis also has a condition known as Juvenile Rheumatoid Arthritis. JRA added to her problems because it slows down the healing process of an injury. Protulis had no choice but to completely rest the ankle until it was strong enough to begin rehabilitation.

It was not an easy task for a girl who has won seven gold and one silver medal in eight Bay State Games appearances. Figure skating is in her blood. She has been seriously involved in the sport since the age of 10.

"It was really hard because I've always been into sports," Protulis said. "I just sat home and did nothing."

Protulis eventually began an intense therapy program which lasted four months. The therapy included shock treatment through the ankle, ultrasound and time in the sauna.

As the therapy increased, her ankle began to feel much better and Protulis' spirits started to brighten as a pre-summer return to the rink appeared imminent. But her optimism was short-lived as the ankle began to flare up once again.

"It was almost like I could start doing everything again," Protulis said. "But I tried and it only made it worse. It (therapy) worked in the beginning but after a while it didn't really work."

The doctor's news was not good. Protulis was to take the summer off and most of the fall. Beginning in November she was given the go-ahead to slowly start working out again. Protulis, though, admits she came back faster than she should have. She felt she had a to show herself the competitive fire still burned.

"I wanted to go back and do as much as I could do to prove I still could do it," she said.

This time the comeback was a success. Protulis has been taking different medications to offset the arthritis and her ankle has been no problem since.

Protulis admits she did have thoughts of quitting figure skating, fleeting as they were.

"At different times I did feel I wasn't going to come back," she said. "It was hard. My dream, though, has been to go as far as I can with skating and I still want to do that."

Marcia Breen Russo, who has coached Protulis for eight years, said she is an easy student to work with and has a burning desire to improve on the ice.

"She's wonderful," Russo said. "Kara's very well disciplined and is very excited on the ice. The motivation is there. As long as she is healthy she works up to her capacity."

Protulis started gymnastics at an earlier age than figure skating but stopped for several years to concentrate solely on the skating. She decided to start gymnastics again last year, but it still takes a backseat to the goals she has set on the ice.

At Williams College, where this year's Bay State Games were held, Protulis performed her winning free-style routine to music from the old "Beauty and the Beast," not the popular Walt Disney version. The three-minute show had a series of required moves which included a double-toe loop, jumps to the left and right, a flying camel and a variety of spins.

Protulis' choreographed her 90-second artistic routine to the music from "Phantom of the Opera." She concentrated on her strongest moves, spins and spiral sequences, during the performance.

It was Protulis' dancing ability that Russo first noticed when she began coaching her.

"If I asked her to move her pinky a certain way she would do it," Russo said. She knows her music. Kara is a good dancer and people love to watch her perform."

Looking back, Protulis admits she was a trifle bit surprised at her gold medal sweep.

"In my artistic," she said, "I thought I had done really well. In my freestyle, I didn't think I did my best. Just OK. It (gold medal) gave me a lot of confidence."

Protulis is currently building her way back to the point where she can skate five or six days a week.

"I really haven't come back to full practice time yet."

Protulis plans to take the Ice Skating Institute of America test (ISIA) as soon as possible to move up from Level 7. She has two levels to go in the United States Figure Skating Association (USFSA) testing. When she reaches the top levels, Protulis will be able to continue skating in the upper brackets or can choose to teach if she desires.

As for the Olympics? Protulis is realistic about her chances of ever making the Winter team.

"I've lost a lot of time being injured," she said, "so I'm not thinking of that. I'm just thinking of doing the best I can."

That, after all, is all that can be asked from anyone.

Plymouth County Sharks chill the Lowell Chiefs

The Plymouth County Metro Mite Sharks team keep rolling along as they defeated the Lowell Chiefs 13-0 to complete a season series sweep (4-0) and moved into a three-way tie for first place.

The Sharks continued to move the puck around all day long as their passing game has excelled in the past month.

Sharks' netminder John Lynch recorded his fourth shutout of the season in this contest played at Tulley Forum at the University of Lowell.

Pat Devine from David Saggese started the scoring for Plymouth County. Rick Tennison from Greg Osborne tallied next for the Sharks. Devine from Scottie McGinn and Brian Boyle finished the first period with the Sharks up 3-0.

Plymouth County tallied four more times in the second period. Bobby Noonan from Brian Lewis at 10:39. Devine recorded his hat trick on a nifty pass from Boyle. Lewis from Scott McGinn and Christopher Coady. The period ended when Boyle scored his first of a natural three straight goals, "Hat Trick," as he drilled a 20-foot slap shot between the legs of a bewildered Lowell goaltender.

Boyle from Saggese and Boyle unassisted opened the third period for the Sharks. Brendan Byrne on a beautiful pass from Kenny Roche and Scottie Sparks. Tennyson from Garrett Daigle and Ryan Hatch. Lewis from McGinn and Gregory Osborne on a solo rush closed out the scoring for the Sharks.

The Sharks face a major test next weekend as they face-off against the St. Moritz Devils and Minuteman Flames in two tough games.

A Canton girls' basketball fan at last Friday night's Division 2 game tried using, what he thought, was clever psychology when the Panthers drew close to the Bulldogs' hoop. The man would yell "three seconds" at the top of his lungs, believing he could trick W-H into thinking the time on the 30-second shot clock was nearly exhausted. Trouble was, with both teams using the fast-break offense that got them into the tourney in the first place, it only took about seven seconds to get the ball down court. Sorry Charlie.

Cohasset roadrace set for April

Plans are well underway for the Seventeenth Annual Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea. The race will take place Sunday, April 4 at 1 p.m. preceded by a 10k Walk at 10 a.m. The event which is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Cohasset is under the direction of Roy Fitzsimmons and Peter Logan. Proceeds from the event help fund the many in-town causes that Rotary supports.

The entry fee is $10. Each entrant receives a shirt with the race logo and free refreshments. Registration is limited to the first 800 and ends March 30. Prizes are donated by many of the local restaurants and businesses. The race has been rated most scenic by the New England Runner Magazine and always draws runners from throughout New England and other states.

Applications are available at Curtis Liquors, Good Sport or by sending a self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 36, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Daffodils burst forth

Volunteers helping the South Shore to greet spring with a flood of golden daffodils for the benefit of the fight against cancer are busy taking advance orders for Daffodil Days, March 23-24, expecting to top last year's record of more than 140,000 blooms.

This year Daffodil Days chairmen Pauline and Dennis Sweeney have added the convenience of local pick-up sites in eight communities where orders for less than five bouquets can be picked up March 24.

Daffodil Days is the popular fund-raiser for the American Cancer Society which raised over $57,000 on the South Shore to help support an extensive program of research, public and professional education and patient services in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth.

Orders for the daffodils, at $5 a bouquet of 10, may be placed by calling Pauline at 773-8226 or Marcia at 341-4210 and indicating your choice of pick-up site.

The flowers are grown on the West Coast, flown here in bud form and delivered March 23-24. Overnight in water, the buds burst into bloom and last for several days.

Local pickup is March 24 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Cohasset Community Center, 3 North Main St., 383-9112.

Allison Moskow and Lori Merliss, both of Cohasset, recently volunteered to serve as Cohasset town co-captains for the second annual Hospice of the South Shore Mall Walk.

The event is Saturday, March 6 from 7 to 10 a.m. at Hanover Mall (Route 53) Hanover. All proceeds will directly benefit Hospice of the South Shore, a non-profit program of South Shore Visiting Nurse & Health Services.

Participants will walk sponsored laps inside Hanover Mall. The first 300 registered walkers will receive a free T-shirt, and every walker will be registered for a drawing of prizes, donated by local businesses.

Hospice of the South Shore is a non-profit provider of health care and support services to the terminally ill patients and their families in 15 South Shore towns from Milton to Hanover. Last year Hospice of the South Shore provided service to 350 families in their homes. For more information about the Hospice of the South Shore Mall Walk, call 843-0947 extension 877.

Scouts host tea

Sunday, March 21, from 2 to 4 p.m., the Cohasset High School cafeteria will be a swirl with spring hats and white gloves as the Cohasset Girl Scouts welcome their mothers to a Formal Tea.

Besides serving tea cakes, tea and crumpets, each troop will entertain the assembled with songs, skits or poems.

Let's go bowling

The Community Center guarantees a night of fun and laughs for all adults willing to take the challenge. The Center's four lane bowling alley, with an adjacent function room, is available for adults to have a bowling party with friends, family or co-workers. A Friday or Saturday evening may be reserved. The cost is only $1.25 per person per string to bowl.

Please call 383-0088 for reservations.

Recreation signups set

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting telephone registrations at 383-6791 for the following programs:

- Power Step, a new high-energy step workout program taught by Normandie Nigh. Call for prices and times.
- 'The Body You Deserve', personalized weight-management program conducted in four, two-hour sessions, instructed by Normandie Nigh. Four-week course starts March 24. Cost is $140.
- Theater trip planned. The recreation department is sponsoring a trip March 30 to the Wang Center for the opening performance of 'Camelot.' Cost for coach and seats $58 per person.
- Furniture restoration. Call to sign up for a furniture restoration and refinishing class, taught by Kenneth Sargent. Course starts March 20. Four-week, ten-hour program is $55 per person. Call for details.

Theater on cable

Thursday, March 4, host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person are Boston Globe Theatre Critic Bruce McCabe, South Shore Music Circus Executive Director Vincent G. Longo, Quincy Dinner Theatre Producer George Stevens, and the star of its March play, "Not Now Darling," Molly Hochkeppel.

Topics include the entertainment industry today, trends in the music industry, live theatre and movie ratings.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m. on Channel 53 in Hingham and on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

Cooking, table etiquette

Children ages seven, eight and nine will be able to participate in a new cooking and table etiquette class being offered at the Community Center beginning March 4.

This five-week class meets Thursday afternoons from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

For further information, please call the center at 383-0088.

Knoll hat day held

Jan. 15 was "Hat Day" and the residents and staff of Cohasset Knoll celebrated the event with a "Mad Hatter" Party.

Everyone was asked to wear a hat. Something from [illegible] closet or, if they felt creative, they were invited to design a hat.

Staff members paired off with residents and paraded through the lobby and living room of the Knoll to music(A Pretty Girl is Like a Melody and You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby) provided by volunteer, Helen Watson.

Prizes were presented to the best staff/resident team.

First prize, Leilani Campbell and resident Joe Cabral who donned his and her Safari hats with jungle animals(monkey and tiger) over their shoulders.

Second prize went to Director of Nursing, Sheila Compagna and resident Tom Shea. Sheila constructed a hat resembling Shea Stadium and decorated it with baseball cards and baseball. Tom wore a baseball cap with his name and #1 printed on the visor.

Third prize went to Rehab Aide, Joan Stiles and resident Betty Mahoney, who appropriately donned the Mad Hatter hat from Alice in Wonderland and a matching beannie.

Most original prize went to Dietary Aide, Brenda Andrade and resident Violet Kelly. Brenda designed a Styrofoam serving tray, complete with plates, plastic utensils, napkins, cup and milk carton. Violet wore the "lunch of the day" plate, created by Lee Higgins. A fish, made of construction paper and garnished with real parsley and celery.

After the parade and judging, refreshments were served by volunteers, Jane Tilden and Dorothy Roberts.

DAR Valentine tea held

The February meeting of the Old Colony chapter of the DAR was held in Cohasset together with members of the Colonel Thomas Lothrop chapter, Wednesday, Feb. 10. The meeting, in the form of a Valentine Tea, was held at the home of Mrs. Edward Dillon of Jerusalem Road.

The program was supplied by individual members and consisted of the sharing and description of valued articles by the owners. Many of these articles were inherited and were of sentimental or historical value.

The exhibit ranged from a timely collection of old Valentine cards and George Washington postcards to jewelry pieces inherited from grandmothers, one being a Lavaliere. Other interesting memorabilia included an old ivory calling card case still holding a few yellowed cards, a hatpin stand, a collection of Tobey mugs of diminishing sizes, and some "sliced" puzzles, a precursor of zigsaw puzzles.

One member was inspired to make and displayed an acrylic painting of Boston Light following a boat trip to Little Brewster by the Old Colony chapter.

The next meeting of the Old Colony Chapter, which will honor the Good Citizens from four towns, will be held March 10 at the Hingham Public Library.

Richard Walsh and Joe Buckley, counselors, are available on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. Call for an appointment at 383-9112.

Bring a copy of your 1991 Federal and State Tax returns, plus W-2's — 1099's, Social Security forms SSA-1099, Tax Forms and any other pertinent tax information for 1992. If you are unable to come to the Council office, Betty Van Slyck will be glad to come to your home. Call her at 740-1534.

SHINE NEWS

You may have noticed an announcement recently in newspapers that some prescription drugs are available to certain people free of charge. the pharmaceutical manufacturers have pharmaceutical assistance programs, each manufacturer with its own program and guidelines for eligibility. Most require that the individual have limited means (verified by a physician) and that the individual has no access to prescription drug coverage (i.e. through insurance). The guidelines are restrictive, but if an individual needs a prescription and cannot afford to pay for it, these programs may provide some assistance.

If you want more information, please call to speak with a SHINE counselor at 383-9116.

Vol. XV, No.22 | Thursday, March 11, 1993 | 1-800-649-6661 | 50 cents

Theme park developer to appear Monday

Selectmen aren't sure what impact a theme park in neighboring Hull will have on Cohasset.

But they will get a chance to hear from a major proponent of the proposed $31 million park Monday — the developer.

Selectmen have invited representatives from General Investment and Development Company (GID) to talk about plans for the park.

The developer is on the selectmen's agenda for 7:45 p.m. March 15 at town hall.

Hull voters determine the fate of the project, which requires a zoning change, at their April 12 town meeting.

Last week, Cohasset selectmen said they would like to know more about the project which prompted Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon to arrange for GID officials to meet with the board.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said those opposed to the theme park are welcome to attend the meeting which would be strictly "informational."

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said he would contact the task force recently formed in Hingham to see what they've surfaced.

Walter Schroeder, 715 Jerusalem Rd., said since he spoke out at the selectmen's meeting last week, he had discovered three Hull groups who are opposed to the theme park. Schroeder also said he was concerned that crime in Cohasset may increase if the park is built.

"I encourage all to come out and voice their opinions," he said.

Schroeder isn't the only Cohasset resident to come forward publicly with concerns about the proposed park. Ilene Colwill, 155 Hull St., sent a letter to selectmen which appears on page 10.

Schools propose $6M budget

By Chris Kukk
Mariner correspondent

In the high school cafeteria, where the words "Your mind is a creative and priceless gift" are painted on the wall, the school committee recently unveiled its proposed budget of $5,972,747 for fiscal year 1994 that will be presented for approval at the next town meeting.

The proposed budget is a 2.9% increase compared to this year's funding.

Of the $169,698 increase, a large portion is due to contractual obligations already made by the schools in the preceding years. Total contractual obligations amount to $90,000 in which most of that sum consists of monetary "step" increases already agreed to for

Cohasset's Judy Volungis has high hopes for Hingham

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

The Hingham Community Center will soon become known for more than its annual Cabaret.

Judith P. Volungis of Cohasset became the center's new director of development Feb. 1 and she already has some 15 new programs and fundraisers underway.

Classes in art, ballroom dance, calligraphy, yoga and cooking for preschoolers are among the center's new offerings.

"We are trying to have something for everyone — because everyone should be coming through here," Volungis said.

However, 15 is a fraction of the number of programs she hopes the center will offer when she is up to speed.

"My goal is to make this the busiest place in town," she said.

If past performance is any indicator of future success, Volungis is a shoe-in.

The energetic mother of two held a similar position with the Cohasset Community Center for eight years. She left in April of 1992 to organize Republican Dan Daly's congressional campaign.

At the time of her departure, the Cohasset Community Center offered 100 programs.

Volungis is quick to note her programming goals for the Hingham Community Center are even more ambitious because Hingham is larger.

"The Cohasset Community Center is the center of everything in Cohasset - and this will be too. That's my high hope," she said.

During Volungis' tenure, the profit the Cohasset Community Center realized from its burgeoning program base increased ten-fold.

Volungis declined to reveal the exact profit margin the programs provided, but said the Cohasset Community Center's budget was in the hundreds of thousands of dollars when she left.

Vets wrangle over end of WWII

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

World War II hostilities officially ended on V-J Day, Sept. 2, 1945 when the Japanese signed surrender terms aboard the battleship "Missouri."

But the Veterans Administration recognizes those who served between Pearl Harbor Day, Dec. 7, 1941 and Dec. 31, 1946 as eligible for WWII veterans' benefits.

After 46 years, the year-and-four-months between the two "ending" dates is causing sparks among some of the town's veterans.

Selectmen tried to subdue the battle by directing Austin L. Ahearn, who is spearheading the construction of a veterans' memorial in Cohasset Harbor, to include the names of those who served in the "occupational forces" following V-J Day in the honor roll.

The problem has been exacerbated because Cohasset Historical Military Memorial Inc., of which Ahearn is president, originally planned to include only WWII veterans who served before V-J Day when the search for veterans' names began.

Fifteen granite panels containing 145 WWII veterans' names are carved and ready for placement and there is no room left on those panels for the dozen or so names of veterans who were part of the occupational forces following V-J Day, Ahearn said.

Although he said it would be possible to order another granite panel with the names of occupational forces if the veterans involved would help with the fund-raising and name search — Ahearn was not enthusiastic about the idea.

"A lot of fellows had a tough time in the occupational forces, but they didn't hear a gun go off in anger. That's the difference," he said.

Veteran's Agent Noel Ripley said a number of post V-J Day veterans have told him they would like their

Shoplifter is sentenced

Officer John Conte arrested William Doherty, March 5, in Cohasset Village. Doherty had fled on foot from Stop & Shop after stealing three cartons of cigarettes, Sgt. Robert Jackson said. Stop & Shop security alerted police about the shoplifting incident.

Doherty, who lives in Roslindale, was arraigned Tuesday and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction. The sentence was suspended for one year, Jackson said.

Cemetery request okay'ed

Selectmen approved Tree, Park & Cemetery Supt. Peter G. Laugelle's request to ask Norfolk County Engineers for planning assistance with expansion of the Beechwood Cemetery.

"The work will be done mainly by the Tree & Park Departments," Laugelle said. He explained that the project which has three phases would be accomplished "piecemeal" and that obtaining the Norfolk engineers' services would save the town money.

He explained that the cemetery expansion costs would be paid for "out of the money the department gets for digging graves" and not from taxation.

The three-phase expansion when complete will add about 600 graves.

Laugelle said he plans to file a notice of intent with the conservation commission.

Monorail is the answer

As the Old Colony Railroad Citizens Advisory Committee — which includes three Cohasset residents — tries to come up with a recommendation whether or not — and how — surface rail should return to the South Shore, a Scituate resident wants to scrap the idea in favor of a monorail.

This week selectmen heard from Gilman B. Wilder of North Scituate a proponent of monorail service for more than 30 years.

In his letter, Wilder says the right of ways along the Old Colony train route and the electric line could be used. Wilder's map shows the monorail starting from South Station going across Marina Bay and Boston Harbor to Peddocks Island then to Hull, Cohasset and Scituate.

"In addition to being faster and safer than surface transportation, monorail is cleaner and quieter because it is powered by compressed natural gas engines. Natural gas is an important consideration because there is a vast domestic supply and it would free us from dependence on oil," Wilder wrote.

He found at least one receptive hear on the Cohasset selectmen.

Selectman Merle S. Brown said he likes the idea.

"I think we should go back and look at monorail," he said.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Philip Murphy, CRS, GRI

A FAMILY DECISION

QUESTION: In your opinion, how much of the home-buying decision should be a family process?

ANSWER: It's desirable that house-hunting be done by husband and wife wherever possible. However, in the case where a move over a considerable distance is involved, the best arrangement is for either the husband or the wife to look separately and then for both to get together to make the final decision-making inspection.

It's not a good idea to involve very young children in the initial house visits. It generally works out that children are happy with a house that makes their parents happy.

Good luck on your move!

cohasset's week

Payment authorized

Selectmen approved the following professional statements:

• $3,593 to Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson for legal servies rendered in connection with the general affairs of the town of Cohasset for the month of February.

• $2,980 to Civil Designs Inc., consulting engineers, for beach and highway repairs at various sites in town for the month of February.

• $29,922.58 to J.B. D'Allesandro Corp. for work on replacing the Doane St. culvert from Feb. 1 - 25.

• $2,744 to Tibbetts Engineering Corp. for engineering services at the Doane St. culvert. Selectmen also authorized Tibbetts to complete the last days of field service at the site which will cost $1,823.

• $43,704 to AGM Marine Contractors for dredging in Cohasset Cove to Feb. 15.

Cable-TV trivia

As of Dec. 31, 1992, Cohasset had 2,070 homes with cable television service out of a total of 2,976 homes, according to a letter to selectmen from Joseph F. Hayes, general manager at Continental Cablevision.

Continental Cablevision also serves Hingham, Hull, Scituate, Norwell, and Hanover and provides 22,284 homes with cable-TV service in the six-town region.

Continental paid $1,035 in 1992 Municipal Franchise Fees to Cohasset.

Forty hours of original programming are produced each week on Continental Cablevision community channels 3, 52 and 53.

Ambulance update

In Fire Chief John Nadeau's February 1993 ambulance billing report, he said there were 28 billed calls for a total commitment of $5,555.

Receipts deposited with the town treasurer amounted to $5,209.06.

Since July, $60,815.93 in receipts for ambulance billing have been deposited with the treasurer.

Appointments made

George L. Marlette, interim town moderator, announced the names of those residents who have been appointed to serve as tellers for the upcoming Town Meeting to be held March 27, at 10 a.m.:

Louise Flint, Raymond Buckley, Arthur Lehr and Connie Jones.

The Rev. Clifford Cutler, Rector, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, will deliver the invocation.

Marlette has asked that all boards and committees that wish to report at Town Meeting contact him well in advance of the meeting so that he may assist in formating presentations to conform with Town Meeting guidelines, and to ensure that the business of the meeting will be transacted promptly with limited speeches. Marlette can be reached at 383-6809 or at (508) 586-2123.

Volungis has high hopes . . .

While Volungis also declined to state the exact dollar amount of the Hingham Community Center budget, she said it represents a challenge.

"It has great growth potential," she said.

Much of that growth will come from the new classes the center will offer.

Among them are classes on learning the financial markets- which is geared towards women; planning for nursing home eventualities; and running a business.

She said she is also expanding existing programs — like the bowling league.

"We are starting bowling leagues for kids after school. It's a 10-week course," she said.

The Women's Club was the only consistent group of bowlers who used the community center in the past.

The bowling league is for first- through sixth-graders. Participation in the 10-week league costs $30.

"We try to keep everything reasonably priced, so everyone can participate."

Volungis said her work experience in Cohasset helps her choose successful programs in Hingham.

"My background is in finding out what people want and then giving it to them."

Volungis said another big draw for the community center is the building that houses it.

"It is a great historical building and one of my main objectives is to keep it in good repair," the ebullient Volungis said.

The building was constructed in 1695 for Ensign John Thaxter. It became the Wompatuck Men's Club in 1897 and after several changes in ownership became the town's community center in 1957.

The first fundraiser Volungis has planned will mask the American roots of the building.

"On the April 24, the community center will be transformed into a spring evening in Paris," she said.

"There will be crepes "to-order," and a good sampling of french food."

Former Hinghamite David Shorey will be the DJ for the evening.

Tickets are $50 a couple, and can be purchased by calling the community center at 749-9786.

Cohasset's Judy Volungis has high hopes by adding dozens of new programs of making the Hingham Community Center "the center" of Hingham.

Schools propose $6M budget . . .

teachers, school officials said.

The other increases encompass special education costs, new textbooks, hiring an adjustment counselor and a math and writing lab aide.

However Supt. Stephen Hart made clear that the budget hike does not include negotiated salary increases.

"The increase of 2.9% over this year's operating budget does not include any negotiated salary increases for any major bargaining units in the school department...it is exclusive of salary increases."

Because the collective bargaining process is still in progress and will not be finished until some time in the near future, Hart stated that "there will be, at some point, an additional request for funding" when an agreement is reached between the negotiating parties.

Hart provided a projected estimate of how much the additional increase could be by stating that "if salaries were to increase by 4%, it would add another 2.8% to the new budget" (the figures were calculated based on the fact that salaries make up approximately 70-80% of the total budget). In other words, the total increase could possibly amount to 5.7% when everything is said and done.

However, in order to add such an increase to the budget, Hart explained that a special town meeting must be convened to vote on its approval or disapproval.

Also, as a number of the committee members explained, the proposed budget, which was endorsed in its entirety by the Advisory Board, was constructed without relying on any increased funding from the state and without, at this point, requiring an override from the town.

As member Ralph Kidder said, "Even if we receive money from educational reform [at the state level] it is less than 1% of the total budget." Supt. Hart added that the present and proposed budgets place Cohasset's per pupil cost at the state average (approximately $5,000).

When a concerned member of the audience asked, "What are we doing that is new in education?" some of the committee members discussed a current technology study being completed. The study, when finished, will explain what new technologies should be and can be implemented into the school system. Hart said that many of the technologies being examined will require additional funding in the future, but at the current time "we essentially have a maintenance budget."

Also in response to the same question, Vice Chairman Nancy Sandell added that "We need to ask the community where they want to go with education."

Interested citizens can examine a copy of the proposed budget at the town library or Supt. Hart's office.

Blood drive March 15 names included on the WWII honor roll. He noted that people serving between Pearl Harbor Day and Dec. 31, 1946 are entitled to a WWII Victory Medal.

Selectmen accepted the overall design of the veterans memorial more than a year ago. Although the memorial will be on town land, monies for the project are being raised through private donations.

The planned memorial will eventually extend the present honor roll at Veteran's Memorial Park to include Cohasset participants in all the nation's wars from the Revolution to Desert Storm.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said an additional WWII panel would also be a good idea in case it is discovered later that other veterans' names have been inadvertently left off the honor roll.

Spring dance slated

A parent-sponsored eighth-grade dance will be held at the Community Center March 19 from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

All eighth-graders have been given flyers for appropriate dress. To encourage the entire class to attend, students should refrain from wearing any formal apparel and corsages which pertain to asemi-formal affair. Refreshments will be served.

Please encourage your child to participate in either the decorating or refreshment committee.

Outstanding effort noted

The seventh grade team is pleased to recognize the following students for the outstanding effort they demonstrated second quarter:

Seniors are invited

Osgood School and the Cohasset PSO invite all senior citizens to attend a performance by "Opera To Go" Wednesday, March 17, at 9:15 or 10:30 a.m.

The program, "Introduction to Opera," will create an improvised opera scene and use the Kindergarten through third grade students as the opera chorus.

Any senior citizen who would like to share this experience with the children may attend at no charge.

To reserve a seat or for more information, please call Ilene Colwill at Osgood (383-6117), Janet van Hartesvelt (383-2593), or Mary Foley (383-9289). Transportation can be arranged with prior notice.

Funding provided in part by the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council.

PSO candidates wanted

The Parent School Organization Nominating Committee is preparing its list of candidates for the 1993-94 executive board. Anyone interested in a board position, or if you would like to make a recommendation, please call Ruth Wilcox (383-1827), Joan Kovach (383-6358), Janet Van Hartesvelt (383-2593), Donna O'Donnell (383-6113), Sue Meikleham (383-6151), Barbara Meehan (383-6967), or Kathy Walsh (383-9147).

There are openings for Junior and Senior High School representatives, fundraising, PSO functions and activities, Curriculum Enrichment, Metco, and more.

The Cohasset PSO is a non-profit organization. All parents of Cohasset public school students are members.

The PSO acts as an advocate for public education. It is the official communication link between parents and schools. The PSO voices parental responses to school issues, and provides forums for administrators, teachers, and students to present their programs and policies to the public.

Math league results

Cohasset High School was represented by the following students in the third meet of the Continental Mathematics League, the Pythagorean division: Christopher Laas, Aaron Sawchuk, Michael Christoffel, Alison Kinchla, Matthew Lewis and Colin Pyfrom. Christopher Laas is the individual leading scorer.

In the Continental Mathematics League, Euclidean division, we were represented by Brooke Heilner, Marc Kupsc, Amanda Gontarz, Haidan Hodgson, Adrienne Sullivan, and Elisabeth Kidder. The leading individual scorer is Alex Creighton.

The seventh grade participated in the annual New England Mathematics League February 3. Top scorer was Christopher Laas. Other seventh graders representing Cohasset High School were Kathleen Buckley, Michael Christoffel, Josh Flanagan, Eric Wenmark, Elizabeth Hills, and Aaron Sawchuk.

Spring dance slated

A parent-sponsored eighth-grade dance will be held at the Community Center March 19 from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

All eighth-graders have been given flyers for appropriate dress. To encourage the entire class to attend, students should refrain from wearing any formal apparel and corsages which pertain to asemi-formal affair. Refreshments will be served.

Please encourage your child to participate in either the decorating or refreshment committee.

Outstanding effort noted

The seventh grade team is pleased to recognize the following students for the outstanding effort they demonstrated second quarter:

Seniors are invited

Osgood School and the Cohasset PSO invite all senior citizens to attend a performance by "Opera To Go" Wednesday, March 17, at 9:15 or 10:30 a.m.

The program, "Introduction to Opera," will create an improvised opera scene and use the Kindergarten through third grade students as the opera chorus.

Any senior citizen who would like to share this experience with the children may attend at no charge.

To reserve a seat or for more information, please call Ilene Colwill at Osgood (383-6117), Janet van Hartesvelt (383-2593), or Mary Foley (383-9289). Transportation can be arranged with prior notice.

Funding provided in part by the Cohasset Arts Lottery Council.

PSO candidates wanted

The Parent School Organization Nominating Committee is preparing its list of candidates for the 1993-94 executive board. Anyone interested in a board position, or if you would like to make a recommendation, please call Ruth Wilcox (383-1827), Joan Kovach (383-6358), Janet Van Hartesvelt (383-2593), Donna O'Donnell (383-6113), Sue Meikleham (383-6151), Barbara Meehan (383-6967), or Kathy Walsh (383-9147).

There are openings for Junior and Senior High School representatives, fundraising, PSO functions and activities, Curriculum Enrichment, Metco, and more.

The Cohasset PSO is a non-profit organization. All parents of Cohasset public school students are members.

The PSO acts as an advocate for public education. It is the official communication link between parents and schools. The PSO voices parental responses to school issues, and provides forums for administrators, teachers, and students to present their programs and policies to the public.

Math league results

Cohasset High School was represented by the following students in the third meet of the Continental Mathematics League, the Pythagorean division: Christopher Laas, Aaron Sawchuk, Michael Christoffel, Alison Kinchla, Matthew Lewis and Colin Pyfrom. Christopher Laas is the individual leading scorer.

In the Continental Mathematics League, Euclidean division, we were represented by Brooke Heilner, Marc Kupsc, Amanda Gontarz, Haidan Hodgson, Adrienne Sullivan, and Elisabeth Kidder. The leading individual scorer is Alex Creighton.

The seventh grade participated in the annual New England Mathematics League February 3. Top scorer was Christopher Laas. Other seventh graders representing Cohasset High School were Kathleen Buckley, Michael Christoffel, Josh Flanagan, Eric Wenmark, Elizabeth Hills, and Aaron Sawchuk.

around town

❑ Judy Parsons, manager, and Margy Charles of the Coldwell, Banker/ Hunneman Office in Cohasset, just returned from the Coldwell Banker International Business Conference in San Antonio.

Chandler Barton, president, welcomed over 6,000 brokers and sales associates from 50 states, Canada and Puerto Rico who were there to attend educational sessions, a trade show and a relocation business fair. Sales volume for Coldwell Banker was over $21 billion with 130,631 transactions making it #1 in the country for 1992. At the opening ceremonies of the conference, a donation from CBkr to Habitat for Humanity was announced. It was striking to discover that Habitat in San Antonio has already built 45 homes for those in need, and when homes are built on the additional five lots that CBkr gave, the number before 1994 will be 50!

Isn't it nice to know that our two units in Cohasset for Habitat are progressing so well, and may be available by early summer? Margy has been active in the program for Habitat and is on the Family Selection Committee.

Thank you Margie, and please keep up the good work for the good of all!

❑ Cohasset certainly made itself heard at the University of Amherst last semester, and we applaud the following: Charlotte N. Begley, Paul C. Ford, Elizabeth M. Hurley and Leah C. Petrakis!

They all made the dean's list for the fall semester and they all should be very proud of themselves that their efforts paid off!

❑ All we can say is "we are green with envy" of Diana Kornet, a Dartmouth College senior who is studying biology in the Caribbean this winter as part of the college's foreign study program there.

Diana is the daughter of John and Diana Kornet, and one lucky gal...just look at the weather that she has "missed" this winter!

By the way, Dartmouth's off-campus offerings include 44 programs in 17 countries and the United States. Approximately 65 percent of Dartmouth undergraduates take advantage of the college's foreign study opportunities...don't we wish we were young again and could take part in these fabulous programs?

❑ Felicia Bartow, the daughter of Karin and Stephen Bartow of 48 Sohier St., has been named to the deans' list at Macalester College in Saint Paul, Minnesota for the fall semester of the 1992-93 school year.

Believe it or not, Felicia is a senior this year...seems like we just saw her crossing to go to Osgood. Anyway, keep up your good work, everyone is proud of you!

❑ Even though she lives in Scituate, everyone knows her. Rosemary Lonborg that is. People have purchased her puppies, have taken swimming lessons at her home; all that know her and her husband Jim (former pitcher for the Red Sox) love 'em! Anyway, Rosemary has now written a book and you all should buy it! It is a book that lets you know how young boys live with a very famous sports hero and how their parents are trying to instill in their children professionalism, playing hard and working hard...all the values that all of our children need! Rosemary has SIX children, they are great, and she knows what she is talking about. Pick up her book, entitled The Quiet Hero: a Baseball Story, you will be glad that you did!

❑ Headmistress Stephanie Perrin is delighted to announce that Lily Faulhaber has been named to the honors list for the first term at the Walnut Hill School which ended in January. Lily, a dance major, is the daughter of Mrs. Susan Playfair. Lily, we congratulate you; we know that to be placed on the dean's list you exemplify artistic and academic excellence.

❑ Hats off to Melissa Ellen McCarthy, a senior in the college of arts and sciences at the University of Vermont, for making the dean's list at that wonderful university!

All of us at home in Cohasset are proud of you!

❑ Bob James was sure a happy man last week; his son, Phil, and daughter-in-law, Cynthia, were here for a visit! They live in Connecticut, and were here to see "Dad" and say we love you! They sure were happy to see Cohasset, even though they were knee-deep in snow!

❑ Welcome aboard, Chief Noon! It certainly was nice to see the "swearing-in" picture in last week's Mariner. We know that you will do a wonderful job

A May 15 wedding is planned.

obituaries

Robert M. Noonan

Robert M. Noonan, 73, of Scottsdale, Ariz., formerly of Cohasset, a retired supervisor of engineering at General Dynamics, Quincy, and a World War II Army veteran, died March 1.

As a youngster growing up in Cohasset Mr. Noonan was an altar boy at his church and became an Eagle Scout. He was a graduate of Cohasset High School.

During World War II Mr. Noonan was an Army warrant officer with the military postal service.

After the war, he worked for some years at the Cohasset Post Office before joining General Dynamics at the Fore River Shipyard.

Mr. Noonan moved to Arizona after retiring from General Dynamics.

He leaves his wife, Helen (Hayward) Noonan; two sons, Police Chief Brian W. Noonan and Robert G. Noonan of Cohasset; two daughters, Brenda N. Malone and Anne E. Bunstein, both of Cohasset; a stepson, Paul D Feener of Easton; two sisters, Mary Elizabeth Grassie and Nancy Wright, both of Cohasset, and 13 grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated March 5 at St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St. handled the arrangements.

Donations may be made to charity.

Financial aid books

Representative Mary Jeanette Murray announced that the 1992-1993 edition of the Handbook on Admissions and Financial Aid at Independent Colleges in Massachusetts is available at the town libraries in her district Cohasset and Hingham.

The handbook tells students and their parents how and when to apply for college financial aid. The handbook describes the state, and federal and college supported financial aid programs, and it contains college admissions information and application deadlines.

"I am distributing the handbook to my town libraries so that as many students as possible will know about the variety of financial aid programs that are available to help them pay for college. My hope is that this information will encourage financially needy Massachusetts students to consider college, particularly those students who might otherwise not apply," Murray said.

Clay workshop held

On a snowy Tuesday afternoon, 23 children participated in a clay workshop in the children's room at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. The workshop began, as Nancy Connolly told stories of mythical beasts found in African folklore to the children. Next, the children were given a block of clay from which to sculpture a mask. "The mask isn't someone you know, it's an idea," counseled their instructor. She encouraged the children to think about whether their mask was human or animal, was it sleeping or awake? Did it have ears? She also demonstrated methods of sculpting such as stuffing the clay with newspaper to round out the mask or adding clay to exaggerate features, such as the nose, mouth and eyes. There were many additional materials available at the workshop to enhance the masks, fork tines for monster teeth or eye brows, glittery pipe cleaners, sequins and toothpicks for carving details. Shyer types were told, "You don't need an eraser. You just need a thumb if you don't like what you did!" Each artist carefully carved their initials in their individual masks as they were completed and brought them home to dry adorned with a colorful assortment of materials.

This wonderfully creative workshop was made possible through a grant from the Cohasset Arts Council Lottery.

The Pumper

A fire truck is like an insurance policy. You pay for it and hope you never have to use it — but if you need it, you sure are glad it's there.

And like insurance, fire trucks don't come cheaply. A new pumper can run as high as $1/4 million.

The good part about the hefty price tag is that you get what you pay for. Pumpers, like the one just put out to pasture, can last 25 years or more if maintained properly.

There's been some debate in recent weeks about the fire chief's proposal to purchase a new pumper to replace Engine 22 which at age 30 was recently taken out of service.

Not surprisingly in these tight fiscal times, the debate has caused more than a few sparks of its own.

We've been told by more than one citizen that purchasing a new pumper is "ridiculous."

Another citizen stopped us and said "I'd like to know what I'm getting for the $1.1 million that is costs to run the fire department!"

Others are touting "regionalization" as the cure all. "Just call Scituate, Hingham, or Hull" and borrow one, they say.

It seems to us that there are several issues here which do not directly address the town's need for a pumper truck.

Keep in mind that at least two pumpers are needed at a structure fire. One provides the water supply (about 500 gallons) for the initial attack while the other finds a hydrant and lays line.

If approved the new pumper would be put in the first-line of attack and one of older pumpers would be used as back up at the station in case of a second call — a fleet reorganization which could extend the life of the older pumper.

Town meeting voters will have the final say March 27 whether to authorize the town to buy a new pumper.

We think voters ought to decide on that issue.

The $1 million-plus annual price tag for the fire department consists of operating and not capital costs. Whether or not the town buys a pumper will have no affect on that figure.

If five area towns can come to a consensus down the road, then Cohasseters can look forward to a fire protection district that could save money. But the fact is that the 'regionalization' process isn't going to happen overnight — it will take years. Right now it's in the study stage.

Mutual aid occurs when one town's fire department assists another's. It could be employed to help fight a working fire; or to cover the station for another town while that town's firefighters are out on a call; or to send a second ambulance to the scene of an accident. It's something that fire departments do all the time.

But mutual aid isn't always available especially in this recession when all area towns have cut back.

Take last Friday for example, Cohasset provided mutual aid by sending a pumper to a structure fire in Hull leaving your department's other pumper and ladder here in town. Scituate was called and could not provide a back-up pumper for Cohasset because theirs was tied up in Humarock. Then a Cohasset emergency fire call came in. Luckily the emergency turned out to be a furnace problem that wasn't serious.

If it had turned out to be a house fire — Cohasset firefighters may have had no choice after the initial water supply was exhausted — but to watch and wait for mutual aid while the house burned.

Is there a chance that Cohasset could get along without replacing Engine 22?

Cohasset has been lucky, it hasn't been devastated by a major fire like the one in Hingham Square and hasn't had a recent fatal fire like some other towns have.

And if Cohasset stays lucky maybe it will never have the need for more than two pumpers. And maybe in the future Scituate, Hingham, or Hull will always be able to provide back up.

Maybe what can go wrong won't go wrong.

And if you believe that, we've got a bridge we'd like you to see.

Town should oppose Theme Park

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke.)

Dear Selectperson Goedecke,

I am writing to express my increasing concern about the lack of discussion that the board of selectmen have had regarding the proposed theme park in Hull. You said in a Ledger article that you "need to know a lot more before (you) say this is a terrible thing." The date of the Hull vote to approve the zoning by-law change is April 12! My Hull Street neighbors are alarmed by the prospect of this park being built so close to our residential neighborhood. The son of my neighbor was hit by a car on Hull Street just this past summer! We already have to contend with speeding teenagers, litter and beer cans on our front lawns, and the rumble of commercial trucks outside our windows! Let's not add 9,800 more people (more than 2,400 cars) a day!

I read that the board is willing to listen to the proponents of this park, but my neighbors and I sincerely believe that the only positives are for the town of Hull and the GID Corporation! They hope to make money while Cohasset will find property value depreciated in this area, thereby lowering appraised value and assessed taxes. Cohasset will have to deal with all the traffic headaches — not Hull! Please ask the residents of Jerusalem Road how they feel about the impact of traffic on the West Corner intersection as they drive towards Hingham Harbor and Route 3A. It is a tremendously dangerous intersection to cross in the summer as it is!

Our other concerns include noise (how do they propose to "buffer" the screaming from people on a 125 ft. ferris wheel?), pollution (gas fumes), and the influx of criminal influences. Sources that I have spoken to in Hull have reason to believe that the GID Corporation is laying the groundwork for gambling, if and when it is allowed in Massachusetts. This is a residential neighborhood with young families! Please also consider the environmental impact on the Weir River and, potentially, Straits Pond. GID may also propose "satellite" parking in Cohasset to add to the totally inadequate amount of 600 spaces currently in the plan. Will the overflow of cars wind up parking on Jerusalem Road? Probably!

My hope is that as elected officials for the Town of Cohasset, you and the other board members will not let the money-making, commercialism of this venture in Hull destroy the value of our homes and the quality of our lives! Please, on behalf of all Cohasset residents, voice strong opposition to this particular concept! We need to work as a tri-town area on a more appropriate use for the property.

Thank you for your consideration of our concerns and recognizing our adamant opposition to the park.

Landfill hearing planned March 17

In a letter to officials of Cohasset Heights Ltd. Landfill, health agent Dr. Joseph Godzik for the board of health, notified CHL that its financial assurances for leachate disposal and landfill closure/post closure and the General Comprehensive Liability Insurance Policy of CHL have all expired.

Godzik said as a result CHL has failed to comply with the existing site assignments as amended in 1986.

At 7 p.m., March 17, the board of health holds a show cause hearing at town hall to determine if the existing site assignment as amended should be revoked to protect the public health.

"There is a violation here and the burden falls (on CHL) to show cause why the health board should not take action to close the operation," Godzik said.

He explained that this issue is not related to the proposed expansion of the landfill.

CHL owner Paul Barry could not be reached for comment.

Pro-Life card drive held at Hingham church

This weekend, March 13-14, a "pro-life post card drive" will be conducted at Resurrection Church, 1057 Main St., Hingham. The purpose of the post card drive is to urge the area's federal legislators to vote against the so-called "Freedom of Choice" Act (FOCA) — a bill now before Congress.

The post cards advocate voting against FOCA because, "It mandates abortion-on-demand as national policy."

Organizers hope to have hundreds of post cards filled out. The cards will be mailed to U.S. Senators Edward M. Kennedy and John F. Kerry, as well as U.S. Representative Gerry E. Studds.

For more information about the post card drive, call Bob O'Brien at 749-9112.

Candidate's Question of the week

Last week's question for any of the candidates was:

How could the town pursue public-private partnerships with the business community that would be mutually beneficial and save the town money? Be specific about your department — the library, recreation department, schools, town hall and public safety, health, etc.

(Editor's note: next week we invite all the candidates to speak to an issue of their choice. Please limit statements to 200 types words or less.)

Ellery H. Clark, Jr., library trustee candidate

To date, two thirds of the questions have dealt to some degree with business. Indeed. A great dedicated effort by both citizens and business on behalf of the questions for the betterment of Cohasset would be a wonderful achievement.

As the various local ordained religious leaders urge us, we must develop team spirit, and that is developed by determined, common-sense, enthusiastic individuals.

Save the town money? By having every citizen do her or his best to avoid unwise, expensive decisions, to avoid waste, order and use materials with care. Avoid tax increases in these hard times. Vote for absolutely necessary improvements, let the "it would be nice, but 'not now' items await more favorable times." Difficult, bite-the-bullet decisions have to be made with wisdom.

Business cooperation? They might well sponsor public talks by knowledgeable people about the various departments, including also the "town fathers (and mothers)," police and fire personnel. At $100 to $200 each business permitted to have their business sponsorship well advertised. The Chamber of Commerce could be very useful. Audience donations should be invited, with politeness. We seek support from all hands, dependent on their individual financial situation and concern. The monies thus contributed could be distributed to each participating department and wisely used.

Paul Pratt Memorial Library? Key library staff personnel, Friends, trustees, specialists could volunteer well-organized, not too long talks on local history (attention Burt Pratt, Dave Wadsworth), local history famous throughout the nation, new progresses. We want to laud deserved past greats of the town and to the hopes of the citizens of the future we tip our caps. May Cohasseters unite in this worthy objective and we thank the Cohasset Mariner for their fine, perceptive questions.

candidates' corner

Sandell to run

School Committee member Nancy Sandell announces her candidacy for a third term on the Cohasset School Committee. She is currently vice chairman of the committee and also serves on the town's Regional School District Planning Committee. Last year she worked on the committee to develop a new evaluation process for the teaching staff.

Mrs. Sandell has identified some priorities that she feels are important for the Cohasset school system. First, to have administrative and faculty leadership that can creatively improve the schools in spite of shrinking financial resources; this innovation should be recognized and rewarded.

Second, to continue to develop and train staff, especially in the area of technology.

Third, to continue evaluation of the K-12 curriculum in terms of rigor and relevance in a highly competitive world. Fourth, and most important, to market our schools to a community in which parents of school-aged children are the minority.

If we must rely on property taxes to fund the schools, then it is imperative that every individual in Cohasset supports the investment that is needed to maintain a quality school system.

"For the past 25 years, I have been involved in education and have been associated with public, private and international schools. During many of those years, our family has hosted students from other countries, who have made me aware of strengths and weaknesses in our own school system. These various experiences have enabled me to gain a broad understanding of different methods, standards, and philosophies of education. I seek re-election to the School Committee in order to continue to establish working guidelines and policies that will maintain the best education for the children of Cohasset. Our children must be prepared to face the challenges of a world that is ever-changing and expanding."

We're proud to be your neighbor

Rapid changes in the health care delivery system, as well as concerns about access to care, have increased the importance of effective partnerships between hospitals and their communities.

As a not-for-profit, tax-exempt 342-bed regional medical center, South Shore Hospital provides medical care and services to almost one-half million people in 24 communities throughout Southeastern Massachusetts.

The hospital and its affiliate, South Shore Visiting Nurse and Health Services and the Hospice of the South Shore, are dedicated to responding to the needs of our neighbors, serving as the largest health-care provider in the region. We are proud of our longstanding tradition of caring for people in need, not just people who can afford our care.

Last year we provided $3 million of care to your neighbors who did not have the financial means to pay for their care. Almost $600,000 of this medical care went to Weymouth residents. In 1991, South Shore Visiting Nurse and Hospice provided $527,000 in free care to South Shore residents who were uninsured or underinsured.

We value our status as a good citizen and neighbor, both as an organization and through the many individuals who make up the South Shore Hospital "family." Our mission is to provide value to the community, through excellence in medical and nursing care. Based on the hospital's continued growth, our staff has been doing a terrific job — the hospital has gone from the 18th to the 10th busiest in the Commonwealth.

But a successful hospital can be much more than a place to diagnose and treat illness — it is a significant economic asset to the community. South Shore Hospital is the fifth largest private employer in the region, with 2,000 employees and more than 600 community volunteers. We are also the largest employer in Weymouth employing 475 town residents, 25 percent of our workforce. South Shore Visiting Nurse and Hospice employs another 500 persons.

South Shore Hospital and South Shore Visiting Nurse provide many valuable community services to the region. Last year, for example, 26,000 South Shore residents called Ask-A-Nurse, a free, 24-hour health information and referral hotline. By dialing 1-800-544-2424, callers speak with registered nurses who can answer a broad range of questions and direct them to physicians appropriate to their needs.

For many patients, especially the elderly, transportation to and from the hospital can be a problem. South Shore Hospital has an answer — people living within our service area can schedule free rides to and from the hospital in our courtesy coach. The modern, spacious coach seats six, and can accommodate two wheelchair passengers. Call (617) 337-4585 for an appointment.

In recognition of the importance of health education, we also sponsor "Take Care," a series of free community health discussions. This series, sponsored in conjunction with the South Shore Coalition of Independent Therapists, features mental health professionals addressing a range of topics, from dealing with overeating to reducing stress. In addition to "Take Care," we offer a tremendous variety of educational programs to the public and health professionals. From parenting and grandparenting classes to health screenings, genetic counseling, cancer and laryngectomy support groups to supper clubs for seniors citizens, the hospital continues to find new and innovative ways of serving as the primary health resource for our neighbors.

We are proud to bring health care directly to people in acute medical distress through our Advanced Life Support program, which provides paramedic services around-the-clock to 11 towns. The program, provided at no cost to these town governments, gives patients better chances of survival en route to the hospital. South Shore Hospital has also provided free training to local emergency medical technicians in the use of life-saving medical equipment.

Looking beyond the role of providing medical services, we participate actively in formulating public policy with local, state and federal leaders to advance health-care initiatives that will benefit the community. We also host regular business roundtable meetings to discuss health-care issues affecting South Shore employers and how the hospital might help to solve them.

As a good neighbor, South Shore Hospital is committed to playing an integral role in finding solutions to the many health-care issues that impact the region. And we are working hard to identify new and better ways of addressing the needs of South Shore residents and businesses.

We would be pleased to hear from you with questions or comments about this or any future message, or about the hospital in general. Just call the Public Affairs Department, (617) 340-8564, or write us.

Four-legged Cohasseters line up for rabies shots

Cohasset's rabies clinic Saturday attracted 106 cats and 40 dogs, according to Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik.

"It went very well, we had a terrific response. The board of health is very pleased," he said.

State law now requires all cats as well as dogs be vaccinated against rabies, a dreaded disease that health officials expect will reach the South Shore this summer. Officials fear that cats, who are natural hunters, may provide a link between infected wild animals and humans.

Owners paid $6 per animal at the clinic, $5 of which went for the vaccine. Dr. Charles Waters and two assistants at the Hingham Animal Clinic provided the veterinarian's services for a nominal fee of $80. The town made $61, Godzik said.

Torch is passed with final meet

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

An era in Cohasset wrestling ended over the weekend, the Skippers look as though they have a new team leader a new team leader, and head coach Torin Sweeney is looking forward to rebuild his team with young, motivated wrestlers.

But Cohasset has lost two diamonds.

To absolutely no one's surprise, senior co-captains Nate Fiore and Ray Jones both placed in the top six in their return visit to the New England Wrestling Championships at Chelmsford High School.

Facing stiff competition, Jones finished third in the 152-pound division and Fiore matched his sixth-place showing of last year at 140 pounds.

Ryan Freeman (112 pounds) didn't place but became the first Cohasset sophomore to ever qualify for the top schoolboy wrestling meet in New England.

"To take three competitors is more than most teams," said a genuinely satisfied Sweeney. "It was just great. For Ray and Nathan, they competed with the best for two years in a row. That just shows what type of wrestlers they are."

Sweeney took his comments on the superlative pair one step further in stating the excellence Jones and Fiore have exhibited on the mats for the Skippers.

"They're certainly the two best wrestlers we've ever had. There's no doubt about it."

Jones, who finished second in his division in '92, started off well in the meet by winning his first match on Saturday before being bested by a Boston College High School wrestler in the quarterfinals. He rebounded well on Sunday and culminated four consecutive wins by avenging his loss to the B.C. High wrestler in his final match.

Fiore won his first match in overtime then rallied from a 4-0 deficit to take his second match 8-5. Fiore lost in the semifinals against the defending New England champion from Windham, Connecticut, but won a moral victory of sorts as being the only wrestler the Connecticut state champ didn't pin during the entire weekend.

"Nathan showed a lot by being able to go the whole distance with him," Sweeney said.

Freeman gained a wealth of experience at the meet, winning his first match and then having to face the Division 1 state champion and the No. 1 wrestler from Vermont.

Although Sweeney knows it will be virtually impossible to replace wrestlers on the level of Fiore and Jones, he is looking forward to the prospect of developing Freeman into a team leader, while at the same time helping him further his obvious talent on the mats. And with a crew of hungry seventh and eighth graders expected to join the team next year, Freeman will be the one Sweeney expects the younger wrestlers will seek out as a role model and for advice during the season.

"It's Ryan's leadership that will make a difference," Sweeney said.

Loyalty keeps Reynolds in Cohasset

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

He had the opportunity to play hockey in the prestigious Independent League but there was one thing that held Cohasset's Mike Reynolds back: loyalty.

Reynolds, the third leading scorer in the South Shore League this season, was scouted by coaches from Tabor Academy in a game against Hanover during his junior year. He impressed the coaches enough with his skating speed to be invited to the prep school campus in Marion for an over-night visit The next day he practiced with the team and met the players.

That was the easy part for Reynolds. The hard part came when he was accepted to Tabor and had to make the decision whether or not to attend the school and repeat his junior year. Add the fact Reynolds was a second-year captain for the Cohasset squad, a position he was proud of and took seriously, and it was soul searching time.

He ultimately decided to nix attending Tabor and stay put in his hometown.

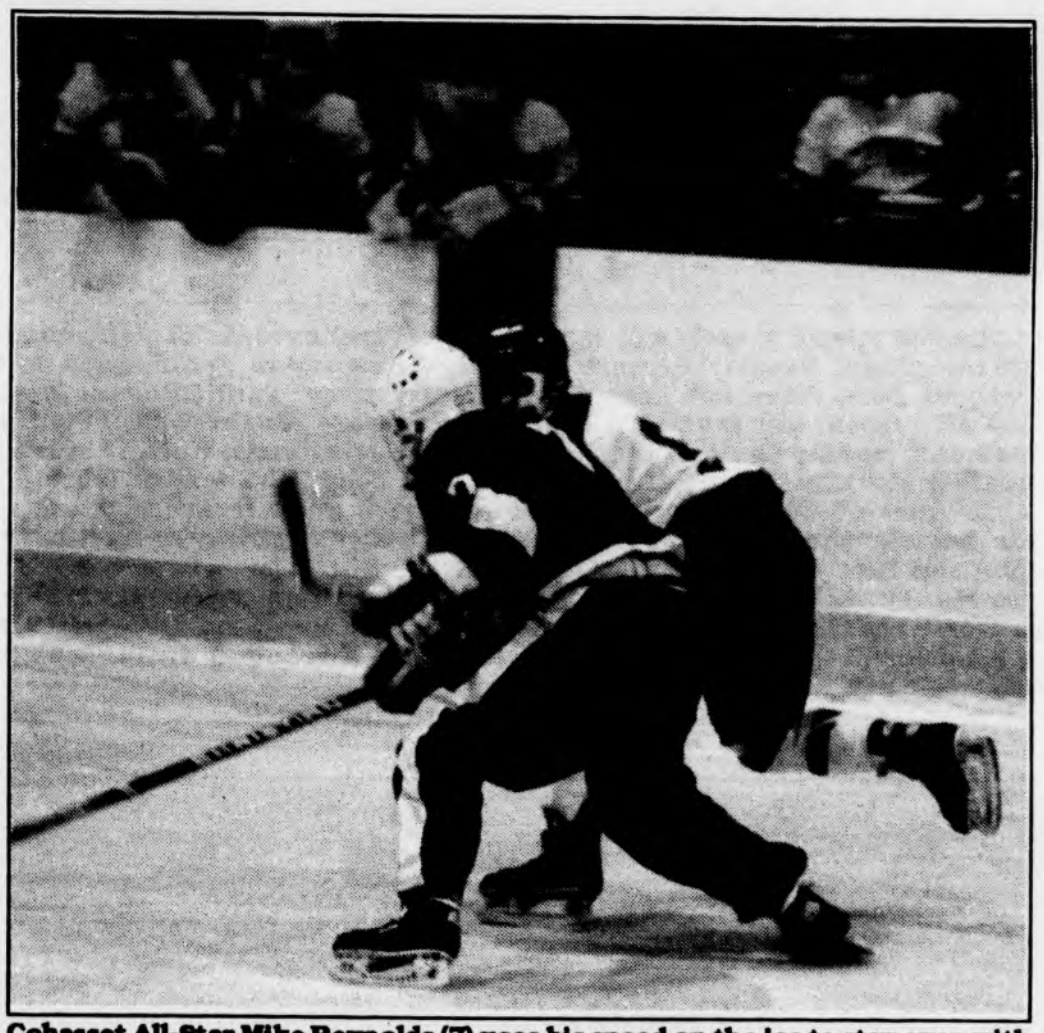
"Once I got in (accepted) it was hard for me to make a decision," Reynolds admitted. "(Head coach Dennis) Mr. Walsh has been good to me all these years and it would be hard to leave as the captain."

Tabor's loss was Cohasset's gain. Reynolds scored 21 goals and had 13 assists, behind only Scott Munroe and Craig MacDonald of Hanover. The numbers were a step up from last year's impressive 13-12-25 campaign.

Reynolds registered three hat tricks during the season, the biggest of which came against Hull when he scored the go-ahead goal after trailing the Pirates, 2-1.

Reynolds was also selected to his second consecutive SSL All-Star team but was unable to compete in the game against the Atlantic Coast League because he left for a week-long visit to Ireland that same evening. He was disappointed he couldn't play, particularly after his stellar performance last year when he scored the tying goal of a 3-3 final.

With the high school season now behind him, Reynolds will turn his attention to playing for the Babson College-based Europa Cup squad and the spring hockey league in Cohasset.



Cohasset All-Star Mike Reynolds (7) uses his speed on the ice to stay even with an opponent. Reynolds, who has captained the Skippers since the 10th grade, decided to play for Cohasset High this season instead of transferring to Tabor Academy. (Staff photo/J. Paul MacDonald)

The Europa team, coached by Rico Bailey, is unique in that it plays prep schools but Bailey chooses players from various public schools for his squad. Reynolds, for example, skates on a line with two Boston Latin players.

The league runs from March to July and it's the best hockey Reynolds gets in all year.

"The high school league is a small one without a lot of competition," he said. "This one gets away from that. There's more competition which increases your skills."

Reynolds' can't help but improve his skills. He has been playing organized hockey since he was seven. He has played for the South Shore Seahawks and was a member of the New England Pro-Am League in the 10th grade.

Reynolds believes he must concentrate more on adding weight and strength than focusing all his attention on skills. At 5-foot-9, 150 pounds, he is far from being the most intimidating player on the ice. Hoby Taylor, who runs the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham told Walsh that he believes Reynolds could play at the Division 1 level in college if he gets bigger.

Reynolds is not too worried about his size at this point.

"I'm young for my grade," said the 17 year old. "Hopefully I'm still growing. The UNH (University of New Hampshire) coach said it's not a main concern because once you get in there (college) they put you on a program. He also said once I get older I'll bulk up."

Reynolds may get larger, physically, but as far as character goes, he's already a giant.

Believe it or not, the spring high school sports season starts Monday.

Put down the paper and look outside. Yes, that white stuff on the ground is snow and it is not conducive to baseball, softball or tennis.

Most teams will be holding their tryouts in the gym starting Monday. The gym is fine for running and stretching out but some aspects of the spring season don't translate well to the gym.

Ever see a bad bounce grounder on a gym floor. There is no such animal. And how about batting practice. Baseballs have a unique way of breaking things like glass backboards. Therefore high school teams use tennis balls to work out the kinks in the players' swings.

Even when the season begins in early April there is still the threat of snow. When I was a sophomore at Hanover High we came back from April vacation to find about ten inches of snow on the ball field. We had several games cancelled and were back in the gym with the tennis balls.

Finally when the weather inches above 40 degrees the games begin. There is no worse feeling than taking a full cut at a pitch and hitting it off the end of the bat. Both of your arms go numb and you hop around like a Kangaroo.

A high school season lasts at best 20 games. Then there is American Legion ball which is maybe good for another 20 games. That is 40 games total for baseball players in New England.

Name a great hitter in the big leagues today who hails from New England. The only halfway decent hitter I can think of is Peabody's Paul Sorrento, who plays for the Indians. And he is not even an all-star. Rich Gedman, who is from Worcester, had a couple good seasons with the Red Sox, but is now fighting for a back-up job with the Cardinals.

So next time you are watching a baseball game on CBS and say to yourself, "Why are all the great baseball players from places like Florida or California. Remember the lousy conditions players in New England have to deal with. A kid in Orlando can play ball all year. It sure beats hitting tennis balls in the gym.

If the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA) is going to lay down rules for the post-season tournaments it should remain consistent from sport to sport.

At last week's Whitman-Hanson/ Methuen first round hockey matchup at Watertown Skating Arena an employee told the Panther cheerleaders they could not hang signs or streamers. He also said it was against MIAA rules for any type of noise-makers, like those used to ring in the new year, to be used.

So what do we get at Saturday's Division 1 South Sectional girls basketball final between Bridgewater-Raynham and Stoughton at Massasoit Community College? A spectator blew an air horn every time a Lady Black Knight player went to take a foul shot. That made 28 blasts from the horn. Officials either have to enforce the regulations set down

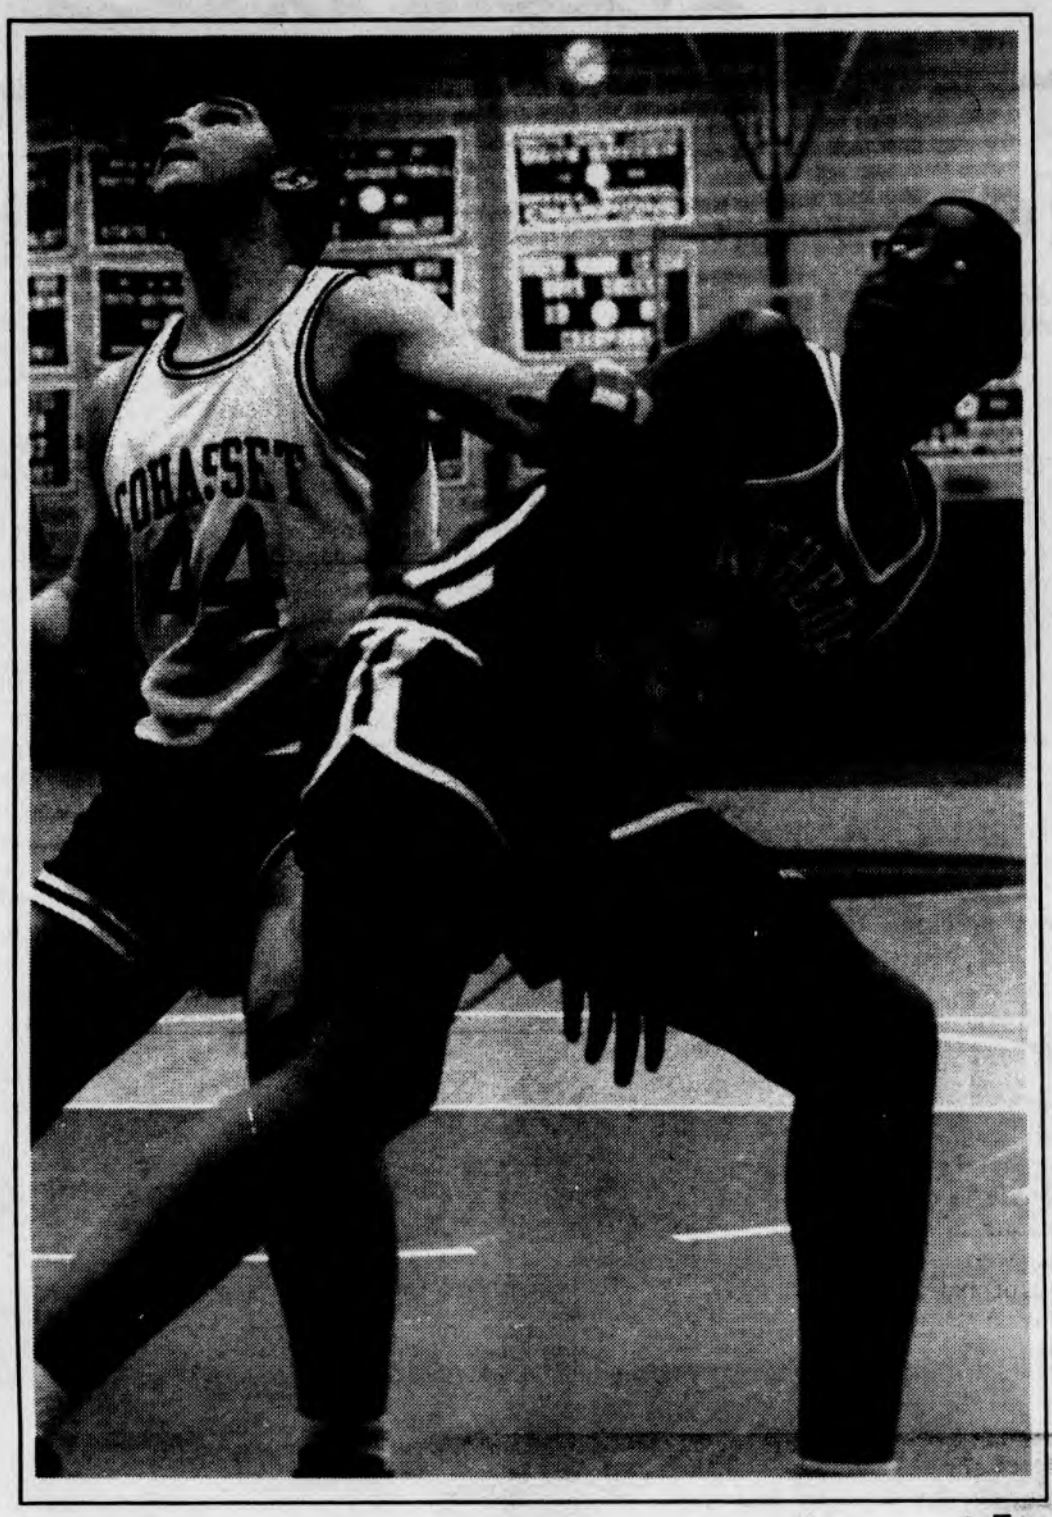
Farewell to winter



The Cohasset sports season was marked by several successful performances and personalties. From the grace of Tara Gallagher in gymnastics to the strength of Nate Fiore and Ray Jones in wrestling. Paul Bilodeau battled asthma all season, but saved his best performances for the South Sectional tournament, leading the basketball team to the semifinals. Hockey star Mike Reynolds broke into the top-three South Shore League leaders in scoring and the girls' basketball team fought hard and has a good future in store next winter. Some of the highlights included: (Top Left) the girls' gymnastics team winning the Best Sportsmanship Award at the SSL meet. (Top Right) Brian Pattison (44) working hard under the boards in the Skippers easy victory over Cathedral in the first round of tournament play. (Bottom) Liz Corcoran (41) and Jenn Knowles (44) get in good position to snag a rebound during a regular season game against the East Bridgewater Vikings.

Road race set

Plans are well underway for the Seventeenth Annual Cohasset Roadrace by the Sea. The race will take place Sunday, April 4 at 1 p.m. preceded by a 10k Walk at 10 a.m. The event which is sponsored by the Rotary Club of Cohasset is under the direction of Roy Fitzsimmons and Peter Logan. Proceeds from the event help fund the many in-town causes that Rotary supports.

The entry fee is $10. Each entrant receives a shirt with the race logo and free refreshments. Registration is limited to the first 800 and ends March 30. Prizes are donated by many of the local restaurants and businesses. The race has been rated most scenic by the New England Runner Magazine and always draws runners from throughout New England and other states.

Applications are available at Curtis Liquors, Good Sport or by sending a self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 36, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Softball registration

Registration for the Cohasset Girls' Softball League will soon be under way as the season is set to commence May 1. The league is comprised of Division 1, grades four, five and six, and Division 2, grades seven, eight and nine. Division 1 consists of six teams and will play games Tuesday or Thursday evenings at either the Barnes Field, the High School field or Beechwood Ballpark. Division 2 will consist of four teams which will play each other Saturday afternoons at either of the above mentioned fields. Division 2 will also host Norwell each Thursday at Beechwood Ballpark. The season will end the last week of June.

The Cohasset Girls' Softball League is an instructional league. Aside from lots of fun the league will provide the girls with the opportunity to learn and improve their softball skills. Another important league objective is to promote good sportsmanship. Each year an evaluation session is held in order to assess participants' strengths allowing for balanced teams. This year the evaluation session will be held May 1 at the High School front field.

The girls will also enter a float and march in the Harborfest Parade Sunday, June 20. A picnic and softball jamboree will take place at the conclusion of the parade.

Registration forms will soon be available at the Deer Hill School and Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School. For further information call Lisa Smith at 383-2510 or Rose Collins at 383-0760.

Club seeks members

Henry's Baseball club is seeking players, aged 17-25 for this spring and summer. Games are played at West Newton Common on Elm St. Practices are held on Sundays at 12:30 p.m. Power pitchers, coaches and volunteers are also need. For more information call Henry at 891-0621.

Another thought that crossed my mind at the game: Is it really necessary to insert the words women or lady as part of a high school teams' nickname? I've heard Hingham Harborwomen used, Lady Skippers (Cohasset), Lady Clippers (Norwell). Even worse, however, are the Lady Black Knights (Stoughton) and Lady Trojans (B-R). This is only an opinion and by no means is meant to offend any female athletes, but when you see a group of Bridgewater-Raynham girls take the court, it's pretty obvious they're just that: girls.

To take it one step further, is there really such a thing as a Lady Black Knight?

Also what about Rockland. They are the Bulldogs, so the girls' team would be the Lady Bulldogs, right?

Wrong. According to a dog breeder we know, a female dog has a special name that rhymes with "itch." Imagine the mail we would get if we referred to the Rockland girls' team by its proper nickname.

Poor Scooter Mallon. The Scituate all-star center missed his chance to become a hero in last week's Division II boys' basketball quarter-final tourney game against Burke.

With seconds left in the second overtime and Scituate trailing by three points, a missed Scituate shot rebounded all the way out to Mallon who was all alone in three-point land. Mallon aimed and fired but his shot rimmed out and the ball bounced away as time expired. Scituate missed its chance to send the game into a third overtime.

Burke went on to win its next game and eventually defeated Duxbury High for the Division II South title Sunday night.

Mallon, along with the rest of the Scituate team took the loss pretty hard. More than 30 minutes after the game Mallon's eyes were still red.

With that kind of pressure even Larry Bird would have a tough time making that shot. The missed shot does not dampen Scooter's or Scituate's season.

A fan described a traveling call during the Division 3 South Sectional final at Massasoit Community College by saying "she could have packed a suitcase for the trip she took." Clever.

We're still trying to find the wise guy (or gal) who left the following typed message taped on a metal beam in the Mariner's sports department: "If I ever needed a brain transplant, I'd choose a sportswriter because I'd want a brain that had never been used."

The quote was that of NFL Hall-of-Famer Norm Van Brocklin, but it couldn't have been him. He has weekends off. So far we have it narrowed down to everyone in the editorial department. And yes, there is a prime suspect.

scout news

Cubs Scouts celebrate

Sunday, March 7, the Cub Scouts of Pack 38 held their annual Blue and Gold Dinner — the 63rd birthday party for Cub Scouting in the United States. The Cubs, their families, and a long list of guests including state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray gathered for a feast of spaghetti and meatballs with all the trimmings. The meal was preceded by an impressive opening flag ceremony and the invocation offered by the Rev. Gary Ritts.

Following the dinner, a vast number of badges, pins, and awards were made to the Cubs in recognition of their hard work over the last few months. The Wolf Cub badge was earned by 23 second grade scouts, the Bear Cub badge by 26 third grade scouts, and the Webelos badge was awarded to six 4th and 5th grade cubs. In addition, many boys also earned arrow point badges and sports awards.

Mrs. Murray awarded Cub Scout Committee Chair Linda Farrag and Cubmaster Jeff Forsdick with certificates of recognition for 11 and 17 years of service respectively, in those positions. Den Leader Pat Baird was given special recognition for eight years of service to Cohasset scouting. Many other leaders also received certificates of appreciation for their dedicated service as den leaders and committee members.

After a great dinner and the many awards and presentations, the Cubs were treated to a fabulous gymnastics show presented by the Ellis School of Gymnastics' "Boys Competitive Gymnastics Team" from Braintree. Team coach and school director Dave Ellis coached his team through basic and advanced gymnastic movements while explaining them in great detail to the cubs who watched the show in total awe.

Scouts host tea

Sunday, March 21, from 2 to 4 p.m., the Cohasset High School cafeteria will be a swirl with spring hats and white gloves as the Cohasset Girl Scouts welcome their mothers to a Formal Tea.

Besides serving tea cakes, tea and crumpets, each troop will entertain the assembled with songs, skits or poems.

Buy those cookies!

Local Cohasset Girl Scouts from Troop 4778 will be selling Girl Scout cookies at the Super Stop & Shop Saturday, March 13, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. If you missed the opportunity of having a Girl Scout deliver cookies to your front door, here's your chance to stock up. Cookies cost $3 a box and come in seven delicious varieties including the best-selling Thin Mints and Samoas.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT
NORFOLK DIVISION
DOCKET NO. 93P0577E1

Estate of THERESA L. WILLIAMS late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that FRANK H. WILLIAMS II of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executor named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on April 14, 1993.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the second day of March, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-three.

Theme park no carnival for Cohasset

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

No matter how hard he tried, the developer who plans to build a $31 million theme park in Hull couldn't allay the concerns of residents from Cohasset's West Corner area.

About 30 citizens turned up Monday to hear a presentation on the proposed park which will be built in their back yard.

"I live 3/10 of a mile from the end of your land and 345 Cohasset families in Cohasset live within a one-mile radius," said Maria Plante of Jerusalem Road. "We will be impacted more than a majority of the people in Hull."

But Hull appears to hold all the cards.

Hull voters will have the chance April 12 to approve a zoning change that would set the stage for the development.

J. Kinney O'Rourke, special projects manager with General Investment and Development Co. (GID) tried to quell concern over the park attracting undesirables by stressing the single-admission price format and family-oriented entertainment.

He distanced the project from the last days of Paragon Park, which closed in the mid 1980s.

Shoppers brave Blizzard of '93

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Town officials are thankful it wasn't worse and local merchants don't believe it could have been any better.

Although Saturday's storm dropped 12 inches of snow in Cohasset, Civil Defense Director Arthur H. Lehr, Jr. said it could have been worse.

"As it turned out there was no tide at all. No danger," said.

"The wind came from the south and there was no wave wash."

Sgt. Robert Jackson reported there were no accidents during the storm.

"The snow and blizzard warnings kept the rubbernecks in," he said.

According to the National Weather Service, the March 13 storm was a blizzard.

"The following two conditions have to be met for a minimum of three hours to be classified as a blizzard," a weather service representative said.

Mussels are flexed over shellfish warden funding

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

During a lengthy discussion Tuesday night, the Cohasset Advisory Committee swam around the issue of funding and filling the existing position of a town shellfish warden.

Eventually the group decided to leave the funding at its current level of zero and to take a closer look at the issue again in the future.

John Hartshorne, a local representative for the South Shore Local Governance Committee for the Massachusetts Bays Program, presented information in favor of filling the position and having the town become more active in policing the shellfish beds in the harbor.

"We (Mass. Bays) want to do everything we can...to clean up the bays," said Hartshorne.

And since the current testing procedure can take a long time to schedule with the Department of Marine Fisheries (DMF), he feels that citizen monitoring groups could do the testing.

Currently, Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle volunteers his time to oversee the closed clamming areas.

Sharp-shooter is on the ball for Skippers

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Cohasset basketball All-Star Paul Bilodeau has his own little barometer to determine how well he will shoot during a game.

"Point-wise, if I hit my first shot or not I can tell really," said Bilodeau, who finished third in the South Shore League in scoring this season with a 19-point average. He wound up with 464 points in 24 games.

Of course, judging how successful one is going to be in pouring the ball through the hoop can not be exactly measured, but Bilodeau was close with his make-shift method. The senior, who was unanimously named to The Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic team, had his two biggest outings near the end of the year when he scorched both Hull and Cathedral High for 38 points.

"I felt like I was in more of a groove," Bilodeau said of his pair of 38-point outings.

Cohasset's week

Parking ban extended

Selectmen unanimously extended the overnight parking ban on town streets to April 1. The parking ban is in in effect annually from Nov. 15 to March 15. But due to the blizzard last weekend, selectmen voted to extend the ban.

Common use okay'ed

Sunday school children at the Second Congregational Church will hold their annual walk to commemorate Palm Sunday as planned.

Selectmen gave permission for the group to use the town common from 9 to 10 a.m., Sunday April 4.

Fueling use tabled

Selectmen tabled taking action on a request from Shawn Harris of Shawn Harris Enterprise Inc. to be allowed to fuel fishing vessels at Government Island Pier.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon explained that the requirement for approval is new and that vessels have been refueling at the pier in the past. Doyon said he talked with the harbormaster who said the town needs some protection at the site in the event of a spill.

"That's the reason I'm asking you to table it until (we) look into having something installed to protect against a spill," he said. Doyon noted that even a small spill can cause a problem.

Library trustees vacancy

Selectmen will meet with the Paul Pratt Memorial Library Board of Trustees April 5 to jointly select an applicant to fill a vacancy due to the death of trustee Elizabeth Eaton whose term would have ended in April 1994.

Anyone interested in filling the position should apply to the trustees or selectmen in writing.

Kreycik steps down

Keith Kreycik, 14 Linden Dr., has resigned from the personnel committee because he is leaving town.

"I have accepted a position at the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond and will be moving from Cohasset soon," Kreycik said in a letter to selectmen. "I have enjoyed working on the committee and will miss the opportunity to participate in the town government of Cohasset."

Absentee ballots ready

Absentee ballots are now available at the town clerk's office for the town election Saturday, April 3.

You may apply for an absentee ballot if you will be out of town, have a physical disability or because of religious beliefs.

Absentee voting may be done in the office of the town clerk during regular business hours until noon April 2. A written signed request for a ballot may be sent to the town clerk and one will be mailed out. Included on the application should be your name as registered, your registration address, precinct, the address to which you wish the ballot sent and your signature. Applications may also be picked up at the office. The town clerk's office will be closed at noon April 2 in preparation for the election.

If you need further information, please call the town clerk's office at 383-9900, ext. 105, 106 or 107.

Waste bans to start

Citizens utilizing the Cohasset Recycling Transfer Facility are reminded that recycling is mandatory. Newspapers, corrugated cardboard, magazines, white office paper, computer paper, glass, metal cans, plastic bottles with a "2" on the bottom, scrap metal, batteries, tires, waste oil and yard waste must be recycled.

As of April 1, two more so-called "waste bans" go into effect. The substances which will no longer be accepted at SEMASS, the town's disposal facility, are glass and yard waste. At the present time there continues to be small quantities of glass and yard waste mixed with the rubbish.

Users of the Recycling Transfer Facility are urged to keep all yard waste and recyclable glass out of the general rubbish so the town will avoid any potential penalties in the future. Please assure that glass is clean prior to recycling as there are no facilities for washing glass at the Recycling Transfer Facility.

Unemployment rates set

The unemployment rate in Cohasset for January was reported at 5.6 percent.

Because the state Department of Employment and Training has changed they way it calculates the unemployment rate, numbers for December would not be comparable to January's figures.

According to the state, 213 Cohasset received unemployment compensation in January.

The state's unemployment rate dropped from 8.2 percent in January to 7.7 percent in February.

Unemployment numbers for municipalities lag a month behind the state figures.

According to Employment and Training Commissioner Nils L. Nordberg, "The numbers are showing some sign of improvement over the year. We are, however, cautiously optimistic about the state's unemployment picture, remembering that last year's February drop was followed by a sizeable rise in March.

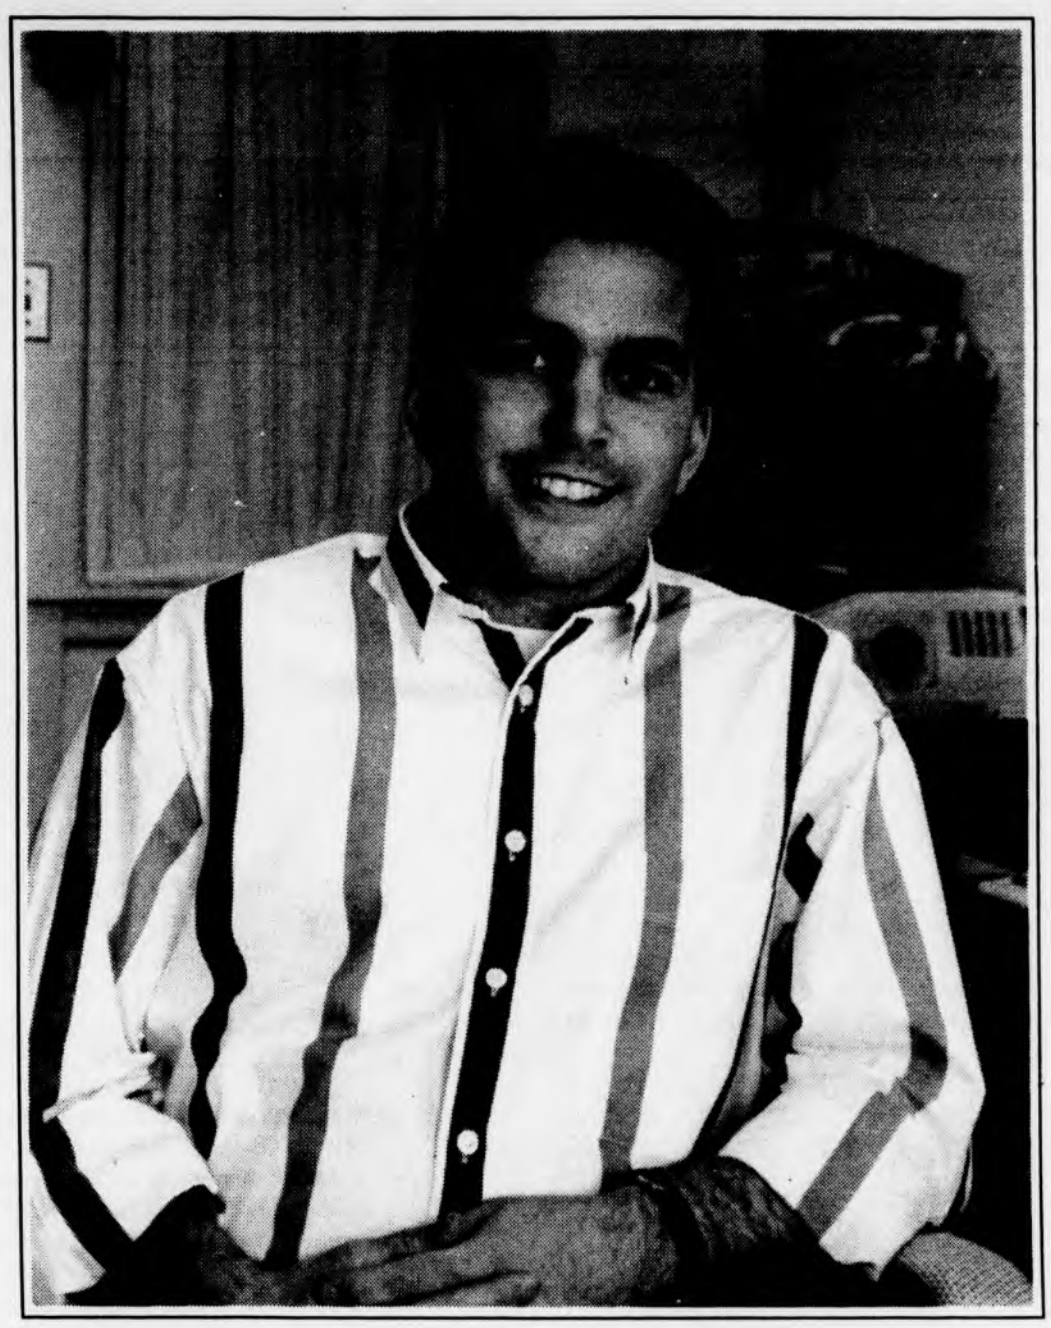
Joseph A. DiVito, Jr.



Name: Joseph A. DiVito, Jr.

Occupation: Assistant assessor/appraiser

Best day of your life: The day I proposed to my fiancée — March 9, 1991. We will be married June 26, 1993.

Most embarrassing moment: I had my parents' car and was about to inspect a house when a big white Huskie started jumping all over the car. I called the owners of the house on the car phone so I could begin the inspection when a six-year-old child came out to get the dog.

Goal: As an assessor to issue fair and equitable assessments.

Favorite season: Winter. I'm a hockey player.

Best (and worst) vacation: The only one I've ever taken. It was to Cancun, Mexico during my college spring break in 1988. The bad part occurred on the second day when I split my head open after diving into the pool and had to have stitches.

Favorite holiday: Thanksgiving. It doesn't cost anything and it's fun. You get to eat and there are no presents.

Pet peeve: People who ask questions and then don't really listen to the answer.

Favorite book: "The Firm," by John Grisham.

Favorite movie: "Slap Shot."

Biggest worry: The fiscal 1996 revaluation. It will be the first revaluation done in-house.

Favorite place: My family's 1/4-acre garden in Hull. I love gardening.

Favorite junk-food: Pepperidge Farm Milano Cookies.

Person I'd most like to meet: The actor, Danny DeVito.

Council for children

Tonya Harrison, the community organizer with Parents United for Child Care, will speak about the organization which advocates for day care for low and moderate income families, at the next meeting of the South Shore and Coastline Council for Children. The meeting is Tuesday, March 23 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the East Milton Congregational Church, 610 Adams St., East Milton. All council meetings are free and the public is encouraged to attend. For further information, please call Marty Amdur of Hingham at 749-0691.

Local artist places

Molly Lynch of Cohasset placed third in black & white in the Juried Photography Exhibition at the South Shore Arts Center, 119 Ripley Rd. Lynch also won third place in the special effects category.

After reviewing 347 black and white, color and special effects photographs, judges selected 47 to be hung in the SSAC's annual Juried Photography Exhibition. The show is on display through March 25 at the Art Center, 119 Ripley Rd. Please call 383-9548 for information.

SAT courses offered

SAT English and SAT Math courses will be offered by the Center for all those preparing for the College Board exams. Taught by instructor Ron Emmons and Dennis Walsh, these courses will be given for five weeks prior to the test date. SAT English will begin March 23.

SAT Math begins March 24. The cost is $75 per course. Please call the Community Center at 383-0088 for further information.

Open house for tots

The Cohasset Community Center welcomes parents and tots to a "Gym Dandy" Open House at the Center, Wednesday, March 24, from 10:30 a.m. to noon. Children ages 6 months to 3 years of age are invited to socialize and explore the world of Gym Dandy with instructor Mary Foley. For more information, please call 383-0088.

Adventure course slated

Come join the exciting challenges encountered on the Cohasset High Ropes Course.

Participants learn safe and proper use of equipment, creation and employment of climbing knots and skills in belaying and rappelling. In addition to technical skills, climbers will engage in problem solving, team building play, receive and provide catalytical support, increase self-confidence and group trust that allows one to meet the challenges all the while having fun.

The course is offered:

Adults: Five consecutive Mondays, 6 to 8 p.m., beginning April 5.

Youth (ages 11-13): Five consecutive Fridays, 4 to 6 p.m., beginning April 10.

Young Adults (ages 14-18): Four consecutive Fridays, 7 to 10 p.m., beginning April 10.

Young Adults (ages 14-18): Advanced Assistant Training Course for those interested in seeking employment as assistant staff on the ropes course. Four consecutive weeks, 7 to 10 p.m., beginning May 8.

For information call Jack Buckley, 383-6100, 925-2428 or Susan McMackin, 383-2688.

For pre-registration call the Cohasset Community Center.

Taking financial control

This course offers women a thorough overview of money management and financial planning. Taught by Sandra Manzella, a certified financial planner, the topics include: professional management, investment philosophies, tax strategies, and estate planning principles. Beginning April 1, the course meets for four weeks on Thursday evenings from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The cost is $30. Please call the Community Center at 383-0088 for further information.

Glastonbury Abbey auction

The 10th Annual Auction to benefit the Monks of Glastonbury Abbey will be held at the Hingham High School Gym off Union Street Saturday, April 3.

Many treasures will be available — original art work by local artists as well as large Chinese vases, marble base mantel clocks, many styles of luxurious furnishings, a hand carved bird, a variety of decorative brass objects and many types of antiques will be up for the bidding. You can also bid on Celtics, Red Sox and Bruins tickets, gourmet dinners to be prepared and served in your home, a variety of gift certificates donated by local South Shore Merchants and much, much more.

The preview and afternoon auction start at 1 p.m. evening auction begins at 7 p.m. sharp under the gavel of auctioneer Norm McCullough.

Admission and catalogs are free and refreshments will be available. You may pick up a catalog in advance at the Glastonbury Abbey bookstore.

Don't miss 'Belles'

The Cohasset Dramatic Club presents Belles March 25, 26, 27, and 28. The Mark Dunn play takes place as a series of telephone calls between six sisters ages 19 through 40.

Cast members include Cohasset residents Peggy Corrigan and Angi Walsh, and Scituate residents [redacted] Pratt, Anita Ahern, Keely Burke and Tracy Riddell as the six sisters. Lisa Pratt of Kingston is the director. Please call Joe or Dawn Rota at 545-3195 for ticket information.

Spring fun-raiser set

Celebrate spring at the Cohasset Community Center, Saturday, April 3, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Nursery School will hold its annual Spring "Fun-raiser" Lunch with the Easter Bunny, for the enjoyment of all children.

Children will enjoy springtime and holiday crafts including edible necklaces, crowns, bunny ears and waving chicks in the Senior Center lower function room.

Lunch will be held in the gym where all may feast on hot dogs, assorted homemade salads, chips, homemade desserts and beverages.

To top off the celebration, the Easter Bunny will arrive during the festivities to say hello to all the children, and then will be seated in the Senior Center upper function room for photos with children. Photos are $2.

Admission is $4 for adults and $3 for children. Advance ticket purchase is advisable. Tickets will be on sale at the Community Center office. For further information, please call 383-0088 or 383-0036.

Cohasset's number one officer

When Carmelo Conte joined the Cohasset police force in 1951, it was at a friend's assurance that he could try the position on to see if he liked it.

Conte 'liked it' just fine and only recently retired from the force after 42 years of service.

During his time as an officer Conte held a couple of different positions and worked with five different police chiefs.

Hector Pelletier was his first commanding officer, and also the man who originally asked Conte to become an officer.

Additionally, Conte moved up through the badge ranks during his tenure on the police force.

"It's all seniority," he explained. As people retire or leave the force the most senior officers get the lower numbers.

Although he isn't sure what number badge he started with, Conte finished his career with badge number one.

Conte said after retiring that he misses the job and "the fellas I worked with."

Born and raised in Cohasset, Conte had just finished serving with the army before trying out the police job.

Conte considers himself lucky to have found a job he enjoyed in a town he loved.

"I'll probably stay here the rest of my life," he said recently while talking about the town and his career.

He met his wife Barbara here, and Cohasset was where they raised their children.

And when Conte retired last month, on his 65th birthday, he left a part of his legacy on the force.

His son John Conte is a 10-year veteran of the force and is currently president of the police association.

Youths' Advocacy Day

The Cohasset Community Center is coordinating Cohasset's participation in the 9th Annual Children's and Youths' Advocacy Day, May 6, at the State House.

Children and youths from across the state will attend to present their issues to the State legislature.

The participants will learn about basic legislative process and effective advocacy techniques.

This is an excellent opportunity for any group in town that is youth-oriented to learn about the legislative process and to network with other youth groups to share ideas and goals.

Any organization in town who is interested in further information and/or would like to attend the first meeting should contact Rhonda Myers at the Community Center at 383-0088. The trip May 6 will probably be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Bus transportation will be provided.

Daffodils fight cancer

Volunteers helping the South Shore to greet spring with a flood of golden daffodils for the benefit of the fight against cancer are busy taking advance orders for Daffodil Days, March 23-24, expecting to top last year's record of more than 140,000 blooms.

This year Daffodil Days chairmen Pauline and Dennis Sweeney have added the convenience of local pick-up sites in eight communities where orders for less than five bouquets can be picked up March 24.

Orders for the daffodils, at $5 a bouquet of 10, may be placed by calling Pauline at 773-8226 or Marcia at 341-4210 and indicating your choice of pick-up site.

Local pickup is March 24 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Cohasset Community Center, 3 North Main St., 383-9112.

Gardeners to meet

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset meets Tuesday, March 23, at Walton Rogers Hall, St. Stephen's Church.

NOVA consultant and wildlife author William Sargent, will present a slide/lecture on "Harbor Visions, The Natural and Cultural History of Boston and Her Islands."

Coffee is served at 9 a.m.

Theme park no carnival for Cohasset . . .

"The type of customers we'd reach out to is vastly different from those you remember from the dying moments of the old place," he said.

"We propose a family-oriented recreational facility. Talk of beer cans along Rte. 228 is more rhetoric than reality."

'We will be impacted more than a majority of the people in Hull.'

— Maria Plante, Jerusalem Rd.

The meeting atmosphere became testy when some in the audience laughed out loud at statistics O'Rourke presented on park attendance.

He said GID market studies suggest the annual attendance at the park would be 600,000 with 43 percent of that number coming during August.

At that point, O'Rourke interjected that greater Boston is the only major metropolitan area in the continental United States which does not have a major amusement park or attraction.

"Our market analysis suggests the numbers are conservative in nature. Nantasket Beach draws thousands upon thousands of people each summer and a portion of that projected attendance already comes to Hull to use the beach," O'Rourke said.

If the zoning change is approved, to begin construction GID must obtain a special permit from the Hull planning board by meeting a series of standards which cover solid waste and storm water discharge; environmental concerns; noise and lighting; access roads; public safety; set backs and height, O'Rourke explained.

He said GID must provide 1,100 new off-street parking spaces either on site or at other locations within Hull. O'Rourke said shuttle buses would be used to take people to and from off-site parking.

O'Rourke said that studies suggest 9,200 to 9,800 people would come to the park on a Saturday or Sunday in August. Peak weekday attendance would be 4,500, he said.

"The peak in-park attendance would be 40 percent of the total day's attendance," he explained.

"I hasten to add there are 2,000 off-street parking spaces in Hull already with the exception of four days per year are grossly underutilized," O'Rourke said.

O'Rourke also presented traffic studies of several intersections including Rtes. 3A and 228 and Rockland St., Jerusalem Rd. and Hull St. (Rte.228).

"The impact counts suggest the traffic that would transverse Cohasset would be minimal as compaired with the traffic on Rte. 3A and 228 in Hingham," he said. O'Rourke said with improvements to West Corner "we believe traffic could be accommodated with minimal disruption to service."

Selectman Merle S. Brown was concerned that no traffic study had been conducted on Forest Ave. which would be a short cut for people coming up from the south, Brown said.

'We propose a family-oriented recreational facility. Talk of beer cans along Rte. 228 is more rhetoric than reality.'

— J. Kinney O'Rourke, General Investment & Development Co.

Selectman Michael S. Sullivan asked if GID would consider paying the town of Cohasset to hire a consultant to conduct a traffic study.

Theme park statistics

- Projected opening: Spring 1995.
- Projected annual attendance: 600,000.
- Weekend peak: 9,600 total day's attendance (3,840 peak in-park crowd).
- Weekday peak: 4,500 total day's attendance (1,800 peak in-park crowd).
- Parking: 1,100 new spaces on and off-site in Hull, in addition to 2,000 existing off-street parking spaces already in Hull.
- Hours: 10 or 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and to midnight on Friday and Saturday and Sundays when Monday is a holiday.
- Open: seven days a week from Memorial Day to Labor Day; weekends from St. Patrick's Day to Columbus Day.
- Admission price: $15 per adult with discounts for families, children, senior citizens and group sales.

While O'Rourke wasn't enthusiastic about the idea, he didn't rule it out.

"I'd rather for starters sit down in an atmosphere based on a desire to exchange information and talk about issues. If it gets to the point where additional research needs to be done I believe the company would entertain the proposition," he said.

O'Rourke said the park would apply for a beer and wine license for its sit-down restaurant but there would be no open consumption of liquor within the park itself.

O'Rourke said while there are no guarantees, he is "cautiously optimistic" that the project would get the go-ahead from Hull voters.

"If they don't, we will go back to the drawing boards and re-think this idea or come up with a new idea and come back," he said.

Shoppers brave Blizzard of '93 . . .

"There must be sustained wind speeds of 35 miles-per-hour (mph) or frequent gusts of 35 mph and considerable falling or blowing snow with visibility less than a quarter of a mile. Those conditions were met."

Although their presence wasn't needed, Lehr said several National Guard Units were on hand at the Fire Station.

"This is routine, if the town expects a wave wash or a flood," Lehr explained.

Approximately 100 families in town lost power for several hours during the storm, he said.

"It was back on by 9 p.m. Saturday night," Lehr said.

"Edison was very good. They sent a crew down to stay with us."

By all accounts, residents were prepared for a power loss — and more.

"By 2:30 we were basically out of anything anyone needed so we closed," Cohasset Hardware owner James Watson said.

"We sold out of batteries, flashlights, lamp oil, candles, propane and shovels."

Watson said people began flooding his store as soon as he opened at 7:30 a.m.

Andrew Hailer, manager of Curtis Liquor Stores Inc., noted similar activity.

"It was a zoo," he said.

"It was like Christmas Eve."

Hailer said there were three registers working for the storm shoppers, with lines that were 10-people deep at times.

"People bought beer, wine and a lot of water," he added.

The grocery manager at Stop & Shop on Route 3A said the store was mobbed.

"They were lined up as soon as we opened," he said.

The manager, who asked that he not be identified, said Stop & Shop did not close during the storm.

"We were prepared for it."

He added that the deli counter was one of the more crowded areas of the store.

Rick Peters, owner of Sea 'N Cheese, said although his store was open only six hours — half the normal weekend work schedule — he took in about one and a-half his usual Saturday earnings.

"We opened an extra cash register."

Peters said his customers also bought a lot of deli items and canned goods.

The highway department was also busy, according to Highway Supt. Harold W. Litchfield.

"We started at noon on Saturday and went home at 4 a.m. Sunday," Litchfield said.

"Then we returned at 8 a.m. Sunday."

Litchfield said he and all seven of the department's employees worked around the clock.

The town's five snowplows were supplemented by nine other plows, he said.

He is in the process of tallying the overtime costs for the highway department workers and the cost of renting the additional snowplows.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said overtime for police and fire during the storm cost $5,400.

Litchfield said the town's snow removal budget was already overdrawn prior to the March 20 blizzard.

Shellfish warden funding discussed . . .

Having townspeople test the water would result in "a significant amount of time the shellfish beds are open," he said.

"But," added Hartshorne. "For the DMF to certify the beds, there would have to be an ironclad contract in writing from the town" that shellfishing regulations would be enforced.

Committee members expressed concern that making the position larger than it needs to be would cost more money.

"It's a lot easier to prevent clamming than it is to monitor people who are clamming," committee member Wayne Shawchuk said.

Committee Chair Nan Roth agreed.

"Although it sounds like a worthy cause, it doesn't seem like enough reason to put it back in the budget," she said.

The limited size of the existing beds was brought up and Hartshorne said that there would be some joint communities in the Mass Bays Program.

But Michael Putziger expressed concern that the clam crop in Cohasset would be limited and one of the major harvesting areas was in Scituate waters.

"It's foolish for Cohasset to fund all this for the benefit of Scituate's clam beds," he said.

Another member asked if the clams were worth the effort. Because of pollution and other factors there may not be any healthy clams to harvest.

But Hartshorne told the board that Mass Bays' goal is "to clean up the harbor. We want to find out where the pollution is coming from and ultimately correct it."

Ken Ingber thought that the limited testing proposed was "too narrow and peculiar" to identify all the pollutants in the water.

"There are a broad range of pollutants from a broad range of sources," said Ingber.

And Roth brought up the question of clam bed ownership.

"People have a right to walk across between the high tide mark and the mean low tide mark for fishing, fowling and navigating," she explained and wanted to know if that included clamming.

Historically, pointed out Deborah Cook, clamming was always done in the harbor and she didn't think the law affected shellfishing.

Even with all the negative points voiced by the advisory committee, Martha Gjesteby, a member of the board of selectmen, said she thought the position should be filled. Selectmen voted Monday to recommend the town appropriate $720 for a shellfish constable.

She added that several people have expressed interest in serving the town in the capacity of shellfish warden.

"Why don't we add it onto someone's position, it's (the clam bed) so little," said Roth.

The group finally decided to allow Hartshorne to gather more information and visit the group again. At that time, they told him, if approved, the money can be taken as an emergency reserve fund transfer and waiting for the fall town meeting would not be necessary.

Recent advisory board actions taken

• At member Deborah Cook's request, the advisory committee reopened discussion on the proposed pay increase for town employees who are non union.

Earlier this spring the group ignored the personnel committee's suggested 3.5% increase and voted to propose only a 2% increase for workers.

This week members reversed their field and decided that 3.5% was fair and that is the amount they will propose at town meeting on the 27th of this month.

• A total of $1,432 was approved for Police Chief Noonan's new uniform and required medical tests.

The uniform includes a hat, shoes, trousers, shirts, a belt and a jacket and came to a total of $1,100.

• The group spoke briefly about possible committee positions that may be open later this year.

Both Peter O'Connor and Michael Putziger occupy appointed positions that expire soon.

Putziger said he was not sure if he would seek reappointment and O'Connor was not present at the meeting.

❑ Here's a news flash for you – the Second Congregational Church is having a big show May 22, under the direction of Joanne Fichtner (many of you remember all of the super shows she put on at Cohasset High School). Auditions will be held and rehearsals start in two weeks. Call Joanne for more information. If you cannot take part, mark the date so that you can see Cohasset's finest!

❑ If you see Martha and Arne Gjesteby smiling more than usual, be sure to congratulate them! The Gjestebys are grandparents again. This time to Olivia Katherine Gjesteby, who arrived Feb. 27 tipping the scales at a svelte 6 lbs., 9 oz., and measuring 20 inches long.

Katherine's parents are Nils and Janet Gjesteby of Winchester, Mass. Her paternal grandfather is William Kelly III of Beverly.

And lucky Katherine has great-grandparents available for those extra hugs. They are Mrs. William Kelly, Jr. of Beverly and Harry E. Barber, Jr. of Westborough.

Welcome to the world, Katherine and come and visit us in Cohasset soon!

❑ We get reports that there were a lot of Cohasset (or former Cohasset) faces enjoying the festivities at Bill Davenport's wedding to Shelagh Smith on Long Island just before Christmas. In addition to Bill, and Bill's sister Heather (who was one of the bridesmaids) were Bill's parents Bob of Black Horse Lane and Sally of Fort Myers, Florida. Author Jeff Giles and his wife Jennifer were there, along with Andy Long, Jim Wirth and Maureen Buckley. A great time was had by all!

Olivia Katherine Gjesteby

❑ Gary Smith, Jay Fiori and Brian St. John had a wonderful time in Graceland recently, and are SURE they spotted Elvis! They even bought jackets to mark the spot.

Gary Smith, Jay Fiori, and Brian St. John sport their "Elvis" jackets at the entrance to Graceland.

❑ After this snow-filled weekend, think spring and the 17th Cohasset Roadrace By the Sea that will be held April 4 (if the snow is gone by then, right?) at 1 p.m. starts at the Cohasset Common. The race is sponsored by the Cohasset Rotary Club, the funds raised go to the many in-town causes the club supports. The event is directed by Roy Fitzsimmons and Peter Logan, and there is also a 10 a.m. walk directed by Normandie Nigh starting at Sandy Beach and finishing there with a ragtime band and Glenn Pratt with his fire engine to bring them back to start the race. Long-sleeve shirts and free refreshments to all entrants; prizes for all classes.

Pre-registration ends March 30, so be sure to pick up your registration applications at Good Sport or Curtis Liquors or by writing, P.O. Box 36, Cohasset, 02025. Registered runners can pick up shirts and numbers at the Community Center on March 3 from 9 a.m. to noon.

This annual ritual of spring attracts over 800 runners and 300 walkers. The efforts and contributions of all town departments make this an event in which everyone of Cohasset can take pride. Volunteers from the high school, teen center and even a bake sale by the Council on Aging make it fun for everyone. Be sure you take part and take out your application early.

Cohasset's own Lisa McCarthy stands in her brand-new store, Crossing MAIN, 5 Main St., Hingham.

❑ Guess who was spotted at the Chart House last week? Fred and Margorie Howe! And, guess why? They were celebrating their 59th anniversary, if you can believe it! Imagine what a fine time they were having. We certainly congratulate them, a fine couple indeed!

Vivado/Walls

At a Dec. 27 double-ring ceremony at First Parish Church, Carol Elizabeth Walls, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas Walls of Cohasset, became the bride of Mario Fernando Vivado of Hull.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mario Vivado of La Paz, Bolivia.

The Rev. Edward Atkinson officiated. A reception followed at Old Derby Academy in Hingham.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Nancy Walls of Chicago as maid of honor and bridesmaids Jeanne Kenney of Dracut, Laura Durkin of Concord, and Jill Guzzi of Jamaica Plain. The flower girl was the bride's niece, Alexandra Hines of Rye, New York.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were the groom's brother Mauricio Vivado of Addison, Texas; the bride's brother, Jeffrey Walls of Jamaica Plain; and friends William Sheridan of New York City, Edward Purdy of Brookline, and Timothy Reed of Brookline.

The bride is a graduate of Cohasset High School and the University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth. She is employed as a student services coordinator at Tufts University School of Medicine.

Mrs. Mario Fernando Vivado

The groom attended the University of Miami and graduated from Boston University. He is a senior account manager with US TeleCenters in Boston.

After a wedding trip to South America and the Caribbean, the couple will make their home in Hull.

Storm of the century?

"There is a sumptuous variety about the New England weather that compels the stranger's admiration — and regret. The weather is always doing something there; always attending strictly to business; always setting up new designs and trying them on people to see how they will go. In the spring I have counted 136 different kinds of weather inside of 24 hours."

— Mark Twain, Dec. 22, 1876, at dinner of New England Society in New York.

How many of you woke up last Saturday morning with the certain knowledge that the world as we know it was about to come to an end shortly after noon?

How many of you woke up Sunday morning wondering what you were going to do with all those canned goods, batteries and candles you fought your neighbor to buy only a day to two before?

And how many of you right now are feeling a little sheepish because you fell for that "storm of the century" stuff the meteorologists fed us from their cherished "storm desks" in radio and TV studios, where every snowfall over an inch is labelled a "blizzard."?

A few inches of snow may have seemed like a cataclysm in Birmingham, Ala., and Tallahassee, Fla., but in Cohasset, at least, most of us watched a foot of snow fall over Saturday night and wondered what the hell all the fuss was about.

Call us old fogies if you wish but we can remember a time when storms were storms and blizzards were blizzards and never the twain did meet because blizzards required a foot of snow, gale winds and temperatures under 20 degrees Fahrenheit.

By that reckoning, we haven't had a real blizzard since 1947. Now there was the storm of the century. We can wonder what Dickie, Bruce and Harvey would have called it.

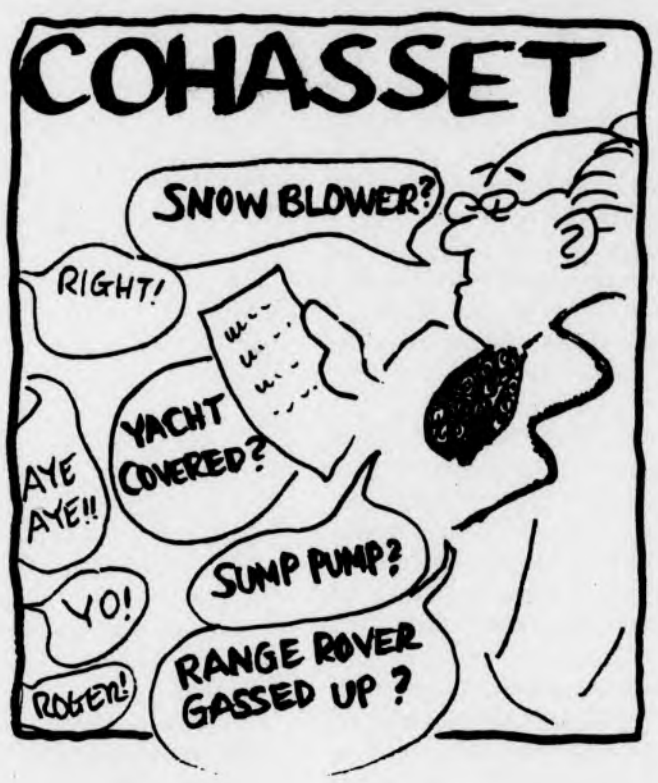
Here's how South Shore town's prepare for a coastal blizzard:



Concerns about park expressed

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to selectmen)
Dear Madam-Sirs:

I am writing to voice my deep concern over the proposed amusement park being contemplated in the town of Hull. While negotiations are still under way between the developer and the town, evidence points to the park winning approval. I do hope our town is monitoring this event closely, since it's going to dramatically impact those citizens of Cohasset who, as I do, reside in the park area. (Route 228, Jerusalem Rd., west corner).

If the developer's predictions come true regarding admissions, there is going to be chaos in our area. I want reassurance from my town officials that our rights will be protected. Hull may have the funds for their own control through developer contributions for police, traffic control and trash, but is my town prepared to do the same for its citizens? I mean protection against the hooligans, traffic jams and noise. I don't want my taxes to go up to pay for this added burden on Cohasset so somebody else can make a profit. I also don't want to go out picking up trash discarded by "visitors" to the park, nor do I wish an altercation with "visitors" blocking my driveway. Calls to our police from citizens in this area will be commonplace.

As with all private ventures, this one is also subject to possible failure. Has anyone addressed what will happen if the park goes bust? I imagine an amusement park ghost town.

Please! The time to speak out is now before it's built. Will you assure your fellow citizens that Cohasset will indeed protect them?

An acknowledgment of this letter would be greatly appreciated.

Thoughts on the war memorial

(The following letter was sent to selectmen; Noel Ripley, veteran's agent; and Austin Ahearn, president of the Cohasset Historical Military Memorial, Inc.)
To Whom it may concern:

I do not know if the March 9 article concerning the veterans memorial in Cohasset in the Patriot Ledger presented the situation accurately, but I will express my thoughts based on the contents of the article.

Veteran's memorials are proper honors provided to place defenders of our country on an elevated pedestal of honor for their services.

To place veterans in proper sequence of honor, the highest place should be given to those who have died in combat. The next level of honor should go to those who were injured in combat. The next lower level of honor goes to those who faced the enemy in battle conditions. To all these veterans a memorial should be provided.

When the condition of face to face military action and gunfire is stopped, any man or woman who thereafter enters military service should not be eligible for inclusion on a military memorial of war. They should be honored for service to their country, but not on a war memorial.

In view of the thoughts expressed above, it is my opinion that veterans who were actively in combat before and up until the gunfire stopped on V.J. day, should be listed on the proposed memorial, and no others.

This subject should be thought over very thoroughly by the Board of Selectmen, and they should give their opinion.

If their opinion puts a greater financial burden on the proponents of the memorial, then the selectmen should provide the additional money required.

All those who give military service to our country should be honored for their service to the country, but not on a war memorial unless in actual combat.

Student exchange trip was a success

To the Editor:

Last month during the school vacation, 25 students from Scituate and Cohasset High Schools participated in a Student Exchange trip to Getxo, Spain. Spanish teachers Mrs. Emilie Green, Scituate and Mr. Joseph Federico, Cohasset, chaperoned the trip.

I write to thank publicly Miss Mary Ellen Gallagher, Principal, Cohasset Junior-Senior High School, for facilitating the trip; and Mr. Federico and Mrs. Green

(See page 12)

Candidates' question of the week

Last week we invited all the candidates to speak to an issue of their choice.This is the final week of question of the week. We thank all the candidates who participated. The town election is May 1.

Ellery H. Clark, Jr.
library trustee

My selection of an issue of importance of personal choice is: How long will each Cohasseter live? How useful?

Who will win the Cohasset elections of the year 2000? How will you vote? Will you be a candidate?

About the year 1974 this candidate did an in-depth research project on longevity of Red Sox players. Pitchers by far lived the longest, with famous Smoky Joe Wood and Cy Young near the top.

As a group they concluded inherited genes, diet, exercise, physical fitness, youthful interest in life, following a pleasant occupation, working with younger players as a coach in later years, and religious faith were most important elements. On the avoidance list were: heavy drinking, smoking and a few others.

This is your life! It is a precious gift. Your way of life is for you to select and follow. Do your best to be around in 2000, and still be an active, community-minded citizen. Good luck!

Nancy Sandell school committee

This is an excellent opportunity to inform you of a major problem that exists in our school system and to tell you how the School Committee is addressing it. At our budget deliberations, all three principals spoke of their need for additional adjustment counselors, because of emotional, behavioral, and learning problems with their students. In spite of other critical budgetary needs, they felt that this additional professional help was their highest priority.

As a town, we must deal with the fact that society's problems do exist in Cohasset. We are not immune to family instability, drug abuse, domestic violence, child abuse and neglect. Teachers and administrators deal with these problems on a daily basis. They are particularly concerned because these problems affect the children's behavior, attitudes, language, self-esteem, and emotional stability. This, in turn, affects their ability to learn and also the learning environment for all students.

Seven years ago the School Committee hired one adjustment counselor for the two elementary schools. Since 1986, problems have intensified and this year we were asked to fund two additional counselors system-wide. Because of budgetary constraints, we voted to fund only one new position.

As a current School Committee member running for re-election, I would like to thank the community for its support in working together to help solve these critical problems. The contributions of the Town Drug and Alcohol Committee, the Social Service League, and the PSO have been significant. I would also like to thank the Board of Selectman and the Advisory Committee for their vote to recommend our budget, which allows for the adjustment counselor.

Jane O. Goedecke
Selectman

The Board of Selectmen will propose two non-binding resolutions to Town Meeting March 27. These resolutions have to do with state aid to cities and towns and are of vital interest to all towns struggling with the economy and the limits of Proposition 2 1/2.

The state lottery was instituted for the purpose of creating revenue for cities and towns. Since 1990 the state has routinely diverted all the growth in lottery proceeds away from towns and put it into the state's general fund. By Fiscal Year 1992 $75 million or nearly 20 percent of total lottery proceeds were lost to local communities. Our Board will propose a resolution instructing the legislature to guarantee that the cities and towns receive the full $47 million growth in lottery revenues.

A similar situation exists with the gasoline excise. Over the last several years the state has been quite erratic in meeting its commitment to distribute 15 percent of gas tax collections to cities and towns. Our resolution supports proposed legislation that would ensure a fair and predictable share of state gas tax collections for distribution to cities and towns for use on local roads. About 80 percent of Massachusetts lane-miles are maintained locally. This legislation would earmark 10 cents of the 21 cent gas tax rate (47.6 percent of collections) for local roads.

I urge Cohasset citizens to attend Town Meeting March 27. Much important business will be conducted. This year we will also have the opportunity to share our opinions on larger state issues with our elected state representatives.

Meet the candidates

Come meet the candidates at Beechwood Congregational Church's annual Election Supper Thursday, March 25 at 6:30 p.m.

Dinner will include roast beef, mashed potatoes, string beans, Harvard beets, cole slaw, rolls, dessert and a beverage.

Tickets are $6.99 for adults and $3.50 for children. Call 383-1298 or 545-0637 to reserve your tickets.

Cohasset's town meeting is March 27, town elections will be held April 4.

WWII vets search

Georgine Butman of the George H. Mealy American Legion Post 118 Women's Auxiliary, working in conjunction with Austin Ahearn, president of Cohasset Military Memorial Inc., and Veteran's Agent Noel Ripley, is searching for names of those who were part of the occupational forces from V-J Day (Sept. 2, 1945) to Dec. 31, 1946. The names will be added to the WWII honor roll planned as part of the Veteran's Memorial at Veterans' Memorial Park in Cohasset Harbor.

Veterans (or their families) should send a copy of their discharge papers to Georgine Butman, PO Box 22, Cohasset 02025.

Anyone with information about veterans who served in the occupational forces should contact Georgine or Bruce Butman, Noel Ripley, or Austin Ahearn.

Tax deductible donations for the military memorial may be sent to Cohasset Historical Military Memorial, Inc., PO Box 701, Cohasset 02025.

What we're doing about health care costs

The cost of health care is on everyone's lips these days. It is a complex subject because it deals not only with economics and government, but with our societal beliefs and fundamental approaches to life and death. But—beyond the global picture—you deserve to know that what is happening right here on the South Shore should be a point of pride.

South Shore Hospital is committed to bringing value to health care. We define value as the balancing relationship between quality and cost. And we are doing our best to prove that the quality of our hospital and of the health care professionals associated with us is topnotch. We are convinced that a comparison of our costs, in combination with our quality, establishes our services as value-added.

Beyond our own convictions, we are leading the way in the Commonwealth to develop sophisticated new clinical data systems that will compare our quality and costs to other hospitals throughout the state and nation. The data will also be used to assist South Shore Hospital physicians in developing practice patterns that will reduce employer health costs.

We are not the only hospital to have made progress. While health insurance premiums and the cost of prescription drugs have risen steadily, hospitals have made significant headway toward holding down costs in recent years. This reduced pace is due in large part to the increase in outpatient surgical procedures and home-health services, resulting in a significant drop in the numbers of patients hospitalized and their lengths of stay.

Why then, does the nation's overall tab for health care continue to increase?

There are several factors. The most important is our aging population and the increased numbers of people who need care, many of whom are very sick. Patients admitted to hospitals today require the most intensive and expensive medical care. Locally, South Shore residents are growing older and sicker. In the past 10 years, the number of residents over age 65 has increased by 30 percent, and this group will continue to grow at an annual rate of 2 percent. These seniors generally have the most significant and costly health care needs. At the same time, the need for costly acute or long-term care is increasingly a problem for patients with a terminal illness like AIDS.

Many new technologies we take for granted offer hope for longer and better lives, but they carry a high price tag. Advances such as organ transplantation, dialysis for chronic kidney failure, sophisticated diagnostic technologies like CT and MRI scanning, account for at least half the increase in costs over the last 20 years.

At South Shore Hospital, we have realized cost savings through the growth of outpatient medical treatments, especially same day surgery. Last year, our surgeons performed 6,500 same-day procedures —nearly 60 percent of our 11,000 total surgeries. In a move to increase patient access to outpatient surgical services, South Shore Hospital is the new sponsor of the same-day surgery center at 780 Main Street (Route 18), in South Weymouth. The addition of the center's four ambulatory operating suites are enabling the hospital to significantly improve our cost-effective outpatient surgery capacity. Patient cost, convenience and comfort are the biggest winners.

Another example of the hospital's commitment to cost savings is the new waste disposal/energy recovery system which harnesses steam to reduce the hospital's winter fuel bill by up to 30 percent.

And, through our affiliation with South Shore Visiting Nurse & Health Services, we provide patients with nursing care and other medical services at home, rather than in the more expensive hospital or other institutional settings. Last year more than 200,000 care-giving visits were provided.

As one of the most efficiently managed hospitals in Massachusetts, we continue to seek cost-efficient ways to deliver care without sacrificing quality. During the past several months, hospital department heads and nurse managers have been conducting a comprehensive evaluation of how to even better contain costs while continuing our focus on the quality of patient care. All areas of the hospital have been examined to determine how our medical technologies, equipment, and services can be improved to enhance patient care while making the most efficient use of financial resources. Everyone will benefit from these efforts.

By expanding our spectrum of cost effective services such as same-day surgery procedures and home care, we have become the region's leader in providing value-added health care.

Quality care provided cost-effectively—value is our mission and our commitment to you.

We welcome your comments on this or any other articles in this series. Please call the Public Affairs Department at (617) 340-8564, or write us.

Bottom line for music store is profitability

To the Editor:

In regard to potential Library Trustee Ellery Clerk Jr's Candidate's Corner response which appeared in the March edition, I present this letter not as an occasional Mariner correspondent but rather from the perspective of a former Cohasset business owner and resident. Mr. Clark's observation that an operative music store, among various other types of business ventures which he describes, should increase the town's tax base, is accurate. The fact is, however, that there remains some doubt as to whether a music store can support itself in Cohasset, and for good reason. In the mid-1970's, the last record store in the Village went out of business, and with it went the town's recorded music spending dollars until Cohasset Music's opening in 1990.

It should not be inferred that no one had the idea of starting up a music store in Cohasset for nearly two decades; less than two years ago, the corporation that owns Strawberries examined the feasibility of installing a record store in a Scituate strip mall on Route 3A. Their demographic research indicated, apparently, that the region would be undesirable to be expected to support such a store. It would seem that an area along the stretch of 3A in which no music store can be found within a radius of several miles would be a reasonably good place to open up. Any other area of Cohasset besides Cushing Highway would seem exponentially more difficult to succeed in, if for no other reason than greatly decreased traffic, in comparison. The recessionary entertainment dollar, though, which some theorists claim is spent even less frugally during hard times, was found to have been stretched far enough already. This decision came as no surprise to me, having found a benchmark to have already been established by the two major national ticket agencies stating that Sears in Braintree and Hanover are perfectly well suited to cover the needs of the Cohasset area ticket buying public. Geographically, it doesn't seem to make sense, until the demographics are examined; then this type of territorial marketing philosophy becomes understandable. Unless a future business owner has virtually unlimited capital to pour into a record store, or probably virtually any other luxury-oriented start-up venture in the town, he may seek to locate in a denser population zone, particularly one with a less seasonal clientele base, even if that means dealing with heavier competition, and regardless of how "business-friendly" the community is reputed to be. The bottom line is profitability.

So just how really "needed" is a music store in this little town? Admittedly, this is not Caribou, Maine, and cows for miles. A ten minute ride to Scituate Harbor and you can buy a guitar, an amp, a keyboard, a mike, a mixer, and throw in a set of drums. Fifteen minutes out of Cohasset and you're in Hanover, in the midst of three competing record stores, and without even going out of town, don't forget Woolworth's—you might even get lucky there.

Mr. Clark points out that there exists a need for pre-recorded music for each and every age group, from teens to seniors, and that genres such as classical, country, instrumental, and rock should be represented. A good record store, unless its intention is to alienate a particular social group like some stores I've been in, even if it's not part of a franchise chain, should also include jazz, soundtracks, international, and folk music. Cohasset Music, which was liquidated last spring, for those who may remember, included compact discs and the newer technological formats such as digital audiotape, and sheet music, and all that Mr. Clark suggested, except musical instruments.

Preferably, a new music store would not, in fact, be seasonal, though even that would be a start. Assuming the new business would be year-round, the business owner who is willing to try to start up a music store in Cohasset will have to be prepared for those occasional cold winter mornings, enduring the post-Christmas rush doldrums when the only customer looking for a cassette is Dick the mailman, not a very attractive proposition for the incoming entrepreneur in these uncertain economic times.

It may be some time until Cohasset can claim to have its own music store again, but when it does happen, the owner, whoever it may be, might serve himself favorably by becoming entwined in the arts network within the town, and creating extensions as seen fit. Cooperative programs such as the South Shore Art Center's student exhibits and the special interest taken in talented young artists by people like Cohasset High School Art Director Colleen Lucas and Music Director Colleen Wheeler, with whom I had the good fortune of working, illustrate the potential for improving the state of the arts right here in Cohasset. Perhaps the best reason why a new music store is needed in Cohasset is not even so much for convenience in the buying of music-related products as much as it would have the potential to serve as a natural cultural bridge to the Arts.

Healthcare program slated

Tuesday, March 23, the Cohasset Democratic Town Committee presents an informational program on universal healthcare. The program is at 7:30 p.m. at Trueblood Hall, First Parish House, 23 No. Main St., Cohasset.

Guest speakers will include Robert E. Restuccia, executive director of Health Care For All (HCFA) and David Danielson of CPPAX.

HCFA is the leading consumer advocate for comprehensive healthcare reform in Massachusetts. Restuccia, a graduate of Harvard University and the JFK School of Government, will speak on the healthcare problems that confront us all and how, through personal advocacy and community organization, we can help bring about necessary reform.

Danielson will discuss the single-payer healthcare plan and how the Clinton administration, under the direction of Hillary Rodham Clinton, is progressing on their plans for healthcare reform.

This program is open to the general public. Anyone interested in learning more on this important issue is encouraged to attend.

Exchange trip a success . . .

for chaperoning the group. Mr. Federico and Mrs. Green are masters of organization, and they covered every possible detail in planning the trip. As a result, all went well. As chaperones, all the students agreed, the team was perfection. They allowed the students independence while keeping them mindful of their responsibilities. Then the teachers added their own personal touches of TLC — the excellent hotel in Brussels and the fine farewell dinner. We could go on forever in praise of these two intelligent, professional, caring teachers.

The shared experiences of the Scituate High School history teacher's presentation on Basque history and Cohasset High School art teacher Coleen Lucas' presentation on El Greco, Picasso, Dali and the Spanish School of Art, added still another dimension to this excellent trip. Like other cooperative ventures between Scituate and Cohasset High School, this trip was highly successful.

Much credit goes to Miss Gallagher, to the teachers, to Mr. Stephen Hart, and to the school committee for implementing this cooperative exchange among people, towns, and cultures.

Gymnasts will be careful when they medal with Hettstrom

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Gymnast Erica Hettstrom went into this season's South Shore League Meet without anticipating earning a medal.

And why should she have.

Just a 14-year-old, eighth-grader, Erica wasn't exactly on a tear as the meet neared. She still wasn't 100 percent after sustaining an elbow injury earlier in the season when she landed straight-armed on a back tuck. Erica figured she'd finish somewhere in the neighborhood of last year's eighth-place in the bars. She'd be satisfied with that performance. A medal? Maybe next year.

"I wasn't expecting to win anything at all," Erica said. "I went into it to have fun. To go up against all those older kids, I really didn't think I had much of a chance."

She thought wrong.

Erica, who started gymnastics four years ago after watching her older sister Tara compete, saved the best for last as she scored her two highest marks of the season in the floor exercise (7.9) and bars (7.25) to win two fifth-place medals, and a host of admirers in the process.

The euphoria Erica felt following her double-medal afternoon was a far cry from the frustration of not being able to compete until after Christmas Vacation. Because of her injured elbow, Erica wasn't able to apply any pressure to it without a great deal of pain. X-rays showed there were no broken bones, but there was considerable swelling in the area. She was told by her doctor to take a break from gymnastics until the injury healed.

Impatient and frustrated, Erica waited just 10 days before training again. It proved to be too early a return. The pain came back almost immediately, forcing Erica back to the sidelines. If not for the conditioning exercises she was doing and watching her teammates perform, she would have had a harder time dealing with the layoff.

Eighth-grader Erica Hettstrom wears one of the fifth-place medals she won during the South Shore League meet in gymnastics.

(Photo by Ruthann Sargent)

"I went to all the meets and I just wanted to go out and do my routines," Erica said. "I wanted to go and cheer them on. I was happy with how they did."

Erica came back 10 days later. Finally, instead of experiencing the throbbing pain in her elbow, she felt no discomfort and was able to start serious training again.

In her first meet back on January 4, Erica scored a more than credible 28.15 in the all-around competition with scores of 7.65 on the beam, 6.85 (bars), 7.15 (horse) and 6.5 (floor).

"That was a very decent score," said head coach Ruthann Sargent, "especially after coming back from the injury."

Erica continued to improve in the 10 remaining meets, although she hadn't yet reached her top form of the season. Her performance in the league meet showed just how talented Erica is and how important she will be to next year's team now that All-Star Tara Gallagher has completed her high school career.

Erica and several other CHS gymnasts are currently working out under Sargent's watchful eye at the Community Center. She averages two hours, three nights a week and has made further strides since the league meet.

"She's so talented," Sargent said. "Just from the end of the season to now, there has been so much improvement."

Erica plans to juggle gymnastics with her first season of high school softball. She began tryouts this week.

"I've always liked softball and have done it recreationally in the past," she said. "I just wanted to take it one step further."

Sargent expects Erica's bar scores to be higher next year when she adds the full difficulty factor. Erica will also be one of the squad's gymnasts performing in the all-around competition on a consistent basis. Sargent believes too that the league should take notice of Erica and not overlook her the way many gymnasts made the mistake of doing in the league meet.

"I think she's going to be a great gymnast," she said. "A lot of the people she was competing against were ninth through twelfth graders. She has the drive and determination. Erica will be one of the gymnasts to watch in the next couple of years."

Erica is looking forward to the upcoming seasons as much as Sargent.

"We have a young team," she said. "I just want to do my best and beat my scores from this year. I like the competition. I enjoy working individually at first, but in the end you're doing it from the team."

In the great baseball movie "Bull Durham" veteran catcher "Crash" Davis (Kevin Costner) gives a lesson in how to deal with the press to rookie pitcher "Nuke" LaLoosh (Tim Robbins).

Among his gems, "I'm just glad to be here" and "We have to take things one game at a time."

Apparently, high school coaches undergo a similar briefing in how to deal with wonderful sports reporters like ourselves.

The following are quotes we hear too many times during the season. We will also provide a laymen's translation of what the quotes actually mean.

"When these two teams play, you can throw the records out"—This means one or both of the teams has a record that would make the Dallas Mavericks laugh. It is usually heard around the big Thanksgiving football game.

"We have to keep doing the things that got us here"—This means a team has to stick with its usual bland style of play. It is almost always uttered by coaches of football teams that cannot pass the ball, basketball coaches whose teams cannot shoot the ball or baseball coaches whose teams cannot hit the ball. It is very similar to the famous, "We have to stay within ourselves" quote.

"You have to be in it, to win it"—This quote rhymes so it makes coaches sound almost hip. This quote always surfaces around state tourney time. Apparently, if a team is no longer in the state tournament, they cannot win any more games.

"On any given day, any one team can beat any other team"—This quote means a very good team is about to play a very bad team. If the very good team is not careful the very bad team will beat them. It also implies some sort of metaphysical or planetary alignment is needed to win a basketball game. "The moon's extra gravitational pull forced too many turnovers on our side," would be an example of this.

"We just didn't get the bounces out there and they did"—This means a team got creamed by their opponents. It is useful in explaining why the baseball bounced off their opponents' bats and over the centerfield fence five times during the game.

"We gave 110 percent"—Think this one over. One-hundred percent is the most effort anyone can give. Now add another 10 percent. What do you get? The dumbest and most over-used quote of them all.

"It's going to be a rebuilding season"— ie. We lost everybody and their grandmother to graduation and we'll be lucky to win half our games.

"We're going into the tournament with no pressure on us"— a favorite of basketball coaches who enter their team in the open tourney, despite owning a record that would make a goat gag. What the coach is really doing is preparing his team not to feel bad when it gets the tar kicked out of it in the preliminary round. The Rockland girls varsity basketball team is a glaring exception.

Sports medicine department offers alternative for injured athletes

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

BRAINTREE—A cross-country runner begins to feel pain in his knee which turns out to be tendinitis. The quarterback of a championship team dislocates the shoulder of his throwing arm when he is thrown to the ground by a defensive lineman. A tennis player comes down with a case of "tennis elbow."

If any one of these injuries were sustained by a college or professional athlete, they'd know right away an athletic trainer would be there to provide immediate attention to the injury before being the player sees or doctor, or in more serious injuries, is transported to a hospital.

But a high school athlete does not always have a trainer at his or her beckoned call. Gradually an injury can become worse, setting the athlete up for an unwanted vacation from the sport and weeks, sometimes months, of frustration in dealing with the injury.

The personnel of the Sports Medicine Department at Braintree Hospital know this only too well. And they've chosen to do something about it.

"It seems college and professional athletes are taken care of wonderfully," said the hospital's Sports Medicine Marketing Specialist, Larry Fitzpatrick. "It's the high schools that don't get it (proper attention to injuries)."

Beginning with its first contract with Brockton High School in 1986, the department has provided certified athletic trainers to a handful of local high schools. Braintree, Abington, Dedham, Stoughton, Durfee, Whitman-Hanson and Avon all have contracts with Braintree Hospital. The department provides an athletic trainer to the schools for a certain amount of hours, depending on the budget situation of that particular athletic department.

The program is unique in that it is flexible when it comes to preparing a contract for the schools. Several school departments reluctantly had to trim from their athletic budgets. Athletic trainers were often times involved in those cuts. Through Braintree Hospital, however, the trainers can be utilized by the schools in a way that fits into the budget.

"We try to fit into the budget as much as they can," Fitzpatrick said. "Some schools do creative financing. It (funds) is not always out of the school budget."

"Schools are in a terrible state, budget-wise," agreed Kathy Fox, the director of the sports medicine program. "We try to come up with a budget to fit their needs."

The trainer is available to every team, from the freshman girls' soccer squad right on up to varsity football. When it comes to sports injuries, the sports medicine department doesn't discriminate according to age or ability.

"We work with all the teams, at all levels," Fitzpatrick said. "Not just football. It makes the athletes feel special. We're sending a person out into the community who has a keen awareness of physical therapy and sports medicine."

The presence of an athletic trainer at Brockton High School proved to cut down on serious injuries. After two years, injuries that kept athletes out of action was 35 percent.

At Braintree High School, Athletic Trainer Jeri Anderson, 26, works five days a week for two hours a day, including games. The high school has a five-year contract with the school. Anderson has been at BHS for three years.

"It's excellent," said Athletic Director

Skippers' sharp-shooter

He continued his "groove" and was as hot as any playing in the division during Cohasset's three-game run. Against Cathedral, Bilodeau made good on five 3-pointers within a three-minute span. When Westwood finally bumped the Skippers from the tournament in the semifinal round, Bilodeau had averaged 24 points a game while seeing only limited action because of an asthma condition.

"He was the sixth man all year and accepted the role unselfishly," said head coach Ron Ford.

Ford used Bilodeau sparingly in the beginning of the season until his conditioning improved. Bilodeau would play for five-minute stretches and wind up with close to 13 points per game. As the season continued, Ford gave him more minutes, while still monitoring any signs of his asthma acting up. Bilodeau's season-high for playing time was a modest 22 minutes.

In a round-about way, Bilodeau's asthma made him an ideal sixth man. Ford would put his starting five on the floor for the first five to eight minutes until he turned to Bilodeau. This enabled the Skippers to get into the flow of the game before Bilodeau took his first shot.

"I like to establish some things offensively," Ford said. "The kids are the most tired in the first five minutes and that would help Paul, who was fresh coming off the bench. He's better off playing less, because as a shooter, if you get tired, the shots are affected."

And what Bilodeau lacked in raw talent he made up with a strong, physical game.

"In our league," Ford said, "I think he was the physically toughest player. He never was a football player but he played basketball like a football player."

Even more impressive than his play and toughness on the court this season was the way Bilodeau changed his attitude from his junior year. Last year he was averaging 11 points a game before low grades made him ineligible to play. While he was on the team, Ford said he wasn't the easiest player to coach.

This season, though, was different. "He became a leader instead of a problem," Ford said. "This kid had his last chance and he made the most of it. He started to become somewhat of a role model. It was a great come-back story."

Bilodeau has hinted he would like to attend Thayer Academy next year, although his plans are still up in the air. The Braintree prep school made it to the Independent League finals this season and Bilodeau is impressed with the basketball program.

"I know one of the point guards as Thayer and he told me it's a good school," he said. "I just want to have a good season."

Ford would like to see Bilodeau attend a prep school for two years and bear down on his studies while playing basketball. He believes Bilodeau can play Division 3 ball or Division 2 if he gets into the right program.

"Because he's a scorer," Ford said, "he could step right out and contribute right away."

Well, maybe not right away. There are those eight minutes Bilodeau may have to sit before pumping in the 3-pointers.

Sports medicine . . .

Josef Schuhwerk, "because not only does she treat our athletes, but she's also a therapist. The kids can then receive further treatment at the hospital."

Schuhwerk said Anderson has built a "good working relationship with the coaches" during her three years and has been nothing but an asset to the athletic program.

"She does an outstanding job," he said. She's good with the kids and they relate with her. The coaches also trust her judgement."

And like all of Braintree Hospital's trainers, Anderson is available to every athlete in BHS.

Unfortunately some injuries are more serious than others and an athlete has no choice but to miss a certain amount of games. Several of the athletes seek treatment at the hospital's rehabilitation room. The room includes state-of-the-art equipment for strengthening muscle groups, increasing range of motion, balance and flexibility. Rehabilitation programs are designed specifically for the athlete, depending on the injury and what sport he or she is involved in.

"We want to create their rehabilitation around their sport," Fitzpatrick said. "We try to get the kids back to their sport as fast as possible, but safety is the bottom line."

Fox said the staff of the sports medicine department "sees the gamut" of injuries. Interestingly enough, there is no one sport that has the most injuries for consecutive years. In 1991 knee injuries sustained by girls playing high school soccer topped the list, while football-related injuries had the most in 1992.

Whitman-Hanson's Susan Cole has undergone rehabilitation at the hospital for two separate injuries. Cole, the co-captain of the Panthers' soccer and basketball teams, had back pain two years ago caused by two bulging disks in her back. She went to Braintree Hospital and went through an array of back-strengthening exercises and ultra-sound, three days a week for four months.

"It helped because I had muscle spasms and it controlled that," Cole said of her back rehabilitation.

Early last month Cole became injured again when she slipped on icy stairs and tore the anterior crucia ligament in her knee. Although surgery will be required to mend a broken bone in her knee, Cole has been able to work out on the hospital's Nautilus equipment, twice a week and has several therapists encouraging her.

"They know I can't play so they encourage you a lot," Cole said.

Cole said her knee is "still very sore" but she'll be able to play in the Division 2 South Sectional Tournament on a limited basis.

More and more recreational athletes have surfaced, Fox has found.

"I think society is becoming more health conscience," she said. With people juggling careers and families, they jump right into exercise programs rather than beginning at a level suited to their fitness. They become injured as a result.

"A lot of people just don't know how to begin an exercise program," Fox said. "It's a hard thing for people to find time to fit exercise into their busy schedules. And for that reason they may not warm up enough."

During the week the gym room is busiest, Fox said, from 3:30 to 9 pm.

"When half of the therapists (there is a total of 35 out-patient therapists) are here and all the patients, you can't move in here. It's crazy," she said.

Fox believes the high school athletes begin to trickle in at that time because they continue to show up for practice, even though they may not be able to participate.

Therapists encourage the athletes to continue to be part of the team, and, when possible, try to find a minimal level of training they can accomplish without aggravating the injury further.

"Emotionally it helps them to keep practicing with the team because that's where many high school kids find their identity," Fox said.

On the whole, athletes are easier to treat than non-athletes because "they're very motivated people who are healthy and want to get back fast," Fitzpatrick said.

Probably the most important piece of equipment to test the progress of a patient is the Isokinetics. The unit has a computer that provides data on an athletes strength, range of motion and muscle fatigue. Data is kept on every patient, which allows the therapist to know when the athlete can resume regular training or competition.

Along with the rehabilitation, the sports medicine department also holds various clinics. The taping clinic for athletic trainers received an overwhelming response. Staff members also participate in health fairs and sports expos. This year four members will tend to finishers of the Boston Marathon in April.

"We're just trying to educate people," Fitzpatrick said. "It's really critical. You wouldn't believe how much bad information there is out there."

Register for girls' softball

Registration for the Cohasset Girls' Softball League will soon be under way as the season is set to commence May 1. The league is comprised of Division 1, grades four, five and six, and Division 2, grades seven, eight and nine. Division 1 consists of six teams and will play games Tuesday or Thursday evenings at either the Barnes Field, the High School field or Beechwood Ballpark. Division 2 will consist of four teams which will play each other Saturday afternoons at either of the above mentioned fields. Division 2 will also host Norwell each Thursday at Beechwood Ballpark. The season will end the last week of June.

The Cohasset Girls' Softball League is an instructional league. Aside from lots of fun the league will provide the girls with the opportunity to learn and improve their softball skills. Another important league objective is to promote good sportsmanship. Each year an evaluation session is held in order to assess participants' strengths allowing for balanced teams. This year the evaluation session will be held May 1 at the High School front field.

The girls will also enter a float and march in the Harborfest Parade Sunday, June 20. A picnic and softball jamboree will take place at the conclusion of the parade.

Registration forms will soon be available at the Deer Hill School and Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School. For further information call Lisa Smith at 383-2510 or Rose Collins at 383-0760.

Alzheimer's group meets

Dr. Sherry E. Johnson will address "Grieving for the Loss of Self" at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, March 31, at the Hersey House, 229 North St., Hingham.

Dr. Johnson is a grief therapist at the South Shore Counseling Center and is author of After a Child Dies; Counseling Bereaved Families. Johnson will suggest strategies for coping with the particular stress of dealing with Alzheimer's disease which causes progressive, intellectual impairment. Alzheimer's disease affects an estimated four million Americans.

The Alzheimer's Disease Support Group of the South Shore meets monthly to provide information and peer support. It provides referrals for physicians, attorneys, diagnostic centers, day care and nursing homes as well as offering a monthly newsletter and a library of current information. All meetings are free and open to the public. For more information, call (617) 749-5417.

Student reports

Susan Terry, the children's librarian at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, in conjunction with the humanities faculty at the Cohasset High School, has organized a collection of books to help ninth grade humanities students with their research projects.

The assortment of books related to ancient Greek and Roman civilizations is on reserve downstairs at the library. The topics vary from ancient art and architecture to costumes, games, medicine and society. The students take notes from this collection as part of their humanities project.

A gallery instructor at the Museum of Fine Arts, Mrs. Terry also presents a pre-gallery slide lecture for the humanities class at the high school, before the class visits the MFA galleries to view the sculpture, vases, jewelry, paintings and coins of ancient civilizations. The students are required to read a historical novel as a part of their research project, as well.

Some of the titles on reserve at the library are Men of Athens by Rex Wormer, The Story of Greece by Mary MacGregor and The Buildings of Ancient Greece by Richard Leacroft.

After in-depth research, final projects are completed by the humanities class. The final presentation differs among students. Their efforts are always imaginative and creative. Some students choose to recreate ancient cities or to design costumes while others re-create and decorate Grecian urns.

The library staff enjoys helping humanity students with their projects and is looking forward to the tenth grade immigration project which is about to begin.

business notes

William F. Shutt of Hanson has been named assistant vice president and branch manager of Bank of Boston's Cohasset branch.

Shutt is new to Bank of Boston but worked as a branch manager and loan officer for Rockland Trust Company for 30 years — 27 in Hull and three in Marshfield.

A native of Hull, Shutt attended the American Institute of Banking (now known as the New England Banking Institute) and holds banking certificates from Williams College and the University of New Hampshire.

Shutt, a member of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, is married to Cheryl Shutt, a phlebotomist. The Shutts have two children.

Youville Hospital & Rehabilitation Center, Cambridge, has appointed James H. Walsh IV of Cohasset, an overseer of the hospital's St. Marguerite d'Youville Foundation and also has named him co-chair of the committee organizing the 1993 Tip O'Neill Youville Golf Tournament, which benefits the hospital.

Walsh is director of marketing for Walsh Brothers, Inc., an engineering and contracting firm in Cambridge. He has been in marketing, safety and community relations at Walsh Brothers for eight years and has been involved in the major restoration of Boston's Wang Center, as well as projects at other well-known Boston institutions, including Harvard University, Park Street Church, Boston University, McLean Hospital, Mount Auburn Hospital, and Youville Hospital and Rehabilitation Center.

He has degrees from Northeastern University and Wentworth Institute of Technology, graduated from Catholic Memorial High School in West Roxbury and is a member of the Association of General Contractors' supervisory training program and safety committee and vice chair of Youville's Chairmen's Council. He is a member of the Northeastern University Athletic Hall of Fame. Following up on the latter distinction, Walsh played five years of professional hockey with the Buffalo Sabres, Hartford Whalers, and Los Angeles Kings.

Mr. Ford attributes Barbara's success to her professionalism, good working relationship with fellow brokers and a keen sense of her clients needs, which leads to a high volume of repeat business through referrals and satisfied customers.

Barbara is a member of Hallmark 100's Cohasset office, past director of the Plymouth County Board of Realtors, a relocation specialist and an exclusive agent for Sotheby's International Realty.

Cohasset resident Richard P. Campbell has been appointed by Massachusetts Bar Association president Elaine M. Epstein to the association's criminal justice section council.

Massachusetts Bar Association sections provide lawyers with up to date information on specific areas of law, monitor law-related legislation, sponsor professional education programs and provide information on the law for the general public.

The Massachusetts Bar Association is the 20,000-member statewide attorney's professional organization.

Dr. Rustam K. DeVitre spoke at the 18th annual Yankee Dental Congress held in Boston in January. More than 23,000 dental professionals attended the congress, the fifth largest dental meeting in the United States.

Dr. Vitre of Cohasset spoke on endodontics. He practices at 392 Commonwealth Avenue.

Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker is pleased to announce that Lora M. Labonte has recently joined its Cohasset Office as a sales associate

Prior to joining Hunneman & Company-Coldwell Banker, Lora has had more than 30 years of experience consulting in travel and meeting planning, and has had involvement in the development of residential subdivisions.

She is past president of Central Massachusetts Employees club, and is a member of the Pan Am Advisory Board. She was also Ambassador to Australia and New Zealand for People to People.

An avid traveler and explorer, Lora and her husband, Alan, live in Cohasset.

school's in

by Ed Leary

The Red Sox are on the television, (no question that pennant fever is only weeks away!) We're gaining 16 minutes of sunlight every week now, and I can feel the pressure of sunshine on one side of my face as I leave the high school in the afternoon. Can anyone deny that Spring ' s siren song is heard almost every day now? Of course, I was standing up to my knees in snow just yesterday. I hope everyone survived "THE BLIZZARD" with minimal inconvenience. It seems that Christmas was a scant two or three weeks ago, but much has been going on in the schools.

Ironically, while I began by noting the awakening of Nature, my major news has to do with the introduction of some significant technology into the curriculum at the high school.

The imminent opening of the new high school writing lab represents an important step forward for the students in Cohasset. The wiring is complete; the new furniture has been set up, and the 18 new computers have been unpacked to be installed this week. After much research and consultation with various sales representatives, Mr. Kite, Chairman of the English Department, concurred with the Merrimack Educational Consultants and chose the Apple LC model for several reasons. In the first place, the machine is designed for simplicity of operation and ease of learning, probably the most important characteristics for a tool that will be used by all levels of the junior-senior high school student body.

Furthermore, the LC's enhanced memory will allow future expansion of its capabilities and functions, including the possibility of networking with the math computer lab. As an English teacher, I know full well how a good word processing program frees the students from the more tedious tasks of revision and allows them to become more actively involved in the writing/thinking process itself.

This is not to say that the lab will be limited to English classes only. The music department is planning to explore the world of computerized music composition, and the Social Studies Department is investigating a number of history simulations that will allow a student to see, for example, how different strategies may have affected the outcome of World War II. The Technology Education Department will utilize the lab for graphic arts and desktop publication, with the possibility of computer-assisted drafting (CAD) in the future.

Almost a year in the making, the lab has been the result of the collaborative efforts of many people. In fact, the funding has come from a variety of sources as well. In addition to money from the regular school department budget, some of the funds were allocated from the Massachusetts per student block grant program. To me, the most laudable aspect of the lab' s birth has been the involvement of the PSO. Through a series of fundraising efforts last year, including the participation of many businesses in town and the contributions of many private citizens, literally thousands of dollars were raised to put the lab over the top, enabling us to purchase not just adequate equipment, but the best computer for the students of Cohasset. I can't express how much this continued support is appreciated by the staff at the various schools.

Look for an open house this Spring, when we can show off the newest addition to the educational process at CHS!

In contrast to the world of the future that computers represent, the ninth grade has just culminated three months of studying the classical worlds of Greece and Rome world with a trip to the Museum of Fine Arts. Luckily, one member of our community, Mrs. Terry, is a guide at the museum. Before the trip to Boston, she visits with slides of the important exhibits in order to prepare the classes for the experience of Doric and Corinthian columns, Roman mummies, jewelry, Grecian urns.

As a follow-up, students are now presenting oral projects that incorporate research skills and interdisciplinary work with the Living Arts Department. Individuals have produced models of Greek and Roman architecture, displays of clothing, decorative arts, etc.

Speaking of the arts, you might want to talk to Linda Stevens at Joseph Osgood; she's had a busy fall semester. In addition to a course entitled "Creative Thinking," intended to improve the instruction of problem-solving skills, she completed a mini-semester course on puppetry at Lesley College and developed techniques for using puppets to supplement classroom instruction. In February she attended a series of workshops at the Boston Children's Museum on the arts of China. Held in conjunction with the Chinese Cultural Connection of Boston, activities included painting, sculpture, the Arts Curriculum in Chinese schools, the arts in daily life, and shadow puppetry.

February was also a busy month for Colleen Lucas and Colleen Wheeler. In collaboration with musician Sharon Weber, the Colleens presented "A Woman's Life" at mobius, a Boston gallery that specializes in performance art. The student artists at the high school have been garnering honors too. Of the ten who participated in the Globe Scholastic Art competition three won prizes; congratulations to Maria Petrakis, Brendan Kinchla, and Greg Schultz! Marisol Perry, Andrew Henry, and Renee Prisble have been nominated for Art All-State. They are currently involved in a rigorous application process that includes making art, writing essays, photographing their portfolios and defending their work before a panel of judges. The Art All-State takes place at the Worcester Art Museum in June.

The students of Cohasset have demonstrated excellence in other ways as well. Katie O'Sullivan and Kate Barrett have been selected as National Merit Finalists, and Keri Souffrain is a finalist in the National Achievement Program sponsored by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. Nate Fiore is State Wrestling Champion in his weight class; Ray Jones came in third, and Ryan Freeman, a sophomore, was second in his class.

Every one of these individuals, the students, staff, and citizens alike, has contributed something significant to the atmosphere of excellence that I see all around me in the Cohasset school system.

Nurse Joy Augenstern checks CHS student John Kinchla's blood pressure before he gives blood at Red Cross Bloodmobile which was sponsored by students at Cohasset Jr./Sr. High Monday.

Early release day

March 18 is an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools. There will be no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

School	Buses Depart
Junior/Senior High School	noon
Deer Hill School	12:25 p.m.
Joseph Osgood School	12:55 p.m.

Lunch will be served in the elementary schools and food service will be available at the Junior/Senior High School.

This early release day has been approved by the Cohasset School Committee to allow the staff at Deer Hill to conduct parent conferences. In December, teachers at Joseph Osgood received training from Patricia Baker and Deborah Webster on conducting reading and writing workshops in the classrooms. The staff will display the materials and lesson plans they have developed using the "workshop" format. A discussion and explanation period will follow. The Junior/Senior High School teachers will continue their exploration of innovative strategies of instruction and assessment. This release day will be used for demonstration and research purposes.

Contential Math League

The third meet of the Continental Math League contest was held Jan. 14. In the Pythagorean Division for grade eight the top scorers were Rachel Begley and Burke Davis with five points and Andrea Grew, Stephan Heilner, Jacqui Hurley and Rebecca Jenkins with four points.

In the Euclidean Division for grade eight the high scorers were Robert Buckley, Lauren Casino, Emily Henderson, Angela Parisi, Eric Snow and Chad Whitman with four points.

The cumulative high scorers for grade eight are Burke Davis, Ely Kahn, Stephan Heilner and Angela Parisi.

The fourth Continental Math League contest was held Feb. 11 at Cohasset Junior High School. In the Pythagorean Division high scores were received by Burke Davis, Justin Buckley, Sam Goedecke, Stephan Heilner, Kevin Duffy and Shelley Vanderweil.

In the Euclidean Division high scores were received by Eric Snow, Bobby Stanswell and Angela Parisi.

These contest are given five times a year and at the present time after four tests have been given, the high scorers in the eighth grade are Burke Davis, Stephan Heilner, Shelley Vanderweil, Ely Kahn and Kevin Duffy in the Pythagorean Division and Angela Parisi and Eric Snow in the Euclidean Division.

Tuesday, Feb. 2, the annual eighth grade contest was given to students in levels one and two. This is a 40 question test given in class that tests students general knowledge of mathematical skills.

High scorers were Sam Goedecke with 34 points, Alycia Sorrentino and Ely Kahn with 32 points and Shelley Vanderweil and Rachel Begley with 30 points.

Few students score as high as 30 points so this is a great accomplishment for the eighth graders.

Spring dance slated

A parent-sponsored eighth-grade dance will be held at the Community Center March 19 from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

All eighth-graders have been given flyers for appropriate dress. To encourage the entire class to attend, students should refrain from wearing any formal apparel and corsages which pertain to asemi-formal affair. Refreshments will be served.

Please encourage your child to participate in either the decorating or refreshment committee.

Scholarships offered

The Friends of South Shore Hospital are offering four $500 scholarships to local high school seniors. Eligible seniors must live in the communities served by South Shore Hospital and must have been accepted to study health care at an accredited higher learning institution.

High school seniors who are planning a career in a health-care field may apply for The Friends' scholarships. Other factors considered by the scholarship committee are need, high school records, recommendations of guidance counselors and personal references.

Applications are available at South Shore Hospital's main lobby information desk. Completed forms must be returned by Thursday, April 15, to Beatrice M. Coleman, Scholarship Committee Chairperson, 66 Newbert Avenue, So. Weymouth, 02190. For more information call Beatrice M. Coleman at (617) 335-3486.

Cable scholarships

Continental Cablevision will award six $500 scholarships to graduating high school seniors on the South Shore who plan to pursue a career in the communications field.

High School students from Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Norwell and Scituate are eligible to apply for the Continental Communications Scholarship if they will be attending an accredited institution for higher learning next fall in pursuit of a career in the communications industry, television, radio, journalism, or in the theater.

To apply for the Continental Communications Scholarship, students should pick up an application at their high school guidance office or at your local cable office. Each application should be sent accompanied by a letter (no more than two pages) to Joseph Hayes at Continental Cablevision, 15 Farrar Farm Road, Norwell 02061.

In the letter, they should provide background information on themselves; explain what they are interested in doing in the communications field and why; and tell why the scholarship is important to them. They should also include a letter of recommendation from two teachers.

All applications and letters must be received by April 15 at Continental Cablevision to be considered.

For further information, call Joseph Hayes at Continental, 659-0502, ext. 143.

The Arts at CHS

Please check the "School Notebook" in the Cohasset Mariner for production updates.

Deer Hill fourth graders Abby Murphy, Robin Cunningham, Michael Sanchez, and Jeffrey Schneider pose with a colorful totem pole depicting different regions of the United States. Edward Frederick Edward F. Frederick of Cohasset, retired superintendent of the Deer Island House of Correction, died March 10 in South Shore Hospital, South Weymouth, after a brief illness.

For many years he did volunteer work for the Marist Missionary Sisters in Waltham.

A veteran of the 101st Army Airborne Division during World War II, he was a member of Cohasset Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He was a former member of the Port Norfolk Yacht Club.

Mr. Frederick worked for ADT Security System for a few years.

He was born in Boston and attended Cambridge High School and Northeastern University.

He leaves his wife, Ethel M. (O'Malley) Frederick; a son, Dr. Edward F. Frederick, a Scituate dentist; and six grandchildren. He was the father of the late Jeanne Martin.

A funeral Mass was celebrated March 13 in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St. handled the arrangements.

Janet Hill Montague

Janet Hill Montague, 79, of Cohasset, died March 14, in the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, following a brief illness.

Born in Newton, she graduated from Newton High School and LaSalle College. With her husband, the late Everett I. Montague, she founded Montague Associates, Inc., manufacturer representatives of consumer electronics products. She was active in the firm between 1962-1982, when she retired. Mrs. Montague was a member of the Cohasset Golf Club and the Cohasset Yacht Club. In addition, she was an active volunteer at the Social Service League and a volunteer at the Consignment Shop. An avid tennis enthusiast, Mrs. Montague ran tennis tournaments and was involved in the New England Junior Tennis Program for numerous years.

She leaves a daughter; Anne Montague of Cohasset, a son, Robert Dodge Montague of Scituate, a granddaughter, Jennifer Montague of San Francisco, and a grandson, Jeffrey Hill Montague, who attends Ohio-Wesleyan University.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, March 20 at 2 p.m. in Saint Luke Episcopal Church, Route 3A and First Parish Road, Scituate.

Relatives and friends invited. There are no visiting hours.

Interment in Joy Place Cemetery, Cohasset, is private. Memorial donations may be made to the Montague Fund, Saint Luke Episcopal Church, Route 3A and First Parish Road, Scituate, MA 02066.

Arrangements are by the McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer Street, Cohasset.

High tea!

Pumper purchase may draw crowd

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

A fire is usually a good draw — and although this one isn't the smoky kind — fire department issues are bound to cause a few sparks at Saturday's town meeting.

Interim Town Moderator George L. Marlette predicts the warrant article asking the town to borrow up to $230,000 for a pumper will generate the most discussion.

And voters will be able to approve the new firefighters 'contract by paper ballot.

Marlette noted that the police contract was approved at last year's annual town meeting by paper ballot, so in the interest of fairness and privacy this contract will be voted on in the same manner.

Selectmen did not release the details of the firefighters' contract by press time. But they did say the contract covers six years — three back and three forward. Career firefighters have been working without a contract for three years.

The town meeting gets underway at 10 a.m. in the Tough ticket policy starts

Police are getting tough with traffic in Cohasset Square.

They plan to aggressively enforce the traffic laws in the square which prohibit illegal left-hand turns into angled parking, Sgt. Robert Jackson said.

That means if you're traveling on South Main toward North Main, you'd better not make an illegal left-hand turn into the parking spaces in front of shops like Village Gourmet or Colonial Pharmacy, for example, or you'll have to pay the consequences.

Fine for the first offense is $35; the second $75, and third is $150, Jackson said.

And in addition if a driver is guilty of a moving violation, the state tacks surcharge points onto his or her automobile insurance.

Jackson said if you're going the wrong way to legally access parking on the opposite side of the road — go around the block and avoid making an illegal U-Turn.

"We're going to put a stop to it," he said.

Drama workshop beats competition to make finals

Competing in any serious contest is always intense; however, the cast and crew of the Cohasset Drama Workshop's state finals-abound. "Act Three Scene Five," have been tested to the limit physically, mentally and artistically. When, at 11:50 p.m. they were announced as one of the 15 state finalists, there was not only a feeling of triumph but also one of relief.

For many of them it had seemed as though the semi-finals of the Massachusetts State Drama Festival would never make it to the stage. March 13, the promise of a blizzard forced a postponement; the following day, the reality of the blizzard caused an even larger snowdrift for Cohasset's chances. The festival at Belmont High School to which Cohasset had been assigned had to be delayed until the following Saturday, a delay that would have removed one of the school's outstanding young actresses from the cast, for Katie O'Sullivan (no stranger to readers of the Mariner over the last month) had to be in Virginia to receive a college scholarship.

"I just kept praying that we wouldn't lose the phone lines before I could try to negotiate some solution to what I felt was an unfair situation," said Cohasset director Ron Emmons. "I didn't want to see our chances of making it to the finals shot down by the Belmont

Getting acquainted over lunch

It didn't take long for the two groups to get acquainted — even though there is more 60 years difference in their ages.

Some of Cohasset's 1,500 senior citizens chatted and ate lunch with some of the town's 1,200 school-aged kids Tuesday.

It's part of an ongoing intergenerational program between the Osgood School and senior center to foster sharing between the generations.

Council-on-Aging Director Kathy Bryanton says the interaction is beneficial to seniors and kids alike.

"Seniors have fond memories of teaching their own children," Bryanton said. "They have a tremendous amount of knowledge they can share with young people.

"They have life experience and time to give. And with a mobile society many children don't visit their

Cohasset's week

Fire overtime okay'ed

Selectmen approved a special appropriation of $19,678 from free cash out of the town's FY'93 budget for operating expenses incurred by the fire department this year.

Town meeting voters will be asked to authorize the appropriation by passing Article 2 during the special town meeting segment of the annual town meeting Saturday.

The amount takes into account:

- $4,790 for 251 hours of overtime for the weekend storm;
- $11,292 in sick-leave time that exceeds the amount budgeted at the annual town meeting last year;
- an $8,000 salary-line adjustment to bring the fire department's salaries up to 52.2 weeks this year. The fire chief budgeted for only 52 weeks and will be short four days without an appropriation. Last year the town was "between" accountants and the fire chief received incorrect information on the exact number of days to be budgeted for.
- a $4,404 savings in the amount appropriated for firefighter training. The fire chief explained that the fire academy is full until the spring of 1994, so the department will conduct the necessary training "in-house."

Sick leave drops

Fire Chief John Nadeau said that while sick-leave use is still too high, he has seen a downward trend of late.

He will present a full report on the fire department's use of sick leave to selectmen next month.

In January, Nadeau reported to selectmen that sick leave in the department was averaging 72 hours per week or double what was budgeted for.

"Since it's dropped to 58 hours a week," Nadeau noted. "The problem is — we budgeted for 34 hours a week."

The fire department needs $11,292 for FY'93 more than was appropriated last year to cover the overtime required when sick leave is used. Voters will be asked to authorize the appropriation during the special town meeting Saturday. That number will be partially offset by a reduction in the amount needed for firefighter training.

"I asked for 53 hours (per week in sick leave) when I came here," Nadeau said who came on board last year. "I think we can get it down to 53. I'd like to restore the budget to the 53-hour level."

Nadeau, who agreed with selectmen that the sick leave used in the fire department seems excessive, said the sick leave was not due to vacation time or injury but "personal sick leave accumulated over the years."

Kept in the dark

Although selectmen said they didn't want to leave the public in the dark, that's exactly what happened Monday.

The board apparently has approved but not signed a new contract with the firefighters' union. But selectmen could not give any specifics because the final document wasn't ready yet for their signatures.

"We can't have a vote without the exact numbers," Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke explained.

Monday selectmen said they hoped to have something on paper by Wednesday and would make the numbers public at that time. The issue was not resolved by the time the Mariner went to press yesterday.

The contract will cover six years — three years back and three forward — so each member of the union will receive a different amount making the issue very complicated, Goedecke said.

Firefighters have been without a contract for three years.

Goedecke said town accountant Michael Buckley is working out the exact numbers for each employee.

Shellfish discussion set

Selectmen plan to talk with the advisory committee tonight at town hall about the $750 selectmen want to pay for a shellfish constable.

The board is perplexed that the advisory committee is opposed to the appropriation, which selectmen are taking from the insurance line item in their budget and are not asking for additional money.

Selectmen Michael H. Sullivan said selectmen ought to be able to fine tune their own budget.

"They should give us a figure from which to manage from," he said.

"We're asking them how to fund it not whether we should have it," Sullivan added. He asked what the statute was governing each board's fiscal responsibilities.

"The whole issue leaves control in a gray area," he said.

Refueling issue tabled

Shawn Harris Enterprises, Inc. will have to wait at least another week before getting the okay to refuel fishing vessels at Government Island Pier.

Although Harris Enterprises has presented an insurance certificate with $1 million liability coverage, selectmen decided to table the request until they received some assurances on possible mishaps that may cause pollution.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke explained that Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon and Harbormaster Irving Gadow "felt the policy is sufficient" without including pollution liability.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said pollution coverage should be a must.

"We're talking about water and gasoline. I think pollution would be a priority," he said. Sullivan also suggested that in the future when the board talks about insurance-related issues, the matter ought to go before the insurance committee first.

Step raise approved

Selectmen approved a step raise effective May 15 for Anthony Periera, an employee with the tree and park department, from $12.23 to $12.80 an hour.

Supt. Peter Laugelle gave Periera high marks.

"Tony is very adaptable and will do what you ask him — maintenance work or whatever," Laugelle said.

Muster is August 14

A firefighters' muster sponsored by the Cohasset Community Center as part of the organization's 50th anniversary celebration is planned for August 14.

Selectmen approved the community center's request to use the town hall parking lot and Highland Ave., Long Rd., and Jason Rd. for parade staging; use of the Town Common for a pancake breakfast; various road closings along the parade route; and to close Bancroft from Pond to Norfolk Rds. from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. for the muster and family fun activities.

Vandal strikes Cohasset Square

There was a rash of vandalism in town over the weekend, police said.

Eleven cases have been reported involving window damage in five motor vehicles and six businesses, said Sgt. Robert Jackson.

"They were mostly in Cohasset Square but there were other incidents on Ripley Rd., Cedar St. and Rte. 3A," he said.

Jackson said the vandals either used a BB gun or sling shot with ball bearings Police found ball bearings in two businesses, he said.

"If anyone hears anything suspicious, they should give us a call," Jackson said.

Police said the vandalism appears to be limited to Cohasset. Jackson said he checked with other police departments in surrounding towns about possible incidents.

He had no damage estimates.

"But we asked people to send in the amount of damage so if we make an arrest we can seek restitution," Jackson said.

Businesses damaged included Casey's Kennel, Children's Exchange, Northeast Ski Shop, Tedeschi's Food Mart, Pat's Barbershop, and Kent & Smith.

The incidents are under investigation.

Last April someone — armed with what police said was a gas-powered pellet gun — in a one-night spree of destruction shot out 11 plate glass windows in Cohasset Village and Front Street in Scituate Harbor.

Police hook up via computer and radio

Cohasset police are going high-tech.

The department will soon have a mobile data terminal which will enable police to check on vehicles and their occupants before the officer exits the cruiser.

Selectmen approved the purchase of the terminal at a cost of about $4,000 which will come from unused money in the capital outlay line item of the police department's FY'93 budget.

Police Chief Brian W. Noonan said the on-board computer screen would save time and enhance safety.

"This greatly increases office safety and in this day and age, I feel this is very important," he said.

The officer can check on license plates to see if a car is wanted or stolen and run probation, missing person, or wanted checks on people on the on-board computer which would be tied into the state police computer without going through the station, he said.

"Under CORI (Criminal Offense Record Information statute), you can't disseminate that information over the air," Noonan explained.

Police will also purchase an eight-channel portable radio for use exclusively by the detective's vehicle.

"This radio would enable the detective to communicate with other agencies such as the Bureau of Criminal Investigation (BCI) and other area police departments," Noonan said.

Selectmen approved the purchase of the radio for about $800 with the money also coming from unused capital outlay in the police budget.

Two resolutions before town meeting

Selectmen hope voters will send a message to the state at the town meeting March 27.

The board will ask voters to approve two non-binding resolutions asking the state to remove the cap on lottery funds for cities and towns and to increase the municipal share of the state gas tax revenue.

If the legislature lifted the cap on lottery funds distributed to cities and towns Cohasset would receive an additional $28,467 in fiscal year 1994, which begins July 1.

Cohasset currently receives $199,483 in lottery funds as part of local aid.

Over the past several years the state has failed to meet its commitments to share with cities and towns state motor fuel excises collections, mainly the gasoline excise. State law requires that 15 percent of gas tax collections be distributed to cities and towns and since FY'89 the state has only partially fulfilled its obligations.

Selectmen will ask Cohasset voters to support legislation that would establish a Local Roads Fund in order to ensure a fair and predictable share of state gas tax collections for distribution to cities and towns for use on local roads.

911 board vacancy

Selectman Merle S. Brown, who is liaison to the 911 committee, announced there is a vacancy on that committee. Brown said a member had to step down because he could not make evening meetings. Anyone interested in serving should contact the selectmen's office, Brown said.

Fair Housing Month

Gov. William F. Weld will declare April as "Fair Housing Month." At the request of the Plymouth County Board of Realtors, Inc. selectmen voted to support the proclamation which advocates providing fair housing to all.

Liaison steps down

Shelanne S. Durkin, 69 Old Pasture Rd., the recreation commission's liaison to the Cable-TV Council will step down as liaison when her term expires next month because she feels she cannot make the time commitment to the council, the recreation commission wrote to selectmen.

The recreation commission recommends Steve Endris, 46 Black Rock Rd., as new liaison to the Cable-TV council.

"We wish to thank Shelanne for her term of service as our liaison to the Cable Council," the commission wrote.

Third-grader Katie Hines, whose grandfather lives in Florida, gave the program high marks.

"We learn that just because they look older doesn't mean their heart is any older," she said. "They're not any different from us, they're just people."

Senior citizen Jackie Moores said the kids need what older folk know how to give.

"They may have Reeboks and everything else. But they still want someone to love them," she said.

After lunch the students interviewed their new friends.

They asked questions and wrote down the answers. The questions focused on music: what music do you like; what groups did you like when you were young; and where did you hear your music?

And there were some extra learning experiences. After asking his questions, one youngster was getting a spelling lesson on the word V-I-C-T-R-O-L-A.

Then the seniors joined the kids in a song or two.

For Mary Migliaccio visiting with the youngsters brought back memories.

Migliaccio worked in the Osgood cafeteria years ago.

"Working in the school, I had more fun than the kids," she recalled.

COA Director Bryanton said what youngsters can gain from elders is priceless.

"They taught us manners and values," Bryanton recalled about her childhood.

"But we see so many children that aren't connecting with older people. They are being shortchanged," she said.

Senior citizens wanted

Any Cohasset senior citizens interested in working on fostering intergenerational programs with a three-town consortium should contact Council-on-Aging Director Kathy Bryanton at 383-9112.

A planning meeting is scheduled for May 11 at the Hingham Congregational Church, 366 Main St., Hingham.

Bryanton said she is working with school Supt. Stephen Hart on the project, which is sponsored by South Shore Elder Services, a non-profit agency.

high school auditorium. A quorum of 100 registered voters is needed to open the meeting. But the meeting can continue without a quorum unless it's formally challenged. And if the quorum is not challenged by the close of the meeting, all business is official, Marlette said.

The meeting will break about 1 p.m. for lunch. Marlette said he will try to keep the break to 30 minutes. There will be some lunch food available to purchase at the high school.

Marlette said from talks with citizens, part of the problem with town meeting turnout is "the meetings are too long" which discourages attendance.

He is optimistic that this year's business can be completed in one day. The meeting will adjourn by 5 p.m. but if there is a small amount of business remaining, Marlette said he will entertain a motion to extend the meeting an hour.

Voters will be asked to take action on 46 articles including six in the special town meeting which takes place within the annual town meeting. Special town meeting articles ask for appropriations from this fiscal year's budget.

The most time-consuming article will probably be the town budget, Marlette said. The grand total recommended in the budget article is $13.6 million for FY'94, which begins July 1.

Voters will also be asked to spend up to $470,000 to purchase 1.66 acres off Border St. and Parker Ave. for recreation, boating, and conservation.

Absentee ballots ready

Absentee ballots are now available at the town clerk's office for the town election Saturday, April 3.

You may apply for an absentee ballot if you will be out of town, have a physical disability or because of religious beliefs.

Absentee voting may be done in the office of the town clerk during regular business hours until noon April 2. A written signed request for a ballot may be sent to the town clerk and one will be mailed out. Included on the application should be your name as registered, your registration address, precinct, the address to which you wish the ballot sent and your signature. Applications may also be picked up at the office. The town clerk's office will be closed at noon April 2 in preparation for the election.

If you need further information, please call the town clerk's office at 383-9900, ext. 105, 106 or 107.

Pavement program ok'ed

Cohasset will be part of a pilot pavement management program sponsored by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

The MAPC contacted selectmen to request the town be part of the study which will use non-DPW personnel as pavement inspectors.

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby said the town should not pass up the opportunity.

"I have always told the MAPC that we have a really good (highway) department," she said. "I think we can get something out of this without it costing us any money and (Supt.) Harold (Litchfield) is in agreement."

The board approved the request Monday.

Helping others common thread to social work

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

While most compliments they hear are whispered in private, this month recognition for social workers goes public.

March is Social Work Month and five social workers in town met Friday, March 19 at the Red Lion Inn to discuss the diversity of and changes in their profession.

The thread that binds them together is that all are licensed mental health workers who use psychotherapy to quell emotional distress.

Yet their jobs can be as diverse as placing the elderly in the proper nursing environment to counseling children prone toward violence.

Abby Levin is a social worker in private practice with Susan Etkind in town. She specializes in counseling families, children and adults. Levin said the trend in psychotherapy is toward fewer, but more directed, resolution sessions.

"It's problem focused," she said. "You see someone for four, five or six sessions," as opposed to long-term therapy.

Cost containment is the reason, she said.

Selma Ingber is also a psychotherapist with a private practice in town. Ingber works with children and adults primarily on a longer-term basis, but added that most insurance companies pay for only eight counseling sessions.

"With the economy the way it is, it's a luxury," Ingber said of the long-term approach.

She added, however, that some issues cannot adequately be addressed in a shorter, problem-focused format.

"Everything has its place and to give it to everybody is a mistake."

Etkind, who specializes in psychotherapy for children and adults, said the constraints of current insurance reimbursement policies has a positive side.

"It's not all bad," she said. "It can make you focus more."

Andrea Miller, a social worker at the Cohasset Knoll Skilled Nursing Facility, said she also sees the affects of cost containment in her area of social work expertise: nursing home placement.

"Medicare pays for up to 100 days in a nursing home," she said.

"People need to be aware that we are doing short-term rehabilitation at nursing homes now."

The short-term approach is relatively new, she said.

"The goal is to get them back on their feet and return them home," she said.

However, she said, long-term care should be addressed in any comprehensive national health care policy.

President Bill Clinton has said his health care reform may include a long-term care provision. His wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, chairs the health care reform task force and has said any new health care package should also include the treatment of mental illness.

Social worker Patricia Carleton applauds the inclusion of mental health provisions in any sweeping health care reform packages.

There are numerous studies showing that mental health is linked to physical health, Carleton said.

She added that some more progressive companies recognize the link and employ full-time clinical social workers to keep employees mentally healthy and at work.

As a social worker for the Social Service League of Cohasset, Carleton sees a cross section of clients and performs duties which range from outpatient medical social work for the elderly to general community services.

The people she increasingly treats, she said, are the unemployed.

"I see a lot of laid-off workers," Carleton said. "You'd be surprised."

To ease their burden, Carleton is setting up a food pantry.

Another endeavor she has undertaken through her role as social worker is the formation of a battered women's support group.

Women from surrounding communities will also use the group, she said.

Police Chief Brian W. Noonan said the support group fulfills a need.

"We're not as bad as Quincy, but we have devoted a whole filing cabinet drawer to nothing but restraining orders," Noonan said.

Five of Cohasset's social workers meet to celebrate March — it's Social Work Month. (L to R) Patricia Carleton, Andrea Miller, Susan Etkind, Selma Ingber and Andrea Levin discussed the diversity of their profession at the Red Lion Inn.

Holistic approach to new health program

April showers may bring May flowers but the Cohasset Community Center and Council-on-Aging hope the beginning of spring brings a few bodies out.

The two organizations have joined forces to provide a healthy option for local citizens.

Diet Workshop, which focuses on healthy eating habits, is being offered on Wednesdays followed by a low-key Get Fit class, which is geared for first-time exercisers or those who have taken a hiatus from a fitness program.

Organizers hope the "holistic" approach of fitness and diet will get people into a health-conscious lifestyle.

Participants can sign up for four weeks at $36 or eight weeks for $56 for the Diet Workshop. Interested people should pre-register by April 2.

Get Fit, which will be taught by Mary Doherty, is $2.50 a class ($1.50 for seniors) and starts April 7.

Stephanie Church, program director at the community center, says affordability is a key to the program.

"We hope everyone will be able to afford to do this," she says. "Participants can get two hours-plus for under $10."

The classes are open to men, women, young and old, she said.

COA Director Kathy Bryanton said Diet Workshop isn't just for the overweight.

"A lot of people have developed poor eating habits and have forgotten how to eat a balanced diet," she said. "They need to go back and learn all the things they learned as a kid."

For more information please call the community center at 383-0088.

Occupation: Social worker with the Cohasset Social Service League.

Best day of your life: The day my children were born.

Most embarrassing moment: During college, when I arrived 70 minutes late for a 75-minute class and didn't know I was late. It turned out the electricity in my dorm had gone out during the night and I didn't know it.

Goal: To continue developing my role at the League.

Favorite season: Spring.

Best vacation: Spending two weeks on the Cape with our newborn in 1982.

Favorite holiday: Christmas.

Pet Peeve: Supermarkets using coupons as a marketing ploy — it's very time consuming.

Favorite book: "Pillars of The Earth," by Ken Follete.

Favorite movie: "Casablanca."

Biggest worry: The level of crime in our society.

Favorite place: Scituate Harbor.

Favorite junk-food: French Fries.

Cohasset town hall lead clean-up total

The grand total for the town hall lead-paint dust cleanup is $36,219, selectmen said.

The cost of the cleanup is three times the $12,000 appropriated for the painting of the exterior of town hall.

During the painting last fall, lead dust seeped into the building when the painters used power sanders to strip off some of the old paint. The following Monday, town hall workers, concerned about their health, came before selectmen. Some employees complained about sneezing, blowing blood, and catäarh as a result of lead dust exposure.

To reach acceptable levels, the tests had to show less than 200 micrograms per square foot, the state standard for homes that house children under six years of age.

The town paid $40 an hour for a cleanup crew to clean up the dust and $55 an hour to Certified Engineering & Testing Co. for lead dust inspection. At times the town paid $65 an hour for tests performed on the weekends.

Bill payment approved

Selectmen approved payment of the following bills:

- $1,505 to Nucci Vine Associates for engineering services regarding dredging in Cohasset Cove from Jan. 26 to March 12.
- $14,346.70 to AGM Marine Contractors, Inc. for dredging.

❑ Lily Faulhaber, daughter of Mrs. Susan Playfair, performed in the annual Gala Repertory Dance Performance at Boston College's Robsham Theater Friday, March 12, and Saturday, March 13.

Lily, a freshman and a dance major, is a member of the National Youth Ballet at Walnut Hill. The exciting program, directed by Elizabeth Rising Musgrave, director of the Walnut Hill Dance Department, included contemporary and classical choreography featuring Les Syiphides; pieces by renowned local choreographers Samuel Kurkjian, resident choreographer and Ballet Master of the National Youth Ballet at Walnut Hill and member of the Boston Conservatory faculty; and Diane Arvanites-Noya, Artistic Director of Prometheus Dance Company.

Applause is in order for Lily, and here's to the promise of a great future in dance!

❑ There is a "new addition" on Margin Court...a wonderful baby boy, Daniel Mills! Daniel was born to Ann Marie Mills and daddy Thomas at South Shore Hospital March 3 at 4:53 p.m., and weighed in at 8 lbs. 13 ozs. You can bet that his big brother T.J. and grandparents Ann Watts and Chet and Joan Mills are thrilled. Herc's hoping that the day will come when you can put the baby in a stroller and go for a walk without snow drifts, spring is officially here, right?

❑ Hope Gaston is spending the first two weeks in March this year as a volunteer for Habitat for Humanity, the well-known ecumenical Christian housing ministry. Currently a sophomore at Holderness School in Plymouth, NH, Hope has joined many other members of her class in travelling to one of three sites in Pennsylvania in order to work in partnership with the poor in building and rehabilitating houses. The homes may then be purchased on a no-interest basis by participating low-income families. Hope will undoubtedly be sleeping on the floor of a church, helping to cook her own meals, and do everything else necessary to live and work with her fellow students and do real work building. She has returned to Holderness from her volunteer work and it would be nice to hear from her to relate her experiences!

Hope is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Gaston III of Jerusalem Road.

❑ I had a great chat with Mary O'Brien last week...she just became a grandmother for the 11th time! Mary and Bill are thrilled about Brendan O'Brien Flynn, born to daughter Erin and her husband Joseph March 15 (the Ides of March) at 11:53 p.m. at Sarasota Memorial Hospital. Brendan weighed in at a hefty 8 lbs. 1-1/2 ozs., and one of his first visitors was Nancy Goff Hatch, formerly of Cohasset also! Of course Erin's brother Danny (who also lives in the neighborhood down there) went for a long visit (many more to come we are sure). Uncle Danny is busy as Brendan makes three in the Flynn household! Brendan's paternal grandparents, Joe and Ann Flynn of Quincy and Hyannisport are thrilled also! It will soon be that Bill and Mary will have to buy a hotel, just to have Thanksgiving for all of their wonderful grandchildren. It would be worth it though! Congrats!

A jubilant Jared Krupczak exults in victory in the Wolf Scout class at the annual Cub Scout Pinewood Derby, Monday. Stay tuned to the Mariner for all your scouting news! (Staff photo/Buzz Wadsworth)

❑ Talking about happy grandparents, have you seen Barbara of Edward Dillon recently? They are thrilled to tell you that Kevin Douglas Dillon, brother of Ryan Edward Dillon, was born Dec. 21, weighing in at 8 lbs. 2 ozs. Kevin is the son of Lee and Douglas Dillon. We wish you all a lot of happiness with Kevin, and know Ryan will be a big help with his brand new baby brother!

❑ Life-long residents Noel and Ethel Edwards (octogenarians) are doing well at the Norwell Knoll! In fact, both have the highest praise for the home with its wonderful nurses and excellent meals. Noel and Ethel enter into all the activities with enthusiasm! And they look forward to returning to Cohasset one of these days. We hope so, we miss your pleasant smiles and great attitudes!

Keep up your happy ways and know that we miss you and wish you well!

❑ Sallyann Kakas Quebec and husband Richard had TWINS! Christian Harding Quebec and Elise Noelle Quebec. Christian weighed in at 6 lbs. 8 ozs., Elise was 7 lb.s 1 oz. and they were born March 5. Imagine how their great big brother, R.K. (Richard Kakas Quebec) must feel – pleased and proud we are sure! Lots of love and best of luck to you all!

❑ Everyone misses Gertrude Parsons who underwent surgery recently...hurry up and get back "around town," spring is approaching and we want to see you! We wish you the best, that's for sure! Get well soon.

❑ Deana Genovese has been named to the Plymouth State College dean's list for maintaining a grade-point average of between 3.5 and 3.69 during the fall semester of the 1992-93 academic year.

Hats off to you, Deana!

obituaries

Ambrose Cray

Ambrose Cray, 85, of Cohasset and Charlottesville, Va., a former advertising executive for The Patriot Ledger, died March 15 in Charlottesville after a brief illness.

Born in Boston, Mr. Cray graduated from Newton High School in 1925, from Harvard College in 1929 and from Harvard Business School in 1932.

He worked at Eastern Steamship Co. and Harold Cabot Advertising Co. until 1945, when he founded Cray of Boston Inc., which manufactured andirons and other fireplace accessories. Mr. Cray sold the business in 1952 and for the next 20 years was an advertising executive at the Patriot Ledger.

He was an avid tennis player and a member of the Longwood Cricket Club, the Cohasset Golf Club and the Old Goats Club of Cohasset. He was also a supporter of Harvard football.

He spent the past two winters in Charlottesville.

He leaves his wife, Phylis Deaderick (Meem) Cray; and a son, Pierce O. Cray of Boston.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at 10 a.m. March 19 at St. Anthony's Church. Burial will be in Cohasset Central Cemetery.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St., Cohasset handled the arrangements.

Donations may be made to the Perkins School for the Blind, c/o Development Office, North Beacon St., Watertown 02172.

Charles W. Frates

Charles W. Frates, 83, of Rotondo West, Fla., formerly of Cohasset, a mason contractor in the Cohasset area for 35 years, died March 5.

Mr. Frates was a member of the Cohasset Volunteer Fire Department for 30 years, retiring as a Captain.

A communicant of St. Anthony's Church, he was a member of the Knights of Columbus.

He was born in Cohasset and educated in area schools.

Mr. Frates was secretary of the Lions Club in Florida, where he had lived for 21 years.

Husband of the late Margaret (Frazier) Frates, he leaves a son, Norman J. Frates of Woodstock, Vt.; four grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated March 9 in St. Anthony's Church.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St. handled the arrangements.

A time for renewal!

If spring brings thoughts of change in your life, and you're looking for imaginative ideas, there are many books to assist you in the collection of current books at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. In addition to current best sellers, there are books to help you improve your physical well-being, your mental outlook, your brainpower and your dining habits.

The Underground Shoppers's Guide to Health and Fitness, by Sue Goldstein, offers diet plans, exercise programs, and guides to the best buys in health equipment and health clubs, including reviews on the 100 finest health spas in America. In Excess Baggage, Judith Sills helps you to discover aspects of your personality which get in your way and methods for creating small changes in your life to improve productivity and general well-being.

Also, in the category of diet and exercise, Real Food Fake Food, by Geri Harrington focuses on the consumers guide to modern food. "What no one tells you about fiber, cholesterol, aspartame, and dozens of other food components." John Brady and Brian White write about Fifty Hikes in Massachusetts from the top of the Berkshires to the tip of Cape Cod.

For imaginative and delicious travel, The Splendid Table, by Lynne Rossetto Kasper, offers an introduction to the foods of Milan, Venice and Florence, a 56-recipe pasta chapter, an array of meatless recipes, salads and over 30 deserts. Ms. Kasper was named one of the 12 best-cooking teachers in America in 1988 by The James Beard Foundation.

For many, springtime is gardening time. Jeff and Liz Ball have written a book entitled Yardening. Yardening offers basic information on lawn and plant care, safe products and techniques to make things easier, "the book for people with a lawn to care for who do not consider themselves gardeners."

Sharing

Something was going on Tuesday that's as old as time and as natural as the changing of the seasons.

Older folk and youngsters came together to chat and share their experiences.

The event was an intergenerational lunch in the First Parish House on Main St.

Sadly today many youngsters don't have contact with their grandparents who live far away and visa versa.

If you're middle-aged or older, you probably remember spending lots of time with your grandparents or an elderly aunt or uncle. They may have lived in your home or right down the street. Chances are they didn't live in Florida and weren't in a nursing home.

They probably told you stories about their childhoods and what life was like back when.

As Council on Aging Director Kathy Bryanton says, "They taught us manners and values."

She notes that children today because of our mobile society aren't connecting with older people and are being shortchanged as a result.

So for the past three years, the Council-on-Aging and Osgood School have set out to bring the two groups together.

Tuesday, Miss Webster's third-grade class performed three songs for the seniors and then sat down and shared lunch and conversation with them.

After lunch the kids took notes and interviewed the seniors about their interest in music.

Some kids got a spelling lesson or two with words like Victrola and names like that of jazz musician "Fats" Waller.

And what's really exciting is that plans are in the works to develop more intergenerational programs. Mrs. Bryanton wants any interested senior citizens to contact her if they would like to participate in a May 11 planning session.

And from the smiles we saw Tuesday, more programs should be encouraged because when you combine one of Cohasset's greatest resources — its senior citizens with the other, its kids — good things can happen.

Come on down!

Don't forget to participate in local democracy at 10 a.m. Saturday by attending the annual town meeting in the high school auditorium.

Town meetings are informative and fun. Where else can you hear debate first hand and decide on issues that have a direct affect on your everyday life?

Don't take democracy for granted. Get involved and come on down!

Eighth grade dance was super

letters

To the Editor:

As organizers of last weekend's Cohasset eighth grade dance at the Cohasset Community Center, we'd like to thank the parents who supported our efforts, especially those who volunteered their time Friday night to serve as chaperones. We'd also like to thank the local Girl Scouts for their generosity in providing refreshments.

As parents, we're particularly proud of the behavior of these students, and the fact that nearly 90 percent of the grade attended this event. They dressed and acted appropriately, and followed the rules of the Community Center to the letter. More importantly, they seemed to have a wonderful time enjoying each other's company and the music. We can't think of a better way to usher in the spring.

Rose Kahn
Karen Hettstrom

To Kit Bursk on the occasion of her leaving Cohasset March 23, 1993

A Sonnet for a Sunny Lady

Enthusiasm wrapped in a colorful bundle
Of words and goodness and humor and wit
Happy upheaval in the senior shuttle
Drivers and passengers all kidded a bit

A tray of cookies returned for a kindness
A troop of cub scouts, their beings made whole
And to most of our faults, a sensitive blindness
The best of us all caught up in one soul

A story that's read to kids at the library
None leaves; none speaks, none even dares wink
An outpouring of spawn over the country
Articulate, likeable, all able to think

But now it's your leaving this sad town must face
A glow will be gone that we'll never replace.

Voter awareness assembly held

(Editor's note: The following is a press release from Cohasset High School voter registration assembly).*

March 2, seniors were given the opportunity to register to vote during the annual voter registration assembly at Cohasset High School.

This event is sponsored by the PSO and the Social Studies Department. Letitia Jordan, PSO Representative, spoke about the fact that as Americans we all enjoy the rights of a Democracy. CHS students are encouraged, through their education, to research and debate issues and to use their knowledge to actively participate in their government not only on the National level but on the local level as well.

Social Studies Department chairwoman, Patricia Keenan-Byrne, emphasized that all voters can make an impact on local and national issues. She made reference to Zoe Baird, the deficit, unemployment, education (to help make education more affordable—as in Clinton's suggested public service requirement for recipients of school loans), health care costs and environmental issues. She challenged them to have their opinions heard. It is the responsibility of each individual to read newspapers, to watch debates, to volunteer and to be informed. It has only been since the Vietnam War that the 18-year olds have had the right to vote.

Cohasset's Town Counsel, Richard Henderson, outlined some of the legal rights and responsibilities of 18 year olds, including the right to own property, to enter into legal contracts, to practice medicine, the right to be sued and to be tried as an adult. There are some responsibilities that go along with these rights, such as the obligation of all males between the ages of 18 and 25 to register with the selective service and the responsibility of all citizens to vote. He also made note that most Federal jobs are not available to those not registered with the selective service, nor will they be eligible for student grants and loans. Mr. Henderson further explained Cohasset's open Town Meeting where registered citizens can participate directly in the legislative process.

CHS secretary and town registrar, Linda Shultz, was present to register the 16 Cohasset students and two METCO students who currently qualified. The first opportunity for these students to have their voices heard will be at the upcoming Town Meeting Saturday, March 27. Town Elections will be held Saturday, April 3. A sheet was handed out to the students listing the elected positions available in this election. March 6 was the deadline to register for town elections. However, as long as a student turns 18 anytime prior to the April 3 date, he/she may register. Absentee ballots are available in the Town Clerk's office or by written request. Everyone is encouraged to VOTE—but first you must register.

Logan to chair multiple sclerosis benefit

Polly Logan, of Cohasset, will chair "Cohasset by the Sea"—A Super Cities Walk for Multiple Sclerosis. This was announced today by James J. Dunlop, Chairman of the Board of the Massachusetts Chapter when speaking of this 10K walk through beautiful Cohasset.

James Dunlop commented, "The MS Society is honored to have Polly Logan leading this important event. Her energy dedication and knowledge will be invaluable in this effort and we are confident that with Ms. Logan's leadership, we will have an outstanding event."

"Cohasset by the Sea" raises funds to support MS research and to provide services to people with MS and their families. The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is the only non-profit organization supporting research both in this country and abroad. Services are provided through the Society's 144 chapters and branches in every state. The Southeastern Branch of the Massachusetts Chapter provides a wide range of services to your neighbors in the Cohasset area.

Local sponsors of "Cohasset by the Sea" include: Victoria's Pizza, the Borrowed Butler, the Clipper Ship Motor Lodge, Party Etc. and the Cohasset Mariner.

Registration for the Walk will begin at noon at the Cohasset Town Hall. Polly Logan will address the Walkers before they begin their six-mile journey throughout Cohasset. Anyone who is interested in walking, pledge a walker or volunteering should call Lori at the MS Society at (508) 291-2169.

Families picked for Bates House purchase

South Shore Habitat for Humanity Inc. announced that it has selected two families who will be purchasing the Bates Building condominiums now under construction in Cohasset.

The first family is Peter and Traci Madge and their three children, Justin 7, Michelle 4, and Kaley 1. The Madges are currently living with family in Cohasset. Peter Madge, a lobsterman, has lived in Cohasset all his life. Traci Madge is employed by Stop & Shop.

The second family is Lynda Barnes and her two children, Jennifer 10, and Nicholas 6. They are former residents of Cohasset but presently rent in Quincy. The children's father and grandparents are life-long Cohasset residents. Lynda Barnes is employed by the Department of Fisheries and Wildlife in Hingham.

The Family Selection Committee, which included five Cohasset residents, presented the candidates to South Shore Habitat's board of directors March 11. Prior to that, this committee reviewed the 23 applications received and visited the homes of the 12 families that qualified.

The families begin working with Habitat volunteers Saturday, March 20. This starts the 500 hours of "sweat equity" on the construction of these homes. Construction is expected to be completed this summer.

Two members of the Family Selection Committee, Fred Koed and Margy Charles, both of Cohasset, will serve as the "sponsors" working with these two families. The sponsors are part of the Habitat Family Nurture Committee.

According to Marianne Conlon, the chairperson for the Family Selection Committee, "The decision was very difficult, but because the process in reviewing the families was so thorough and fair it became clear that these two families were the most qualified."

Michael Keneally, President of South Shore Habitat, remarked, "It is clear from the number of qualified candidates that there is a great need for more affordable housing in this area."

South Shore Habitat is asking the towns of Hingham, Hull and Norwell, at spring town meetings to make land available for this kind of housing in their communities.

Meet the candidates

Come meet the candidates at Beechwood Congregational Church's annual Election Supper at 6:30 p.m. tonight, March 25.

Dinner will include roast beef, mashed potatoes, string beans, Harvard beets, cole slaw, rolls, dessert and a beverage.

Tickets are $6.99 for adults and $3.50 for children. Call 383-1298 or 545-0637 to reserve your tickets.

Cohasset's town meeting is March 27, town elections will be held April 4.

candidates' corner

(Editor's note: the Mariner will not accept any candidate submissions for next week's [April 1 issue]. The town election is April 3. Candidates' are encouraged to advertise their campaign, for information about our advertising rates, please contact Judy McCaffrey-Perry at 1-800-649-6661.)

Sheila S. Evans

Library trustee candidate

Sheila S. Evans, chairman of the Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, seeks re-election to a three-year term on April 3. She and her husband have lived in Cohasset for 36 years, have three married children, and live on North Main Street.

Evans believes that the Cohasset has a "gem of a library." She is delighted to run on her record of service as a Trustee. High points include helping to establish the Friends of the Cohasset Library, Inc., and being chair of the trustees during planning and implementing the library renovations which provided 40 percent more space by incorporating the unused basement into library space.

She also was instrumental in establishing as library policy a cap on the size of the library's book collection, which is relatively large for a town Cohasset's size. By weeding out old books to make shelf space for new, and with access to the collections of the 20 other towns in the Old Colony Library Network, the size of the current library will be adequate indefinitely.

While Evans' professional experience was a marketing consultant for Arthur D. Little, Inc., for many years she has been an active board member of many non-profit organizations.

In Cohasset, in addition to the board of the library, Evans has been on the board of the Cohasset Community Center, the Cohasset Social Service League, and the School Facilities Committee. Currently, she is a corporator of Dana Hall School, on the Board of Overseers of WGBH (public television), and a director of the Cohasset Central Cemetery.

Health care reform: two places to start

Health care issues continue to grab headlines in the news media. But catchy headlines and political sound-bites unfortunately do a poor job of reflecting the complex health issues faced by hospitals today.

Most health care professionals believe that, while our health care system is one of the best in the world, it has a number of built-in problems. Several of these issues are more local than national and are creating problems for Massachusetts hospitals working to provide patients with health care value, which we define as care at reasonable cost and high quality.

Two issues are of special interest to South Shore Hospital: the potential failure of health maintenance organizations, and the inequities of the state's Determination of Need (DON) program. The 1993 legislative session will examine both of these issues.

The HMO Subscriber Protection Act will protect consumers and providers if any HMOs fail financially. Such an eventuality would have seemed unlikely a few years ago, but subsequent events have proven otherwise. Current protections for subscribers and providers have not kept pace with the dramatic changes in the health insurance industry. This bill will help assure that coverage is in place when needed by a subscriber.

The legislation would continue health benefits for persons enrolled in failed HMOs, and mandates minimum financial reserve and other requirements for HMOs and preferred provider organizations (PPOs). Other common-sense provisions of the bill would grant HMO creditors the authority to bring an HMO into bankruptcy to protect their interests, and requires the Division of Insurance to conduct annual audits of HMOs and PPOs—all fair protection for members and providers.

Another proposed bill affects the DON program, which was instituted in the 1970s to ensure that new health services and equipment were offered by hospitals based on the needs of the populations they serve. While the program was once helpful in ensuring the efficient allocation of health resources, today it maintains a "stranglehold" on hospitals, leaving many worthy projects in a kind of limbo thanks to this now-understaffed state bureaucracy.

Although changes have been made to the program in recent years, the current DON program clings to antiquated definitions of what constitutes new technology and innovative services, while creating artificial and uncompetitive barriers concerning the addition of new services.

In the emerging environment of managed competition in health care, hospitals will be working to create complete health care systems to meet the needs of the communities they serve. The dictates of managed competition require that hospitals respond quickly to these needs efficiently and cost-competitively, providing the highest quality care blending clinical efficacy with state-of-the-art technologies and facilities.

We believe that the current DON program cannot accommodate these needs, and feel that it should be eliminated. Many feel differently, however, and we suggest that, if the program is to be retained in some form, it should contain features that account for the new environment of managed competition. These features include increasing the capital cost thresholds that mandate review; freedom from regulation in changes in areas being encouraged like ambulatory care; and, most important, a streamlined review process. South Shore Hospital is delighted that its DON for a much needed cardiac catherization laboratory was just app oved, but the original application was filed five ye ars ago. Surely, there is a better way.

Track teams marked by youth and question marks

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

The question marks linger for the Cohasset High School boys and girls track teams. The girls have a crop of young, but untested, talent. On the boys side, there should be enough athletes for a decent '93 campaign on the South Shore League tracks.

"I'm impressed by the number of freshmen athletes who have come out," said head coach Ron Emmons, who coaches the girls. His assistant, Tom McNeil, oversees the boys' squad.

"I think we'll have a good proverbial rebuilding season. We're not going in with a lot of great expectations. We'll just do what we can along the way."

Two constants remain, however, who are guaranteed to generate excitement throughout the spring for the Skippers as they work their way through their SSL schedule.

Talent-wise, senior Ray Jones and freshman Faye Menis both stand head and shoulders above the rest of their teammates, and should threaten to be factors when the invitational tournaments begin in late May.

Jones starred in both football and wrestling for the Skippers, but it is on the track where he has produced his most impressive achievements. He became Cohasset's first state champion since 1976 when he captured the triple jump, last spring. Jones is also the Skippers' most versatile athlete and will compete in the high jump, high hurdles and sprints as well.

Emmons believes Jones will be geared up for another fine season.

"He's one of those athletes you don't have to do a lot of coaching with," said Emmons, Cohasset's coach since 1980. "He's a talented kid."

Menis garnered more than twice as many points than any other member of the girls' squad last season (125) establishing junior high school records in the long and triple jumps.

Because of the abysmal weather conditions, the teams have been practicing indoors. Obviously there are restrictions as to what they can and can't do in training. The javelin is taboo, but high jumpers, hurdlers and shot putters have been able to do quality workouts. And while the long jump and triple jump can not be done without a sand pit, the athletes in those events have concentrated on their approaches to the take-off line.

"We've been really limited," said Emmons. "We've only had one good day outside."

As in past seasons, the girls should be strong in the sprint events. Senior co-captains Claudine Johnson, Kate Murray and ninth-grader Benita Johnson will lead Cohasset in the shorter races.

The spring will mark a comeback for both Murray, who missed all of last season with a broken leg, and METCO student Johnson, a former record-holder in a number of junior high school events.

"There's great potential for progress where she's concerned," Emmons said of Johnson.

Meghan Staunton will run the middle-distance events, while Emmons plans to move Corinna McMackin up to the long-distance races, where she will join eighth-grade miler Andrea Grew and Rebecca Jenkins in the two mile.

Emmons said Jesse Sandell has looked impressive in the high jump and hurdles and seventh-grader Lis Kidder could score in the high jump. The 14-year coach also had high praise for Susannah Gill, who he called "an all-around athlete." He believes the long jump could be Gill's best event, based on her strong approach to the take-off mark. Seventh-grader Alia Ashar has been working hard in the hurdles since practices began.

But the real test will come when the weather clears and the teams are able to practice outside on a regular basis. For now, Emmons is trying to find where his athletes can help score the most points. And that's a tough enough task to determine outside on open fields, forget the fact that Emmons has to make some important, pre-season decisions within the confines of a high school gym.

"It's really hard to say anything else right now," Emmons admitted.

If you watched any of the NCAA basketball tournament you probably noticed a pitiful lack of Massachusetts-bred players.

Sure UMass/Amherst almost made the "Sweet 16" for the second year in a row, but the team is mostly comprised of out-of-state players.

And after watching hours of games this week, I did not find a single Massachusetts-bred star on any of the 64 teams that made the tourney.

Over at Boston College there's a pretty good local player, Duxbury's Bill Curley.

But despite Curley being named to the all-Big East team as a center, the BC Eagles had to settle for an NIT tourney bid and were not invited to the "Big Dance."

You would think with over 200 major Division I basketball programs there would be at least one Massachusetts prime-time player. But alas, there are none that the crack staff at the Mariner could find.

A couple years ago Cambridge Ringe and Latin's Rumeal Robinson helped lead Michigan to the National Title. And in the mid-80's another Cambridge Ringe and Latin player Patrick Ewing led Georgetown to a championship as well.

But those two are the exceptions.

Ewing hails originally from Jamaica and stands over seven feet tall. He has become an NBA superstar.

Robinson, a 6'3" guard, is more of an athlete than a total basketball player. He is a reserve player on the New Jersey Nets.

So why are there no college basketball stars from the Bay State?

Is it the weather? I don't think so. Kevin McHale hails from Minnesota and the weather there is hardly conducive to year-round basketball games outside. Plus Indiana is far from a tropical paradise and they produce great basketball talent.

I think the lack of quality basketball players from this area is due to two factors.

The first is absence of quality outdoor courts to play on. And the second is that today's youth is more interested in playing Nintendo basketball than real basketball.

Let's look at the first factor, the lack of outdoor courts.

A former boys' basketball coach from a very plush town on the South Shore said his town had a poor program because there wasn't a single outdoor court for kids to play on.

"You can't make a basketball player when he gets to high school," the coach said at the time. "You can refine and sharpen skills but it's too late to develop them when they reach that age. You need access to the sport from a young age. The youth leagues are great but they are only one part of the season."

The second factor, the increased popularity of playing video games over playing the real game, could be due to the lack of courts.

If there is nowhere to play real basketball, simply turn on the TV, slide in a Nintendo cartridge and you are dunking over Michael Jordan in 3-D color graphics.

The point is children today do not exercise enough and their parents, school teachers and the town leaders should take a more active role to get children involved.

Cohasset road race set

Students and parents are urged to join the Cohasset Road Race By-the-Sea, Sunday, April 4. Walkers depart from Sandy Beach at 10 a.m. and runners depart from the Town Common at 1 p.m.

The 10K (6.2 mile) route includes ocean views.

Cool drinks are provided from CHS students and senior citizens along the way.

Entry fees are $10 before March 30 and $12 afterwards.

Applications are available at the Community Center, Good Sport and Curtis Liquors.

Sponsored by the Rotary Club, Road Race proceeds benefit their many in-town contributions. Last year Rotary donated $50,000 to Cohasset projects, including $18,000 for CHS scholarships and $5,000 to the CHS writing lab. In turn, please show your support by walking, running, or cheering in the 17th Annual Cohasset Road Race By-the-Sea.

Softball registration coming

Registration for the Cohasset Girls' Softball League will soon be under way as the season is set to commence May 1.

The league is comprised of Division 1, grades four, five and six, and Division 2, grades seven, eight and nine. Division 1 consists of six teams and will play games Tuesday or Thursday evenings at either the Barnes Field, the High School field or Beechwood Ballpark.

Division 2 will consist of four teams which will play each other Saturday afternoons at either of the above mentioned fields. Division 2 will also host Norwell each Thursday at Beechwood Ballpark. The season will end the last week of June.

The Cohasset Girls' Softball League is an instructional league. Aside from lots of fun the league will provide the girls with the opportunity to learn and improve their softball skills. Another important league objective is to promote good sportsmanship. Each year an evaluation session is held in order to assess participants' strengths allowing for balanced teams. This year the evaluation session will be held May 1 at the High School front field.

The girls will also enter a float and march in the Harborfest Parade Sunday, June 20. A picnic and softball jamboree will take place at the conclusion of the parade.

Registration forms will soon be available at the Deer Hill School and Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School. For further information call Lisa Smith at 383-2510 or Rose Collins at 383-0760.

Walk for MS March 28

By lending your feet Sunday, March 28 in "Cohasset by the Sea," a Super Cities Walk for Multiple Sclerosis, one can make a world of difference in the lives of so many.

Funds raised from this event will help to provide money not only for programs but also a large range of services provided by the National MS Society which helps families.

"Cohasset by the Sea," is 10 kilometer loop around Cohasset. Registration begins at the Cohasset Town Hall at noon and a warm-up session will help stretch participants' muscles for their six-mile journey.

A Welcome Back Party with entertainment will await participants at the finish.

To register for "Cohasset by the Sea" call (508) 291-2169.

Registration for workout

The Cohasset Recreation Department is accepting telephone registrations at 383-6791 for a new high energy step workout program to be instructed by Ms. Normandie Nigh, President of the fitness consulting firm Fit For Success.

This class is a combination of aerobic stepping for intermediate and advanced level participants, power moves for muscle definition and extended stretching and relaxation.

To register for Power Step, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791 for a discounted six class, 75-minutes per class, session, or you may pay on a drop-in rate basis of $5 per class. This program is open to non-residents of Cohasset on a space available basis.

Health care is topic as local democrats meet

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

The Cohasset Democratic Town Committee sponsored an informational meeting on the subject of universal health care Tuesday night at the Unitarian Parish House. Featured speakers were David Danielson of Newton, who is the co-chairman of the National Health Task Force of the Gray Panthers, and Robert E. Restuccia, the executive director of Health Care For All. In addition to the Gray Panthers, which is a group concerned with issues affecting the elderly, Danielson is also a member of Citizens for Participation in Political Action (CPPAX).

Danielson, Restuccia and their respective groups have been consistent voices on state and national levels for the cause of universal health care. The concept has been the subject of much publicity of late due to President Clinton's promise to submit a comprehensive health plan to Congress within his first 100 days in office. Clinton also appointed his wife, Hillary, to head up the White House Task Force. This decision was one that was met with a favorable response from both Danielson's and Restuccia's groups.

"I think it is a positive thing. She brings to the position a concern for children and others who can't get access to health care," Restuccia explained.

Danielson expressed guarded optimism about the possibility of some form of national health care becoming a reality in the not too distant future.

"You now have a President who wants to do things and a Congress that is willing to help," Danielson state.

Citing an increase in the number of women, hispanics and blacks in Congress, Danielson explained that the changed Congress represents groups that traditionally have been denied access to quality health care and would be likely to support a comprehensive health care plan.

Danielson devoted much of his presentation to what he termed defining the problem. He pointed to long-term statistical indicators in order to assess the quality of health care in the U.S. He cited statistics which indicate that in the U.S., infant deaths are 10.4 per 1,000 lives, as opposed to Canada where they are 7.9 per 1,000 lives. Canada has universal health care and is often looked to as a model by other countries. In the U.S., the overall life expectancy is 75.3 years as opposed to 77.1 in Canada. Danielson also pointed out that the U.S. is one of only two industrialized nations in the world that does not have a national health plan in effect. The other country that does not is South Africa.

Danielson also identified some of the major problems which are currently affecting the health care system in the U.S. He claims that insurance companies are draining the system through administrative waste. He reported that $68 billion annually is wasted by insurance companies. This, he explained, is more money than is spent on an annual basis for the treatment of cancer patients or heart patients. Another problem identified was the unpredictability of the reimbursement system of insurance companies which leads to insecurity on the part of providers and patients. Finally, he pointed out that the present system, whereby many Americans get their health insurance through their employers, is inherently flawed since the loss of a job due to injury or layoff amounts to loss of insurance.

Restuccia echoed much of what Danielson explained with regard to the problems with the existing health care system. His group, Health Care For All, has a service component which addresses situations involving people with specific problems regarding inaccessibility to health care. He pointed out that over 100,000 people became uninsured in this state last year. Such a drastic drop in the number of insured sent Massachusetts from fourth to 17th in the ranking of U.S. states. In addition, he explained that health care costs increased by 11 percent from Sept. 1991 to Sept. 1992. During that same period, costs nationally increased by only 8 percent.

Restuccia believes that the answer is with the consumer. He believes that health care is a human dignity issue and that it should be demanded by all and provided to all.

Restuccia and Danielson both support a single-payer system whereby the Department of Health and Human Services would administer the program at a national level and the states would administer the program at the local level. The result would be one buyer of medical services which would assure cost control and fewer behind-the-scenes deal making with medical providers. Both also support what Restuccia termed cradle-to-grave coverage. Such coverage would encompass some type of benefit package including things like long-term care, annual checkups, prenatal and postnatal care, curative care as needed, dental care, mental health benefits, prescription drugs and any other variety of benefits.

Danielson and Restuccia also favor the severing of the connection between employment and insurance in favor of the creation of a system which is more portable and is available to all persons.

The meeting featured some interesting debate among members of the Democratic Town Committee, other citizens, and Restuccia and Danielson, which highlighted issues like administration, costs, sources of funding, increased taxes and equal access to equipment and treatment. All in attendance seemed to agree that something drastic needs to be done in order to save the faltering health care system in the state.

Restuccia cited Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy as a leading activist in the area of health care reform along with Congressman Gerry Studds. Restuccia and Danielson both encouraged contact with Kennedy and Studds by voters in order to show support for a universal health care system.

According to both Restuccia and Danielson, President Clinton will likely submit a plan to Congress by May 3. Restuccia believes that the strength of southern democratic senators will cause Clinton to make a lot of concessions in order to please them, which will affect the ultimate plan. Restuccia anticipates a very heated debate over the entire issue due to the political and policy dimensions which are inextricably connected to a universal health care system.

Danielson expressed guarded optimism about the passage of a plan.

"Now all we need is a majority in both houses since we will no longer be facing a presidential veto," he explained.

Advocates and opponents of a universal health care plan must now await President Clinton's next move. If he lives up to his campaign promise, it will come very soon.

Beautician helps residents look and feel good

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Beauty is more than skin-deep, says beautician Mary Davidson.

Davidson said her clients gain confidence and mingle with others more after having their hair done. Not a startling revelation, except that her clients are in their 70s, 80s and 90s and reside at the Cohasset Knoll Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility.

"They socialize more," Davidson said.

She added that she frequently hears from her clients' relatives how much the difference a simple trip to Davidson's salon makes in their outlook.

Realizing the importance professional grooming plays in many of the residents' lives, Davidson will perform her services even if the seniors don't have her payment readily available.

"It really makes a difference in them — and it makes me feel good," she said.

Davidson said it isn't enough to simply style the residents' hair. She said she usually duplicates a contemporary style.

"I gave this gentlemen a buzz top the other day," she said.

"I don't like to give orthopedic hairstyles."

Cohasset Knoll Administrator Roberta Dufresne agreed with Davidson on how important looks are to the elderly.

"To say it's therapeutic is an understatement," she said of the residents' visits to Davidson's salon.

Dufresne related her experience that women who have been in bed for a while usually inquire about Davidson's availability before they ask the same of a doctor.

"I always find it amazing if someone is down for a while, with the flu or an illness, they'll ask when the hairdresser is going to be in," she said.

"It's interesting how they don't ask that about the doctor," Dufresne said.

Davidson has a salon in the facility, but makes the extra effort to go to a client's room if they ill or confined to bed rest.

During Christmas, she gave crafts to her customers. She also doles out sweets, even remembering which residents' are on a no-sugar diet.

She also gets to know her clients' relatives.

"I like to speak to the families," she said, adding that she feels more connected with her clients.

Cohasset Knoll recently recognized Davidson's extra efforts.

The 24-karat team, composed of Knoll staff members, selected her as their honorary person of the first quarter of 1993.

Team leaders Theresa Wilder and Kirsten Richards said Davidson's selflessness made her the ideal candidate.

"We presented her with chocolates in the shape of a blow-dryer and brush," Wilder said.

As part of a motivational program among the staff and residents, the 24-karat team posted Davidson's picture in the building with several pictures of her receiving her chocolate gift.

Drama . . .

director, and I certainly didn't want to see Katie cheated. Every other semi-final would be held during the week; one site, Pingree Academy, had even foolishly chosen to go ahead with the festival during the storm."

So, the phone calls continued.

Vin Parella, president of the Massachusetts High School Drama Guild, offered hope when he informed Emmons that the Bromfield School was going to be short one school at its semi-final. However, that hope disappeared when the Bromfield director announced that the opening had already been filled by a school that had been unable to attend the Pingree festival.

"Sunday morning, I was told we could go to Acton's festival Monday, so I called the kids and the school's bus coordinator; Sunday afternoon, I was told that the festival would be Tuesday, so I called the kids and the school's bus coordinator; Monday morning, I was told that the festival would be Wednesday, so I called the kids and the school's bus coordinator. At about this time, I heard the weather forecast for Wednesday: snow and/or rain."

Wednesday morning, when the students loaded the bus and departed for Acton-Boxborough High School, that forecast seemed to be as inaccurate as most; and even when the bus pulled into Acton, the temperature was still high and rain seemed all that might fall from the sky.

A quick festival had been promised; everything would be over by nine in the evening. Pam, Cohasset's bus driver, would stay and take the students home at that time. Tardy arrival by one school; set-up problems on the part of another; technical delays; and judges who, to their credit despite participant's dismay, refused to be rushed turned a sprint into a marathon—and then the snow began.

"We were in a theater without windows, so none of us was aware of just how much snow was falling," Emmons said. "In fact we didn't know what had been dropped on us until we left the building at midnight. I'd had a phone chain begun when the extreme delays set in, but no one could have predicted how late we would arrive back in Cohasset. God bless Pam, who took us through horrendous road conditions without ever getting upset. She had supported us all day and went well 'beyond the call of duty.' I hope you'll let me thank her in print. I also want to thank the parents of all of my cast and crew for being so patient, so understanding, and so supportive throughout this difficult week and on into the early hours of Thursday morning."

All that is over now and there remains only the excitement of being able to perform "Act Three, Scene Five" before an audience of over 1,100 at Boston's John Hancock Hall Friday, March 26, at 9 p.m. Tickets for the whole evening's performances are $7. The theater is located in the old John Hancock building on Berkley Street. A complete list of performances are: Thursday, March 25: 6 p.m. Peabody High School, "The Death of a Salesman;" 7 p.m. Lynnfield High School, "The Love Talker;" 8 p.m. Cambridge Rindge & Latin School, "Steal Away Home."

Friday, March 26: 1 p.m. Falmouth High School, "Blues;" 2 p.m. Nashoba Regional High School, "The Actor's Nightmare;" 3 p.m. Bromfield School, "To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday;" 4 p.m. B.M.C. Durfee High School, "Nicholas Nickleby;" 7 p.m. Weston High School, "Much Ado About Nothing;" 8 p.m. West Bridgewater High School, "This Is a Test;" 9 p.m. Cohasset High School, "Act Three, Scene Five."

Saturday, March 27: 1 p.m. Danvers High School, "Between Mouthfuls;" 2 p.m. St. John's Prep "A Midsummer Night's Dream;" 3 p.m. Joseph Case High School, "The Grapes of Wrath;" 4:30 p.m. Belmont High School, "Women and Wallace;" and 5:30 p.m. Lexington High School, An original, untitled work.

The Cohasset cast of five has won many individual honors along the way to the state finals. At each level of festival, the outstanding acting performances are acknowledged by selection of an all-star cast. Traditionally, the number selected from each school gets smaller as the competition becomes narrowed down from the ninety schools that participated in the preliminaries to the thirty-five at semi-finals; however, this year the Cohasset's representation on the list of outstanding performers grew from three at preliminaries to four at semi-finals. Joining preliminary all-star cast members Kevin O'Donnell, Katie O'Sullivan, and Erin McAllister was Mary Ellen Rayment.

"Perhaps, there is something to this luck of the Irish stuff," Emmons said. "Remember the festival was held on St. Patrick's Day, but I prefer to see it as a recognition of some incredible performances. Mary Ellen's award was especially satisfying to me because she has only about a dozen lines, but she's on stage for the whole play and has to remain focused and interact physically with what is occurring on stage. This is not to say Kevin, only a sophomore, and Katie and Erin aren't performing beautifully; it's just very difficult to show up positively in a role such as Mary Ellen's. Judges usually don't notice you unless you mess up.

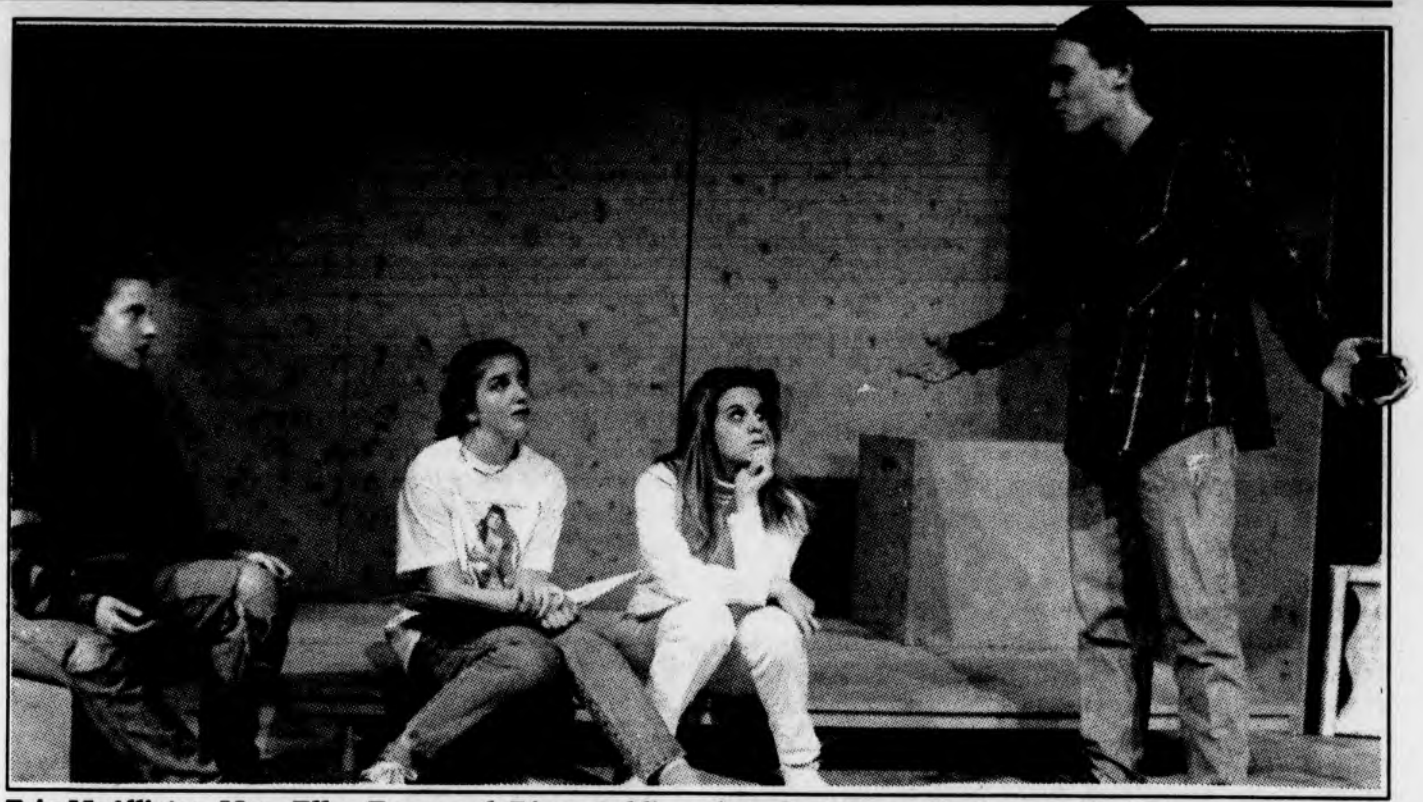
"This week's Boston performance will mark the eleventh time in 16 years that a Cohasset High School production has made it to the State Finals Festival. With new performers such as Kevin and Mary Ellen, it certainly shouldn't be our last. Since we first participated in Festival in 1978 (before some of these cast members were born) we have never failed to make it to the semi-finals. We are proud of that tradition," he said.

"Act Three, Scene Five" was written by Terence Ortwein, director of the Paul Mellon Art Center at Choat Rosemary Hall, where Emmons is the director of a summer theatre program.

"Terry had directed my play "What You Will!" at Choate that summer, and a month later I got this script in the mail with a note that simply read "This is what I did after you left.' I'm glad I've finally been able to do the play justice."

The author hopes to be able to join the cast in Boston to see the Drama Workshop performance. He is the author of And Flights of Angels, the all-female "Hamlet" which was presented at Cohasset High School last year.

Rounding out the cast of the show is Diane Saldi. Performing unnoticed but always appreciated work are director's assistant Katie Brennock, stage manager Grace Deveney, and a crew comprised of Katherine Barrett, Caitlin Connolly, Kendra D. Gray, Nicole Haefner, Tracy Hyde, and Amy Mae Silvia.



Erin McAllister, Mary Ellen Raymond, Diane Saldi, and Kevin O'Donnell rehearse "Act Three, Scene Five" which goes to the Massachusetts State Drama Festival finals Friday night.

student of the month

Christina DeVaughn

Christina is truly a song bird! She is a member of the CHS chorus and has participated in the All-State Music Festival.

Christina sung solo during the Valentine Cabaret. But, my reason for recommending her is the performance she gave at a recent boys' basketball game. Christina sang the national anthem and the spectators gave her a standing ovation. She did such a wonderful job and received many compliments from parents and students.

Art Center scholarships

The South Shore Arts Center will accept applications on April 30 and May 1 from high school seniors for two college scholarships. Applicants should submit required materials to the Art Center, 119 Ripley Rd. on Friday, April 30 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday, May 1 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

High school seniors who have been accepted to an accredited art school may apply for the Fred E. Bergfors Scholarship and the MacIvor Reddie Scholarship. The students must deliver a portfolio, the name of the accredited school to which they are accepted, and a brief artist's statement to the Art Center on April 30 or May 1. A professional art jury will evaluate the portfolios and select the scholarship winners.

For more information, please call the art center at 383-9548.

Wetlands program held

Billy B, an environmental song and dance man, performed at the Deer Hill School Thursday, Feb. 25.

Brennan is a veteran performer who has chalked up engagements at the Kennedy Center, the Smithsonian Institute and National Theater. He was recently asked to participate in the inaugural events for President Clinton.

He blends loony humor with solid science for a zany and unforgettable exploration of the environment. Backed by a beautiful tapestry, his audience creating the sound effects, Billy B sings and dances about gators, muskrats, hoot owls and photosynthesis.

Deer Hill students and teachers "romped in the swamp" and did the "Dragonfly" while learning about our wetlands.

O'Sullivan is winner

Kathleen M. O'Sullivan, a senior at Cohasset Junior/Senior High School has been named one of two Massachusetts 1993 Century III Leaders, winning a $1,000 college scholarship.

Winners were selected from students who demonstrated academic excellence, leadership skills in their school and community, and a knowledge of national and world affairs. Each candidate took a current events test and wrote a "Projection for Innovative Leadership," outlining a problem facing the United States during its third century and suggesting an approach to solving it.

"There exists a real crisis in education," O'Sullivan writes in her projection. "A possible solution ... is the concept of school choice" in which students receive a voucher for a certain number of tax dollars which can be redeemed at any public or private school.

"Under the pressures of market forces, schools must improve as they compete for the student and the funding provided by voucher," O'Sullivan continues. She believes that choice "introduces equality in education. Innovative plans that provide the money for any student to attend any public, private, or parochial school offer the ultimate in equitable education," she concludes.

Club offers scholarships

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset is offering one or more scholarships to any qualified graduating senior who plans to further his/her education.

Applications, available in the guidance office of Cohasset High School, must be returned by Friday, April 16.

Annual spelling bee held

Recently the seventh annual spelling bee was held for grades seven and eight. Twenty classroom champions participated and each received a certificate and a silver dollar award from the P.S.O.

The school champion is Andrew Hamilton, a seventh grader, who will participate in the regional Patriot Ledger Spelling Bee April 3. He will represent Cohasset High School in this level of competition. School runner-up and alternate is Kathleen Fitzsimmons of grade eight. Other winners and participants were the following students:

Holly Brennock, second place, grade eight; Matthew Lewis, second place, grade seven; Courtney Brown, Bourke Corcoran, Brooke Heilner, Janet Hoyler, Abigail Kornet, Dawn Massa-Williams, Sara Proctor, Andrew Ross, Elena Tosi, Tameka Adams, Frank Abadie, Jarrod Batts, Taylor Devin, Rebecca Jenkins, and Jeremy Williams.

Driver training program

May 5 and 6 you will have the opportunity to participate in "55 Alive" sponsored by your Council on Aging and AARP. Here is your chance to see what we're doing right and what we can do to act more prudently on the road, either as shuttle drivers or when driving our own families. The first session of the course will be held Wednesday, May 5, at 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Cohasset Community Center, 3 North Main St. We will meet again Thursday, May 6 from 10 to 3 p.m.

Alzheimer's group meets

Dr. Sherry E. Johnson will address "Grieving for the Loss of Self" Wednesday, March 31, at 7:30 p.m. at the Hersey House, 229 North St., Hingham.

Dr. Johnson is a grief therapist at the South Shore Counseling Center and is author of After a Child Dies; Counseling Bereaved Families. Johnson will suggest strategies for coping with the particular stress of dealing with Alzheimer's disease which causes progressive, intellectual impairment. Alzheimer's disease affects an estimated 4 million Americans.

The Alzheimer's Disease Support Group of the South Shore meets monthly to provide information and peer support. It provides referrals for physicians, attorneys, diagnostic centers, day care and nursing homes as well as offering a monthly newsletter and a library of current information. All meetings are free and open to the public. For more information, call (617) 749-5417.

Shine information

Q. What is long term care insurance?

A. Long-term care insurance is a relatively new type of insurance available to cover a portion of the cost of care in a nursing home or care at home. At present, no health insurance plan (Medicare or private health insurance secured through an employer) covers long term custodial care. As a result, this type of insurance was developed as an attempt to fill this gap. Paying for long-term care is very expensive and can be catastrophic for most people if an individual is in need of long term care for an extended period of time.

Q. What do I need to know before I consider purchase of this insurance?

A. The Massachusetts Division of Insurance (DOI) has established regulations for all non-group long-term care insurance plans. So, the first thing to ask an agent is if the plan(s) presented to you is a non-group or a group plan. This is very important! You may buy this type of insurance as an individual (not a member of a group), but you may be unknowingly buying into a group trust.

If you want more information on this or other health insurance matters, call the SHINE Program at the Cohasset Senior Center at 383-9116. A SHINE Counselor is available by appointment or for phone consultation on Monday, 10 a.m. to noon; Tuesday, 10 a.m. to noon; and Thursday, (time to be announced).

Newcomers to meet

The Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club will hold its annual Fashion Show Luncheon Saturday, April 3 at Kimball's By The Sea in Cohasset. Fashions will be provided by Pamela's Place, Hanover. The show begins at noon. There will be a raffle with prizes ranging from Boston hotel accommodations and show tickets to a gift certificate to a local restaurant and a catered picnic. Raffle tickets are available through members and will be sold at Stop & Shop Saturday, March 27 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Proceeds go directly to fund scholarships for Scituate and Cohasset High School students. For tickets or further information, please call Anne at 383-9028.

Need a hand with spring cleaning/yard work? To raise money for the summer work week in Appalachia, students are available for hire during the following weekends to help with spring cleaning chores, yard clean-up, etc.

March 27 and 28, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, April 17 and 18, and 24 and 25, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Please call Ami Argus (383-9325) or Carol Martin (383-6577) with your specific needs and we will match you with one or more of our student workers. Minimum donation is $5/hour per student.

Don't miss 'Belles'

The Cohasset Dramatic Club presents Belles March 25, 26, 27, and 28. The Mark Dunn play takes place as a series of telephone calls between six sisters ages 19 through 40.

Cast members include Cohasset residents Peggy Corrigan and Angi Walsh, and Scituate residents Disa Pratt, Anita Ahern, Keely Burke and Tracy Riddell as the six sisters. Lisa Pratt of Kingston is the director. Please call Joe or Dawn Rota at 545-3195 for ticket information.

Glastonbury Abbey auction

The 10th Annual Auction to benefit the Monks of Glastonbury Abbey will be held at the Hingham High School Gym off Union Street Saturday, April 3.

Many treasures will be available — original art work by local artists as well as large Chinese vases, marble base mantel clocks, many styles of luxurious furnishings, a hand carved bird, a variety of decorative brass objects and many types of antiques will be up for the bidding. You can also bid on Celtics, Red Sox and Bruins tickets, gourmet dinners to be prepared and served in your home, a variety of gift certificates donated by local South Shore Merchants and much, much more.

The preview and afternoon auction start at 1 p.m. evening auction begins at 7 p.m. sharp under the gavel of auctioneer Norm McCullough.

Admission and catalogs are free and refreshments will be available. You may pick up a catalog in advance at the Glastonbury Abbey bookstore.

Adventure course slated

Come join the exciting challenges encountered on the Cohasset High Ropes Course.

Participants learn safe and proper use of equipment, creation and employment of climbing knots and skills in belaying and rappelling. In addition to technical skills, climbers will engage in problem solving, team building play, receive and provide catalytical support, increase self-confidence and group trust that allows one to meet the challenges all the while having fun.

The course is offered:

Adults: Five consecutive Mondays, 6 to 8 p.m., beginning April 5.

Youth (ages 11-13): Five consecutive Fridays, 4 to 6 p.m., beginning April 10.

Young Adults (ages 14-18): Four consecutive Fridays, 7 to 10 p.m., beginning April 10.

Young Adults (ages 14-18): Advanced Assistant Training Course for those interested in seeking employment as assistant staff on the ropes course. Four consecutive weeks, 7 to 10 p.m., beginning May 8.

For information call Jack Buckley, 383-6100, 925-2428 or Susan McMackin, 383-2688.

For pre-registration call the Cohasset Community Center.

Youths' Advocacy Day

The Cohasset Community Center is coordinating Cohasset's participation in the 9th Annual Children's and Youths' Advocacy Day, May 6, at the State House.

Children and youths from across the state will attend to present their issues to the State legislature.

The participants will learn about basic legislative process and effective advocacy techniques.

This is an excellent opportunity for any group in town that is youth-oriented to learn about the legislative process and to network with other youth groups to share ideas and goals.

Any organization in town who is interested in further information and/or would like to attend the first meeting should contact Rhonda Myers at the Community Center at 383-0088. The trip May 6 will probably be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Bus transportation will be provided.

Spring fun-raiser set

Celebrate spring at the Cohasset Community Center, Saturday, April 3, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Nursery School will hold its annual Spring "Fun-raiser" Lunch with the Easter Bunny, for the enjoyment of all chil

Children will enjoy springtime and holiday including edible necklaces, crowns, bunny ear waving chicks in the Senior Center lower function room.

Lunch will be held in the gym where all may feast on hot dogs, assorted homemade salads, chips, homemade desserts and beverages.

To top off the celebration, the Easter Bunny will arrive during the festivities to say hello to all the children, and then will be seated in the Senior Center upper function room for photos with children. Photos are $2.

Admission is $4 for adults and $3 for children. Advance ticket purchase is advisable. Tickets will be on sale at the Community Center office. For further information, please call 383-0088 or 383-0036.

Bridal show slated

Sunday, March 28, MacArthur's restaurant on Rte. 53 in Hingham, features an English High Tea and a Bridal Fashion Show. The "Best Foot Forward" modeling agency from Duxbury, will produce the fashion show which will begin at 1 p.m.

Fashions for the bridal party are furnished by Savini International, Kingston and were designed and made by Sandi McGrath, the owner. Other gowns are furnished by GANTOS, Independence Mall, Kingston. Commentary will be provided by Mary Ellen King, Director of "Best Foot Forward."

Cost for the tea and show is $10.95 and reservations are required. Call MacArthur's, (617) 749-0707.

Potter offers workshop

Makoto Yabe, an internationally-recognized master potter, offers a workshop on "The Japanese Approach to the Vessel," Saturday, April 3 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset. This special pottery workshop is open to SSAC members for $65 and nonmembers for $75. Pre-registration is required; call (617) 383-9548 to register by March 27.

Town election could be a real sleeper

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Town Clerk Marion Douglas won't venture a guess about how many voters will turn out to cast ballots in what could be one of the quietest elections in recent memory.

And if absentee ballots are a gauge — then the bulk of Cohasset citizens could sit this one out.

The only contest is a four-way race for three seats on the board of library trustees. Ellery Clark will try to unseat one of the incumbents Doris McNulty, Sheila Evans, or Lucille McLouglin.

The polls are open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday at the town hall auditorium.

Last year's town election — with contests on the boards of selectmen and health and school committee — brought 40.2 percent of the town's registered voters to the polls. Of the 1,922 who voted last April, 131 cast absentee ballots.

By Monday, only 22 absentee ballots had been taken out which could foretell a turnout of 12 percent or about 600 of the town's 5,000 voters.

"That's low," said Douglas about absentee voting this year.

Although the seats are uncontested, there's no

A last-minute offer by a generous mystery person with a penchant for new fire pumpers threw town meeting into momentary confusion Saturday.

Once the dust settled though, the voters passed Article 31 — which allows the town to raise up to $230,000 to purchase a new fire pumper. The vote, which required a two-thirds majority to carry, was 139 in favor and 11 against the article.

It is unlikely the entire $230,000 will be needed, however, because the benefactor's gift will defray the cost by $48,000.

During discussions of Article 31, Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke explained that an anonymous donor had recently approached the board with a combination gift-loan of $250,000 exclusively for the purchase of a new fire pumper.

"A citizen of the town has approached us with a gift of $250,000," Goedecke said. A total of "$25,000 is a gift, with the remaining $225,000 to be a three-year

Town meeting voters override the official opinion

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

The citizenry asserted their independence at Saturday's town meeting when the topics of hazardous waste and easement acquisition surfaced.

In both cases, town meeting voted against the recommendations of selectmen and the advisory committee.

Town meeting passed Article 8, which allowed the appropriation of $13,000 to host a hazardous waste collection day this year.

Speaking for the board, selectman Michael Sullivan said an every-other year collection schedule was sufficient.

"It is a way of saving money. We feel people can hold onto it for an additional year," Sullivan said.

He noted that Cohasset held a hazardous waste collection day last year.

Michael Putzinger of the advisory committee expressed similar sentiments.

"We are not in favor of hazardous waste, or its

Race welcomes spring with record field

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

When runners cross the finish line of this Sunday's 17th annual Roadrace-By-the-Sea, each will be given a long-sleeved jersey decorated with the race's logo.

An even more appropriate concept would be to have the phrase "You've come a long way baby", spelled out in big, bold letters.

The race has aged well with time.

One-hundred runners answered the starters pistol in the inaugural race back in 1977. The field has grown in popularity every year and race director Peter Logan expects upwards of 1,000 to traverse the 10K (6.2 mile) course this weekend. Runners began to request entry

Ball fields off limits

Due to the vast amount of snow this year and the predicted amount of rain in the forecast, it would be appreciated if all groups and individuals would not use the fields until they are ready. There will be a notice to inform you when the fields are ready for use.

Firefighters' contract ok'd

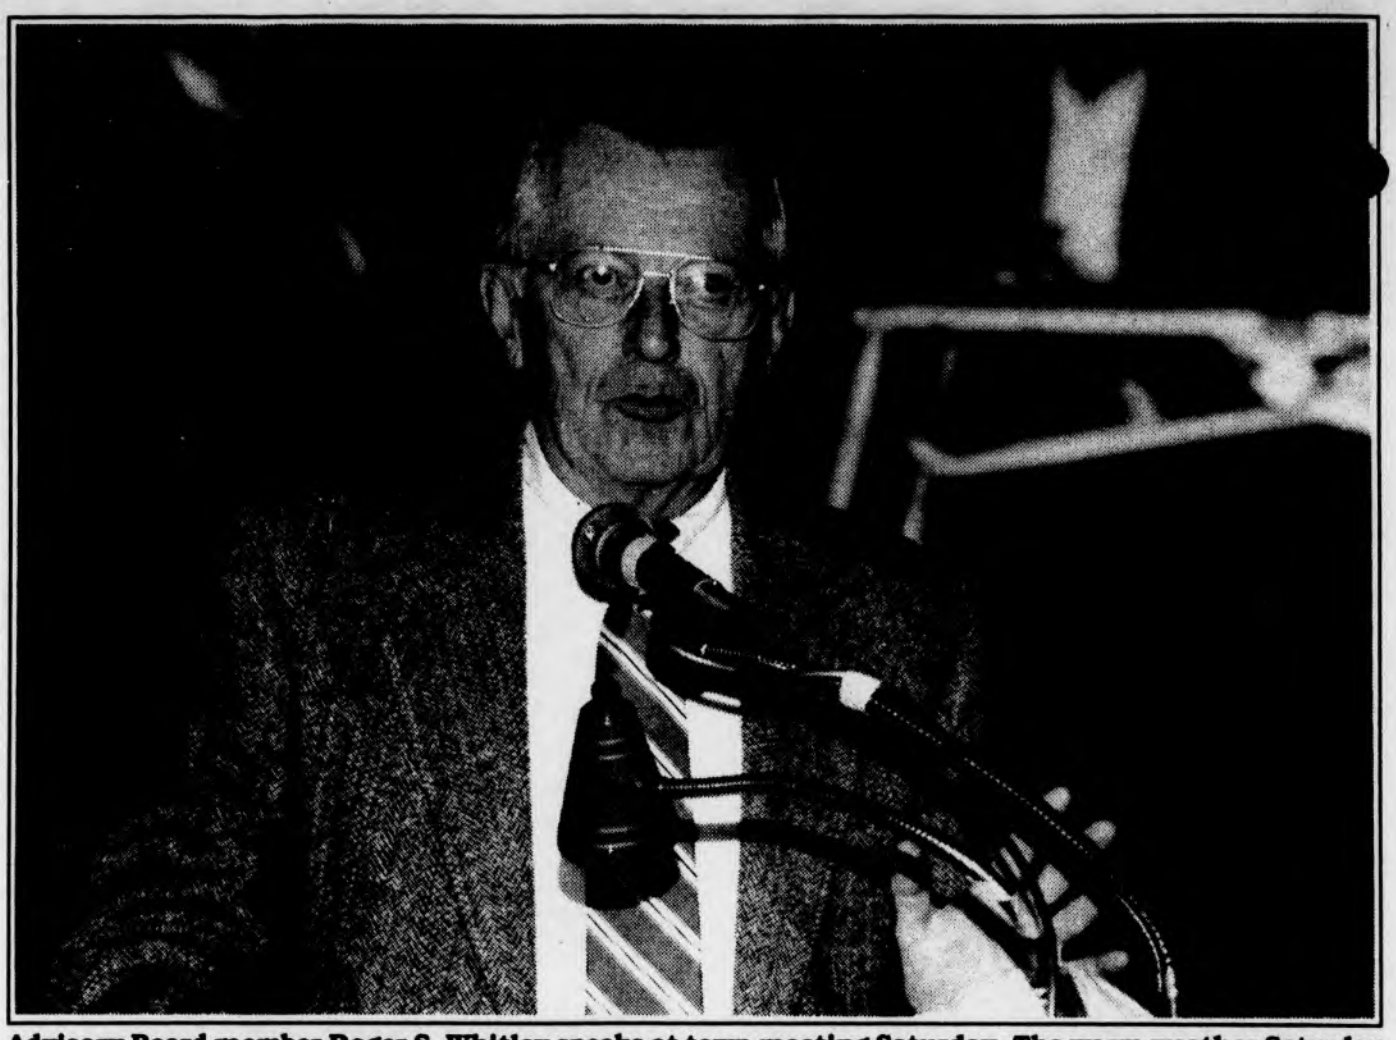
A three-year wait ended at town meeting Saturday when voters overwhelmingly approved a new firefighters' contract agreed to earlier in the week by the firefighters' union and selectmen.

Although the new five-year contract will cost the town more than $1/4 million through fiscal 1994, which starts July 1, the money will come from the free cash's account in FY'94 and not an override, advisors said.

The contract is retroactive to July 1, 1991 and goes through June 30, 1995. Under the new agreement, a firefighter's minimum rate base pay is $25,364 in FY'90 and $29,377 in FY'94. The maximum rate goes from $31,560 to $36,599.

The contract also eliminates the minimum manning requirement and provides a voluntary vaccination program for firefighters against Hepatitis B.

In exchange for doing away with the minimum manning requirement, the 24 career firefighters each receive a lump sum payment averaging about $2,000.



Advisory Board member Roger S. Whitley speaks at town meeting Saturday. The warm weather Saturday didn't prevent 279 people from attending. A quorum of 100 was reached by 10:30 a.m.

Air bag makes save

An air bag may have kept Frank Loiacono, Jr. of Hull from being more seriously injured after his car was struck head on by another vehicle Saturday night, police said.

Loiacono was travelling north on Rte. 3A when his car was hit by one driven by William F. Van Putten of Scituate, said Sgt. Robert Jackson.

Police charged Van Putten, 34, with operating under the influence, failure to stay in marked lanes, operating to endanger, and improper passing. Jackson said Van Putten was bailed at South Shore Hospital and was arraigned Monday (March 29) and is scheduled for a further court appearance July 2.

Jackson said Loiacono was transported to South Shore Hospital where he was treated and released.

"He had an air bag in the car which prevented serious injury. They do work," Jackson said.

Name: George Marlette.

Occupation: Town moderator, attorney.

Best day of your life: The day I soloed (flying).

Most embarrassing moment: That's easy. A couple of weeks ago I arrived at a weekend meeting at the Grand Lodge of Masons in jeans and topsiders. There were over 200 people at there — in tuxedos. I spent the day dodging dirty looks.

Goal: To get married and raise my family in Cohasset.

Favorite season: Summer.

Best vacation: Spending two weeks in Israel in 1990.

Favorite holiday: Fourth of July — it would have been my birthday, except the delivering doctor had a golf tournament, so I was born on the fifth.

Pet Peeve: "Voicemail."

Favorite book: "The Chosen," by Chaim Potok.

Favorite movie: "Star Trek IV."

Biggest worry: The economy.

Favorite place: Nantucket.

Favorite junk-food: I never met a junk-food I didn't like.

interest free loan," she said.

She further explained that the donor wants his property taxes to be paid from the $25,000 gift — bringing the actual donation to $23,000.

Assuming a 5 percent interest rate on the $225,000, Goedecke said the town could receive $25,000 from the loan portion of the gift.

"The total to the town would be about $48,000," she said. Executive Secretary Gregory J. Doyon said the donor had approached Fire Chief John Nadeau with his offer during the week prior to town meeting, but the details were not finalized until the day before town meeting.

Doyon said the selectmen met immediately before town meeting commenced and voted to accept the money.

News of the gift caused the advisory committee to reconsider its prior "No Vote" recommendation on Article 31 during town meeting.

"We just voted three to two to recommend to purchase it. The chairman is not voting," member Kenneth Ingber said.

However, the gift of the $48,000 did not sway the capital budget committee. They held to their original vote against borrowing up to $230,000 for a new fire truck.

Mark A. Baker of the capital budget committee agreed that another pumper was needed, but is opposed to the purchase of a "new" one.

"We voted five to zero to support purchase of a used truck — up to $100,000 cap," Baker said.

However, there was no motion Saturday to change the article from the $230,000 limit for a new pumper to a $100,000 limit for a used pumper.

Baker explained that the capital budget committee voted on Article 31 with an eye toward regionalization of public safety services. Cohasset would be spending more than is needed on a piece of equipment, Baker said, that in all likelihood will spend much of its time fighting other town's fires.

"Once regionalization becomes a reality, we would hope to be compensated for our newness, but we are not sure," Baker said.

Goedecke said regionalization may never become a reality.

"We want this very much, but other towns are suspect," she said of public safety regionalizaton. "One thing that has been stressed is the number of roadblocks facing regionalization."

Fire Chief Nadeau said regionalization, if it occurs, is at least two years away.

"In 1987 the town made the decision to go from four to three engines. Now you want to go from three to two," Nadeau said.

"You are putting firefighters at risk and fire victims at risk."

The town had three fire pumper trucks until several months ago. At that time Nadeau pulled the 1961 Pirsch Pumper from the lineup for mechanical reasons.

He cautioned the town against assuming mutual aid would make up for the lack of a town-owned third pumper.

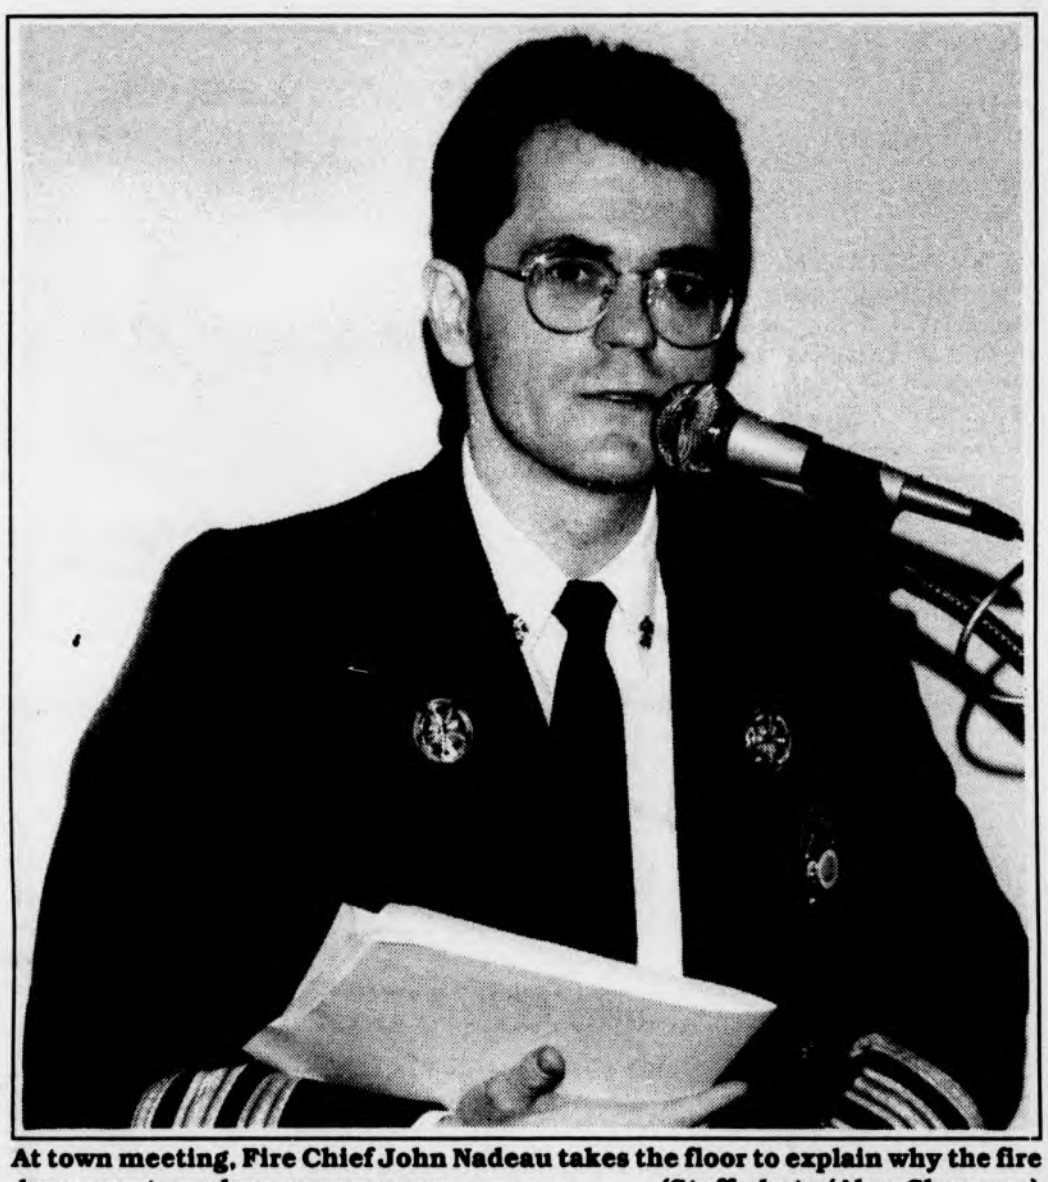
Mutual aid occurs when one town's fire department assists another's.

"Mutual aid takes about 10 minutes," he said.

Nadeau explained that two pumpers are needed at a structure fire. One provides the water supply (about 500 gallons) for the initial attack, while the other finds a hydrant and lays line. It takes about three minutes to empty the 500 gallon water supply of the first pumper, he said.

If the second pumper is out of service, the wait for more water can be lengthy, Nadeau added.

"For a period of three and one-half to 10 minutes we will be without water," he said.



At town meeting, Fire Chief John Nadeau takes the floor to explain why the fire deparment needs a new pumper. (Staff photo/Alan Chapman) improper disposal. But based on less participation, the committee wants to forgo the collection this year," Putzinger said.

Voters override official opinion

Robert V. Davenport of the health board opposed the discontinuance of a special collection day.

"I want you to know the money is already there for that," he said, refering to last year's override for hazardous waste collection day.

When an override passes, as last year's did for hazardous collection, the town's levy is permanently raised.

However, local authorities are under no obligation to continue to use the money for the same purposes in subsequent years.

Alixe P. White said an annual hazardous waste collection day is needed.

"I did not avail myself of it last year," White said. "Not allowing for annual waste collection is penny-wise and pound foolish."

Ronald Goodwin also supported an annual waste collection day.

"Anything we can do to encourage proper disposal of hazardous waste is money well-spent."

A total of 107 people voted for Article 8 and 64 voted against it.

Town meeting also ignored the will of selectmen and the advisory committee and voted against Article 17.

Article 17 would have allowed the town to take 15 feet of land on four properties which abut the Doane Street culvert to repair the culvert.

The vote was 62 for and 61 against article 17, however, a two-thirds majority was needed to carry its passage.

Abutters said they did not object to helping the town, but did not want to relinquish their right to notification.

"If the easement is given to the town, they will not have to notify abutters," Mark Connelly of 68 Doane Street said.

Drama club's Belles tackles tough issues play review

The Cohasset Dramatic Club, now in its 72nd season, presented its final production of the year last week with four performances of "Belles" at Cohasset Town Hall.

The unique presentation portrays six sisters who spend the entire two acts talking to one another on the telephone, leaving the audience as an interested eavesdropper.

"Belles," which was written by Mark Dunn, tells of the diverse lifestyles of the six sisters and it is their personal problems in their adult life which form the basis of most of the play's dialogue. As the play unfolds, the actresses release little pieces of information during the course of their telephone conservations which make it clear that they are the products of a dysfunctional family. While the issue is timely, the script runs short of specific descriptions of the family's early problems, and it isn't until Act Two that one of the sisters identifies alcoholism as the root of the problem.

The six cast members were remarkably successful with this technique and were able to keep the attention of the audience throughout both acts.

The character of Aneece Walker, played by Cohasset resident Peggy Corrigan, was convincingly portrayed as the most bitter of the Walker sisters, harboring resentment over her father's alcohol problem and her mother's apparent indifference to it. Aneece chooses to bury herself in her career and appears to be slipping into an alcohol problem herself whenever she is faced with any family contact or family crisis. Corrigan captured the type of resentment and anger that it appears Dunn had in mind when he created the role of Aneece.

Another Cohasset resident, Angi Walsh, turned din one of the most humorous performances of Saturday evening with her portrayal of Audrey Hart. Audrey is a struggling ventriloquist who herself is married to a recovered alcoholic. Much to her sisters' dismay, she is incomprehensibly attached to her wooden "dummy" named Rothschild. Walsh was well able to carry off the comical aspect of her character.

Similarly, Sherry "Dust" Walker, played by Scituate resident Tracy Riddell, is a comic lift to this play which tackles some heavy emotional issues. Sherry goes through the play seemingly oblivious to family crisis and the need for family loyalty, in favor of yoga, mediation, and behavior similarly to what might have been expected at Woodstock. Riddel, a 1990 University of Massachusetts graduate, has appeared in a number of local productions such as "Steel Magnolias", "The Women" and "Inherit The Wind."

Paige Walker, played by Keely Burke, appears to be the baby sister in the play. Throughout both acts, she struggles with the emotional and physical ramifications of her relationships with men. Burke played a very believable role as a young woman not yet mature enough to enter into a meaningful relationship.

"Belles" also featured the return of Disa Roberts to the Cohasset Dramatic Club a number of years in California doing commercials and film. She portrays Roseanne Johnson, the wife of the local minister, who learns during the course of the play that her husband has decided to leave her in favor of a dog and a recreational vehicle to travel across country. Roseanne struggles to discuss her problems with her sisters and the struggle illustrates painful the lack of a true friendship between the sisters. Roberts was definitely a highlight in this production.

Finally, there is Peggy Reese, played by Scituate resident Anita Ahern. Peggy, a widow, lives at home with her mother and concentrates on her mother's needs at the expense of her own quality of life. It isn't until the final moment of the play that the audience sees any recognition by Peggy of her own needs.

"Belles," as directed by Lisa Pratt and produced by Joe and Dawn Rota, was very well performed. It tackled a very difficult production technique and was impressively successful at keeping the interest of the audience. The painful story of alcoholism, its affect on family life, and its destructive affect on family relationships and commitment was abundantly clear from this performance. This was a very moving performance of a play which deals with timely social and emotional issues.

Cub Scouts meet tests of men and machines

By Andy Krueger
Special to the Mariner

With more than a little "true grit and determination," 39 Cub Scouts of Cohasset Pack 38 competed against grueling national standards for a try at winning the Presidential Physical Fitness Award, the National Physical Fitness Award, or the Participant Physical Fitness Award sponsored by The President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, United States Department of Health and Human Services.

The President's Challenge consists of five tests of physical fitness: sit-ups, pull-ups, sit-stretch, shuttle run, and a one-mile run. To qualify for the Presidential Award, a boy must score within the top 15 percent nationwide on all five tests. The National Award is given to those who score within the top 50 percent. All participating Cubs will win one of the three awards. Those boys who ultimately qualify for the coveted top award will also be presented with a certificate signed by President Clinton.

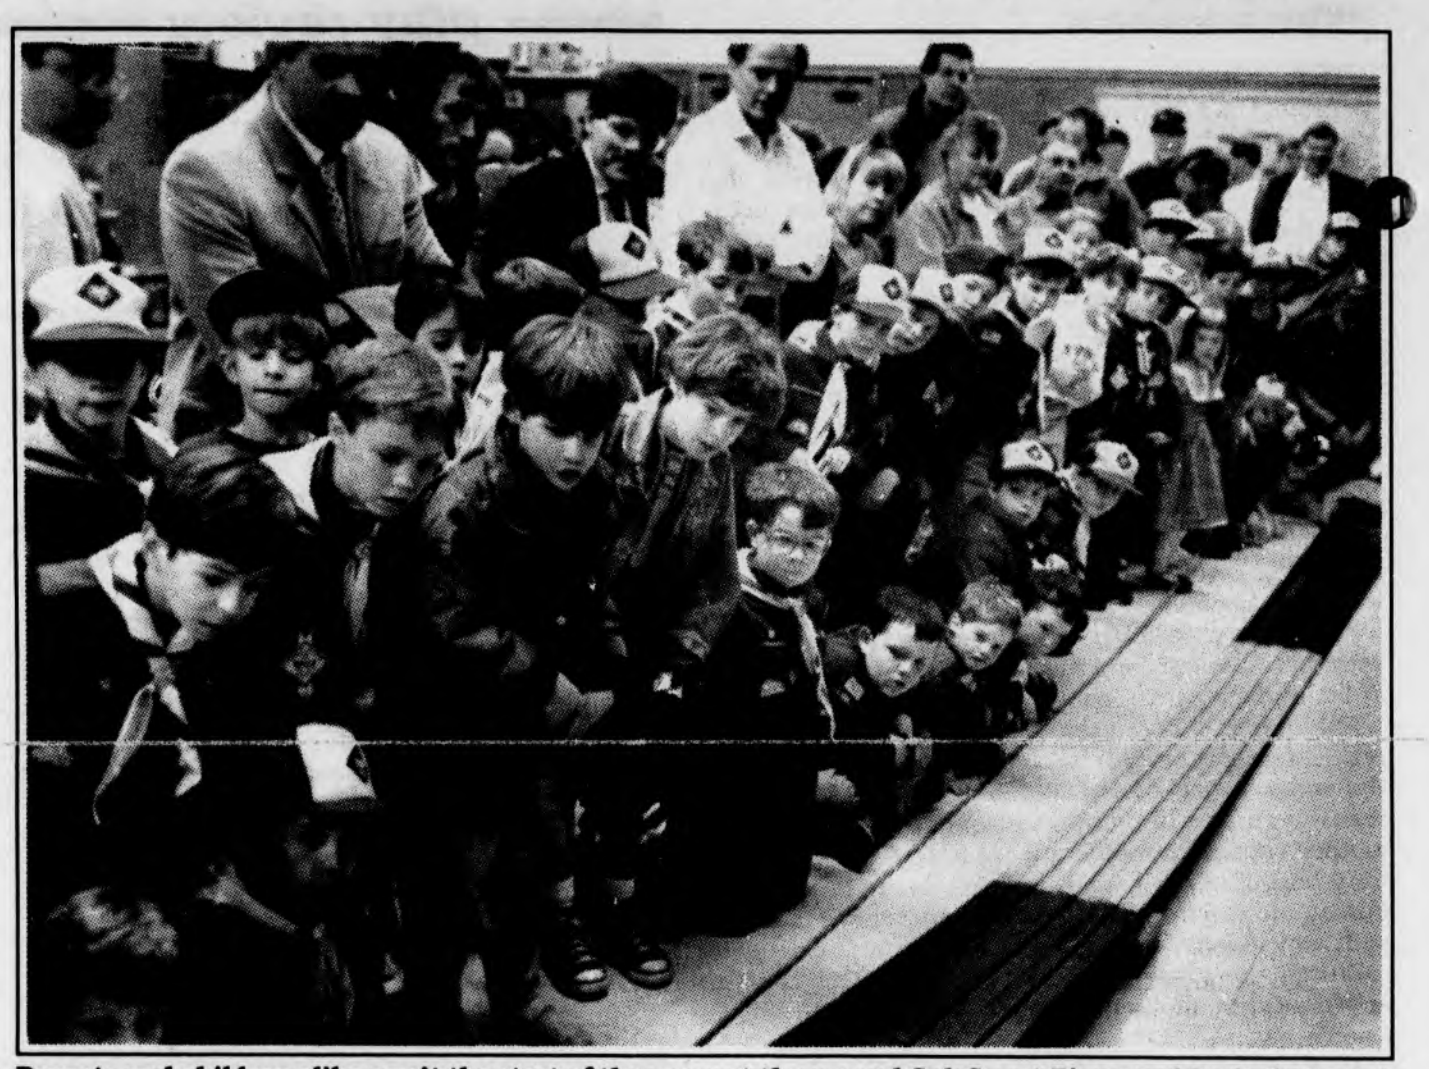
On a recent afternoon in the Deer Hill gym, with the expert guidance of physical education director Mr. Dennis Kuntz and his student leaders, all 39 participants completed the first four tests with a large number of them qualifying for the Presidential and National awards. Once winter is finally over (soon?), the mile run will be held to complete the Challenge. Stay tuned to this column for upcoming details.

Annual Pinewood Derby

Tuesday evening March 23 the air was filled with high excitement as 58 Tiger, Wolf, Bear, and Webelos Cub Scouts from Cohasset Pack 38 converged again on the Deer Hill School for the annual model car race tournament, The Pinewood Derby.

The Pinewood Derby is the national Cub Scout event for March, and is designed to promote the scouting goals of sportsmanship, craftsmanship, and family fun. Each Cub, along with his adult partner, crafts a wooden model race car to exacting weight and size specifications from a standard kit, with the shape, style, color, and decorations left to the vivid imaginations of the individual racers. The results are varied and universally impressive, as the boys vie to see who has the fastest model racer to roll down the racetrack.

First grade Tiger Cubs are invited to compete and show what skills and enthusiasm they will bring to the pack next year. The winners in the Tiger division are Scotty McArthur, Mike Rasmussen, and Andrew Busk. Next year these boys most certainly will be district competitors.



Parents and children alike await the start of the races at the annual Cub Scout Pinewood Derby last week at the Deer Hill School. (Staff photo/Buzz Wadsworth)

Wolf, Bear, and Webelos Cubs competed for the all important first three places in each division which enable them to move on to the district-level competition next month. The winners, who will participate in the Cranberry Harbors District Finals May 1, are (first, second, third places): Wolfe (second grade), Jared Krupcazk, John Dwyer, Robbie Lehr; Bear (third grade), Chris Carr, David DeVito, Matt Ogrodnik; Webelos (fourth and fifth grades), Andy Dennis, Brian Krupczak, Mike Sanchez.

Finally, the best of each division competed against each other for the Pack 38 Championship. The honors for the "Best of the Pack" go to Wolf Cub Jared Krupczak.

Special thanks for their invaluable assistance in running the Derby go to Merle Brown, District Committeeman; Jeff Forsdick, Pack 38 Cubmaster; Linda Farrag, Pack 38 Committee Chairperson; and Peter Litchfield, Den Leader. The official judges and timekeepers were furnished by Boy Scout Troop 28 of Cohasset. Many thanks to Kevin DeVito, Chris Lass, John Paul Laugelle, and Justin Maitland for their hard work keeping all of the results straight.

Board hears septic woes

The Cohasset Board of Health met Tuesday and heard from representatives of four local property owners who are seeking either variances or permission to implement emergency septic system repair measures.

Owners of property at 306 N. Main St. received approval of their request for a variance in order to remove certain materials at that location. The board put on hold a plan involving a garage at that site until some determination as to the type of footing was made.

Owners of property at 26 Parker Av. were granted a variance in order to undertake the construction of a revised septic system plan at that location. The board met with the owners' engineer before approving the request for a variance.

Property owners at 541 Beechwood also received approval from the board in order to begin emergency repairs of the septic system at that address.

Finally, Robert and Linda Simms, who were represented by engineer Michael Donovan, had preliminary plans for the repair of the existing septic system approved. Donovan promised the board that the existing septic tank would be inspected and measured in order to confirm its size and structural integrity. The Simms must also get approval from the Conservation Commission before proceeding further.

The health board also addressed the ongoing problem involving the septic system at Cushing Plaza. Having heard no new information on the situation, the board voted unanimously to reinstitute suit against the responsible parties into order to insure compliance with town regulations.

The board also decided to investigate the cost and specifications of available balers in order to assist in the town's recycling efforts. A proposal form North Shore Recycled Fibers met with some local opposition after an area resident inquired as to why no public bid was held. The board expressed some confusion as to whether the procurement regulations require a bid on this transaction. The board will look into this matter further before deciding on a particular baler to be purchased.

In one other matter, Health Agent Joseph Godzik reported to the board that he had recently spent six hours at the U.S. Bankruptcy Court. Some of that time was spent testifying regarding certain property at Otis Avenue in Cohasset which is the subject of bankruptcy proceedings. According to Godzik, the bank which is involved in this matter feels that the appraisal of the property would be drastically changed if the septic system was repaired at the property. Godzik also raised the issue of the necessity of an easement before repairs could be made. Some debate has also arose over the valuation of the easement. The bankruptcy case was continued until April 16.

Waste bans to start

Citizens utilizing the Cohasset Recycling Transfer Facility are reminded that recycling is mandatory. Newspapers, corrugated cardboard, magazines, white office paper, computer paper, glass, metal cans, plastic bottles with a "2" on the bottom, scrap metal, batteries, tires, waste oil and yard waste must be recycled.

As of April 1, two more so-called "waste bans" go into effect. The substances which will no longer be accepted at SEMASS, the town's disposal facility, are glass and yard waste. At the present time there continues to be small quantities of glass and yard waste mixed with the rubbish.

Users of the Recycling Transfer Facility are urged to keep all yard waste and recyclable glass out of the general rubbish.

around town

❑ Here comes an experience that is really worth talking about! Madeline Roy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Roy of 53 Old Coach Road, went to Russia last month to teach third-graders for two weeks.

"Maddy" is a Merrimack, NH, resident, and teaches at The Thorntons Ferry Elementary School. She stayed with a host family in Russia and probably learned as much as she taught! She went to St. Petersburg, Pskov and the Baltic republic Latvia. Her mornings were spent teaching, her afternoons observing teaching methods, and her evenings attending cultural events and sightseeing.

Maddy brought a scrapbook, made by her students, and potential pen pal letters, and hopes that students will correspond with each other.

As you know, the government was "unbalanced" at the time, and seeming not better, but did you know that every student has the basic English knowledge? She could not drink the water, had to pack WARM clothes, certainly not eat too much (so as not to deprive her host family).

All of this was made possible through the National Education Association's Project Harmony, and you can bet it was worth every nickle of the $2,000 that she had to scrape together to get there. Memorable indeed; we are proud of you and your efforts, Maddy, and would love to hear more!

❑ Yeah Izzie Salvador!! Izzie is home from the hospital, recovering nicely from recent surgery, and we know awaiting the arrival of spring so she can "get walking." Keep up your good work!

❑ Happy 25th anniversary greetings go to Joan and Paul Lawrence, and here's to 25 more!

❑ When you see Allison Dean, be sure to notice her brand new look! Allison, who just turned five years old, had her ears pierced at Dazzle for her birthday present, and she looks grand! Plus, she was one of Dazzle's best ever customers...and, she is thrilled!

Patty Smith of Cohasset (left) and Mary Doherty of Scituate stop to chat w' h McGruff the Crime dog at the 2nd Annual Hospice of the South Shore Mall Walk, held recently at the Hanover Mall. The event raised more than $43,000 for Hospice of the South Shore, a non-profit provider of health care and support services for terminally ill patients and their families.

❑ Congratulations go to Laurie Bronstein, daughter of Barry and Judy Bronstein, for making the dean's list.

❑ Before we go one sentence further, we have to remind everyone that Saturday is election day. Don't forget to get out there and vote!

❑ Do you need help with your spring cleaning or yard work? If so, we have the answer! The Appalachia Service Project's students are eager to raise money for their project and will help you with many chores...babysitting, yard work, pet walking, polishing silver, cleaning garages, serving at parties/cleanup, grocery shopping...the list goes on! Minimum donation is $5 an hour per student. Call Ami Argus (383-9325) or Carol Martin (383-6577) for details...you will not only get the help you need, you will be supporting our youth in their quest to make needy people happier with their surroundings and more comfortable. They do great work!

❑ Congrats go to Paul Bilodeau, named to the Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic Team, and who finished third in the South Shore League scoring tabulations. Paul is a senior at CHS and the basketball team will surely miss him next year. Nineteen points per game is quite a feat!

❑ Katie O'Sullivan and Kate Barrett are stupendous in their efforts. They have both been selected as National Merit Finalists, and Keri Souffrain is a finalist in the National Achievement Program. Our little school with its small student population sure does well every year, thanks to you students and CHS!

❑ James H. Walsh IV was recently appointed an overseer of Youville Hospital and Rehabilitation Center's St. Marguerite d'Youville Foundation and has also been named cochair of the committee organizing the 1993 Tip O'Neill Youville Golf Tournament to benefit the hospital. Mr. Walsh is director of marketing for Walsh Brothers Inc., an engineering and contracting firm in Cambridge, and we in Cohasset are proud to have him part of our community!

❑ This Saturday, April 3, marks the 10th year the Glastonbury Abbey will hold its auction. It will be at Hingham High School with wonderful purchases available! Everything from tickets to various "big league" teams to gift certificates, to antiques. All are there for you to preview at 1 p.m. The evening auction begins at 7 p.m. sharp, with Norm McCullough auctioneer. Admission and catalogs are free and refreshments will be available (you may pick up a catalog in advance at the Glastonbury Abbey bookstore). This auction benefits the Monks of Glastonbury Abbey, but it will also benefit you. Don't miss it!!

obituaries

Gertrude Parsons

Gertrude (Smith) Parsons, 83, of Cohasset, formerly of Providence, R.I., died March 22, at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Boston, after a long illness.

Mrs. Parsons was born in Providence, where she graduated from Mary C. Wheeler Girls' School. She attended Smith College.

She lived in Hingham before moving to Cohasset 30 years ago.

Mrs. Parsons was a member of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church and was active in its altar guild. She was a life member of the Cohasset Garden Club and a former member of the Hingham Garden Club.

Wife of the late Richard B. Parsons, she leaves a son, Richard B. Parsons Jr. of White Salmon, Wash.; three daughters, Carol Stuart of Punta Gorda, Fla., Sarah Sayre of Barrington, R.I., and Hope Schmidt of Rotunda West, Fla.; a sister, Caroline White of Rockport, Texas; 15 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. She was also the mother of the late Louise Piattelli.

A memorial service was held March 26 at St. Stephen's Church.

Donations may be made to charity.

Arrangements were made by the Downing Cottage Funeral Chapel, Hingham.

Easter story presented

The chancel choir of South Shore Baptist Church, 578 Main St., Hingham, presents the Easter story at 6:30 p.m., Sunday, April 4 at the church. Featured are gospel selections arranged by the Brooklyn Tabernacle in New York City.

Personal deliverance

Every people, every nation has its moment in which it is tested through ordeal and so defined.

For Jews, the redemptive act of the exodus from bondage in Egypt is that moment. In this passage from slavery to revelation at Sinai; adoption of the Law (Torah); purification in the desert; and finally nationhood—God's promise to Patriarch Abraham is fulfilled and continued.

When the sons of Jacob, Abraham's grandson, made their way west from the famine in their homeland Canaan, they were a ragtag bunch of nomadic shepherd tribes. They were known by the unflattering Egyptian name Hebairos (Hebrews), which loosely translates to "desert rats."

They were not enslaved by the Egyptians per se, who were actually a generous and hospitable civilization. But over time (perhaps 400 years) the Hebrew tribes degenerated into slavery.

The covenant promise to Father Abraham was kept alive by worship to the One, True, Universal God—but memory and allegiance were wearing thin under the weight of centuries of slavery. When Moses emerged to lead the tribes out of oppression, the long hard journey to nationhood began.

The significance here is dual—the children of Israel (Jacob) are redeemed both physically and spiritually through the Act and Word of God.

Monday night Jews around the world will celebrate this redemption, Passover, with the Seder meal. This is a ritual family feast that has remained intact over two and a half millennia. Often, this celebration of return, has ironically been observed by oppressed exiles living under unfriendly regimes.

The Seder (meaning Order) entails the reading of the Haggadah which includes the Exodus story, prayers, songs, games and rabbinic commentaries. All is accompanied by symbolic dishes which recall aspects of the Passover story. Then too, each family has its own traditions and dishes that personalize the feast.

Although a joyous occasion, it is no gloating celebration of triumph over the Egyptians. Indeed 10 drops of wine, symbolizing the plagues, are taken from the glasses of each participant as signs of empathy for the suffering of the Egyptians because of Pharoah's hard-heartedness. In this, the Jewish notion of the brotherhood of all humanity is expressed.

Perhaps the strongest message at the Seder table comes from the reading of Exodus 13:8:

And thou shalt tell thy son in that day, saying: It is because of that which the Lord did for me when I came forth out of Egypt.

All Jews are reminded that they too stood at Sinai with Moses. Passover is not just a recounting of the ancestral past—it is also an eternal and contemporary personal account.

This is the timeless importance of Passover that has also found its way into the other Biblical faiths, Christianity and Islam: Although the holiday commemorates historical events thousands of years in the past—it is also the recognition that we are all slaves in the personal Egypts of our souls.

Through God's Grace we may yet all be delivered from our bondages—Jew and gentile, a promise that lives through the ages.

—Richard Small

Effort of boosters is appreciated

The Cohasset Recreation Commission extends their most sincere gratitude to the Cohasset Basketball Boosters Club for their efforts conducting the 1992/1993 Recreation-Boosters Basketball Leagues and Clinics.

As one of the most popular activities among Cohasset children and youth, operation of this program necessitates hundreds of man-hours, volunteered by numerous parents and adults.

The success of this program directly reflects the time, effort and dedication of everyone involved, including coaches, division coordinators, program coordinators, and concession stand volunteers.

Without the combined volunteer effort, a program of this scope could never be made available to Cohasset youngsters.

Thanks to COA and volunteers

The Cohasset Conservation Trust wishes to thank the Cohasset Council on Aging and the following volunteers for help in assembling a mailing to all voters in the town in support of Town Meeting Article 26, which offers the town the opportunity to purchase the waterfront property currently occupied by Cohasset Colonials at the end of Parker Ave.

Helping March 17: Tillie Nardo, Louise Ward, Betty Maree, Shirley Laidow, Eileen Kurtz, Irene Porter, Olga Sawchuck, Betty Brooke, Mary Andracchio, Mary Volpe, Josephine Volpe, Sumner Smith, John Hartshorne, and Jackie Moore.

Helping March 19: Olga Sawchuck, Mary Andracchio, Tillie Nardo, Pauline Keating, Gerard Keating, Jackie Moore, and John Hartshorne.

Questions remain about pumper

To the Editor:

Town meeting wisely voted, almost unanimously, to upgrade our fire protection for many years to come by purchasing a new pumper.

Several good reasons were provided in support of the recommendation to purchase. One of the most convincing was the need to ensure survival of firefighters who have entered a burning building and are at risk from potential flash fires. As I understand it, the first engine carries a limited supply of water on board and a pumper engine should follow up quickly to maintain a flow of water from a hydrant. Without water, a room not yet on fire can get so hot that it flashes into flame so violently as to preclude survival, even of people wearing protective gear.

But if the back up pumper is sc important to firefighter safety, why is the old pumper completely retired pending delivery of the new pumper? If it works at all, surely it is much better than nothing. If the engine hasn't thrown a rod, broken a crankshaft or suffered other disabling injury, and it can still deliver enough power to spin the pump, even at less than full speed, why not keep it available for use? A centrifugal pump and its driver can be in pretty bad shape, and still deliver water, at reduced pressure.

I'm not qualified to second guess the fire department, but I'm curious. If we need a new pumper to ensure survival, isn't survival needlessly prejudiced by retirement of the worn out pumper long before the new pumper arrives? Sure, it must cost something to keep unreliable and inefficient junk limping along, and it must be replaced. But surely that assembly of tired components provides more safety (to town as well as firefighters) than total retirement until the replacement is delivered.

Granted, retirement reinforced the argument for a new engine, but maybe the retirement should now be rescinded until the new engine arrives. I'd be grateful tc be enlightened on the matter.

Food pantry to open in Congregational Church

More than 25 volunteers for work on the new Cohasset Food Pantry, scheduled to open in the rear basement of the Second Congregational Church May 4, heard plans for the operation of the project and signed up for specific duties at an orientation meeting held March 24.

Marjorie Steele, director, and Stuart Pratt, a member of the steering committee who has been carrying on a food assistance program for the Congregational Church for several years, stressed the apparent need for such a service. They pointed out that as many as 20 Cohasset families or individuals are currently getting assistance through local churches, agencies and food pantries in other towns.

Most neighboring towns, they noted, have already established food pantries to bring together the efforts of separate organizations and individuals to help people by distributing food to those in need.

The Cohasset Food Pantry will be modelled after the experience of these projects, getting food and household supplies through collections at individual churches, purchasing food from the Boston Food Bank, and soliciting surplus food from stores. The Pantry will also solicit funds and organize fund-raising activities and may request modest monthly donations from churches.

It is planned to store the food in a new basement in the rear of of the Second Congregational Church on Highland Avenue next to the Town Hall, where it will be available for recipients on Tuesdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 7 to 8 p.m. The families receiving food will be asked to demonstrate their need, but organizers stressed that no needy family will be turned away and all information will be kept in strict confidence. While participation in various government relief or social programs is considered qualification, families who are unemployed or in an emergency situation will be eligible.

"We are aiming to provide a quality service with a consistent quality and quantity of food to families in need in our town," Mrs. Steele said.

During the next few weeks, shelving will be installed in the basement area, an explanatory booklet and posters distributed throughout the town, merchants approached for donations of food, and volunteers schooled in the various aspects of the operation.

Among those heading up some of the key areas of the pantry operation are: Food procurement, Margaret Bates; Fundraising, Barbara Donahue, Denise Desmond Barbara Potolicchio, Carol Sandblom; Supervisor of volunteers, Annette Sawchuk; Intake workers, Stuart Pratt; Treasurer, Matthew Steele; Secretary, Gloria Bamford; Publicity, Osborne Ingram, Gerry Ainslie.

The new Cohasset Food Pantry would welcome additional volunteers and contributions of food or funds. For information call Margie Steele, 383-1319.

Republicans host former labor secretary

State Rep. Peter Madden of Weston, former president of State Street Bank, has been named chairman of Megatrend Luncheon Series which will be held at noon April 14, in the Plaza Ballroom, Boston Park Plaza Hotel. Highlighted will be Lynn Martin, the nation's 21st Secretary of Labor.

A former congresswoman from Illinois, cabinet member Martin believes there is a revolution in the work place and will discuss how to prepare the work force for the high skills necessary to compete in today's rapidly changing global economy. Martin was involved in negotiations for North American Free Trade Agreement, worked with government, business, education and labor organizations in Russia, Italy, France, Portugal, Poland and Czechoslovakia and traveled with former Representative William Gray, now President of the United Negro College Fund to South Africa, visiting Soweto and Capetown. In addition she viewed with government officials the military preparedness of Israel, met with leading Israelis of both parties and observed the capability of the United States military at bases in Europe and Asia.

Madden noted that special invited guests would be Gov. William Weld, Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci and Treasurer Joe Malone, and there will be a special salute to former Senators David Locke of Wellesley, Robert Hedlund of Weymouth, Edward Kirby of Whitman, Christopher Lane of Marshfield, Nancy Sullivan of Lowell, and Erving Wall Jr. of Taunton, and Representatives John Bradford of Rochester, John Cruz of W. Bridgewater, Robert Howarth of Springfield, David Lionett of Worcester, Robert Marsh of Wellesley and William Vernon of Mansfield. Also to be honored are Congressmen Peter Blute of Shrewsbury and Peter Torkildsen of Danvers. Members of the New England GOP Council will also will be attending.

Open to the public, reservations may be made by calling Polly Logan, 617-383-0899 or Mary Erwin, 696-3113.

Absentee ballots ready

Absentee ballots are now available at the town clerk's office for the town election Saturday, April 3.

You may apply for an absentee ballot if you will be out of town, have a physical disability or because of religious beliefs.

Absentee voting may be done in the office of the town clerk during regular business hours until noon April 2. A written signed request for a ballot may be sent to the town clerk and one will be mailed out. Included on the application should be your name as registered, your registration address, precinct, the address to which you wish the ballot sent and your signature. Applications may also be picked up at the office. The town clerk's office will be closed at noon April 2 in preparation for the election.

If you need further information, please call the town clerk's office at 383-9900, ext. 105, 106 or 107.

Trash dilemmas have not vanished

To the Editor:

We write to urge all Massachusetts residents to remember some simple facts about Question 3 from last fall's ballot.

Our statewide grassroots "person-to-person" campaign faced $6 million worth of negative and misleading advertisements financed primarily by Exxon, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide, and other known polluters. Unfortunately, the truth about Question 3's environmental standards for packaging, and its list of thousands of endorsing organizations, often got pushed aside.

The defeat of Question 3 leaves our solid waste problems unchanged. Massachusetts still burns and buries two billion pounds of packaging trash every year, wasting money and natural resources. One of our top environmental and economic priorities must be to reduce environmentally unsound packaging and to create better markets for the recyclable materials collected in cities and towns throughout the state.

In closing, please remember that the severe trash dilemmas that face our state have not gone away. Our efforts for environmentally sound packaging and more recycling will continue. We urge you to join us.

Community support helps bridge financial gap

Throughout the last 12 weeks, South Shore Hospital has published messages about how we are addressing our commitment to the health and welfare of the communities we serve through value-added health care services. In this final message, we'd like to address why health care needs your financial support, and deserves to be high on your priority list of the causes you want to help.

Until fairly recently, not-for-profit hospitals like South Shore Hospital could expect to generate modest revenue from a patient's stay, which was then reinvested in new facilities, equipment, or programs. But over the last few years, some complex circumstances have changed the reimbursement picture for community hospitals.

Technological advances—lifesaving but costly—combined with a significant decrease in revenue sources, have produced a difficult financial environment. New technologies are revolutionizing health care, and while these services help physicians make better and earlier diagnoses, initial costs are high. At the same time, traditional revenue sources, including government reimbursement for the growing elderly population, are shrinking.

These and a number of other issues combine to increase costs for hospitals, making it necessary to find new ways of bridging the gap between projected revenues and future community needs.

Through a continuing strategic planning process, South Shore Hospital strives to reflect and accommodate the changing needs of the South Shore communities we serve, with the help of an active volunteer board of community residents. Our boards of directors have spent many hours listening to the community's health care needs and identifying the best ways in which to respond.

A prime example is emergency care. Several years ago, our emergency department designed in the 1960's to handle 15,000 patients, was treating more than 60,000 patients annually during the 1980's. The community told us loud and clear that an expanded, modernized emergency department was needed. We listened and responded. The result was our new award-winning emergency center, opened in 1991.

This $16 million project was possible thanks to the generous community support of South Shore Hospital's first multi-million dollar fund-raising campaign. More than $3.2 million was raised, reflecting the widely acknowledged need for the project. But we can't stop there. Community support will continue to play a vital role in our ability to respond to the region's health care needs. For example:

- In 1992, $200,000 in contributions helped make possible the new 11-town advanced life support program, another big step forward in emergency care. Today, it is saving lives every day.
- Community generosity enables our affiliate, South Shore Visiting Nurse and its Hospice of the South Shore, to care for hundreds of patients who lack insurance coverage for the services they urgently need.
- Substantial support will be needed for the vital $40 million modernization and renovation project now under way at South Shore Hospital.

The initial phase of the modernization project involves construction of a new building for our clinical laboratory. The new lab will contain the latest diagnostic and testing equipment, allowing the hospital to expand the number of tests performed on-site and to report test results to physicians more quickly.

By removing the lab and other functions from the main hospital building, the project also will free space to modernize surgical, radiology, and ambulatory surgery areas. Operating rooms will be renovated to accommodate the latest technologies used in surgical procedures.

In response to consumer demand, other modernization projects will include the renovation of the pediatric unit, and addition of outpatient rehabilitation services to support at-home recovery by providing comprehensive physical therapy, including pool therapy. The pediatric unit will enhance our clinical programs for pediatric patients, and also will feature an advanced nurses station, private areas for consultations, an enhanced play area, and larger rooms to accommodate overnight parental stays.

A portion of the overall project already has been financed by a successful tax-exempt bond offering last spring, and additional funds will come from operating revenues. But a critical portion will come from the community's generosity—in a sense, the community's "down payment" or "equity contribution" to the project.

Our philanthropic goal for the modernization project is ambitious—$9 million to be raised by 1997. We are confident that this goal is not beyond the reach of the South Shore, and know we can count on strong community support as long as our hospital continues to respond responsibly to the genuine needs of the region.

For information on how you can help South Shore Hospital or South Shore Visiting Nurses, please call the South Shore Health and Educational Foundation, (617) 340-8856. If you'd like a free set of reprints of our 13-part series of health care messages, call the Public Affairs Office at (617) 340-8564, or write us.

Watch for scam artists

"It's that time of year," says Sgt. Robert Jackson.

He said that the spring often brings out scam artists who go door-to-door and offer their services.

Jackson said that police had a complaint about an individual, who sold chimney cleaning services to an elderly citizen who was charged a more than $700 for the service.

He explained that a building permit is required for any work done to a chimney besides cleaning such as adding a clean-out door.

Cohasset police contacted the chimney sweep company and have notified police in area towns, Jackson said.

Student of the month

Mike Equi

I'm recommending Mike Equi on the basis of his many contributions to our community. Mike is one of the many fine DJ's for our new radio station and has contributed significantly to its success. Furthermore, he is actively involved in two of CHS' less prominent sports — skiing and rowing. For the rowing team, Mike displays leadership and responsibility. He coxed the CHS crew in a recent race held in Charlestown. He also participated in the State skiing competition, recently held at Berkshire East.

In addition to Mike's active participation in our community life, he is pursuing his interest in art by taking Saturday classes at the Museum of Fine Arts. He is a multi-talented, responsible, and pleasant young man who deserves to be recognized as Student of the Month.

Ford is recognized

The Colonel Thomas Lothrop Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution presented this year's Good Citizens Award to Christian Ford, a senior at Cohasset High School.

Christian was selected by his peers and the faculty of Cohasset High School to receive this award for dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism. He has received the Holy Cross Book Award and is a National Merit Semifinalist. He is active on the track team, the school newspaper and works at the town library. Christian plans to major in biology in preparation for medical school.

His essay, "American Heritage and My Responsibility to Preserve It," has been sent to the Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution.

Scholarships offered

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset is offering one or more scholarships to any qualified graduating senior who plans to further his/her education.

Pitching remains top priority

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Coach Mike Gill has worried thoughts on his mind. Make that one thought. A thought that could shape the girls' varsity softball team this spring.

One would tend to believe Cohasset to be in good shape this spring in the South Shore League. With senior two-year starter Jen Knowles behind the plate, playing the role of the squad's catalyst, the Skippers return six players with an abundance of varsity experience.

Gill is confident the team will hit enough to improve on last season's five victories.

"I would expect we'll be a strong-hitting club," he said. "We have six kids coming back and that experience will help."

Team defense is not a gigantic concern with three veterans in the infield — Cilla Goff, Sarah Kirk and Becky Golden — and at least one, Vicky Maynard, starting somewhere in the outfield.

What does have Gill pacing back and forth in the Cohasset High School gym is the team's pitching situation. With Linda Hagg's graduation, Gill is looking to replace last year's workhorse. And he's looking with tunnel vision at five possibilities.

Ninth-graders Jesse Hurley, Meghan Fahey and Jen Ripley are all in the running for a spot on the mound, along with returning veterans Bridgette Corkery and Julie Good.

The idea of taking a young pitcher, like Hurley, Fahey or Ripley, and turning her into the Skipper's hurler of the future is very attractive to Gill. He knows though that he would still take a good hard look at both Corkery and Good and what they can do on the mound.

"That's our biggest challenge this year," Gill said. "We would ultimately like to develop a young pitcher if we can find someone who really wants to work at it. That's not to say the veterans can't pitch.

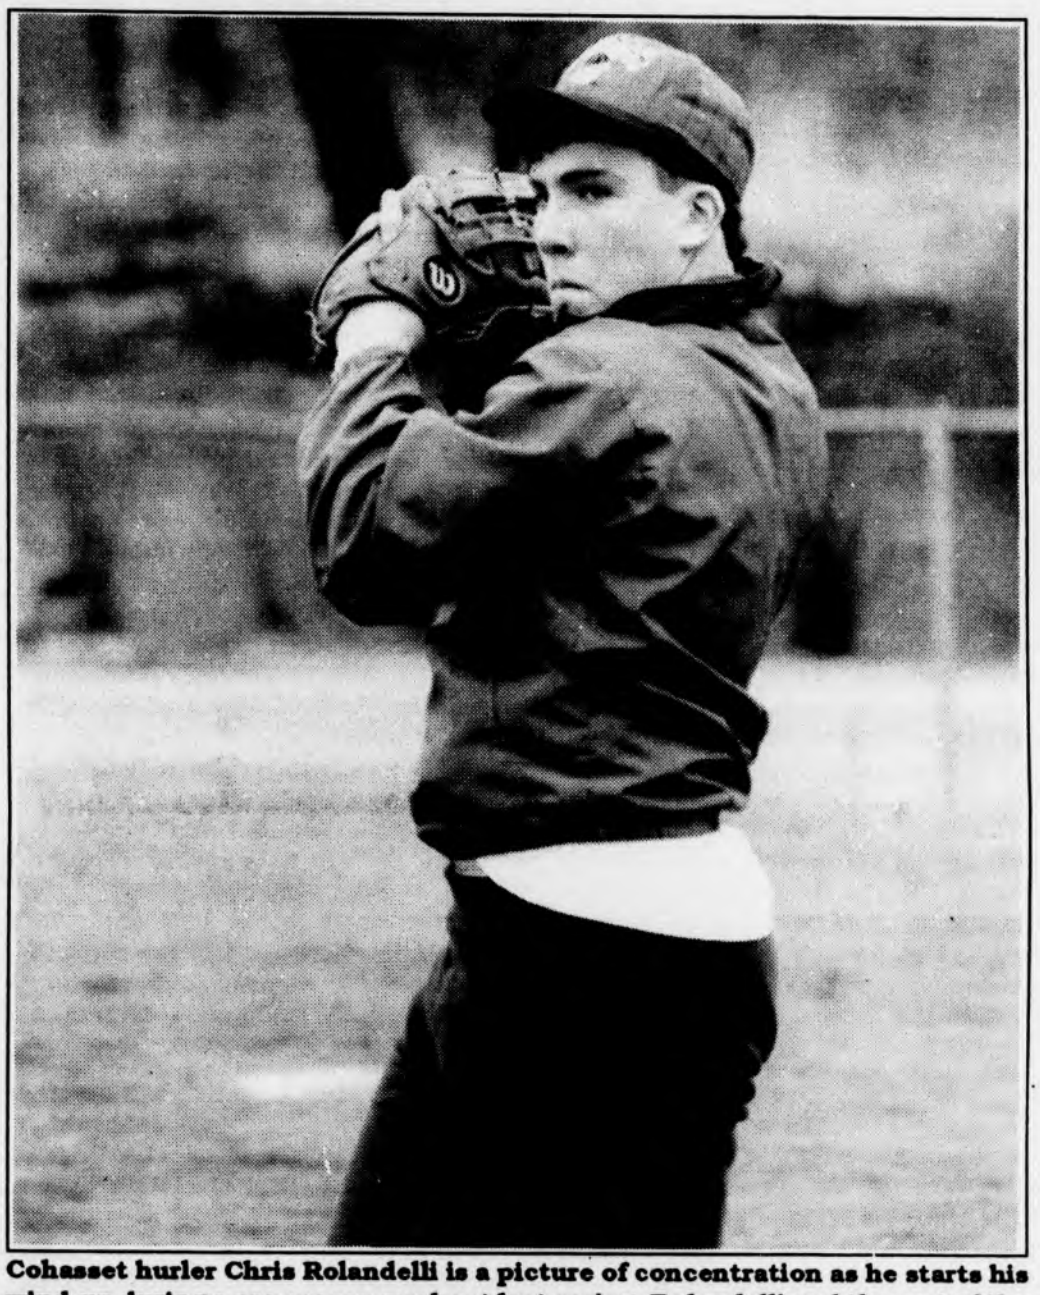
"I would like three or four who can throw strikes and a younger pitcher we can develop along the way. Of course we'd like to be able to rotate."

All three freshmen are also candidates for infield and outfield positions, while the fourth, Amy Theriault, could possibly serve as Knowles' backup and play the outfield as well.

Beyond the pitching situation, Gill, like every other coach on the South Shore, has had to deal with snow, rain and the inconvenience of conducting practice in a gymnasium. The Skippers' workouts have been limited to batting practice with rubber balls, throwing and ground balls.

"We haven't even hit a single pop-up yet," Gill said. "I don't know which new girls can catch a fly ball."

Cohasset had 46 girls try out for the squad. Gill made his final cut on Tuesday, bringing the number down to 28. He plans to keep 12 on the varsity roster and 16 on JV.



Cohasset hurler Chris Rolandelli is a picture of concentration as he starts his wind-up during a pre-season workout last spring. Rolandelli and the rest of the Skippers have been forced inside for much of this March because of the snow and rain that has limited practice for most of the South Shore teams.

Now that the snow has started to slowly loosen its grip on the South Shore, allowing at least some semblance of spring to exist, another one of Mother Nature's delights has put a gigantic chink in the start of the high school sports season: Rain.

Monday's (March 29) weather forecast called for steady rain and flood warnings north and south of Boston. The wet fields last week and this week have all but put an end to any possible baseball and softball scrimmages. If teams are able to play next week when the regular season is scheduled to begin, it will be their first games. Usually the squads have from three to five scrimmages prior to opening day. Not this year.

Track teams had it a little better as they were able to get in at least part of their scrimmage meets. Running events were able to be held on most tracks, but the field events, on wet, sopping grass, made it impossible for javelin throwers to use their proper approach. Ditto for long and triple jumpers. And the last thing a coach wants in late March is for one or more of his athletes to be injured in a scrimmage meet.

Whitman-Hanson girls head track coach Tom Murtagh said the Panthers' track was "underwater" last Friday due to the draining from the baseball and softball fields on higher ground. During the snow days, Murtagh couldn't send his distance runners on the roads for their training because sidewalks had not been plowed. Instead, they had no choice but to run circles around the high school during practice.

George McCabe, the head coach of East Bridgewater's girls track team, said this spring is the worst he has seen in his 22 years of coaching, including the 1978, the year of the great blizzard that brought the South Shore to a standstill.

Some athletes, however, may actually benefit from the foul weather outside.

Pitchers have had a much easier time warming up inside their school's gyms, rather than the raw weather they are more accustomed to so early in the season. They are less likely to get injured throwing inside. The one drawback is that they will have to get used to throwing from the mound once the weather improves and they are able to move outdoors. Still, Whitman-Hanson's varsity baseball coach Pat Forbes believes it will be the pitchers who will dominate play in the early season games. The hurlers have been able to get their work in, while the position players have had only spot batting practice at best.

The coaches are confident, though, they will be playing next week. All that is needed is a few days of consecutive sunshine to dry out the fields, in time for maintenance workers to lay down the foul lines, batting boxes and spruce up the mounds.

Cross your fingers for the sun to come breaking through.

Record field for annual road race . . .

blanks last October.

In 1992, 860 runners registered for the race, while another 150 more ran without numbers.

"We're trying to get them (unofficial runners) to register this year," Logan said with a laugh.

The women's field has swelled every year as well. Logan expects one-third of the field, about 350 of the runners, to be women this year.

The race has come to be more than just a sporting event in the town. For non-runners, it is nearly as important as it is for those competing.

"It seems almost like a ritual of spring among the people of Cohasset," Logan said. "We probably get a spectator field of one-thousand. When it's hot, the spectators hand out water and spray their hoses. The people are just unbelievably helpful. That's about the biggest comment I get from the people who run."

Another comment is the breathtaking scenery along Jerusalem Road, where the runners concentrate on cutting the tangents on the winding street. With large, luxurious homes to the right and the Atlantic Ocean to the left, the Roadrace-By-the-Sea was voted the most scenic race in New England in New England Running magazine.

Despite its spectacular view, Logan says the course is not an easy one. Weather conditions over the years have ranged from stifling hot to cold, with a raw wind hampering the runners.

"It's not that easy," Logan said. "If you get a wind, you can get some cold air."

Robert Chasen of Weymouth knows the course as well as any runner. The 1990 winner has run the race since 1980 and has been in the top five every year. Chasen says the picturesque route is a lot tougher than it appears.

"It's quite a challenging course," he said. "The course starts out fairly easy but by the time you get out by the beach at about 1—1/2 miles you can get in the wind. Then you have the rollercoaster hills on Forrest Ave."

Chasen, though, says the course is suited to his style of running because he does not possess a strong finishing kick. He tries to wear his competition down by running hard on the hills.

"I don't have quite as much foot speed as people in my ability class," he said, "so it's a good course for me. I rely on my strength and experience. It becomes more of a multidimensional race."

The field has also been competitive over the years, although the best runners don't generally register until the morning of the race. With five or six local races scheduled for the same day, Logan says many of the elite runners try to find out where the rest of the competition is going and head for the race with the softest field.

"That's pretty traditional of the runners," Logan said of the pattern that has developed since the race's inception.

One request Logan is asking of residents to ensure the safety of the runners is to restrain their dogs and not burn leaves on race day.

Beyond that, come out and cheer on the runners. It's a tradition after all.

Junior Hanover Hunt and Riding Club formed

By Trish Cox
Special to the Mariner

The Hanover Hunt and Riding Club has formed the "Junior Hanover Hunt and Riding Club."

Several junior members of the HHRC formed this division in order to represent the interests of the more than 40 youths (under 18 years of age) involved with the HHRC.

The first order of affairs at their initial meeting was to select club officers. Members elected Lauren Soper, President; Colleen Fitzpatrick, Vice President; Laura McCarthy, Secretary; and Eric Hobin, Treasurer. Adult advisors to the Junior HHRC are Sue Klein and Carol LaRose.

The Junior HHRC is planning several events. An Easter Egg Hunt, Adult Horse Show featuring the junior members as officials and a Rock & Roll Clean Up Trail Party are in the works. Dates will be announced.

The junior members and officers encourage and invite all interested youths to join. Prospective members do not have to own a horse or know how to ride to join, but should have a desire to learn about horses, have fun and make new acquaintances.

At this time junior club meetings are scheduled for one Saturday afternoon per month and will be held at the Clubhouse at Briggs Stable, Route 139, Hanover.

If you would like more information, please call Briggs' Stable, (617) 826-3191.

Cooney has a thing about baseball hats.

During the season he had a rule that on game days, Scituate players had to arrive at the rink dressed with a tie, dress pants and, most importantly, no baseball hat. Any hat on a players' head would be confiscated.

Despite this rule, many times during the season players would foolishly wear caps, only to have them taken by the coach. He finally made amends with his players when he returned the more than one-dozen hats at the team's wrap-up banquet, last weekend.

Among the hats taken: a Bruins cap, a San Jose Sharks cap and a Los Angeles Raiders cap.

Cooney said the rule is in place because he wants his players to come to the rink looking like a hockey team.

"I want them to look sharp and play like a team," he said. "And I don't ask for much. Just look like a hockey player."

Cooney is not the only coach to have a thing about hats. Indiana basketball coach Bobby Knight will not allow his players to wear hats either. However, unlike Cooney, Knight doesn't hang onto the hats until the end of the season. he throws them away right after he grabs them off a player's head. And ironically, Cooney presented each member of this year's team with a Scituate hockey can with their number stitched on the back.

The hats look great. Just don't wear them during game day.

The Scituate High hockey banquet was held at the Barker Tavern and was top of the line with scallops and roast Beef. Yum. It was worth at least two favorable articles about the team, next season.

High school banquets are usually very nice with good food and short speeches. In fact, the sports reporters at the Mariner enjoy the banquets because they sure beat frozen pizza or fish sticks.

Last week, however, I was unable to attend the Marshfield High hockey banquet, held at the Bridgeway on Sunday morning. The 11 a.m., starting time was too early for this pub-crawling sports-writer. I apologize to the hockey team and am sorry I missed the delicious brunch. If there is any consolation, I had a stale corn muffin and orange juice for Sunday brunch.

Football clinic set

A youth football benefit clinic for boys ages eight and up and with youth coaches' clinic for all youth football coaches will be held at the Archbishop Williams High School gymnasium Sunday, April 4 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The clinic will feature former Patriot All-Pro linebacker and Assistant Coach Steve Nelson; BC All-American Tom McManus; Former Archbishop Williams and Notre Dame center Jim Kinsherf, former Archbishop Williams and Notre Dame lineman and Wake Forest line coach Ted Healy; Coach Kevin Macdonald and the Archbishop Williams coaching staff, and many local Division 1A college stars.

The clinic will benefit the Christine Curran Fund. Christine is an Archbishop Williams cheerleader and honor student who was stricken with a brain hemorrhage in October. All funds will be used to defray her medical bills. Donations are $5 at the door.

Softball registration

Registration for the Cohasset Girls' Softball League will soon be under way as the season is set to commence May 1.

The league is comprised of Division 1, grades four, five and six, and Division 2, grades seven, eight and nine. Division 1 consists of six teams and will play games Tuesday or Thursday evenings at either the Barnes Field, the High School field or Beechwood Ballpark.

Division 2 will consist of four teams which will play each other Saturday afternoons at either of the above mentioned fields. Division 2 will also host Norwell each Thursday at Beechwood Ballpark. The season will end the last week of June.

The Cohasset Girls' Softball League is an instructional league. Aside from lots of fun the league will provide the girls with the opportunity to learn and improve their softball skills. Another important league objective is to promote good sportsmanship. Each year an evaluation session is held in order to assess participants' strengths allowing for balanced teams. This year the evaluation session will be held May 1 at the High School front field.

The girls will also enter a float and march in the Harborfest Parade Sunday, June 20. A picnic and softball jamboree will take place at the conclusion of the parade.

Registration forms will soon be available at the Deer Hill School and Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School. For further information call Lisa Smith at 383-2510 or Rose Collins at 383-0760.

Ropes course slated

Come join the exciting challenges encountered on the Cohasset High Ropes Course.

Participants learn safe and proper use of equipment, creation and employment of climbing knots and skills in belaying and rappelling. In addition to technical skills, climbers will engage in problem solving, team building play, receive and provide catalytical support, increase self-confidence and group trust that allows one to meet the challenges all the while having fun.

The course is offered:

Adults: Five consecutive Mondays, 6 to 8 p.m., beginning April 5.

Youth (ages 11-13): Five consecutive Fridays, 4 to 6 p.m., beginning April 10.

Young Adults (ages 14-18): Four consecutive Fridays, 7 to 10 p.m., beginning April 10.

Young Adults (ages 14-18): Advanced Assistant Training Course for those interested in seeking employment as assistant staff on the ropes course. Four consecutive weeks, 7 to 10 p.m., beginning May 8.

For information call Jack Buckley, 383-6100, 925-2428 or Susan McMackin, 383-2688.

For pre-registration call the Cohasset Community Center.

Road race set

Students and parents are urged to join the Cohasset Road Race By-the-Sea, Sunday, April 4. Walkers depart from Sandy Beach at 10 a.m. and runners depart from the Town Common at 1 p.m.

The 10K (6.2 mile) route includes ocean views.

Cool drinks are provided from CHS students and senior citizens along the way.

Entry fee is $12.

Applications are available at the Community Center, Good Sport and Curtis Liquors.

Sponsored by the Rotary Club, Road Race proceeds benefit their many in-town contributions. Last year Rotary donated $50,000 to Cohasset projects, including $18,000 for CHS scholarships and $5,000 to the CHS writing lab. In turn, please show your support by walking, running, or cheering in the 17th Annual Cohasset Road Race By-the-Sea.

At long last, town to acquire harbor-front property

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Everyone wanted Article 26 to pass, and when it did, spontaneous applause erupted in the auditorium of Cohasset High School Saturday afternoon.

With its passage, the town may soon include the Hagerty property among its possessions.

In a unanimous vote, town meeting agreed to spend a maximum of $485,000 to purchase the 2.1 acres of ocean front property which houses the Cohasset Colonials reproduction furniture kits factory.

Alfred S. Moore, Jr. of the planning board said the owner of the property has extended a below-market sale price to the town.

"It is assessed at $660,000, but it is being offered to the town for $470,000," Moore said. The $15,000 difference between the price of the property and the amount the town may spend, Moore said, is needed to pay for the costs associated with bonding.

If the town borrowed the entire amount, Moore said taxes would increase $6.90 per $1,000 of valuation. However, he added that the actual price needed to be raised to buy the property will probably be lower.

Moore said the Cohasset Conservation Trust, a non-profit organization, has been established to help reduce acquisition costs. He said the trust will match private donations up to $50,000.

Another event which may defray the cost to the town further would be the eventual sale of the factory showroom on the property. In a press release issued at town meeting by the ad hoc committee on land acquisition, the price of the house is estimated to be $200,000.

"The window of opportunity is here and we should take it now," Moore said.

Lifelong Cohasset resident 79-year-old Herbert Jason noted that the town had the opportunity to purchase the property before.

"This isn't the first time this came up," Jason said.

"It first came up in 1912 — we do things slow here."

Mary Hagerty, who owns the property now, approached the town about purchasing the land last May.

Jason said the purchase of the Hagerty land would enhance the limited amount of shoreline property the town owns.

Everyone who spoke at town meeting agreed.

"It is a great opportunity to purchase land which would benefit the town into the next century," Mark Baker of the capital budget committee said.

Representatives from committees for the harbor, conservation, advisory and selectmen all spoke in favor of the article.

James Russel Bonetti of 20 Parker Avenue said he hopes the town will purchase the property and create a wider access route to the town's boat ramp. Currently, the town has one boat ramp which can only be accessed by Parker Avenue. Parker Avenue abuts the Hagerty property.

"The amount of truck traffic down Parker Avenue will be better," Bonetti said.

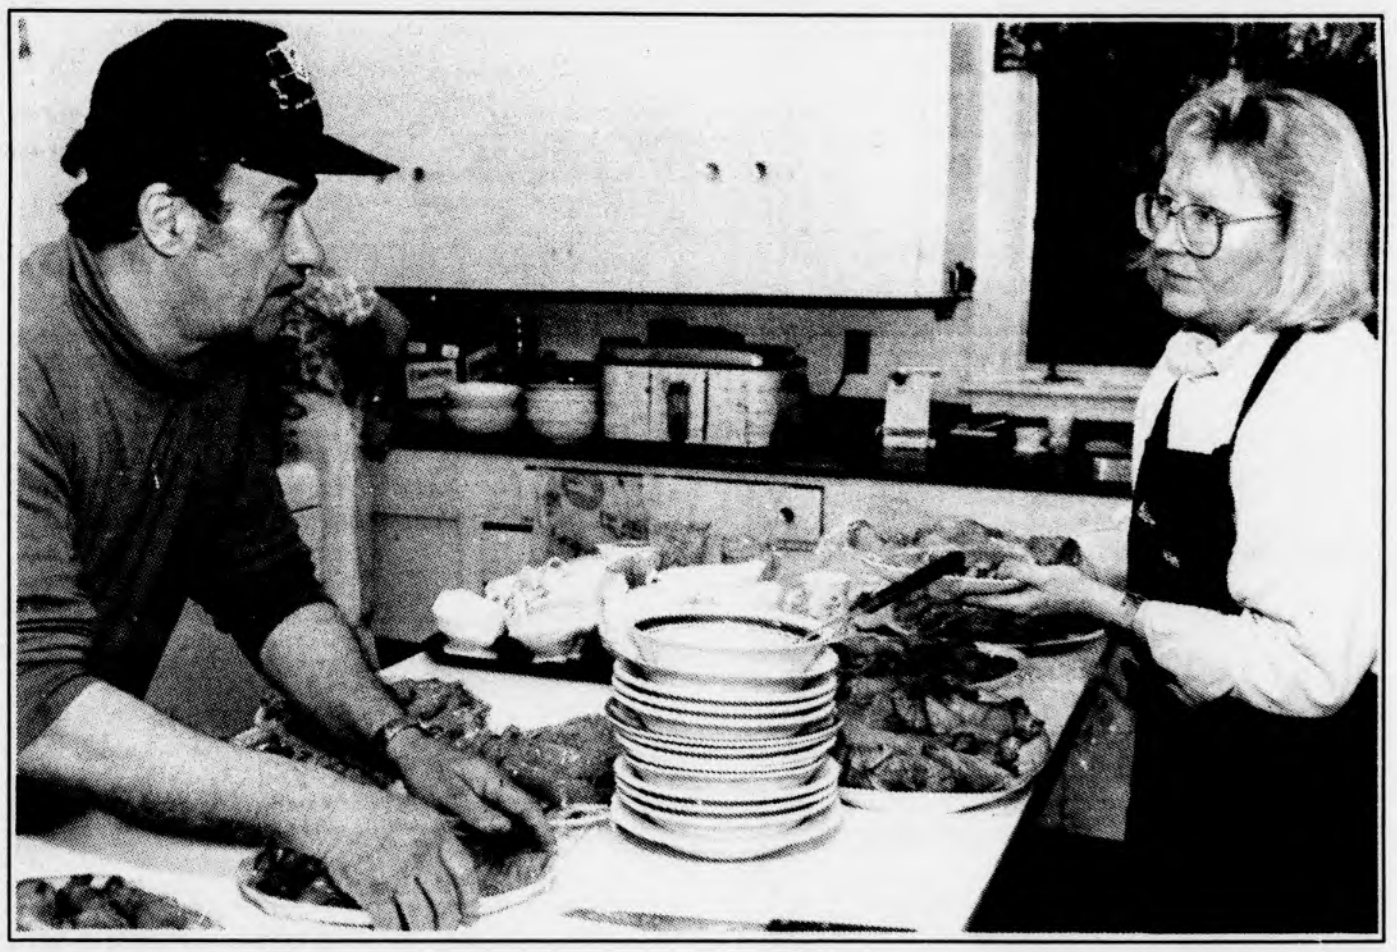
Town election could be a sleeper shortage of incumbents seeking re-election to their positions.

Selectmen Jane O. Goedecke and Martha K. Gjesteby are both running for re-election to three-year terms.

Health board member Robert V. Davenport, appointed to fill a vacancy on the board last fall, is unchallenged in his bid for election for to fill a one-year unexpired term. William Baird is seeking re-election to a three-year term on the health board.

Nancy Sandell seeks re-election to the school committee. And interim town moderator George Marlette is running unopposed for a three-year term as moderator.

Also unchallenged are Marion Douglas for town clerk, Edward M. Guild for re-election to the sewer commission, Harold Litchfield as highway surveyor, Richard Barrow for re-election to a five-year term on the recreation commission, Elizabeth Ripley as treasurer/collector, James Lagrotteria to the board of assessors, Robert Sturdy to a five-year term on the Planning Board, and William J. Montuori to the water commissioners.



From top, State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, with her granddaughter Jennifer Elizabeth Curley, chats with Francis Mitchell, who served as master of ceremonies at candidates night. In the Beechwood Church kitchen, Ed Holland and Cheryl Kristiansen cook up a feast for this year's candidates. Beechwood Church has sponsored the event for many years. Library Trustee candidates Ellery Clark, Sheila Evans, Doris McNulty, and Lucille McLoughlin take a break during a "Meet the Candidates" dinner sponsored by the Beechwood Congregational Church last week

Kids' summer art

Make this a creative summer for your children. The Children's Summer Creativity Workshops is offering art programs for ages five through 14 years. Classes meet once a week, for five weeks, for two hours per week, from Aug. 2 to Sep. 2.

The Morning Creativity program for ages five through 10 years, is partially held in a magical garden. Thru weekly outdoor sketching young artists drawings will be compiled in sketch book form to document each artists progress. Children will express various nature themes through creative use of clay, paint, collage, and printmaking.

The Evening Creativity programs for ages nine through 14 years, includes the following series: Artists in the Garden, Sports/Action Figures, Natures Patterns and Design, and Native American Art.

Classes are kept small to provide individual instruction. The Workshops have been developed to encourage children who enjoy the visual creative process, and who have the desire to develop their individual artistic skills.

Advance registration is now open, and is required to insure placement. For more information please call instructor Lynn Rizzotto at 749-2453 .

Art exhibit

There is an art exhibit in the South Reading Room of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library by the well-known local artist and sailmaker, Bill Mattern. The collection reflects the artist's long association with the sea and the beauty of nature in relation to water.

Mr. Mattern has been a sailor and sailboat racer since childhood, and has been a local sailmaker for over 50 years. His sails range from the best of racing sails to riding sails used by local fisherman. Bill takes pleasure in working with individuals to personalize sails with custom insignias and designs. He is also a well-known photographer with 20 years' experience, having earned many ribbons and awards.

Recently, Mr. Mattern has taken up painting. His watercolors emphasize the beauty of nature and man working in harmony with nature. The collection will be on display at the library through April 15.

Library trustee vacancy

Cohasset Selectmen and the Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library meet together Monday evening, April 5, to interview and select a person to fill the vacancy on the Library board caused by the death of Elizabeth Eaton in February.

Any Cohasset residents interested in being considered for this one-year position should notify in writing either Jane 0. Goedecke, Selectmen Chairman, c/o Town Hall, or Sheila S. Evans, Trustees Chairman, c/o Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

Winter library hours

Winter hours at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are: Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; closed Wednesday; Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Scholarship deadline

The South Shore Art Center will accept applications April 30 and May 1 for the Margaret Marshall Dillon Memorial Fund Award. The Dillon Memorial Fund assists people who wish to return to the field of visual art after a period of extended interruption. Applicants must be members of the Art Center at the time of application, however, there are no residency or age requirements.

A professional art jury will evaluate the potential talent of applicants as demonstrated by their submitted works of art and slides. An application form must accompany the slides or art work and should state reasons for requesting the award as well as what the applicant wishes to accomplish in the field of visual art. Final selection for the award is based on the jury's evaluation of the work and proposals submitted and will be weighted in favor of the potential demonstrated by the art work/slides (70 percent) and the proposal content (30 percent).

For more information regarding the award, please call (617) 383-9548, Tuesday to Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Summer arts at Derby

Over 20 professional artist-teachers will participate in the fifth year of "Summer Arts at Derby" at Derby Academy in Hingham.

"Summer Arts at Derby" is a comprehensive arts program for ages eight to 15, that allows the students to explore a myriad of performing and visual arts. The staff includes professional musicians, actors, photographers, painters, sculptors, filmmakers, dancers and writers. The program also includes gymnastics, sports, cooking and newspaper.

Students have the opportunity to choose their own schedules from over 50 offerings. Guest artists will also visit for special one-day workshops.

The dates of "Summer Arts at Derby" are June 28 to July 30, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. For brochures and appliations, call Thalia McMillion at 740-4766.

Cable TV topics

Thursday, April 1, Host Wigmore Pierson's guest on Pierson to Person is Scituate resident Marion Waddell discussing her monthly publication The Merry Miser and tips for saving money and time.

The second segment guests are Karen Kalbacher and Robert Johnson from the Special Olympics talking about the upcoming regional and summer Olympics for persons with disabilities.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham and on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

Easter bunny lunch

The Community Center Nursery School Easter Bunny lunch is Saturday, April 3, at the center.

The Easter Bunny will be on hand to visit and have pictures taken with the children.

The lunch menu consists of hot dogs, homemade salads and desserts, and beverage. There will also be many springtime activities and crafts for the children.

Tickets are available at the CCC office. Adults: $4; children: $3. Tickets at the door will be limited. Please call 383-0088 for further information.

Come for coffee

There will be an outreach coffee hour at the Senior Center Thursday, April 15, at 10 a.m. The goal is to introduce people who are not familiar with the council to the staff, the center itself, and to inform them about its programs. Refreshments will be served. If you or anyone you know might like to attend, please RSVP by April 12.

Hosts will be Anna Abbruzzese, Betty Grassie, and Susan Connolly.

R.S.V.P. Council on Aging at 383-9112.

Unity breakfast slated

The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce urges members of town departments, committees and non-profit groups, as well as members of the public at large, to join them April 6 at the Chart House Restaurant for the second Unity Breakfast.

This meeting is designed to acquaint all of Cohasset with their elected and appointed officials, and to give members of all departments and committees a chance to say a few words about how their department works and what their goals are for the coming year.

This year's topic will be "How we can make our department more 'User Friendly.'"

The Breakfast will begin at 7:45 a.m., with doors opening at 7:30 a.m. Tickets are $10/pp, with $3 of each admission going to the Cohasset Drug and Alcohol Committee. Reservations should be made in advance by calling Bob Martin at 383-0767, The Chart House or the Chamber at 383-1010.

The breakfast, which last year raised money for the Cohasset Lightkeepers Association, will this year benefit the town's own Drug & Alcohol Committee. $3 from each ticket will be donated to the committee, which sponsors such great programs as "Safe Homes" and "Winterfest/Drug Free Weekend."

Car wash benefit

The Appalachia Service Project is sponsoring a car wash Saturday, April 3, in front of the Second Congregational Church (next to Town Hall) from noon to 6 p.m. Donation is $5 per car.

Spring vacation fun

The Cohasset Recreation Department hosts a five-day (April 19-23) school vacation program at the Deer Hill School.

The program, which runs from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., is geared for ages five through 12. There are daily rates and special rates for families and five-day registrations.

Call 383-6791 for details. Or you may register at Deer Hill during program hours.

Marionettes to perform

The nationally known Bennington Marionettes will be headlining two shows at Hingham High School April 4, at noon and 3 p.m. This doubleheader family event will also include a reading and slide show by noted author Marc Brown, author of over 50 titles of children's books including the Arthur Series of books.
